Skips to Toronto and is in Hiding.

NOW MAKING RESTITUTION.

George T. Parsons, Bookkeeper for Gurley & Co. of New York, Flies to Toronto and Has Already Made Up Considerable of the Shortage of Which He Was Accused.

Toronto, Sept. 3.—Among the recent arrivals in Toronto is George Talbot Parsons, until lately a bookkeeper for George A. Gurley & Company, importers of cutlery, at No. 107 Franklin-street, New York. Mr. Parsons is brother-in-law of Mr. William Graham, patron of queen's rock band.

Up to a few weeks ago Parsons, who is married, lived in a neat little two seventeen-dollar-a-week house in Woodlawn and the mansion-like abode enough for a millionaire, with fashionable clothes of the finest quality and smoked expensive cigars. His wife, a lively Irish lass, as the neighbors say, was very modest. She dressed neatly, but not extensively.

Almost a year ago the Company, that Parsons was living beyond his means. His salary was $40 a week and Parsons was spending more than $100 a week. Mr. Gurley spoke to Parsons about the reports, Parsons denied them. Matters reached a climax when Mr. Gurley discovered the bookkeeper last asleep over his books, and promptly discharged him. Parsons pleaded to be retained, but Mr. Gurley was obdurate.

"All right," remarked Parsons, "you will regret it."

Parsons had been in the employ of the firm for over eight years, and enjoyed the confidence of the members of the firm. He received [illegible] and his word was accepted [illegible] the financial standing of the concern. A few bookkeepers [illegible] and he soon reported that for years Parsons had been falsifying the books. Expert accountant William Waddell of No. 71 Wall-street, discovered that the firm had been robbed during the [illegible]

[illegible] was put in the hands of Mr. Waddell. Attorney [illegible] No. 2 Wall-street, was employed to [illegible] Parsons. [illegible] Wright, [illegible] had to ride very fast and he mowed down the distance to the bunch liked. "We placed implicit reliance on the statements made by Parsons," said Mr. Gurley, "and never once suspected him of any wrong-doing. His wife came to the office frequently, and they seemed much attached. I have reason to believe Parsons has fled to Canada. His wife survives there."

"What do you think Parsons' stealings will amount to?" the reporter asked Mr. Townsend.

"That I cannot say," he replied, "it would cost thousands of dollars to find out, and we decided it was not worth the expense. We got sufficient evidence to have him indicted, and intend to charge up the amount as loss to profit and loss."

Since Parsons disappeared a thorough audit of his books has been made, and it is understood the total shortage is only some $10,000. The firm is now convinced that Parsons was not dishonest, but merely neglected to enter up in the books certain items he received while he was on a spree. Since coming to Toronto the deficit has been reduced to $2000, and Parsons is engeavoring, and will probably succeed, in making up his shortage.

McCARTHY SPRINGS A BOMB.

A Sensational Appeal to the Kerry Electors By the Leader of the Irish Party.

London, Sept. 3.—Mr. Justin McCarthy has issued an appeal to the electors of the South Division of County Kerry calculated to upset Mr. Timothy Farrell, the candidate for the seat, who was chosen by the regular convention. Mr. McCarthy says that the nomination of Murphy as treason against party discipline, declares that his nomination was due to a conspiracy concerning which he (McCarthy) has been carefully silent for many years, he says, there has been an incessant campaign against the unity of the Irish party, which reached its climax in the baseless falsehoods uttered by Mr. T. M. Healy at Cardiff, when he was chosen by the Irish Parliamentary Committee had sold seats for English gold. Such a charge, Mr. McCarthy declares, means the bankruptcy and degradation of the Irish cause.

The Pall Mall Gazette's lobby reporter has had an interview with several members of the Anti-Parnellite section of the Irish party regarding the appeal issued to the electors of South Kerry by Mr. Justin McCarthy. All of the gentlemen interviewed concurred in the opinion that the document was a surprise to the party. Mr. McCarthy, they all said, had not consulted the committee of the party before issuing the appeal, and it is believed that he acted upon the advice of only Messrs. John Dillon and Thomas P. O'Connor. The document has produced a profound sensation, and has widened the breach with the Healyites.

BRITISH TRADES CONGRESS.

A Million Members Represented at the Meeting in Cardiff.

Cardiff, Wales, Sept. 3.—The twenty-eighth annual Trades Union Congress of Great Britain opened at noon today in the Town hall here with David Holmes, President of the Cotton Spinners' Association, in the chair. The chairman announced that there were present 344 duly elected delegates, representing over a million members of various unions. At the conclusion of the chairman's remarks the Mayor of the city delivered an address of welcome to the delegates. The Mayor, in the course of his speech, alluded to the growth of Cardiff, which, he said, in this and other respects, is supposed to resemble Chicago. Here Mr. John Burns interrupted the Mayor by crying out: "I hope not." The interruption was received with laughter. The Congress then proceeded to the election of a president. The balloting resulting in the choice of Mr. Jenkins, a shipwright. Mr. J. H. Wilson decided to postpone until to-morrow the challenge of the action of the Parliamentary Committee in excluding certain delegates.

85 BUSHELS WHEAT TO THE ACRE.

Enormous Yields Vouched For By The Edmonton News in the Northwest Territories.

Portage la Prairie, Man., Sept. 2.—Harvesting is still in full swing west of Minnedosa, but nearly finished up this side, and will be soon over all along the line. Threshing has commenced this side of Neepawa, and stacking is going on as far as Rapid City. Weather here the past few days has been nearly perfect.

In reply to a Wisconsin man's query the Edmonton News says oats will average from forty to ninety bushels per acre, wheat, twenty to forty, barley forty to sixty, rye, flax and other grains are grown there, but there is nothing positive as to the yield. Potatoes will yield from three hundred to five hundred bushels per acre. It adds in its editorial column: Oat yields of 125 bushels per acre of oats and 85 bushels of wheat per acre have been verified by outside parties besides the yield of potatoes mentioned above. It says that wheat testing is general and the safety of the bulk of the crop is assured. In all the principal wheat districts there is no damage to speak of, except on low-lying land, where some damage is done.

The Morden Monitor says the agony is over and taces beam with smiles over a crop all safe. Stacks are springing up all over the district as far as the eye can reach. One hundred and four young cattle were bought in Morden last week and taken west to be fed in Alberta. Over $20,000 will be spent around Morden in that way recently.

The Pilot Mound Sentinel hopes the success of this year's crop won't lead to a return to the system of big farms. Crop alone as was practiced in Manitoba some years ago. It thinks such a thing would be disastrous.

The Winnipeg Commercial says the old crop is moving around. Wheat this year that they will be able to almost supply the wants of the city. A correspondent from Hilton calls for another elevator, and says there is only one to handle the crop of hundreds of bushels. The Commercial deprecates booming the crop and overestimating the yield, and says its effect is to keep prices. It also says many of the returns sent in are wild guesses. This may be so, but your reports are as accurate as can be obtained.

C.P.R. NOT ALARMED

At the Alleged Combine to Kill Its Oriental Business

Montreal, Que., Sept. 2.—The New York World story to the effect that a new railway and steamboat combination had been formed to wrest the round-the-world business from the Canadian Pacific, has not created a panic at the offices of the last named company in this city. The scheme to get control of the traffic is stated to be [illegible] joked by C. P. Huntington, president of the Southern Pacific, and when your correspondent showed the article to Mr. T. G. Shaughnessy, vice-president, spoke as follows: "I feel confident that Mr. Huntington would not be so unmindful as to send out the Canadian Pacific without giving us a few days warning at least. The Canadian Pacific," continued the vice-president, "has received its large Oriental and round-the-world business on its merits alone, simply because it has the best railway [illegible] scenery and the best steam-

2.40 class; purse, $200; mile heats, best three in five; entrance or any other road [illegible] Summaries:—Fred Wood, Belleville, Dr. Jonesa M.P. for Gaspe, is doing a great deal of work these days, its latest effort being to attack upon the floor of the House the sword tickets. Mr. W. F. Maclean, M.P. for East Toronto, says that his colleague a young member, and says The World is one of the most fanatical Protestant papers in Ontario. Mr. Maclean, he continues, holds a mandate from the people, which obliges him to be a faithful example of respect for the laws and the constitution, but his prejudices and his hatred for everything French and Catholic cause him to forget his duty, and, although he admits that a great injustice has been done to the Catholics of Manitoba, he does not wish the Parliament of Canada to interfere. The Maclean admits in fact, if he is pushed to the wall, that it is a great misfortune that Catholics should be forced to appeal for the support of schools that their children cannot attend. Mr. Joncas continues in this strain at considerable length, but declares that sooner or later Mr. Maclean and those who work with him will have to give way.

Labor Day was celebrated here today in a pretty general shut-down of business. The procession was hardly as long as formerly, although the turnout was fairly good. There was a general absence of politicians, Mr. Lesage, M.P., being about the only legislator in the ranks. There were also to have been a little friction between the members of the labor movement and the church, consequently there was no religious ceremony amongst the Roman Catholic contingent. On the whole everything passed off well.

The watchman named Robert Nichol, who came here a short time ago from Orangeville, was accidentally killed at Montreal Junction last evening.

MOUNT TACOMA MAY ERUPT.

Every Indication of Its Approaching Activity.

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 3.—Mountain climbers from Mount Tacoma report steam, smoke and gas belching from the foot of the Nisqually Glacier, where the Nisqually River has its source. They were much alarmed by the strange phenomena. The people up the Nisqually River valley would not be greatly surprised if the mountain should begin belching lava. At the rim of the crater southeast of Columbia crest the ground is quite warm notwithstanding the arctic atmosphere of the summit.

Good Crops on Manitoulin.

Manitoulin Expositor.

Arthur Eade has done the threshing for quite a number of farmers and says the average yield for fall wheat is about 36 bushels to the acre; oats 48 bushels, and barley is a very fair crop. The straw is very short, but the grain is a good quality.

OBJECT TO "PHROCHS"

Valley of Glencoe May Be the Scene of a Scottish Riot.

London, Sept. 2.—The Valley of Glencoe, the scene of the historical massacre, promises to be the scene of rioting shortly if Lord Archibald Campbell has his own way. He has announced that Mercury Cassels-Harpies band of a dozen Highlanders, and he proposes to march through Glencoe on the evening of Sept. 9, playing Pibrochs. The descendants of the MacDonalds are up in arms against the action upon the part of a descendant of the Duke of Argyll, who was instrumental in the massacre, and they threaten to attack the party. Lord Archibald Campbell has applied to the police for protection but he refuses to abandon the idea of marching through the glen.

LABOR DAY SPORTS

Two International Cricket Matches in Progress.

The United States Makes a Poor Showing Both in New York and Toronto—Orion Beaten by Comeg—Johnson Defeats Sanger and Tyler.

Fine weather favored the 500 spectators of the international cricket match between Canada and the United States on Queen's cricket ground, Toronto, to-day. Canada proved decidedly superior to their opponents, who evidently are a lamentably weak team. Bristowe of Ottawa was absent and it, S. and Lyon took his place.

The Canucks won the toss, and their innings lasted 1 1-2 hours, ending with the score at 126, while the visitors were disposed of in 70 minutes for 45.

The length of the innings of the home team was attributable to the creditable partnership of Wadsworth and Pegley during the two hours they were together. 51 runs were compiled, 30 of which belonged to the former. No little credit, however, is due to the Manitoban, who batted only 34, but by careful play contributed nearly half the large score of his team. Wadsworth's score is the second largest made in a match between teams played on Canadian soil. Saunders and Bilton started out well, the first wicket putting on 36.

The visitors were totally unable to deal with Laing's lightning breaks, Bolden being the only one who seemed to be equal to the occasion. After this Uzelle took the wicket of Pugsley, and Laing brought about the finale in pettting Dr. Bolden out by a neat performance of the bat trick.

Batting for the remaining half-hour which was left Martin and Boyd went in for the Canadians, but both succumbed to 4 and 2 before adjournment. The scores:

Seaforth Champions of the C.L.A.

Brampton, Sept. 2.—This afternoon the protected lacrosse match between Fergus and Seaforth was played off on the Brampton Athletic grounds, and resulted in favor of Seaforth by 4 to 2.

Some delay was caused setting proceedings. Finally Mr. Douglas was selected as referee, and W. C. Milner and James Collins umpires, all belonging to the association of Brampton. After the game had been formally started Seaforth got the ball, and rushing it down the field by good combination, Ferguson made a determined effort to win, but after 3 minutes' effort failed, and Seaforth rushed again, Brown doing the trick.

Fergus again gained ground after scoring the fifth game in half a minute, Ferguson netting the ball through.

The sixth game was won by Seaforth after 31 minutes' play, by Freeman, attended by Boland and Brown, Seaforth goalkeeper fumbled and let the ball go through his legs for a goal.

The quality of the play was about even, both teams showing considerable combination work and team play, but generally it was a scrambling game. Fergus only had a great many chances to score, but failed to take them. Ferguson's home player, perhaps their strongest man, was off which may in some measure account for the result.

Their victory yesterday gives seaforth the championship of the C.L.A.

The St. Catharines club, chafing under the decision of the executive in regard to the Excelsiors to play home and home matches, but that Seaforth should play as it is ill and two or three other players unavailable.

News of the Penny Expedition.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 3.—The Gloucester fishing schooner John E. McKenzie, Captain Gilpin, arrived from Greenland, which arrived here this morning, reports that the Penny expedition steamer Diana left Upernavik on July 15. All on board were well. She passed the Alert Harbor, which was waiting her arrival there. The Alert then sailed north for Penny's headquarters. The steamer was clear of ice as far north as reports could be obtained. The schooner was 200 miles north of Cape Discovell, and saw none. She anticipates a splendid chance for the Kite reaching her destination.

PATTERSON SWORN IN

As Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba

AT OTTAWA ON LABOR DAY.

He Left the Capital Yesterday to Assume His Office—Prof. Prince's Study of the British Columbia Fisheries—The Separate School Difficulty Bridged Over.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 2.—Hon. J. C. Patterson, the new Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, and Mrs. Patterson left for Winnipeg to-day via Toronto. The ceremony of swearing in the new Governor took place in the Privy Council Chamber this morning, there being present Sir A. P. Caron, and C. H. Tupper and Hon. Mr. Oulmet. The oath was administered by Mr. McGee, Clerk of the Privy Council. At a meeting of the Cabinet held subsequently, Hon. G. E. Schultz, the late Lieutenant-Governor, was appointed administrator of the province pending Mr. Patterson's arrival.

Labor Day was observed as a general holiday to-day. The weather was superb, and the usual parade was held in the morning, but it did not come up to that of last year owing to a split in the ranks of the labor organizations.

Major Sherwood, Commissioner of Dominion Police, has returned from New York, where he had been in connection with the prosecution of a gang of counterfeiters who had been captured by the police of Gotham. A number of Canadian bills were found among the "stuff" discovered by the detectives.

There are further developments in connection with the Separate School controversy. In order to overcome objections of Trustee Sequin, who was the only dissenting voice, the Christian Brothers will be supplanted in St. W. B. Nogarey's Ward school by nuns. The schools will accordingly reopen tomorrow.

DR. MONTGIE ELUCIDATES LABOR.

The Secretary of State Speaks at the Hamilton Labor Day Demonstration.

Hamilton, Sept. 2.—The Trades and Labor demonstration to-day was a huge success, and everyone is talking of either took part in the procession or witnessed it. Dundurn has never had such a large crowd, and the day was spent most pleasantly. The procession, which was the largest ever seen in the city, represented largely the manufacturing interests of the city. After reaching Dundurn Park an excellent program of games was run off, and there were music and speeches galore. All the bands in the city were engaged for the occasion.

Edward Williams occupied the seat of honor on the platform and with him were W. H. Montague, Secretary of State, and A. Wright, in splendid oratorical form entertained the immense gathering. The Secretary of State spoke in complimentary terms of the present growing greatness, and how her sons could win distinction wherever they went, instancing the victory of Private Hendhurst in winning the Queen's Prize at Bisley. He congratulated the Trades and Labor Council on their good work and his remarks about trade unions were not calculated to injure any. He referred briefly to the harmonious relations existing in Canada between capital and labor, and especially in the labor movement. The speaker was received enthusiastically.

One of the interesting events was the tug-of-war contest between the champions of the Dundurn Park and the Barton men. The result was a draw, as in the final pull the Barton men broke by only a quarter of an inch while to win it is necessary to pull half an inch. The feat of the Zorra anchorman holding three of the Barton men who did not come off, owing to a hitch in the arrangements.

In the evening Hon. W. H. Montague presented the prizes. The Rambler bicycle team won the team road race.

A SUFFERING ARMY.

Borne Down by a Relentless Foe.

The great army of sufferers from various chronic complaints joyfully welcome Chase's K. & L. Pills because the foster parents of their aches and pains are the Kidneys, which, on account of a disordered condition, are unable to relieve the blood of uric acid poison, which is deposited in the joints, producing on the first provocation irritating aches and pains in the bones, joints and muscles. The reason that Chase's Pills relieve and cure is their wonderful power in restoring degenerate Kidneys to a perfect and natural condition, without which the system is supplied with blood teeming with poison that adds fuel to the fire of rheumatic complaints, demoralizing the entire system and rendering it liable to a complication of diseases terminating in dropsy, di

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, SEPT. 3.

"PRACTICE WHAT YOU PREACH."

The Sun, in its issue of Saturday evening last, introduced an article on Labor Day in the following gushing strain:

Next Monday is a holiday—a labor holiday. It is a statutory holiday, and on it the laborer may cease from his toil. But it is doubtful if the general public understand its meaning or significance. We all know the significance of the Queen's Birthday, of Dominion Day, of Christmas and New Year's Day. We celebrate and honor on these days the birth of our beloved Queen, the birth of Canada as a nation, the birth of the Saviour of the world and the birth of another year. But in celebrating Labor Day we are not celebrating a birth, but rather an emancipation day—emancipation from much of the oppression and wrong of the past.

To show the consistency of the management of the Sun Publishing Co., we may mention the fact that while their employees and other papers were broiling and sweating in the sun, and watching the bicycle races, the employees of the Sun were enjoying their "emancipation Day" in the cool shades of their office, getting out their regular evening edition, just to show the enterprise of the "boom" organ. We are credibly informed the men kicked but the management was obdurate.

By the way is this a the same journal that advocated the formation of a typographical union a few months since and drew glowing pictures of workingmen's right. Such treatment of employees is on a par with the action of the Street Railway Company in deducting ten cents from the pay of their men because they quit work at 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. "Practice what you preach," is a good sound motto we would commend to the observance of the management of the Sun Publishing Company.

EDITORIAL BREVITIES.

In the new Parliament there are 131 graduates of Oxford, 110 of Cambridge, 24 of London, 31 of Scotch, and 20 of Irish universities. There are no engineering difficulties, and only two locks would be needed. The cost for a canal seventy feet broad at bottom and twenty-five feet deep would be about 200,000,000 marks, or one-third more than that of the Baltic-North Sea Canal.

The experts have tried every remedy to stay the progress of this pest, but without avail, and six years ago the vineyardists of the Sonoma and Napa Valleys ploughed up all their vines and replanted the ground with resistant stock. The experts believed that all non-resident vines were doomed to destruction by the phylloxera. But reports have recently come to the State Inspector of Orchard Pests that a material falling off in the ravages of the pest has been noticed for some time. Vines once affected by it are now almost free. The Inspector has begun a thorough investigation of the pleasing phenomenon. He thinks some natural enemy of the pest has appeared, or that some deadly disease has attacked the phylloxera and is exterminating it. Whatever is the cause, the result will mean great gain for the vineyardists.

The Scotch novelist, S. R. Crocket, was at one time pastor of a country church at salary of $1,200 a year. His income at the present time is estimated at $12,000 annually. He is an early riser, and writes as follows concerning this habit: "Every morning, summer and winter, I've had my cold tub, and am ready to begin work at 4:30 o'clock. I should feel I'd missed one of the keenest pleasures of life in missing the sunrise. I always go out to look at it, no matter how busy I may be. I seem to see the world recreated then, with a pleasure in the sense of being newly born myself. Perhaps I've gone to bed [illegible] discovered, feeling it is not—never can be—in me to do the work I would do. But in the dawn everything seems possible to me. Six hours' sleep is all I take, because it's all I need." Mr. Crocket is a typical-looking Scotchman, with a full beard and a brawny arm.

The Times objected to our denunciation of the Grit policy in the election of 1891, namely unrestricted reciprocity with the United States, as disloyal—as commercial, to be followed by political, annexation.—Belleville Intelligencer.

And the Times objects to it yet as pure, unadulterated humbug; and it gladly pays the Intelligencer the compliment of saying that it believes that journal fully appreciates that fact and feels that it cuts a very sorry figure in the role it is playing.—Hamilton Times.

At last we have the Times' real opinion of a gentleman who, when he was leader of its party, that journal extolled as the embodiment of genius and wisdom. Mr. Blake will not, however, suffer from the Times' denunciation. His patriotism in condemning and refusing to support a policy which he considered disloyal will ever be remembered by his fellow Canadians.

attention just now is a bush clematis, which bears very little resemblance to these well-known climbers. This is the clematis Davidiana, which grows in bush form, three or four feet high, and yields great panicles of beautiful blue flowers, which are very fragrant, as well as showy. The foliage is rich-looking, large and luxuriant, making a compact, useful bush for the lawn at all times; but when in bloom, bearing many clusters of the beautiful flowers, it is one of the greatest attractions of the flower garden. As the bush is perfectly hardy even in our northern climates, and begins to bear when very young, this will doubtless be considered a necessity in all well-stocked flower gardens when its desirable characteristics are appreciated.

ENEMIES OF THE ROSE.

Fighting the August Insects—Use of the Sprayer.

It is generally supposed that the insect enemies of the rose are confined to the early part of the early spring, and the June rose bugs have disappeared. But there are other pests to fight during the summer and throughout the month of August. The bushes must not be neglected now that the profuse June blooming is over; keep them free from insects and the fall blooming, as well as next season's display will be much more abundant in consequence. The rose slug and the rose-leaf hopper are the most troublesome of the summer plagues. We are told that the rose slug in the young or larva of a four-winged saw-fly. It eats the pulp of the leaves, giving the foliage a scorched appearance. The eggs hatch in about two weeks, and they become full grown in three weeks. They have a small round yellowish head and a green body, which is soft and nearly transparent. Leaving the bushes, they burrow in the soil an inch or two and make oval cocoons of silk mixed with particles of earth. They remain in these until the following season, when they emerge as flies. It is important to destroy these slugs before they leave the bushes to form their cocoons if we would destroy the next year's pests. Thorough spraying with hellebore or insect powder, just as long as there is any sign of a slug is the best remedy.

RAMBLERS' LABOR DAY MEET

GREAT RACING ON THE AGRICULTURAL GROUND TRACK.

Canadien surprises the Local Men—Harry McKellar Takes the Good Things in the Class A Open—Lockett Wins the Club Handicap—The Canadian Speed Merchants Make Good Sport—Notes.

Yesterday was ideal weather from a spectator's point of view for bicycle racing. A bright sun and a cool wind made it very pleasant for the 1200 people who attended the Ramblers' races on the Agricultural grounds, and the racing was of that order that pleased and at times highly excited the big crowd. There were no records broken, owing to the high wind blowing from the southward, but the finishes were all close and every event was ridden out to the last inch. Harry McKellar proved too fast for the other Class A men. In the Class B events McLeod, the Canadian champion, Marshall Wells and T. B. McCarthy made hard fights and the spectators were treated to some real good racing in these events.

There were five starters in the novice and the time was good. Carscallen won the race on ally in the stretch, and Frot Smith, of Campbellford, beat Ashley out for the place.

Marshall Wells won the one-third mile flying start by a matter of inches from McLeod, who was only a short half wheel ahead of McCarthy.

McKellar had an easy thing of the one mile open Class A, but Lockett beat McKay, of Kingston, easily for the place.

The tandem race could not be put on owing to the narrow turn in the stretch, which would make it dangerous going for three machines. Brown and Gibbons were sent to beat the track record made on the 3rd of September last, of 2:18. They reeled off the mile in 2:13 2-5 with something to spare.

The one mile Class B was paced by Young and Brown on a tandem. McCarthy jumped behind the doubles at the word go and held the place despite the combined tastics of the other riders of spurting ahead of the tandem and taking the pole and forcing the tandem out. He won by about ten inches, with McLeod second and Wells close up.

There were six starters in the one mile 2:40 event. The judges decided to give the second prize for pace making, and Carscallen made up his mind to have the second place. He waited two laps and then dropped back to give place to Lockett, who won easily, with Carscallen second. In this race was the only tumble of the day. Evans of Peterborough, and McKay, of Kingston, collided and went down, but not seriously hurt. Ashley lost a pedal concern. ... to drop out.

The three men started in the Class A five mile open, and McKellar won in the last ten feet by inches from Lockett, who ... Smith, the other starter. ... fourth mile had ... words, ... pplied race ... fine ... Brown ... Wright, ... Frost, and Smith, 200 ... had to ride very fast and ... he mowed down the bunch and reached the 200 yard men on the fourth lap. The positions were unchanged till the riders were turning the south turn, where Carscallen shot out of the bunch closely followed by McKellar. It was a pretty race between these two down the stretch and many on the grounds thought Carscallen had won, but he was beaten by a very narrow margin.

The last race of the day was the five mile club handicap for the challenge clock held by John Frost since the 24th of May. There were four starters, in the following positions: Lockett, scratch; Ivers and Frost, 150 yards; Moon, one third of a mile. Lockett had a long pull to catch Frost and Ivers and for six laps it looked as though he would have to give up, but he finally put on an extra effort and caught Frost. He contented himself by riding on Frost's rear wheel for the rest of the distance to within one hundred yards of the tape, when he went away and won easily. Ivers and Moon did not finish.

NOTES.

The attendance was large and the spectators were well satisfied with the racing.

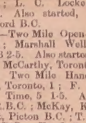

The club were sorry that so many of the entries did not make their appearance on the track, but they had no control over men who were hundreds of miles away.

Marshall Wells made many friends while here and he is without doubt the most popular racing man of the Canadian string to-day.

Dr. and Mrs. Eakins, who left for Europe on the 24th of May, arrived home on Saturday night, having "come over" by the Vancouver. The Doctor's visit had professional as well as pleasurable objects in view, and during his absence he has visited the hospitals of London, Edinburgh, Paris, Berlin, etc. After spending five weeks in London they proceeded to the continent, a month in France, Germany and Switzerland and then two weeks more in London. They report the weather as exceptionally fine, a larger number than ever of Canadians in Europe, and return in the best of health.

We were gone a fortnight. On our return the enthusiasm of friends was great. One could have imagined we had taken a city. Even the old dog, "Cooley," wagged his tail so frantically and pushed his demonstration so far that we had to call him to order. We were surprised to see the change in the fields, which from pure green had turned to gold. This section boasts splendid crops and the farmers are very hopeful.

A few days more and the hour of duty shall have struck. This means an early return to Belleville. Well, I have at various times passed through the better part of Canada, some of the States, and on the continent, yet for a spot where one can feel it is good to live give me our own bright little city of the bay.

I remain, Mr. Editor,
Yours faithfully,
P. D.

The Crops.

To the Editor of the INTELLIGENCER.

SIR,—We have been hearing so much about the poor crops among the farmers the last few months that they would not have come to see for themselves, so I thought I would say a word in reference to the crops in the fifth and sixth concessions of Sidney. Mr. S. Bradley's threshing machine started out on July 29th and has only been laid up one and one-half days in five weeks and his work enough promised ahead to keep it busy for some time to come. With a good many farmers the crop is not up to former years, but in several cases they have more bushels of grain than they had last year. Mr. Alfred Thomas of Sine, in the 6th con., on Aug. 28th, 857 bush. consisting of peas, 50 ½ rye, 20 ½ barley and oats, 786 ½. The peas, all bush., grew on twelve acres of ground. I think you will agree with me that this is a good yield for any year. He has another barn filled with peas and oats and about twelve or thirteen acres of buckwheat unthreshed. He also threshed for George Bell, about half a mile west of Thos. Sine's, 230 bush. of oats and 30 bush. of wheat. Any person ever looked at, which grew on scarce ten acres of land. I just mention these crops because they are up among the sand hills Quite some people think are no good, so I think Mr. Editor, this will be news to a few and may have a tendency to help them. Hoping you will excuse me for taking up so much room for full facts.—YERMILYEA & SON

THE BOYS AT SCHOOL.—Boys who are away at school should always have on hand quick and reliable remedy for sudden attacks of Cramps, Diarrhœa, or Dysentery, for a physician is not always near, and a moment's delay in cases of this kind often leads to serious results. Therefore parents should supply their sons with PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER, which is as efficacious as it is simple and harmless. Directions are with each bottle, and one dose rarely fails to bring relief to a sufferer from any bowel complaint. Only 25c. for a bottle double old size.

—Anthrax is prevalent amongst cattle in several counties of New York State, including Oswego.

—A wildcat engine on the New York Sea Board Railroad ran away from the Bay Ridge depot and crashed into the rear car of the 3:30 p.m. train to Coney Island, which was standing at Woodlawn Park. The car was badly smashed, and ten persons were killed and 40 injured.

Catarrh in the Head

Is a dangerous disease because it is liable to result in loss of hearing or smell, or develop into consumption. Read the following:

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She also had severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H. Holiday Pleasures.

To the Editor of the INTELLIGENCER.

SIR, JULIENNE, Que., Aug. 30.

MR. EDITOR,—There is a time to every purpose, says the good book, and no momentmore pleasing than that which is sacred to friendship. The commencement of duty, the mind craves for rest and recreation, but after a reasonable halt, one begins to resume the journey of industry as well as to talk of auld lang syne. Memory, too, needs tapping occasionally, else a man might all too soon become a tradition. In three months' vacation the opportunities for fame and favor in some direction or other are abundant and many should be the hours happy to recall. With book and line and gun, and an eye to business, distinction should soon crown diversion. Add the sights and scents, and sounds of an enchanting nature, and if your spirits do not rise, blame the spirits. It was my pleasure this summer to participate in one of those excursions where all concern is left home and you may drink of life with "heart whole and fancy free." I confess more pleasurable hours could not well be spent. By day, we emoted not a few dwellers of the lake out of their crystalline ... treat and taught small game how redoubtable we can fire and when night suspended ... we held, asked for a ... Cooper for not ... after ... to do so.

I immediately sent (fifty miles) and purchased four bottles, and with only two applications I was able to get around, and although I have not used one bottle I am nearly well. The Surgeon's Miracle.

By JOSEPH KIRKLAND.

Well, it so happened that nobody was at home but Abe and Ephe, and it didn't take but few words before Abe was ready to set right down then and there and let anybody do anything he was a mind to with his misfortunate eyes. No, he wouldn't wait till the old folks come home; he didn't want to ask no advice; he wasn't afraid of pain nor of what anybody could do to his eyes—couldn't be made any worse than they were, whatever you did to 'em. Take 'em out and boil 'em and put 'em back if you had a mind to, only go to work. He knew he was of age, and he guessed he was master of his own eyes—such as they were.

Well, there wasn't nothin else to do but go ahead. The doctor opened up his killin tools and tried to keep Abe from seein them, but Abe he just come right over and peeked at 'em, handled 'em and called 'em "splendid"—and so they were, barrin havin them used on your own flesh and blood and bones.

Then they got some cloths and a basin, and one thing and another, and set Abe right down in a chair. (No such thing as rockers in them days, you'll remember.) And Squire Caton was to hold an instrument that spread the eyelid wide open, while Ephe was to hold Abe's head steady. First touch of the knife almost and first spirt of blood, and what do you think? That cruery Ephe wilted and fell flat on the floor behind the chair.

"Squire," said Brainard, "step around and hold his head."

"I can hold my own head," says Abe, as steady as you please. But Squire Caton he straddled over Ephe and held his head betweeu his arms, and the two handles of the eye spreader with his hands.

It was all over in half a minute, and then Abe he leaned forward and shook the blood off his eyelashes and looked straight out of that eye for the first time since he was born. And the first words he said were:

"Thank the Lord! She's mine!"

About that time Ephe he crawled outdoors, sick as a dog, and Abe spoke up, says he:

"Now for the other eye, doctor."

"Oh," says the doctor, "we'd better take another day for that."

"All right," says Abe; "if your hands are tired of cuttin, you can make another job of it. My face ain't tired of bein cut, f can tell you."

"Well, if you're game, I am."

So, if you'll believe me, they just set down and had another spell of the cuttin. Abe holdin his own head, as he said he would, and the squire holdin the spreader. And when it was all done the doctor was for puttin a bandage on to keep things quiet till the wounds all healed up, but Abe just begged for one sight of himself, and he stood up and walked over to the clock and looked in the glass, and says he:

"Be'st that's the way I look, is it? Shouldn't have known my own face—never saw it before. How long must I keep the bandage on, doctor?"

"Oh, if the eyes ain't very sore when you wake up in the mornin, you can take it off, if you'll be careful."

"Wake up! you s'pose I [illegible] when I [illegible] night, I'll be so ashamed of myself that it'll wake me right up."

Then the doctor bound up his eyes and the poor boy said "God!" two or three times, and they could see the tears runnin down his cheeks from under the cloth. Lord! It was just as pitiful as a caged bird!

How about the girl? Well, it was all right for Abe—and all wrong for Ephe—all wrong for Ephe! But that's all past and gone—past and gone. Folks come for miles and miles to see once a eyed Abe with his eyes as straight as a loon's leg. Dr. Brainard was a great man forever after in those parts. Everywhere else, too, by what I heard.

When the doctor and the squire come to go, Abe spoke up, blindfolded as he was, and says he:

"Doc, how much do you charge a feller for savin his life—makin a man out of a poor wreck—doin what he never thought could be done but by dyin and goin to kingdom come?"

"Oh," says Doc Brainard, says he, "that ain't what we look at as pay practice. You didn't call me in; I come of myself, as though it was what we call a clinic. If all goes well, and if you happen to have a barrel of apples to spare, you just send them up to Squire Caton's house in Chicago, and I'll call over and help eat 'em."

What did Abe say to that? Why, sir, he never said a word, but they do say the tears started out again, out from under the bandage and down his cheeks. But then Abe he had a 5-year-old pet mare he'd raised from a colt—pretty as a picture, kind as a kitten and fast as split lightnin—and next time doc come down Abe he just slipped out to the barn and brought the mare round and hitched her to the gate post, and when doc come to be goin, says Abe:

"Don't forget your nag, doctor; she's hitched at the gate."

Well, sir, even then Abe had the hard est kind of a time to get Doc Brainard to take that mare, and when he did ride off, leadin her, it wasn't half an hour before he'd made the same, lickety split. Doc said she broke away from him and put for home, but I always suspected he didn't have no use for a hoss he couldn't sell nor hire out and couldn't afford to keep in the village—that was what Chicago was then. But come along toward fall Abe he took her right up to town, and then the doctor's practice had improved so much that he was pretty glad to have her, and Abe was glad to have him have her, seein all that had come to him through havin eyes like other folks—that's the schoolma'am, I mean.

How did the schoolma'am take it? Well, it was this way: After the cuttin Abe didn't show up for a few days, till the inflammation got down and he'd had some practice handlin his eyes, so to speak. He just kept himself to himself, enjoyin himself. He'd go around doin the chores, singin so you could hear him a mile. He was always great on singin, Abe was, though ashamed to go to singin school with the rest. Then when the poor boy began to feel like other folks, he went right over to where schoolma'am happened to be boardin round, and walked right up to her and took her by both hands, and looked her straight in the face, and said:

"Do you know me?"

Well, she kind of smiled and blushed, and then the corners of her mouth pulled down and she pulled one hand away, and—if you believe me—that was the third time that girl cried that season, to my certain knowledge—and all for nothin either time.

What did she say? Why, she just said she'd have to begin all over again to get acquainted with Abe. But Ephe's nose was out of joint, and Ephe knowed it as well as anybody, Ephe did. It was Abe's eyes to Ephe's nose.

Married? Oh, yes, of course, and lived on the farm as long as the old folks lived, and afterward, too. Ephe stayin right along, like the fool he always had been. That feller never did have as much sense as a last year's bird's nest.

Alive yet? Abe? Well, no. Might have been if it hadn't been for Shiloh. When the war broke out Abe thought he'd ought to go, old as he was, so he went into the Sixth. Maybe you've seen a book written about the captain of Company K of the Sixth. It was Company K he went into—him and Ephe. And he was killed at Shiloh, just as it always seems to happen. He got killed and his worthless brother come home. Folks thought Ephe would have liked to marry the widow; but, Lord! she never had no such an idea! Such bair as he was conjured to be brother! She never chirked up, to speak of, and now she's dead, too, and Ephe he just toddles round, takin care of the children—kind of, he dry nurses; that's about all he ever was good for anyhow.

"Do you know me?"

My name? Oh, my name's Ephraim—Ephe they call me for short—Ephe Dodge. Abe was my brother.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how differently would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? It is not diseases of the throat and lungs, such as bronchitis, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. Is it worse than madness to neglect a cold, and is folly not to have some good remedy available for its frequent complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Hickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the throat and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

NO GOLD COINAGE

For Canada, Say Prominent Bankers.

THEIR REASONS FOR OBJECTING.

While It Would Give Us a Higher Standing as a Dominion the Government Would Not Make a Profit from the Mintage, as Little Gold Is Used in Canada.

Montreal, Sept. 4.—The suggestion to establish a Canadian gold coinage does not appear to meet with approval in banking circles here. Your correspondent interviewed a number of these gentlemen to-day and they were generally adverse to the change.

Mr. E. S. Clouston of the Bank of Montreal said: "I do not think there is anything in it. The requirements of Canadian trade are not such as to warrant the creation of a gold coinage in this country at the present time, and it certainly would never pay the Canadian Government to establish a mint here.

"While the Government," continued the general manager, "makes a very handsome profit on the silver coinage it would not be so with gold. There is not, in fact, sufficient gold used in this country to justify such a coinage. It is, however, different in England, where almost every man has gold coins in his pockets, while here if you happen to get a five or ten dollar piece you hasten to get it changed.

"Canada is not as great a gold producing country as it is going to be in the near or distant future, and then it will be time enough to take the question of a gold coinage into consideration. As it is at present gold is generally kept stored away in banks for use in case of a money crisis.

"No," concluded Mr. Clouston, "I do not see how a good case be made out for a gold coinage for Canada, even by the banks, the mercantile community or the country at large."

Mr. William Weir of the Dominion Cotton Mills was likewise seen, and that veteran banker expressed himself as follows:

"I do not see any great advantage in a Canadian gold coinage, except [illegible] number standing it would give us in trade. Gold bullets from the Canadian mines would have to be coined at the British mint, and the cost of a Canadian mint is not at present required. Canada, as a whole, would have to accruing from the change. To that exchange both in New England, would have to advance rather than at present [illegible] rate of gold money. Canada. On the other hand, the Government Treasury would benefit to a certain extent. Fresh to us, at the present time, [illegible] generally are in United States and [illegible] thunderstorms in [illegible] as good.

We are [illegible]

Do not make any contract with the or other dealers in [illegible] Marie Bank, [illegible] own coinage in circulation in Canada. It being a mere measure of value, the United States gold dollar being our standard for the Canadian dollar, which accounts for the English par of exchange being $4.86 2-3."

Mr. F. Wolferstan Thomas of the Molsons Bank was next seen, and he, too, considered that a Canadian gold coinage was not a burning question, although the general manager believed it would soon be discussed by the Canadian Bankers' Association.

"Australia," continued Mr. Thomas, "has a gold coinage which is equal to a British sovereign and the coins are made in England. I don't, in fact, think the Government could make anything of it in comparison with the profit on the silver coinage."

"If, however, a Canadian gold coinage were ever established, Mr. Thomas would like to have the value placed the same as the British sovereign, as it would be a sort of connecting link between Canada and the Mother Land, and he thought the coins would be made in Britain."

WILL FATTEN THEM IN MANITOBA.

Two Thousand Yearling Steers to Be Purchased in Ontario For Shipment to the West.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 4. — Mr. Thomas Crawford, M. L. A., of the firm of Crawford & Hunnisett, cattle dealers, has made a contract with a ranching company in the Northwest, controlled by the Allans of Montreal and others, for 2000 steers in the Province of Ontario, on the line of the C.P.R. for transportation to their ranch in Manitoba, for the purpose of fattening. Mr. Crawford is now making arrangements to buy these steers in different portions of the province, and will get on the average $19 to $20 per head. They must be yearlings, and two-year-olds would be preferred. These cattle will be taken to the Northwest and fed there for two years, when they will be sold for 4-year-olds to the English and Eastern markets. This is a comparatively new industry, but it is likely to expand. The ranchers in the Northwest are fatted of most of the stock they have in hand, and are short in the way of young animals, and find it cheaper under present circumstances to replenish their herds in Ontario, rather than to breed them. Mr. Crawford stated to your correspondent yesterday that he thought this industry to be a great one, and in fact he said it would have an important bearing on the future of the farming industry of both provinces. There is an unusual supply of good feed in the ranching country this year.

SOO CANAL IN OPERATION.

Though the Formal Opening Will Not Take Place For a Week.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 3.—The first American boat to pass through the Canadian ship canal lock was the Marine Record, the big barge, which was locked through west bound at 11 o'clock this morning. Capt Morley had a party on board, consisting of canal officials from this side of the river and several Toronto and other newspaper reporters. It re quired six and a half minutes to fill the lock chamber, and everything worked in perfect order. The formal opening of the canal will occur next Monday, when the Canadian passenger steamer Pacific will be locked through. The approaches at either end have been dredged and cleaned up and the channel above the canal has been thoroughly staked out. After next Monday American boats can lock through.

Several Killed — Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

Berlin, Sept. 3.—During the illumination at Breslau in honor of Sedan Day yesterday a grenade which happened to be empty, exploded with great violence, killing several persons and injuring four.

EXPLODED ONE MYSTERY.

Little Foundation For Fort Alma's Sensation.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 4.—During the past fortnight the provincial papers have published several columns with reference to what is known as the Fort Alma mystery.

Some weeks ago the skull and thigh bone of a man were found in the woods near Merlin, in Kent County and the residents at once scented a diabolical murder, and communicated with the Attorney-General's Department. Mr. John Murray, chief of the Provincial Detective Force, was sent up to investigate the facts in connection with the case, and promptly upon his arrival at Chatham, several columns of alleged information were wired to the metropolitan papers, giving the supposed details of one of the most gruesome tragedies ever committed in Western Ontario.

As a matter of fact, the bones found were in all probability deposited there by a medical student, after he had finished with the "subject." An effort was made to prove that the bones were remnants of the body of Joseph Walker, who disappeared from Merlin at about the time the tragedy was supposed to have been enacted. Detective Murray found, however, that Walker was alive in Romney, working for a man named Church in Talbotstreet. Then the disappearance of John Rollit was broached as a possible solution of the find. Rollit, however, has turned up at Peterboro.

The medical men in the vicinity, who examined the remains, expressed the opinion that neither the skull nor the thigh bone had ever been subjected to the fire. The fact that they were found in close proximity to the burned stump of a tree alone gave rise to the murder theory.

TRADES UNION CONGRESS.

Lively Discussion at Yesterday's Session at Cardiff.

Cardiff, Wales, Sept. 4.—At to-day's session of the annual Trades Union Congress, President Jenkins delivered the annual address, in which he denounced the insufficient labor organizations, amid constant interruptions. He declared that the anti-labor and anti-trades union party had made progress since introduced by the opponents of organized labor, and challenged them to produce accounts showing where they got their funds.

J. H. Wilson, M.P., of the National Sailors' and Firemen's Union, moved a vote of thanks to President Jenkins, but Delegate Potter objected. He, therefore, moved that it was the sense of the Congress that such expressions were a departure from precedent, and that the disparagings in the address be stricken out.

Mr. David Holmes, vice-chairman, called the chair to motion the secretary to hear and the vote of thanks moved by Mr. Wilson was carried.

Mr. Wilson challenged the action of the parliamentary committee in excluding certain delegates from voting, a motion declaring that such action was unconstitutional.

Delegate Curran denounced the intrigues which had preceded the meeting of Congress against men who had grown grey in the service of the working men and whom the new rules were specially framed to shelve.

Ben Tillett of the Dock, Wharf and River Side Workers' Union threw [illegible] on Mr. Ben Bunnan for dictation [illegible] to English trades [illegible] Congress.

Amid much excitement, Mr. Burnan replied that [illegible] of Monday [illegible] Tillett [illegible] Congress [illegible] Tillett [illegible] Congress [illegible] Tillett [illegible] Congress

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 4.

AMERICAN RAILWAYS.

The progress of railway construction on the continent, and particularly in the United States, is not deterred by the small return on the capital investment which is now made, says the Montreal Gazette. A halt is called occasionally by the advent of hard times and tight money, but it is merely a temporary cessation of activity in building, disappearing at the first indication of reviving business. Thus in 1894 only 2,612 miles of new road were built, as compared with 14,393 miles in 1887, the year of greatest construction, but now that a bountiful harvest promises to accelerate the improvement in trade already under way new projects may be expected to appear and new territories to be brought into communication with the centre of commerce. The year 1894 brought dismal returns to American railway projectors with rare exceptions. Upon the 175,444 miles operated the earnings from freight decreased $108,017,259, or 13.36 per cent., and those from passengers fell off $35,946,771, or 11.52 per cent., as compared with the preceding year. There was less business to do, and a smaller remuneration for the doing of it. There were 82,334,733 tons less of freight moved, and 45,717,966 fewer passengers carried, the only item in the way of increased earnings being a gain of $2,966,045 in receipts from miscellaneous sources, such as mails and express. The decline in gross earnings of all United States railways last year amounted to $142,313,275, or 11.64 per cent., while net earnings suffered a diminution of $47,051,833. The revenue fell short of meeting the fixed charges by $10,468,234.

The average cost per mile of American railways, as measured by their stock and bond indebtedness has been $60,394. In 25 years the mileage of the railways has been doubled, a truly marvellous rate of progression when it is remembered that in 1879 the mileage was 84,393 miles. In 1880 the total capital investment of the railroads in the United States, measured by the amounts of their share capital, funded and unfunded debts, was $5,402,038,257. Their gross earnings in that year equalled $613,733,610, or 11.36 per cent on capital invested, while net earnings amounted to $255,557,555, being 4.7 per cent on capital invested. In 1894 the total investment was $11,124,930,551; gross earnings were $1,080,305,015, equal to 9.7 per cent on investment, and net earnings, $322,539,276, or 2.9 per cent on capital. The decline in percentage of net earnings to capital since 1880 has, therefore, been over 40 per cent. A continuous fall in rates accounts for this result, and although much of the reduced cost of transportation has been legitimately brought about by lessened cost of operation, cut-throat competition has played no unimportant part in bringing down rates below a paying figure. Comparing the year 1894 with 1892, we find that the average rate of interest on railway bonded indebtedness has fallen from 4.73 to 4.11 per cent., or by little more than one-half per cent., while the average rate of dividends paid has declined from 2.91 to 1.64 per cent., or by 1.27 per cent. The average rate of freight per ton per mile has dropped from 1.23 cents to 0.85 cents since 1882, and the average rate per passenger per mile has decreased from 2.44 cents to 2.03 cents in the same period. In 1894 holders of 64.98 per cent of the railroad share capital of the United States failed to receive any return upon their investments, that being by a considerable margin the largest percentage of unproductive stock in any year on record.

Trilby's Foot.

The step 'twixt the sublime and ridiculous is quickly made. Surely literature presents no more grotesque idealization than Trilby's foot, and the numerous worshippers that have figuratively speaking knelt down and kissed the big toe of the foot, when reason once more comes to their rescue, will feel as so if the production of the genus Ass were perennial. By the way you did you notice when reading Trilby how highly it commended Putnam's Corn Extractor, which renders impossible the discordant excrescence corn. Trilby's feet would not be worthy of homage if marred by corns; neither would yours. Use Putnam's Corn Extractor.

THOMASBURG.

SEPT. 3rd.—A severe thunder storm passed over east of the village on Tuesday night last week, killing a calf belonging to Mr. Wilmot Clare. It is said there was not a whole bone left in its body.—Mr. Elisha Mayues is building an evaporator on his farm in Huntingdon, just east of the village. He expects to have it in operation in about a week, when he will be prepared to buy all the apples which may be brought to him for sale.—We venture to imagine that Thomasburg and its subject is better supplied with dogs than any town of its size and wealth in this section. Every house has at least one, many two, and some three, but the most comical of them all is a pup owned by Mr. Allen Morton. There is considerable humanity and some politics in his composition. He is invariably in the best of humor, frisking about when a Conservative comes round, but the minute a Grit comes within smelling distance of him he commences to growl, and some one has to watch him until the departure of the scent, lest he bite him, from making a breach of the peace.—Mr. J. Lennox made a discovery on Monday. He found a small parcel done up in a piece of newspaper, and thinking it was some living thing he held it to his ear, to hear if it squeaked, but as it did not do so carefully carried over to the post office and requested the P. M. to help hold an inquest on it, which the P. M. kindly consented to do, and carefully undoing the mysterious parcel, it proved to be only a roll of butter which some one had accidentally lost.—Word came to the village last evening that a pedlar had driven his horse into the river below Kerr's bridge to drink, and the horse became unmanageable, and the pedlar only escaped with his life by swimming out. He lost his horse, wagon and goods in the river. We have not heard his name, or where he came from.

ROOKSTON.

SEPT. 3.—Threshing commenced—grain turning out about the same as last year.—Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Adams, comes out quite in style with his covered carriage, of which he was made the recipient.—Monday and being Labor Day the annual picnic of the Bethesda Sunday school was held in Mr. Tummins' grove. The weather being all that could be desired it proved a great success. The programme commenced shortly after 10 o'clock. Addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Coon, of Canifton; Rev. Mr. Duke, Thomasburg; Rev. Mr. McCanus, Norwood; Rev. Mr. Hawkins, West Huntingdon and our pastor. Choruses, solos and trios were given by the choir. Visitors were present from Thomasburg, Madoc, Queensboro, Marmora, Springbrook, Stirling, Trenton, Holloway and Hungerford. Proceeds amounted to $60.—Mr. M. Haggarty, jr., left on the morning train for Toronto to attend the exhibition.—Visitors all around the block, among whom are Mrs. Jno. Day, Rochester, at her father's, Mr. F. Wellman; Miss Alice Barker, Clapman's, a guest of Miss M. Tummon; Miss Alice Emerson, Miss Sarah Adams at Mr. Jas. Fox's; Miss Mary McKinnon, Madoc, at Mr. C. Smith's; Miss Ella Clarke at Mr. W. Collins; the Misses Mowat, of Tyendinaga, the guests of Miss Jennie Mowat; Miss Eva Carscallen, Belleville, the guest of her aunt Mrs. Edward Carscallen; Richardson, of Marmora, with her brother and uncle visited Mr. William Chambers on Sunday and Monday; Miss Della Lancaster, of Stockdale, is visiting friends in the neighborhood.

DESERONTO.

Sept. 3rd.—All the manufacturing establishments were shut down here yesterday in honor of Labor Day. A number of the citizens spent the day out of town. Quite a number of people from the surrounding district visited town. In the forenoon a baseball game was played in the Rink and Deseronto teams was played at which Deseronto was victorious. In the afternoon there were lacrosse matches on the high park, which were witnessed by a large number of spectators.—Mr. Robt. Wissman, of Deseronto, has graduated at Spencer's Optical Institute, New York city.—Mr. Donald Anderson, of Melrose, was in town last week.—Mr. H. B. Rathbun, of Belleville, has been spending a few days in town.—Mr. John Hoppe, of Syracuse, is spending a few days in town.—Inspector Johnston was in town last week visiting the schools.—Mr. W. J. Malley spent Sunday at Ottawa.—W. B. Northrup, M. GILEAD.

Some fall grain has been sown here—We came nearly having frost last Saturday night.—Mr. James Sheffield's condition is but little changed.—Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Emerson, of Corbyville, spent the 25th ult. at Mr. H. A. Fairman's.—Several parties here intend visiting Toronto fair.—Quite a few cases of petty thieving have occurred lately.—An insect of some kind is stripping the leaves off oak trees in this section.—On our visiting list we have noted from time to time since we wrote last, Miss E. Allison, of Deseronto; Mr. H. Foster and sister, of Chapman; Miss Sarah Foster, of Belleville; Miss Clara Gillespie, of Plainfield; Mr. D. A. Brown, of Foxboro; Mr. and Mrs. C. Welsh, of Moira, and Mr. Arthur Sheffield of the Belleville Traction Co.

—Bishop Cleveland Coxe is somewhat bitter against women bicyclists. He recently said according to report: "No one ever saw a lady on a bicycle, and no one ever will."

No person should go from home without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial in their possession, as change of water, cooking, climate, etc., frequently brings on summer complaint, and there is nothing like being ready with a sure remedy at hand, which oftimes saves great suffering, and frequently valuable lives. This Cordial has gained for itself a wide spread reputation for affording prompt relief from all summer complaints.

—One-sixth of the exhibitors at the Royal academy, London, this season, not counting members of the academy, were women.

A Remarkable Cure.—Mr. Wm. Watson, Gilford—Spent between $200 and $300 in consulting Doctors; tried Dixon's and all other treatments but got no benefit. One box of Chase's Catarrh Cure did me more good than all other remedies, in fact I consider myself cured, and with a 25 cent box at that.

This is Concentration.

One pill a dose, one box 25 cents. One pill relieves constipation. One box cures an ordinary case. One pill taken weekly neutralizes formation of uric acid in the blood and prevents Bright's Kidney disease and diabetes. True only of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Montreal Markets.

Montreal, Sept. 3.—Grain—There is a little better demand for old oats and prices are firm at 34½c. Sales of new oats have been made at 33c, but it is thought that 32½c would now be accepted. In other grades business rules. Peas are quiet, there being none moving. We quote:—Wheat, No. 1 hard, nominal; No. 2 hard, nominal; corn, duty paid, nominal; peas, per 66 lbs in store, 62½ to 63c; oats, per 34 lbs in store, 32c; 32½c, No. 2, 60c to 61c; barley, feed, 45c to 50c.

Flour—The local trade is a little more brisk and sales are reported to be a little better to-day. Straights are nominal, one lot, involving 6,000 sacks are in progress, but no actual business has as yet been accomplished. Quotations are:—Straight rollers, $4.10 to $4.25; strong bakers', Man., best brands, $4; spring patents, $4.10; winter patents, Ont., $4.50.

Meal—No change can be reported in the meal market. Prices are:—Granulated and rolled, per bbl, $4 to $4.10; granulated and rolled, per bag, $1.95; standard, per bbl, $4.10 to $4.20; standard, per bag, $1.95 to $2.

Feed—Except for a slight decline in bran the market shows no change. We quote as follows: Bran, $16 to $16.50; shorts, $18 to $20; mouilles, $21.50 to $25.

Cheese—The market is dull and in the absence of much business it is difficult to quote prices with accuracy. Quebec, however, sells at 9½c to 9¾c, and occasional parcel, it proved to be only a roll of butter which some one has accidentally lost.—Word came to the village last evening that a pedlar had driven his horse into the river below Kerr's bridge to drink, and the horse became unmanageable, and the pedlar only escaped with his life by swimming out. He lost his horse, wagon and goods in the river. We have not heard his name, or where he came from.

Butter—A tendency to heaviness is noted in the butter market in the absence of much business. Creamery is firm at 16c; western sells at 14c to 14½c, and townships daily at 15c.

Eggs—The demand for eggs in small lots is fair and sales of choice candled stock were made at 10½c to 11c, and ordinary at 9c to 9½c per dozen.

Provisions—The local provision market shows no new feature, business being quiet and principally of a jobbing character. Canada short cut mess, per bbl, $17 to $17.50; Canada short cut clear, $15.50 to $16; hams, city cured, per lb, 9c to 11c; bacon, per lb, 10c to 11c; lard, pure Canadian, per lb, 9c to 10½c; lard, common, refined, per lb, 6½c to 7½c.

LIVE STOCK.

Business in live stock to-day was very dull. There were about 450 head of butchers' cattle, 150 calves and 1,000 sheep and lambs offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to day. The cool bracing weather had scarcely any effect upon a rather dull market and prices continue without change since last week. A few head of Manitoba cattle were held at 1c per lb, but 3½c per lb was about the highest price paid for butchers' cattle during the early part of the day. A pretty good sale was reported from 3½c to 3¾c; common dry cows and thrifty young cattle sold at from 2½ to 3c, and the former brought about 2c per lb. Calves are pretty numerous for this time of the year. Good large calves sell at from 3½ to 4½ each, and common ones at from $2.50 to $5 each. Shippers are paying from 3½c to 3¾c per lb. for good large sheep. Good lambs sell at from 5½c to 5¾c per lb; some of the poorest specimens of the lambs were offered at $1 each. Fat hogs are dull of sale and prices are declining, being from 4½c to 5c per lb for fed hogs.

YACHTING.

About the Cup Yachts.

New York, Sept. 3.—There are but three days before the first race for the American Cup between Defender and Valkyrie III., and but little of that time will be devoted to sailing. The crew were busy this morning trying their sails in the light breeze, and it is thought that all will be in readiness for a row or sail to-day. Lipton's yacht early to-morrow, when the Valkyrie will go out about 9 o'clock for final preparations. The new boom on the new mainsail will be hoisted in two or out to the end of the boom. Defender did not waste any time after she got to New Rochelle yesterday. Her new Ramie cloth sails were bent at once and she made a short trial trip. Mr. Iselin said to-day that he was satisfied with the yacht. All she needed was overhauling of her [illegible] Captain Sopwith, who is expected [illegible] to-day. Then everything whatever the matter will be under, and she was perfectly able to carry her canvas and [illegible] Both of the Cup defenders will start from New Rochelle until Friday morning, when she will go to the East End Basin to be measured with Valkyrie, and both will go down to the Horse Shoe the same night.

The Defender started out at 11 o'clock this morning to again test the new set of Wilson & Silsbee sails, but they were not set yesterday afternoon, instead of the Herreshoff sails, which were used in all the trial races. At 11.15 a breeze sprang up from the southeast, and the Valkyrie and Defender got under way and ran over to Ward Coney Island. The black-hulled yacht dashed through the water at a rate which demonstrated that she will be a dangerous competitor in light winds and a smooth sea. There were no other yachts in the vicinity of the Valkyrie, and she was not able to get a close line on what she was doing, but it was plain she was sailing very fast and had power in reserve.

A despatch received from London to-day by The Evening Sun reads as follows:—The betting is 5 to 4 to 1 on the Defender and very little of it. There is plenty of American money offering, but the Englishmen want long odds.

Women's Christian Association.

The last monthly meeting for the year was held yesterday afternoon in the Council Chamber. Several matters of interest in connection with the hospital were discussed. A letter was read from Dr. Chamberlain, Inspector of Prisons and Hospitals, saying he had examined the plans for the addition to the hospital and approved of them. It is necessary to change the wooden pipe which conveys the sewage from the building to the bay, using sewer pipes instead and extending the pipes out into the bay on account of the low level of the water in the bay.

The Hospital Board's report for the month is as follows:

Paying patients	$103.60
Medicines and dressings	21.00
Private nursing	10.00
Patients paid by city	25.00
	$159.60

Number of patients admitted since 1st October, 240. This is the number admitted during the whole of the previous year.

The falling off in the monthly collections was spoken about. The decrease is principally on account of several collectors having been obliged to discontinue their labors of love. A committee was appointed to look into the matter and if possible find new collectors.

The annual meeting for the election of officers, etc., will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 1st. A meeting for the finishing of this year's business, and receiving reports of committees and appointing this month, will be held on Monday, Sept. 30th.

Cheese Markets.

London, Aug. 31.—Ten factories boarded 300 boxes July and 1,000 boxes August. Sales—250 at 7 9-16c. Attendance small.

Utica, N.Y., Aug. 31.—Cheese sales—180 boxes at 7c, 2,530 boxes at 7½c, 1,600 boxes at 7¾c, 74 boxes at 7⅞c, 300 boxes at 7⅞c, 90 boxes at 8c, 880 boxes at 8c, 767 boxes on commission, 40 packages of creamery butter at 20c, 81 packages of creamery butter at 21c.

At Little Falls—150 boxes at 7c, 435 boxes at 7⅛c, 500 boxes at 7⅛c, 1,000 boxes at 7⅜c, 1,030 boxes at 7½c, 20 packages of creamery butter at 20c to 21c.

Campbellford, Sept. 3.—At the cheese board here this evening about 500 boxes were offered. The buyers bid 7 9/16c, but no sales were made.

Madoc and Tweed boards have adjourned till the 10th inst., when the next buyer sold to day that the Tweed board had been the best managed of any in this section this season. The salesmen will not sell off the board and they have consequently realized better prices than any other board in the district. This commendable state of affairs is largely due to the able management of the officers, Messrs. Alex. McKenzie, Thos. Burnside and ——Tumulty.

Killed in New York.

Mr. David Mitchell, son of the Rev. David Mitchell, formerly of this city, but now of Jersey City, fell from a scaffold in New York yesterday morning and died the following evening. The young man was only twenty-one years of age and had only recently gone from Toronto to New York to endeavor to make name as an architect. He was a very clever student. The many friends of his family in this city will unite in sympathy for them.

The Jersey City Evening Journal, of Saturday last says: Rev. Mr. Mitchell is nearly crushed by his latest affliction. He had been spending several months in the country and had just returned to town with improved health when the news came from the Manhattan Hospital, New York, on Tuesday that his son had fallen twenty feet while acting as supervising architect at the new buildings of Columbia College, in New York.

Canadian Stranded in Rochester.

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 3.—George Ashley, a resident of Belleville, Ont., is penniless and without friends in Rochester, to which a strange city, he came here on Sunday to see the sights, and on Labor Day had a big time at the lake. At four o'clock this morning he complained to a policeman that he had been robbed of $6 in a West Main street saloon. A description of the alleged robbers was given, and this led to the arrest of Nelson Britton and a Frank Cunningham, who had been out with Ashley on Labor Day night. It could not be proved that the men were guilty, although Canadian money was found on the person of Cunningham. Ashley does not know how he will get home.—Mail and Empire.

A PALACE CLOTHING STORE.

Mr. Gough's New Premises in Brignall & Thompson's Old Stand.

A reporter of the INTELLIGENCER noticing the unusual activity being displayed by the workmen employed on the premises recently occupied by Brignall & Thompson, in the Robertson block on the east side of Front St., yesterday afternoon went inside and found Mr. E. D. Gough, the ready-made clothing merchant, and the new house of these premises, busily engaged directing the carpenters and painters in a complete remodelling of the store.

The front of the store, which when built, was considered one of the handsomest in the city, has been replaced by something altogether more modern, in the shape of a receding entrance with very large plate glass windows on either side and these are topped off with beautiful art glass panels. The front is also being finished in antique oak.

To give our readers some idea of the immensity of this palatial store we may mention the fact that Mr. Gough will have about 7,000 square feet of floor room alone. The main store in front is very commodious and well lighted. The ceiling is so large that it has been necessary to support it with ornamental iron pillars through the centre. The store throughout is painted in white and trimmed in gold. On the right of the main entrance will be situated the gents' furnishing department, on the left the hat and cap department, while through the centre an immense stock of youths' and men's ready made clothing will be carried.

Passing from the main store to the rear the visitor comes to a broad stair which leads through a pretty arch to the children's department. This department will be luxuriously carpeted and decorated in harmony with the rest of the store. The stock, as in the other departments, will be new and first class in every particular and will embrace some great bargains for the children.

It is Mr. Gough's intention to add a custom tailoring department as soon as he can get his stock arranged. He has large, comfortable work rooms below for this class of work.

The stock will be moved into the new premises on Thursday, and the big store will be open for business as soon as it can be arranged. To make it as easy to purchase in the evening as in the day time Mr. Gough will have the store brilliantly lighted by 140 incandescent electric lights.

It will be well worth the time spent whether you wish to buy or not, to look through those magnificent premises.

The store will be without doubt one of the most commodious in the Dominion and Mr. Gough's enterprise is creditable not only to himself but to the city.

Mr. James Brown, of the Hastings House, had a valuable mare stolen from his field near Ross' Corners on Monday night. He searched in every direction for the animal yesterday, but could find no trace of it. There was another case of the same kind from Thurlow, but the horse did not come back.

BAY OF QUINTE EXHIBITION.

Every Prospect of a Successful Fair—The Attractions Greater than Ever.

The Bay of Quinte District Agricultural Exhibition will be held here on the 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th of this month. The prospects are that the fair will be the most successful ever held in this section of the country. Premiums to the amount of $3,000 are offered, and judging from the number of entries already received every class will be well filled. All entries are requested to be sent by the 7th to the Secretary, Mr. J. M. Hurley. After Saturday, 14th, the books will be finally closed, after which no entries will be made unless for correction of errors.

Some improvements are being made to the main building, which will be filled by the displays made by our merchants and the Horticultural Society. The other buildings are also in good condition, and work has been commenced on the stalls which were recently destroyed by fire.

The management are sparing no pains to procure first class attractions. Each afternoon there will be shooting in the ring, and on Tuesday afternoon, the first day, there will be fine bicycle races and a quoit match. A special feature on Thursday afternoon will be a baby show, valuable prizes being contributed by Mr. E. D. Gough.

The evening entertainments promise to excel all previous efforts. Prof. Hand, of Hamilton, has been engaged to give beautiful displays of fireworks, and on the night of the 18th a sham battle will take place, being participated in by the 15th Battalion. Other attractions are also being arranged for.

Mr. W. A. Taylor will have control of the dining hall and the refreshment booths attached, and judging from past years it will be conducted in first class style.

DUCK HUNTERS RETURNING.

The Game is Generally Scarce—Shooting in Close Season.

The duck hunters who went out on Saturday last to the feeding grounds of the coveted game, have most all returned. They report ducks as scarce and wild.

Officer Stoneberg was with a party at Hog Lake. He shot six pairs.

Messrs. Chas Herring, Geo. Twining, Henry Pretty and Street Surveyor Hulme were at Trent River. They say the pot hunters had been at work before the season opened and as a consequence what few ducks were left were very wild. The party brought home nine and a fine muskinonge.

W. Ridley got four at Zwicks' creek and Jas Bonar, in company with Chas. White, of Tweed, shot four at Stoco Lake.

ONE FOOT ON SEA.

By MARGARET C. HELMORE.

[Copyright, 1895, by the Author.]

Men were deceivers ever;
One foot on sea and one on shore,
To one thing constant never.

If he lived to be as old as Mr. Gladstone or Methuselah, he was certain that he could never forget the impression her image had left upon his memory. Until now, when he had arrived at the age of 87 years, the captain had never thoroughly succumbed to the tender passion, albeit, after the approved fashion of sailors, a small portion of his heart had often remained on loan in many a port both at home and abroad.

Captain Fane was a well built, handsome man, standing a few more inches in his dancing pumps and red silk socks than any of the other officers of H. M. S. Firefly, and his engaging manners and appearance would have insured him a welcome reception in any circle even without the additional extra credit which in this democratic age still continues to serve its owner in good stead, the fact of his being the grandson of an earl and heir to a baronetcy. True he lived that lay between himself and the estates and title were humanly as good as, if not better than, his own, taking into consideration the risks encountered by those who go down to the sea in ships. His father was still in the prime of life, and his grandfather, the present baronet, might as likely as not outlive both his heirs.

Waiting for dead men's shoes is much on a par with looking for promotion from the lords of the admiralty, and Captain Fane, with a prudence that mothers of marriageable daughters regarded as calculating and worldly, always posed as a nonmarrying man, giving out whenever opportunity presented itself that, much as he revered the fair sex, he had never seen any member of it whose charms and virtue were sufficient to withstand the inevitable deterioration that ensues after a dozen years battling against the miseries of married poverty.

His views on the subject of "Love In a Cot, With Water and a Crust," being no secret, the captain's evident surrender to the fascinations of an absolutely doorless maiden, with apparently little in her favor beyond a lovely face, modest liveliness of disposition and a capacity for riding about the country or playing tennis the best part of the day and dancing from 8 o'clock in the evening until three hours after midnight, afforded subject for much comment and harmless amusing the officers of his mess. Cruising about among the islands in the Caribbean sea, a previous acquaintanceship with the administrator was the ostensible reason pointed out for putting in for a day or two during the bay of Princetown, St. Vitns, which sleepy little isle would always rouse itself from its normal state of torpidity, and, figuratively speaking, hold out its arms to welcome the crew of a man of war.

It was a glorious evening in June and shortly before sunset when Captain Fane's doom was sealed. The Princetown tennis ground being but a stone's throw from the seashore, some of the members of the club, heated with the energy of play, had strolled out upon the jetty to get a closer view of the Firefly and, as it proved, of some of her officers also, who were there being put ashore by their stalwart bluejackets. Colonel Sandilands, the administrator, was among the number, bent upon extending invitations to dinner to as many as were disposed to avail themselves of his hospitality. The English, as a rule, are not demonstrative or specially patriotic upon the surface, but as a test of our real nature there can be nothing much more conclusive than the delight with which we greet a fellow countryman after some years of association with foreigners and aliens—among the latter coupled, as it understood, creoles of the West Indies should be distinctly included.

"How are you, Fane, old fellow? You know my wife. Come along—we'll drive you up, or will you go to the club first and the ladies can send the buggy back for us? Our girls are on the tennis ground, but the game must be over by this time. Shall we look in for a minute?"

They did look in there, and excepting the case of the susceptible Montague and that other instance of love at first sight so graphically described by the Arcadian shepherd boy in the forest of Arden, romance and hidden alike fail to exhibit anything more sudden than Captain Fane's surrender.

And in truth the vision that met his gaze was one that might have unsettled a St. Kevin or Sebastian. Delicate as the evening blossom of the frangipani tree beneath which she stood, her dark, silky hair blown into tiny tendrils upon her forehead, her cheeks a glowing light in her glorious brown eyes and her supple form displayed to the greatest advantage, both from an artistic and hygienic point of view, she dexterously struck her tennis racket to and fro, now in the open, now in a spontaneously extemporized match between herself and a bright faced lad, whose skill appeared sufficiently great to warrant his having challenged the belle of Princetown to compete with him.

All unconscious as they were of the approach of strangers, the players might have continued their performances until breathlessness or fatigue rendered one or other of them incapable of further effort had not Colonel Sandilands interrupted them with a complimentary ejaculation of "Bravo, bravo!"

Then a blush deep as the oleander flower at her waist belt overspread the girl's fair face for a moment, as, letting her arm drop at her side, the ball fell to the ground amid the disappointed exclamations of the bystanders, some of whom were, however, too much interested in the arrival of the sailors to care very much, while Freddy Sandilands, turning reproachfully to the administrator, cried:

"Oh, daddy, what a beastly shame to interrupt, like that! You don't know what odds there were on that match, and Miss Crofton and I had kept up to 84, and we should have been certain to reach the 100 if you hadn't ballooed out."

"I believe I'm very much obliged to Colonel Sandilands," said the girl confidentially to one of her companions as she smiled a grateful acknowledgment of the palm leaf fan somebody handed her. "It is much harder work than playing with shuttlecocks and I should have been obliged to give in before long."

Meanwhile Captain Fane was greeting those of the house of Sandilands with whom he was already acquainted, and being introduced and in turn presenting his brother officers who had come ashore with him to the younger members of the family and the tennis party generally. At last the moment he was hoping for arrived, and some one was charitable enough to afford him the chance of being to Miss Crofton and apologizing for his inopportune arrival on the scene.

Nobody could exactly tell why or how it came about, but in the way those things will sometimes happen it simply seemed nothing more than right and natural that Captain Fane should be allowed to devote himself exclusively to the service of Miss Crofton, and, strange as it may appear, not even one of her own sex was aware of any actual pang of jealousy or petty rivalry at the young lady's appropriation of the most eligible among the new arrivals. Creole girls are no more exempt from the selfishness and tendency to condemn the conduct of others than their sisters all the world over, but it is the blessed lot of some people to be able to win the regard and admiration of their own as well as of the other sex, and Fanny Crofton was one of these highly favored mortals.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith' Coe Hill, Ont., writes:—"For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using three bottles of the Vegetable Discovery I am bilious habit is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how differently would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? It is not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, sore throat, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. Is it worse than madness to neglect a cold, and is it folly not to have some good remedy available for its frequent complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines as for the accident, diseases of the lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

PURBLIND PROVINCES

Neglect to Be Represented in Great Britain

AT THE IMPERIAL INSTITUTE.

Sir John Schultz May Contest Lisgar—Deputy Minister Low to Be Superannuated—Migratory Weeds in Manitoba—Prince Edward Island Enterprise.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 5.—Some surprise is expressed here that the first vessel to go through the Soo lock is, as intimated by despatches to-day, a United States tug boat. More especially is this the case in view of the fact that special permission was asked and granted for the passage through the canal of the Canadian Pacific Railway steamer Manitoba in advance of the formal opening next Monday.

Mr. H. Watson, curator of the Canadian section of the Imperial Institute, is in the city, and had an interview to-day with Mr. Lowe, Deputy Minister of Agriculture. In the course of conversation with your correspondent, Mr. Watson stated that the courts of the several provinces in the Imperial Institute building are not yet as complete as they should be. The authorities desire to secure adequate exhibits of the resources of the several provinces. At the outset a direct appeal was made to the several Governments to arrange for exhibits. Some Governments, however, have practically ignored the matter altogether. For the honor and dignity of the country something should be done at once towards making the exhibit thoroughly representative, and Mr. Watson hopes those Governments which have been remiss will attend to the matter without delay.

The Government has decided to have the roadways and sidewalks on Parliament grounds relaid before winter sets in. The footpaths will be of artificial stone and roadways of wood. An improvement which no doubt will be made in view of the change it will do away with the disagreeable crumbling of muddy roadways and spreading of the Parliament buildings during wet weather. Mr. Peter McRae is reported to be the lowest tenderer for the work.

Through the instrumentality of Lieut.-Governor Dewdney a strong company has been formed for the purpose of supplying cold storage for the butter and cheese business in Prince Edward Island. At the present time the products of the Island are being sent to Montreal for storage, and when the new arrangement will enable the farmers of the Island to put the product into their own pockets, which is now going into the hands of transportation companies.

The Capitals have notified the Vancouver lacrosse team if they want a game in Ottawa they must play here this month, and wish to face the Capitals for the championship of the world, they will have to come to Ottawa first instead of confining here last, as outlined in their program. The Capitals point out that to have Vancouver's world championship decided here a previous defeat or two would take the interest out of the game in Ottawa. On the other hand, if they come direct here and play for the championship and Vancouver do win, it will make the rest of their tour all the more triumphant. If they lose they will be in no worse position.

Mr. James Fletcher, botanist and entomologist of the Experimental Farm, has just returned from an extended trip to Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia, the special object of his tour being to investigate the different kinds of weeds and injurious insects which are troubling farmers and fruit growers. Mr. Fletcher had opportunities of inspecting the crops at different points. He also addressed several meetings of farmers, who were well pleased with the information given them in regard to the kinds of pests and the best methods of treating them. At Central Farmers' Institute meeting at Brandon early in July the subject of weeds was one of burning interest, as evidenced from the large number of specimens brought into the meeting. Special efforts were advised by Mr. Fletcher for controlling two comparatively new pests, which have increased with alarming rapidity. They are the "tumbling mustard" and the "bare's ear mustard," both of which now grow widely in Manitoba and parts of the Territories. Fifty miles is a small estimate of the distance which tumbling weed may be blown. Mr. Fletcher says the grain crop in Manitoba and the Northwest is undoubtedly the best in the history of the country, being enormous in quantity and of the very best quality. A fair estimate of the crop places the average at 27 bushels to the acre, but from what he saw Mr. Fletcher believes it will exceed that amount.

The live stock inspector at Montreal has forwarded a report to the Department of Agriculture of the shipments of animals from 1st May to 1st inst. During August 29,460 animals were shipped, making a total for the season of 72,746, as against 60,977 for the corresponding period last year; 15,589 cattle were shipped during August, making a total of 36,276 for the season to date, against 35,322 for the corresponding period of 1894.

The Department of the Interior was notified to-day that Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Hon. Mr. Daly are to-day at Battleford. To-morrow they leave for Duck Lake, and on Friday for Prince Albert, and Saturday will remain there until Monday, when they proceed for Regina.

It is expected that contemplated changes regarding the Deputy Ministership of Agriculture and the superannuation allowance and pension to Mr. Low, retiring on superannuation allowance and his place being filled by Mr. A. Smith, present Dominion Lands Commissioner at Winnipeg, will be previously announced W. B. Scarth will succeed Smith in the latter office.

Hon. Mr. Ouimet returns to the city to-morrow.

Controller Wallace returned to the city to-day.

Mr. Colin H. Campbell of Winnipeg had an interview with Hon. Mr. Wallace to-day on customs matters.

Mr. Scriver, M.P., is in the city to-day.

The Ottawa Field Battery goes into camp at Rockliffe on Friday.

The impression prevails here that Sir John Schultz will contest Lisgar at the coming Dominion elections.

Two Cases on Trial at the Assizes.

GAUTHIER PLEADS NOT GUILTY.

A True Bill Returned Against Demers For Killing His Wife—A Schoolgirl Killed By a Train and a Boy By a Fire Engine—Realty Movements.

Montreal, Sept. 4.—It now looks as if Alderman R. Wilson Smith, who has so ably represented St. Lawrence Ward in the City Council for some time past, will be Montreal's next chief magistrate when Mayor Villeneuve's term of office expires. It will then, according to the unwritten law in force here, be the turn of an English-speaking Protestant, and all classes seem to have their eyes upon the gentleman just named. Mr. Smith was returned to the Council as a civic reformer, and he has certainly done splendid work in that direction. He is an able financier and will make a model Mayor.

Gauthier, the alleged murderer of his affianced wife, Celina Cousine, was arraigned in the Court of Queen's Bench this morning and pleaded not guilty. His counsel, Mr. G. N. St. Jean, Q.C., applied for a commission to inquire into his sanity, but Judge Wurtele declined to grant it.

The grand jury returned against Napoleon Demers for the murder of his wife at St. Henri.

The volume of business in sales of real estate for the month of August has shown an increase over those in July of about $72,000 exclusive of sales, the full value of which is not given. Montreal West shows an increase of $13,000; Montreal East an increase of $23,000; and Hochelaga an increase of $20,000, while that of Cote St. Henri has decreased $5000, and St. Lambert's Boulevard has decreased nearly $23,000. The only sale of over $20,000 was the transfer of a factory and water power between the canal and river in Mill-street from Mr. W. Johnson to Mr. R. C. Smith (in trust for the Colonial Bleaching Co.). The price being $30,000 and an annual rent of $645. The next largest sale was also a factory on the canal from Mr. Robert R. Black well and C. Scott to the Canada Switch and Spring Co., the price being $19,000. Business shows signs of improvement and sales are likely to be more numerous than for some months—the next days are about over. Loans have been made at about the same figures as last month, the general rate being 5 to 7 per cent. The totals are as follows: Montreal West, $174,049; Montreal East, $113,478; Hochelaga, $78,975; Cote St. Antoine, $51,651; Montreal Annex, $49,000; Cote St. Henri, $45,000; Longueuil, $1690; Montreal Junction, $1057; St. Lambert Boulevard, $2904; totals, $460,804.

A little girl named Rose Bluteau, 7 years old, and residing in Richmond-street, was killed this morning while en route for school. The fatal accident took place at the Richmond-street crossing, and although the gates were closed the little thing ran underneath and was instantly killed by a Vermont Central engine.

James McCoombe, aged 12, an adopted son of George McCoombe, of Wellington-street, was run over and killed by No. 1 chemical at the corner of Prince and Wellington-streets to-night. The fire itself was trivial, several boys having set fire to some waste in a yard.

Recommended By the Trades and Labor Congress

AT ITS MEETING IN LONDON.

Cheap Coffee Labor Interfering Seriously With Workers on the Pacific Coast—Motion in Favor of Manchurian Schools Made by a Quebec Delegate.

London, Sept. 5.—President P. J. Johns occupied the chair at last evening's session of the Trades and Labor Congress, when the attendance was considerably increased by the arrival of the representatives from Ottawa. The chief subject of debate was the admittance of the Socialist Labor party to membership in the Congress. The credentials of this party were not accepted, upon the ground that the constitution did not provide for their admission. Notice of change in the constitution was given by Delegate Darlington of Montreal and this will cause a fiery discussion before the Congress closes.

Secretary Dower read a lengthy communication from the Trades Council of Plattsburg, N.Y., asking for assistance in the organization of labor, in that town, by W. Gravit, a flourishing local Early Autumn Costs, agent of the Knights of Labor. The communication was received with applause.

A resolution with Helen Mar Adams Committee to Confer with Mrs. Minion Government Bridge Table Set." a commission to inquire into the working of the Factories Act throughout the cities of Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal, with a view to making further laws for the Dominion, and that the system does exist to the extent which has been reported to the Congress, that the Government do take steps to have such laws passed as will stamp it out of existence.

An amendment was offered by Delegate Darlington of Montreal, who desires to have special inquiry made into how far the farmers' wives came into competition with those employed in making garments in those cities.

This was the signal for a very warm debate, in which every delegate took part. Eventually the amendment was withdrawn on the chairman of the committee explaining that the resolution offered by the committee was intended to cover everything engaged in all classes of work where the sweating system has been introduced.

The next subject taken up was the immigration question, and the Dominion Government in admitting Chinese into this country, and particularly in British Columbia, and after everyone present had exhausted themselves in expressing their views on the subject the following resolution was carried: "That this Congress views with alarm the rapid increase of the Chinese population in the Dominion, and would ask the Federal Government to further restrict the immigration of the most undesirable coolie labor from the Orient by raising the poll tax to $500 in order to save the workers of this country from undue competition with a class of people who are a disgrace to any civilized country and should be totally prohibited."

Delegate G. Pierre of Montreal introduced the following resolution: "That inasmuch as the present school system is costly and unsatisfactory to the toilers of this land, and, further, that it is a source from which a large amount of the disagreements among the different nationalities of this country emanate, further, that under the present system a working man's child has no chance of obtaining a fit and proper education sufficient to fit their future life; therefore, be it resolved that this Congress desires to express itself as being unqualifiedly in favor of a free, compulsory and non-sectarian system of day schools, and that the different Provincial Governments be petitioned accordingly."

DECLARED FOR AN 8 HOUR DAY

The Trades Union Congress Ask That This Be Made a Law.

Cardiff, Sept. 4.—The Trades Union Congress supported by a report of the Parliamentary Committee with an addendum asking that Parliament pass legislation providing for the payment of union rates of wages to all workmen in Government employment.

During the debate an amendment censured the Parliamentary Committee for its failure to secure legislation in favor of Socialism and land production. Delegate Salmon charged John Burns with deserting the Socialistic workers and cultivating only those workers of influence, so he might assist his re-election to Parliament.

Mr. Burns replied that these lying statements made by blacking Journalists who had now been dismissed from the Congress. A bill for the nationalization of land production had been entrusted to Mr. Broadhurst, but there was a fight over the bill and had been entrusted to him (Burns), he would have licked it into shape. He had attended to his duties in the House of Commons instead of lecturing for hire at 5 guineas a lecture and had also been present at 22 meetings of the Parliamentary Committee on the unemployed, while Keir Hardie had attended but eight. Social revolution, he said, was slow work. There were men who were trying to get it immediately and it was possible that they had laid the foundation stone of the social millennium.

The amendment was rejected and the resolution favoring a general eight hours working day was passed, with an amendment excepting miners from its provisions. The resolution declares: "That the time has arrived when the hours of labor should be limited to eight per day in all trades and occupations in the United Kingdom, and that the Parliamentary Committee be instructed to draft a bill on the lines of this resolution with a view of getting it passed through Parliament and made a law of the country."

BRITISH CRICKETERS WIN

And Canadians Defeat Uncle Sam By 110 Runs.

Toronto, Ontario, Sept. 5.—The 22nd international cricket match came to a close yesterday at Rosedale, the Canadian eleven gaining the victory over the team from across the border by a majority of 110 runs, the total scores being: Canada (1), United States 271. The visitors' last wicket fell at 1.20. Tribune of Ottawa fielded for Gillespie, and will take his place on the eleven against the 4th Indiana instead of Lyon.

With 23 runs to the credit of their team and two wickets down, Robins and Hungerford at 11.30 resumed the United States' innings to the bowling of Jacques and Laing. Hungerford was caught over the ropes off Jacques for 15. Cole followed, but Laing's second ball demolished him for a duck. Then Baldon and Cregar formed a lasting partnership, and the circumstances, who, in the first innings, had appeared the most dangerous of the strangers, began to make things look rosy for the Yankees. He gave a fine display of hard hitting, all round the wicket, and scored nine out of four chances in a short stay of 45 minutes. Baldon's share was 30, and when he was caught and bowled by Lyon for 46 the total stood at 6, and in addition made 10 runs. Then Brooke and nine runs, Bowling being caught and bowled by Lyon for 46. It was a marvellous catch by the Rosedale man—a hard-hit ball only a few inches from the ground. Bolton's was the last set scores made during the match, Cregar stayed out with Bowling, and was caught and bowled by Brooke for 48, before Bolton took the last wicket, Brooke (11), Bolton (8), Sharp (2), and Middlestadt (2) followed in rapid succession, and Goodman retired out his bat for 14, being the last of the visitors. THE BOYS AT SCHOOL.—Boys who are away at school should always have some quick and sure remedy for sudden attacks of Cramps, Diarrhœa, or Dysentery, for a physician is not always near, and an hour's delay in cases of this kind often leads to serious results. Therefore parents should supply their sons with Perry Davis' Pain Killer, which is so efficacious as it is simple and harmless. Directions are with each bottle, and one dose rarely fails to bring relief to a sufferer from any bowel complaint. Only 25c. for a bottle double old size.

TO KILL GERMS IN MILK.

According to the latest experiments in France it has been found that when milk is taken fresh from the cow, and placed in a receptacle with compressed oxygen and finally stored in twenty-five gallon cans at a pressure of two atmospheres it will travel for months in perfect condition. It is said that milk thus treated and sent from Lyons to London develops neither germs nor ferments, while it will stand a temperature almost up to the boiling point without coagulating. It is claimed by M. Villon, who has experimented in this way with milk on a large scale, that when so treated it is freed from the germs of tuberculosis. But this has yet to be conclusively proven, and the plan has, of course, not yet been adopted for general use. This would prove a great boon, as the disease is on the increase. Sir James Grant, before the Medical Convention at Kingston on Thursday last, dealt with the question of tuberculosis in cattle, and said the general public who went to market and bought meat had a right to know whether it was free from disease or not. The same with milk.

Much will be gained if a practical method can be found of preserving and shipping milk without injury to its flavor, so that it can be warranted sweet and free from harmful germs when received by the consumer. At present the only generally approved plan is by careful heating, which kills the germs but does not preserve the milk long from souring. The process is called pasteurization. The simplest way to pasteurize milk is to place it first in clean bottles. Then put the bottles in a large kettle or [illegible] vessel, and pour cold water into the kettle until the water reaches the level of the milk in the bottles and close the mouth of each bottle with a plug of clean white cotton fibre. The kettle and contents it then heated to 155 degrees Fahrenheit. The bottles are then removed from the fire and covered with a woollen cloth to keep from cooling at once. They are left half an hour and then the bottles are taken out and kept in running water or in a cool place and left stopped with the plug of cotton. Milk, carefully treated by this process, may be warranted free from disease germs, and it will keep sweet about twenty-four hours. Many milkmen could get up a fancy trade at advanced prices for milk heated in this way. For shipping milk long distances none of the methods, except by ice or compressed oxygen, have been yet sufficiently tested to be recommended.

The Fight Which is to Come.

The fate of the civilized world has always hung upon the strength of the Aryan nations to repel the attempts of Asiatics to force their way into Europe and to flood the western world with Oriental ideas and habits, modes of government and forms of religion. The struggles of Greece with Persia, and of Rome with Carthage and the hordes of Attila, Romans and Teutons with the Saracens, the Conflicts extending to our own times with the Turks, were but so many acts in one long drama, of which the earlier scenes are to be found in the pages of Herodotus, and the latest might be studied in the telegrams of the daily newspaper.—Life of Freeman, Dean of Westminster.

Trilby's Foot.

The step from the sublime and ridiculous is quickly made. Such literature presents no more grotesque idealization than Trilby's foot, and the numerous worshippers that have figuratively speaking held knee and kissed the big toe of the foot, when reason once more comes to their rescue, will feel as if the production of the genus Ass were genuine. By the way you did you notice when reading Trilby how highly it commended Putnam's Corn Extractor, which renders impossible the discordant experience corn. Trilby's feet would not be worthy of homage if marred by corns; neither would yours. Use Putnam's Corn Extractor.

The body of Thomas Ferguson was found badly mutilated by the Canada Atlantic in the vicinity of Alexandria.

No person should go from home without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial in their possession, as change of water, cooking, climate, etc., frequently brings on summer complaint, and there is nothing like being ready with a sure remedy at hand, which oftimes saves great suffering, and frequently valuable lives. This Cordial has gained for itself a wide spread reputation for affording prompt relief from all summer complaints.

CANADIAN PIRATES.

They Infest the Straits of Belle Isle and Little Plunder Escapes Them.

In no other part of the world, perhaps, is there such a daring gang of pirates as that which infests the straits of Belle Isle, the narrow passage north of Newfoundland, by which steamships in the summer months reach the Gulf of St. Lawrence from Europe. Some of them live a good part of the year on Belle Isle itself, but others come from Newfoundland, Labrador, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, ostensibly to engage in the fisheries, but in reality on the lookout for what they can loot and steal from ships in distress.

There are at least three or four wrecks every year in the vicinity of Belle Isle, and sometimes a great iron steamship breaks up or runs aground there. This is a rich harvest for the pirates. They swarm about the wreck and help themselves to everything that they can lay hands on. The captains and crews of such ships in distress have usually all they can do to save their lives from the treacherous coast, without concerning themselves with the fate of their cargoes. Should they venture to remonstrate with these high-waymen of the sea, for the freedom with which they help themselves to other people's property, they would be laughed at for their pains, as was the captain of the wrecked steamship Mexico a few days ago. Captain Daly has just arrived from the scene of the wreck of his ship, with the most startling description of his experiences with the pirates.

Daly endeavored to make terms with the captains of the fishing schooners that swarmed about the wreck for the saving of the cargo, but they laughed at him to his face, saying they intended to take everything that they could lay hands on. As an instance of the barefaced character of the robbery carried on by them, Daly reports that he went aboard one schooner at a time when it was deserted by all save a woman. He protested that some of his effects were concealed on board. The woman protested that there was nothing whatever belonging to him. He insisted upon a search, and found nailed to the bulkhead the portrait of his wife and children which had been taken from his cabin. Continuing the search he found a small hatch open and down, and upon opening it discovered thirteen bags of clothing belonging to his shipwrecked sailors. Shipping men feel that it is an outrage upon foreign as well as Canadian shipping for such a gang of pirates to be permitted at large in Canadian waters to prey upon the commerce of the world, and wonder that justice was not meted out to them long ago. Thus far, no attempt whatever has been made to bring these marauders to justice. Were a gunboat to be sent down to the straits, as many wish it would be, the dodged quite easily by the fast-sailing, light-draught, fishing, wrecking and smuggling schooners of the gulf, with the intimate knowledge possessed by their crews of the bays and coves of the coast.

Some day the pirates will encounter a well-armed captain and crew at a wreck, for the seamanship men know what they have to expect here. There will be a desperate fight, for the pirates are well armed, and on some of their smuggling expeditions they have already engaged the crews of the Government revenue cutters.—New York Sun.

a bowl [illegible] Well, it will. Take boil and [illegible] it nearly full of salt; [illegible] every morning the same as you would a house-plant. After you water it the first day pour in a little of three or four prettily-colored inks. In about a week the salt will begin to grow and will run over the cup and begin to crystallize on the sides. The different colors of the ink blend, and the effect is strikingly beautiful. Another mighty handsome ornament can be made with a glass nearly full of water, and a handful of oats. Just pour the oats in the water, and in a months a beautiful green bunch will [illegible] up and grow to a height of about a foot. The sprouts will stay green for a couple of months. If you like green things, wet a sponge, sprinkle it with Siberian grass seed and suspend it from the ceiling. In less than a week the sponge will look like a ball of green grass. Hang four or five of these green balls about a room and the effect is quite pretty. But those were old-time decorations, and I don't know as people would care for them now.—Philadelphia Record.

The Marblehead Dialect.

The Marblehead dialect, so-called, was the old-time speech of Lincolnshire and Nottinghamshire in England, somewhat enriched and modified, no doubt, by words and phrases from the Channel Islands. It was substantially the language spoken by the earlier settlers of Boston and vicinity, though, because of our isolated position it survived here for a longer period. It was peculiar, direct, hearty and expressive, abounding in quaint and bright expressions. Instead of being caricatured it deserves to be enshrined in literature and some competent writer ought to make a faithful study and portraiture of it and achieve what Bynner only half tried to do. But we rather suspect that when resolved into its elements it would be found to be nothing so distinctive after all. William Black's novels are full of genuine Marblehead expressions as everyone is aware who reads his books or knows Marblehead.—Marblehead Messenger.

SEIZED FOR SELLING SALT.

A Canadian Cruiser Seizes Newfoundland Vessels.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 5.—Private telegrams from Labrador state that Newfoundland fishing vessels have been seized by a Canadian cruiser for a breach of the customs regulations. Particulars cannot be obtained until the arrival of the mail steamer, which is due. Sandy Harbor, but the probable cause is that the vessels were selling salt. By an arrangement between the Canadian and Newfoundland Governments, Newfoundland fishermen fishing in Canadian waters are permitted to carry free of duty what salt is necessary for curing their own fish. Salt is unusually scarce along the coast this season and it is believed that some of the vessels seized sold salt to other vessels in violation of the customs regulations.

The Government has decided to take no action until fully informed of the whole circumstances, especially as one seizure has been made because a vessel had a wrong clearance, a merely technical violation.

BEER SWELLED HER TONGUE.

New Mrs. Longstreet is in Great Pain and May Die.

Paterson, Sept. 1.—Mrs. Joseph Longstreet, a married woman, about 32 years old, is in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from a peculiar trouble. During the hot spell of last week she went to visit friends at Little Falls, and while there drank a glass of beer.

She felt a queer sensation on her tongue, and thought no more about the matter until yesterday, when the tongue began to swell. A physician was called in and pronounced the case one of inflammation of the tongue. The organ has swollen to such an extent that her mouth can hardly contain it, and she suffers the most intense pain. It is feared that it will kill her.

Alexandria, Ont., Sept. 4.—The remains of a young man by the name of Norman Ferguson, from Dunvegan, were found on the Canada Atlantic Railway, a short distance west of this place this morning, badly mutilated.

Five Men Suffocated.

Providence, R.I., Sept. 4.—By the bursting of a gas main at the works of the Providence Gas Company this afternoon, five men were suffocated, and a sixth narrowly escaped death.

Died From Fright.

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 4.—Charles S. Bottomley's 2-year-old daughter Elsie was teasing her father's bird dog eight days ago and the dog became angry and sprang at her. He evidently did not intend to injure the child, but simply seized her by the dress at the back of the neck and shook her vigorously. The little girl's cries of alarm brought her mother, and when the child was released it was found that she was apparently uninjured. She had been badly frightened and the shock brought on an attack of nervous prostration. This was followed by convulsions, and yesterday the child died. Her physicians say there is no doubt that the death was due to the fright she received.

He went back to work at once, feeling apparently as well as ever.

MOROCCO MUST PAY UP.

Spain Determined to Secure Her Indemnity and Enforce the Treaty

London, Sept. 4.—A despatch to the Central News from Madrid states that in consequence of the failure of diplomatic measures the Government has decided upon a naval demonstration at Tangier to enforce the terms of the treaty signed with the Government of Morocco. Warlike warships are now at Cadiz in readiness to start.

The treaty between Spain and Morocco was concluded with the Sultan of Morocco in March, 1894, by General Martinez Campos, now in command of the Spanish forces in Cuba, after the troubles with the Riffs at Melilla. The convention provides for sending the offending Riff tribes into the interior and for the execution of the ringleaders and the imprisonment of others of the principal aggressors. In addition, Morocco agreed to the establishment of a neutral zone and to pay Spain an indemnity of 20,000,000 pesetas, a portion of the more important provisions of the treaty, especially that requiring the payment of indemnity, has been practically evaded, despite the diplomatic endeavors and threats of Spain. It is now proposed to resort to other and more drastic measures of compelling the Sultan to keep his agreement.

THE INDIAN BUDGET

Shows a Deficit Less Than Previous Budgets.

London, Sept. 5.—Lord George Hamilton, Secretary of State for India, introduced the Indian budget in the House yesterday. The statement showed that the expenditure of the Indian Government continued to exceed the revenue, but the deficit was less than shown by the previous budgets. The fall in the rupee of exchange was the chief difficulty. The Secretary said, but the financial position was distinctly better than it was three years ago.

Mr. J. Kenyon, Conservative, said he hoped that the Government would repeat the cotton duties in India. Hon. H. Fowler, Secretary of State for India, replied that the Government regretted that the Indian finances ought to be considered with a view to conserving the Indian interest.

Mr. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury, concurred in Mr. Fowler's views, but said that special or constituent interests ought not to override the interests of the general community. Lancashire, he said, could rely upon it that the duties would not be allowed to unduly favor Indian manufactures.

The budget was approved.

The House will be prorogued tomorrow.

CECIL RHODES NOT DEAD

On the Contrary He is Reported To Be in Good Health.

London, Sept. 4.—The Agent-General of Cape Colony has received a cablegram setting at rest the rumors of the death of Mr. Cecil Rhodes, the Premier of Cape Colony. The cablegram says that Mr. Rhodes is in good health and attending to his business as usual. Mail advices, however, represent him as being in ill health, but these are, of course, much earlier date than the telegraphic advices.

CORBYVILLE.

Sept. 4th.—The merry shout of "hop poles" has been heard in this vicinity the past week, as Mr. Palmer's and Mr. Corby's hop yards are being harvested. The hops are turning out very satisfactory. They expect to be finished to-day, but Mr. Corby's is still outdone some days longer.—Mr. Corby's many friends were pleased to see his genial face in Corbyville again after his long absence.—Mr. and Mrs. Derbyshire, of Picton, spent last Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Oliver at Mrs. Jas. Moore's.—Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bedser, of Belleville, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. P. Goodwin's.—One of the members of the L.T.L. Club who has been visiting at Mr. R. Palmer's for some time, returned to Rochester on Saturday evening.—Mr. Frank Palmer still remains.—Mrs. Nancy Palmer, who has been visiting friends in Rochester for the past six weeks, returned home on Monday.—Mr. and Mrs. Will Merrill have gone on a visit to Mrs. Merrill's parents, Mr. A. Brintnell's at Castleton.—Mr. and Mrs. Teeter, of Toronto, are visiting at Mrs. Jas. Parks'.—Three more pupils from this section have started to attend High School, namely, C. Moore, M. Haight and H. Hammer.—Quite a number of people from here went to Belleville to the races on Monday, and reported a nice time.

Boys in Turkey.

Away in Turkey we cannot help feeling sorry for the poor little boy in his red fez, with his small share of toys and his monotonous Koran to commit to memory. But he has his horse, and every Turkish boy can ride, and no doubt you have heard the phrase, "He can ridelike a Turk." I have not been able to find any national fete in the land of the Moslem to describe. Soon be with you, save the great military parade which takes place when the Sultan goes to church, and this is very rare, for he seldom attends worship.

Some friends of mine who witnessed his Majesty going to church on Sunday in Constantinople say the procession accompanying him was the grandest military display they ever witnessed. First in the procession came the Sultan, next in the royal carriage were his sons, his mother, his sister [illegible] Sultana, [illegible] wives, each the other [illegible] author of "Tales All Constantinople [illegible] the wife of a retired [illegible] of the [illegible] spent more than [illegible] and [illegible] of the nineteenth and [illegible] A COMMISSIONER [illegible] York Mail and [illegible] GEN[illegible] ISM Knee-Breeches Coming in Again.

If society is so taken with the bicycle and golf idea of leg upholstery that it will require every man to wear knee breeches shortly, as the fashion editor announces, then society may be congratulated heartily upon being caught knowing what it is about. No art is so wise and skilful that it may add by dress the least to the power of the beauty of the naturally developed human body; but all art is wisest and most skilful when it resolves only to help the naturally developed human body to express its beauty with the most freedom.

WINTER WINDOW GARDENS.

Bulbs That May be Grown Successfully by Enthusiastic Amateurs.

No ... [illegible] ... gardens yield so generous a return for the slight care they require, as those with bulbous roots, writes Carroll Watson Rankin in the September Ladies Home Journal. No other plants are so fascinating, so beautiful, or so easily grown. Most bulbs will thrive and produce an abundant harvest of glorious bloom in a temperature which would make a maximum heat of the sun's rays [illegible] ... ary people have an idea that it is a difficult matter to grow them without a greenhouse. This is a mistake. All one needs is a little common sense and the bulbs. Bulbs should be ordered early in the fall. The Romans hasten lily and the freesia should be planted in August if they are wanted for the holidays. All other bulbs should be ordered early in September and planted at intervals. After potting the bulbs in good garden soil they must be placed in the dark to make roots. This is of the utmost importance. A dark, cool cellar is the best place, but a dark closet or a cupboard, or even a bureau drawer will do nicely. The soil must be watered occasionally. The aforesaid roots soon germ and will put their offers and the pots must remain in the dark for at least four weeks. It will do no harm to have them there for three or four months, provided the pots are not allowed to dry out.

There are a number of bulbs that may be grown successfully by the enthusiastic amateur, which, if given proper care and treatment, may be relied upon to furnish flowers for Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's, Easter and for innumerable birthdays.

BASE BALL.

An Exhibition Game.

The Maple Leafs, of Guelph, amateur champions of Canada, are on a tour at present and, through the efforts of H. T. Beatty and Wm. Taylor they were induced to play an exhibition game against the local team. The game was played yesterday afternoon on the Agricultural grounds and was witnessed by about four hundred spectators. The Leafs gave the local team Bradford and Powers as a battery and Belleville Junior Bell with Hall in the gap in the visitors' team. The Leafs play ball as it was originally intended, but yesterday what looked to the spectators like weakness on the part of some of the team was simply play taken down for the score. Bradford was quite effective against his club mates and struck out all his old friends by some brilliant plays, especially a catch of a foul after a long run. Powers also did splendid support behind the bat. Wood and Snyder were the battery for the visitors. Sixteen batters were down to Wood's pitching. The teams were as follows in batting order: Guelph, Beatty, 1.f.; Mc-Elroy, c.f.; Cockman, s.s.; Snyder, c.; O'Connor, 1st.b.; Gallagher, 2nd.b.; Hewer, 3rd.b.; Wood, p.; Draycott, r.f.; Belleville, Powers, c.; Bradford, p.; Cronkrite, 1st.b.; C. Thompson, 2nd.b.; J. Thompson, 3rd.b.; J. Canning, r.f.; J. Forchon, s.s.; J. Truesch, c.f.; E. Gibson, l.f.

The game went fast enough, but it failed to awaken much enthusiasm among the spectators. Geo. Johnston umpired the game and some of his decisions on balls and strikes were away off. The score by innings was as follows:—

Guelph,.....	2	0	0	0	2	1	0	2	—	7	15	5
Belleville.....	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	3	6	5

Struck out by Woods, 16; by Bradford 7; passed balls, Guelph 2, Belleville 1. Time of game 1 hour, 50 minutes.

Mr. Geo. Chamberlain, manager of the team, is an old ball player and he enjoys the game as much now as ever. He is a good disciplinarian and when he says "play ball" they know that he means it. The team left this morning for Bowmanville, where they play to-day.

YACHTING.

The Tuning-Up Process.

New York, Sept. 5.—By lamplight, moonlight and the rays of the electric lights in Erie Basin 75 men worked nearly all of last night scraping, planing and polishing the top sides of Valkyrie III, and before noon to-day all the black paint will have disappeared from the water line, and she will appear in a coat of spotless white. The yacht's crew were knocked off when she had hauled into dock and were not required to do any night work. They are being well fed and get their regular sleep, so they will be in good trim when wanted.

No arrangements have been made for docking Defender again, and she is not expected to be docked until the day before the first race. Designer Crane, who Valkyrie will be official measurer of the Gauthier, [illegible] ... [illegible] ... go his allowance to the dock, for Defender's straight as a string when compared in there for measurement. Both vessels will be moved to the Hunsdale to wait for the races.

While the interest in the races this year seems to be greater than ever before, the betting has been much lighter. Reports have been heard of large odds on Defender, but none have yet been laid in this country. The general disposition has been to offer 3 to 2 against Valkyrie, but little money has been wagered at these odds. Both sides appear to be chary of giving odds, and the reported odds of 3 to 1 laid in England are laughed at by Capt. Sycamore, who said that they must have a lot of money to spare to do that. Although the measurements of Defender and Valkyrie III. will not be announced officially until Friday, and possibly not until Saturday, enough has been learned about the spars and hulls of the boats to make a reasonable estimate of the racing length of the yachts and the time allowance given by the challenger. It is the first time since the big sloop began competing for the cup that the American boat has had to take time, although it will not be as great as was expected. The time allowance is estimated by a well-known designer and yachtsman, are 18.26 for Valkyrie and 100.22 for Defender. Under the rules of the New York Yacht Club this would mean an allowance of a little less than a minute on a thirty mile course.

The Race Arrangements.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The course of the first, third and fifth races will be 15 miles to windward and leeward and return, and the second and fourth will be triangular. A time limit of one hour and a half has been set. The races will be started at 11 o'clock instead of 10.30 and the preparatory signals will be given at 10.53. Sandy Hook Lightship will be chosen as the starting point in all cases, if possible. Should the direction of the wind make it necessary, however, the start will be made from a point farther off shore. No race will be started later than 4 o'clock in the afternoon. In case of a calm the start will be delayed until 1.30, after which the committee may exercise their discretion in regard to starting at all or postponing the race. Unless something unexpected happens the racing days will be September 7, 9, 11, 13 and 14, should five races be necessary. There is still some doubt in regard to the last of these dates. It may be changed by mutual consent.

THE WHEEL.

Records Are Just Time.

In view of the fact that the Brantford and Hyslop teams and other local riders are now riding for records at Hamilton's point within the next few weeks, it will be interesting to know the Canadian records against time, paced and unpaced, for short distances. The records are all for class A, class B figures being not yet established. Record attempts, to be official, must be sanctioned, and must be made on a measured track, in the presence of a referee and three timekeepers. The official figures follow:—

Paced—One quarter mile, flying, 21 4-5s.; 1, standing, 30s.; 4, flying, 52 4-5s.; 4, standing, 1.05s.; 1, flying, 2.05 2-5; 1, standing, 2.36 2-5; 2, flying, 3.09 2-5; 2, standing, 7.11; 4, standing, 9.35; 5, standing, 11.57.

Unpaced—One quarter, flying, 27 2-5s.; ½ flying, 1.02 2-5; 1, standing, 2.24 4-5.

Sports.

Walter Sanger and Pat O'Connor finished in the two-mile open race on the mile open at the Rochester meet yesterday, which was ridden in 2.05 2-5. Cooper won the three-mile handicap, with Dr. Hamm and Coulter in 9.35 5, and the mile in 2.12 5, showing the way to Hiles and Rigby. Heifert won the mile handicap, with Bernhardt second.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Puddicy Wheel Club will be held in the club rooms to-morrow (Friday) evening at 8 o'clock to settle up the business in connection with the Labor Day meet. All accounts against the club should be handed in by that time.

HORSE AND TRACK.

The horsemen of the city have leased the track at the Agricultural grounds and several good horses are being given their work there. The grocers race at the coming fair will be a great contest. Every day some new horse belonging to a grocer is mentioned as a winner, and it is even said that some of the grocers have bought horses with good records especially for this race.

FISHING.

Good Sport on Mosquito Bay.

Messrs. W. Hamm, F. Dafoe, J. Corbett, of this city, and John Miller and Geo. Hunter, of Oshawa, were fishing yesterday afternoon on Mosquito Bay. The party had great luck, capturing about twenty five large bass, ten pike and two fine pickerel. The fish were on exhibition at the Hub hotel to-day.

Capt. Andrews, of the schooner Friend, captured a fine muskinonge weighing 21 lbs. trolling off Baker's Island, near Trenton. He shipped it to his wife this morning from Trenton, per stage.

GUN AND RIFLE.

Messrs. Geo. Reid and M. H. Jamieson returned from Crow Lake last evening from a duck shooting trip. They got fifteen ducks and lost as many more in the thick marshes. There were a large number of hunters around the lake.

W. C. T. U. Notes.

The Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America.

At the recent annual meeting of the above society, held in New York, the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, the Catholic Church in the United States has recently, in her bishops in Plenary Council assembled, approved and heartily commended the laudable practice of total abstinence, and whereas in sound conscience we believe that many of the holy Fathers communicate the prelates to their action on the question of temperance, therefore be it resolved that the C. T. A. U. of America in its twenty-fifth general convention, assembled in New York, reiterates its loyal obedience to the church and renews its allegiance to the holy cause of total abstinence. Resolved, that the advice given by the third Plenary Council of Baltimore, urging Catholics to get out and keep out of the saloon business, is again reiterated by this convention.

Whereas, there is one platform upon which all Americans can stand irrespective of religious belief, namely the platform of temperance, therefore, be it resolved, that we do appeal to the good men and fellow citizens in every legitimate effort to restrict the evils of intemperance.

Resolved, that we urge the formation of total abstinence societies among young girls and boys, and we urge our male societies to give them every encouragement in their power.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, SEPT. 6.

MODERN DUELLING.

For definite wrongs inflicted by one person upon the other all civilized nations, says the N. Y. Press, have provided penalties. With the progress of time resort to the code of the duelist falls into disrepute. Still retained as a tradition in France and Germany, in the one country it has grown so fanciful as to afford a never-ending theme for the professional humorist. In the other all the requirements of honor are met with a swordslash that, leaving a scar in the healing, remains as an evidence of individual courage. To the swashbuckler and the bravado the decay; of the duello is a thing to be regretted to the peaceful citizen a source of gratification. Even in Mexico, where combat to the death has lingered, the sentence imposed upon Colonel Romero for the killing of Jose Versategui cannot fail to have a depressing effect upon those who are disposed to maintain their dignity at point of pistol or sword. The penalty in his case is gruesome, with its ingenious refinement of a punishment fitting the crime. Romero not only is sentenced to three years' imprisonment, but he has been ordered to pay the funeral expenses of his victim and to give the widow $4,500 annually for eighteen years. Thus for a long period the evil he has done constantly will arise before him.

Does a man of normal mind, asks our New York contemporary, ever forget altogether evils which he may have wrought upon others? What comfort can find even the swaggering braggart for the taking of a man upon whom [illegible] are dependent for [illegible] being? Though years of life are swept out in contrition they cannot confess for errors of the irretrievable past. So women have been told of a chastity once lost. So men know when the stain of blood, albeit in defence of a world's standard of honor, overshadows the virtues that may be hidden in an assassin, a sneak-thief or a duelist. Courts of law have provided redress for civil and criminal wrongs. Some injuries and affronts there are which men and women of pride refuse to air before judge and jury. Honor traduced is the greatest of them. To women, unto our day, no remedy has been found for it. Betrayed though she may be, what woman of sentiment can vulgarize her romance for records of court? Traduced though he may be, what man of honor can find dollars and cents compensation for the wrong put upon him? Remedies of the like are worse than the disease. The duello was the salvation in the past. It has had its day. Outlawed, it has brought no substitute.

EDITORIAL BREVITIES.

The St. John Sun thus disposes of the Grit attempt to look happy over Westmoreland:—"We have the humiliating admission that the Grit cause has sunk so low in the once great Liberal constituency of Westmoreland, that the party is pleased when its candidate saves his deposit, which Mr. George in 1891 failed to do."

Seventy-three bye-elections for the House of Commons have occurred in Canada since March, 1891, of which 58 were won by Conservatives, and 15 by Liberal candidates. The Conservatives have carried 20 constituencies which returned Liberals in the last general election, while they have lost only four seats to the enemy, making a net gain of 16, or 32 on a division. This shows a great revulsion of public opinion, but it is not in a direction to give comfort to the Liberals.

According to recent surveys, the Dominion of Canada has a total land area of 3,315,647 square miles. The lakes and rivers occupy 284,353 square miles more. The country has a range of 1,400 miles from north to south, and 3,500 from east to west, and contains seven settled provinces and four "districts." The area of those divisions in square miles, as now revised, are as follows: British Columbia, 382,000; Manitoba, 64,066; New Brunswick, 28,100; Nova Scotia, 20,550; Ontario, 219,650; Prince Edward Island, 2,000; Quebec, 227,600; Territories, 2,371,481.

The Board of Arbitrators to investigate the accounts between the Dominion and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec is in session here to-day. Provincial Treasurer Harcourt, Mr. J. H. Pope, Mr. J. M. Clark and A. Mullins Irving, Q.C., represent Ontario. The question taken up at the present sitting was as to whether the $10,506,000 mentioned in the Dominion statute of 1873 is fixed and determined as to the items composing the amount or whether these items can be investigated, inquired into and objected to by the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario. It was expected that the board would render judgment this morning on the important question of the school fund argued at the last meeting in Toronto, but that judgment has been postponed.

THE SEIZURES OFF LABRADOR.

Two Schooners Seized For Loading, Answer For Having No License

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 5.—Advices from Labrador confirm all reports of the seizure of our vessels. An official letter from Bonne Esperance says that A. L. Howard, Canadian Collector of Customs, has seized the schooners Telegram and Canford, Newfoundland vessels, presumably for loting stores, and they will not accept the duties. They have also seized The Founding Billow, Captain Baikin of Halifax, Nova Scotia, for not having a trading license which no Halifax vessel ever had. He is causing a great deal of trouble. He tried to seize the steamer Baracou, a chartered ship, taking a load of fish in Canadian waters, but she escaped. He likewise threatened to seize the Virginia Lake mail steamer, and he has a large schooner armed with guns and revolvers in readiness.

THRILLING TALE OF THE SEA.

Fearful Experiences of a Coal Vessel Off Cape Horn.

San Francisco, Sept. 6.—The British ship Mackrthanisu, Captain Saunders, arrived last night, 144 days from Swansea, with a cargo of 2547 tons of coal. Nearly every vessel which has reached here in the past week has had a thrilling story of battles with the elements, but the experience of the Mackrihanda were the worst. In June she was hove to for five days off the Horn, during which time heavy seas swept from stern to stem smashing her boats and sweeping everything movable into the sea. A tidal wave buried the vessel at one time, filling her decks, and at another time a blizzard froze her in rigging and running gear so that the ship was unmanageable. Ice clustered above the vessel in some places to a thickness of five feet and had to be broken with hammers in order to get at the ropes.

A Hudson's Bay Ruin.

At the mouth of the Churchill River, Hudson's Bay, are the remains of the old fort, Prince of Wales, that was taken by the French 100 years ago. The fort had been erected about twenty years before it was [illegible]

[illegible] walls on either side were each 150 feet in length, 20 feet high, and 20 feet wide at the top and 60 feet at the base. Within were commodious stone buildings, usually containing large supplies of goods and stores of every description, and immense quantities of valuable furs, gathered from every portion of the Northwest, even from the shores of the Polar Sea. Forty-two heavy cannon defended the fortress from an attack of an ordinary kind, but on the 8th of August 1782, the day appointed for advancing towards the fort three French ships of war that had come through the straits, which many still pretend to think are not my ignis. Two of the ships carried each 12 cannon, and the third ship carried 74 guns. As there were only 39 men in the fort, against 140 French, the fortress was given up without any fighting. All the rich furs were taken to France, the goods were either removed or destroyed, and an effort was made to demolish the fort, but owing to the strength of the masonry the work of destruction was not completed. Much of the ruin which is the largest in North America, still remains. The old cannons are partly or wholly covered by the great stones that that have fallen or that were thrown from the walls. The ancient walls still contain water, and the great guns and large iron balls that lie around are objects of interest to the skin clad Indians who sometimes visit the forsaken fortress. England made France pay well for the furs and the damage done, but the old strong-hold has not been rebuilt.—Pilot Mound Sentinel.

The Arena For September.

The September Arena opens with a vivid description of the wordy battle now being waged in the Pennsylvania over the agitation for raising the age of consent. The facts are marshalled in order by Helen H. Gardener, the well-known and popular novelist, and will shock this month with the argument, pro and con on the recent legislation in Nebraska, Colorado and Missouri, where the age has been materially raised. Prof. Joseph Rodes Buchanan, whose portrait forms the frontispiece, contributes a striking and valuable article on "The Marvels of Electricity." In his paper called "After Sixty Years," Mr. B. O. Flower, editor of the Arena, touches upon the disillusions of the career of the reformer, and tells of the career of one who in a lifetime of sixty years' service has not lost faith in humanity. James J. Clark, of California Simon Jarvis tells "How Evolution Evolves." Henry Wood, the author of "Natural Law in the Business World," and other popular metaphysical works, writes on "Omniscient Divinity." Prof. Frank Parsons, Law Lecturer at the Boston University, contributes his second study of the "Economy of Municipal Electric Lighting." He shows the enormous saving to the taxpayers and the diffusion of public benefit which would result from public ownership of electric lighting. His conclusions and statistics cannot be refuted. A symposium of clergymen and other writers deals with Prof. George D. Herron and his work. Dr. Herron has aroused a great stir by his teaching in the west, and he has been bitterly assailed for some of his views of social Christianity. These gentlemen defend his position. There are Rev. J. R. McLean, Rev. W. W. Sudduth, Rev. Dr. J. Cummings Smith, Rev. J. E. Scott, Elder M. J. Ferguson, Rev. R. M. Webster and James G. Clark, the poet. The Hon John Davis writes on the career of Napoleon Bonaparte from the psychological point of view, and condemns him as simply a criminal entirely worthless to humanity. F. W. Catlin discusses "The Labor Exchange," and Rev. Dr. Marion D. Shutter deals with "Progressive Changes in Universalist Thought. The Books of the Day, World of Books and Practical Topics complete an excellent and well-balanced budget of good reading.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow neglected colds, how differently would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows neglected cold? It is not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. Is it worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for its frequent complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which have a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and healthy expectoration, soothe irritation and drives the disease from the system.

Rain Gambling in Calcutta.

Come down again to where old Chouni Lall himself sits, bent, bagged—decrepit, genial and wrinkled. He is always glad to see you. He never mentions a bet. You ask the price, unable in the clamor of tongues to hear and understand. He murmurs six and a half. Come, let us bet, and see now it is done. Here goes for 10 rupees. The broker holds it up—more shouting, more laughing, some figure laid up on a slate. You see he has sold it at 7; the price is rising. Supposing it rains between now and 9 o'clock at night, we shall win 6 rupees for every rupee of our stake, our own broker making up when the quoted price. Chooni Lall will take an anna in every rupee for brokerage. He is already worth many lakhs, for fortunes are won and lost here every day in the monsoon.

The very sugarcane seller at the door, who doles out sticks of sugarcane for 2 pice, is worth several annas a month. He can bet either way, for or against the rain, for to-day or to-morrow or against any fixed day, if you can find a taker. You can take your choice of the two periods of hours—6 a. m. till noon, or from 6 a. m. till 9 p. m. Of course, to a man who bets that rain will fall in the first period, far longer odds are offered. It rarely rains, even in the monsoon, between these hours, and I have won 400 to 1 offered.

Rich men deposit large sums with Chooni Lall for his daily profits, and he lays odds on the rain falling within a certain month. For the month in which the monsoon usually breaks, they lay 5 and 6 to 1 on the rain and it rarely and unfailingly has a very good bet. Brokers themselves bet but rarely their brokerage pays them; but of course, there comes often a certainty of winning by easy hedging. The odds are not hard to foretell. Every bet is sold in the open market, and the price recorded. The place is really a sort of rain exchange, and, as in the monsoon weather it is constantly full, there is never any difficulty in betting either way, supposing you be willing to take the current price.—Chamber's Journal.

We Back up Oak Hall Clothing.

If you can buy ready-made clothing outside the Oak Hall and it turns out unsatisfactory, is that any reason you should condemn all ready-to-wear garments. If one tailor makes you a bad suit, do you make up your mind to never go to another tailor? Or if you get a bad pair of boots, do you never intend getting another pair? Buy your clothing at the Oak Hall, and do not forget we are not responsible for what other dealers may have sold you.

In Advanced Years

The strength and pure blood necessary to resist the effects of cold seasons are given by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I have for the last 25 years of my life been complaining of a weakness of the lungs and colds in the head, especially in the winter. Last fall I was again attacked. Reading of Hood's Sarsaparilla I was led to try it. I am now taking the fifth bottle with good results. I can positively say that I have not spent a winter as free from coughs or pains and difficult breathing spells for the last 25 years as was last winter. I can lie down and sleep all night without any annoyance from cough or pain in the least. Climatic Hotel, Ont." E. M. CHAMBERS, J. P., Cornhill, N. B.

THE PEOPLE'S IDOL, DAN McCARTHY.

This Favorite Irish Comedian to Appear at the Toronto Opera House During the Two Weeks of the Exhibition.

Mellow, genial, beaming and clever Dan McCarthy, with his supporting company of some twenty or more people, singing, dancing and making merry in the jolly Irish comedy dramas "The Rambler from Clare" and "The Pride of Mayo," will be the attractions at the ever-popular Toronto Opera House during the two weeks of the Toronto Fair—Sept. 2nd to 14th. Irish comedy drama seems to be about the proper thing to put on during the Exhibition. Dan McCarthy is a great favorite in Toronto and will prove an especial favorite with the visitors to the Fair. Since the death of Dion Boucicault, the mantel of the late J. K. Scanlan and the reported retirement of Joseph Murphy, we have no exponent of legitimate Irish character except Dan McCarthy. He, on the stage, is a cheery, humorous Irish boy, with a rosy sky, a good song and a pretty colleen. There are some who do not care for Irish dramas, but the great mass of people like nothing better and will have a good opportunity of indulging their taste, for Mr. McCarthy will give no less than nineteen performances during the period of the Fair, including the usual Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees each week. Ladies and children need not hesitate to attend, for the most fastidious can find nothing to object to in any play written or staged by Dan McCarthy. He writes all his own plays and songs, and anyone who knows anything of theatrical matters has heard his "Geraldeen Lawn," "Irish Boy," "Donahoe's Daughter," "McCarthy's Cat," "The Grenthorn," "The Rambler from Clare," and "The Pride of Mayo." These are the plays that have made him the favorite that he personally know many better actors whom we would pass by any day to see Dan McCarthy, the broth of a boy, ready for a fight or a song, or a flirtation, or whatever luck may send his way. It was while Manager Small to secure Mr. McCarthy for the two weeks of the Fair, and the compliment and the actor is great, for we do not remember any previous occasion when an actor held the boards of that house for two weeks.

As is a matter of fact, the Toronto Opera House, there will not be any increase in the regular popular prices of the theatre during the Fair.

Fight With a Giant Sturgeon.

An Essex, Con., correspondent says: The Connecticut evidently abounds in big sturgeon this season. A few days ago you had a story about the capture of a 200 pounder, which was partly stranded on the shallow flats near the river not far from East Hartford. This week a still bigger one was killed after an exciting battle by a party of flag gatherers, in the rushes about Goose Island, near this hamlet of the lower Connecticut Valley. The island is level and low, and its borders are densely clad with green, luxuriant, billowing sweetflags. These flag parties of men and boys dig out of the soaked and spongy soil, and then ready sale in the city markets for the pungent and aromatic roots. The members of the party noted were all armed with long, sharp knives, with which they dug.

They were all busy among the rustling, glistening flags, when, of a sudden, they heard a great splashing in the reeds not more than 40 feet away. Then a huge, shovel nose was dashed high in the air. Then the splashing and flapping uproar was resumed in the shallows, and presently another lunging nose was uplifted. Instantly the experienced flag cutters divined the cause of the commotion, and away they dashed and splashed out into the river in their long boats, and rowed and punted right into the midst of it. A monstrous fish was there partly stranded on the shallows and excitedly tangled up in pads and weeds, and was making a terrific struggle to extricate itself.

Trilby's Foot.

The step 'twixt the sublime and ridiculous is quickly made. Surely illustrative proverbs no more pregnant could be found than foot, and the numerous worshippers that have figuratively speaking bent knees and heart to Trilby's foot. Trilby's foot, once more comes to their rescue, will feel as if the production of the genius Aw were personified. Have you did you notice when reading Trilby how highly it commended Putnam's Corn Extractor? Nonpareilers impossible the discordant exercrescence corn. Trilby's feet would not be worthy of heroine if matured by corns; neither would yours. Use Putnam's Corn Extractor.

HOW WORDS HAVE CHANGED IN MEANING

Some Have Gained in Dignity and Many Have Lost.

(From the St. Louis Globe Democrat.)

Villa formerly meant a farm, not a house.

Daisy was originally the eye of day or day's eye.

Girl formerly signified any young person of either sex.

Hag once meant any old person, whether male or female.

Gallon was originally a pitcher or jar, no matter of what size.

Voyage was formerly any journey, whether by land or sea, it did not matter.

Polite at first meant polished, and was applied to any smooth, shining surface.

Good-bye is an abbreviation of an old English form of parting, "God be with you until we meet."

A vagabond was originally only a traveler or person who went from place to place with or without a definite object.

Shrewd once signified evil or wicked. Thos. Fuller uses the expression, "a shrewd fellow," meaning a wicked man.

Moonstruck is borrowed from astrology. It formerly described one driven mad by sleeping in the rays of the moon.

Peck at first meant a basket or receptable of grain or other substances. The expression at first had no reference to size.

Starve was once to die any manner of death. Wyclife's sermons will tell how Christ starved on the cross for the redemption of men.

The word miscreant formerly signified only an unbeliever, an infidel. Joan of Arc, in the literature of her time was called a miscreant.

Acre once meant any field. It is still used with this significance by the Germans, who speak of God's acre, alluding to the cemetery.

Meat once meant any kind of food. In the old English edition of the Lord's Prayer the well-known petition is rendered, "Give us this day our daily meat."

Town originally signified a farm or farmhouse. It is used by Wyclife in this sense, and they went their ways—one to his town, another to his merchandise."

Tariff was the name of a Moorish chieftan, Abou al Tarifa, who had a fortress near the Straits of Gibraltar and levied toll on ships and merchantmen passing through.

Libel once meant any little book, but as many criminal tracts in the early days of printing were personal and offensive in character the word acquired its present significance.

ONE FOOT ON SEA

By MARGARET C. HELMORE.

[illegible] was allowed. He thought he had behaved in the most honorable way; at least he advised himself to believe the course he had taken was unselfish as we commonly use that word. I think he had no wish that she should retain more than a passing recollection of those few days of delight and imprudence. Still when it came to thinking of her as married to one of the island planters or some upstart government official with a salary of £200 a year, degenerating into languid, drawling yelled creole housewife, worn out with the cares of a family, without an idea beyond the prospect of crops and the enormities of negro servants, the idea was too overwhelming, and a torrent of vexation seized possession of him for having allowed the opportunity to pass when it would have been so easy to bind her heart to his forever, even though subsequent prudence interposed to prevent the most fatal consequences of that moment of delirium.

Ah, well, perhaps it was best as it was. In a week's time or a month or so further he might be able to regard the matter philosophically, and she— There conjecture as well as hope refused to come to a determination; it was best not to think at all about her future, if only it were possible to refrain from so doing.

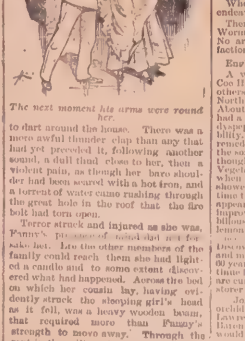

The friends who drove Fanny home that night considered that nothing could have been more circumspect than the farewell between the sailor and his love and had the good taste to forbear from bantering her upon the subject or appearing unduly curious as to the result of the evening. The other officers at a hint from their superior had taken leave a short time before him, as he wanted a few minutes' quiet talk with Colonel Sandilands, and it was arranged that they should all meet at the Pricetown club, which on the occasion of any large entertainment in the neighborhood generally remained open all night. Fane had nothing that he really wished to say to the administrator; it was merely a ruse to be alone, to calm his excited feelings with a solitary walk, instead of being rattled down to the shore in the crowded buggy with his spirited and possibly chaffing friends, and after his lingering handshake and conventional "Good-by, Miss Crafton," he did not go back into the house, but finding his cap, and conventionally accepting a light for a cigar which the administrator's black factotum handed to him, he slowly wended his way down the winding carriage drive in the wake of the vehicle that was bearing away from him the one and only being he could ever love. No! time would never efface the memory from his heart. He was not selfish enough to wish to make her his own, but he could never forget her.

The glorious moon had set and the sky had set even blacker and overcast in appearance than the usual darkness that precedes the dawn. Suddenly some large drops of rain which were the precursors of one of the drenching West Indian rainfalls and a threatening rumble of thunder warned the captain that it would have been better if he and his companions had hastened to get on board ship.

Poor little Fanny meanwhile had crept slowly up the gallery stairs into the room she shared with her cousin, who in common with the rest was simply devoted to her. She had no light; in the desolate blankness of her heart she did not care to see, had not even energy enough to undress and lie down. She groped her way to the open window at one corner of the room, from which in the daytime a glimpse of the sea was visible, and gave herself up to miserable repinings and self reproach. Was she not a despicable, silly creature to have lost her heart to a gay deceiver who would sail away at daybreak and never think of her any more?

Her melancholy strings after a philosophical frame of mind were interrupted by the furious breaking of the storm that had been for some minutes gathering. Deafening peals of thunder seemed to explode right over her head and the flashes of lightning became so terribly vivid that she could no longer keep her place by the window, but drawing down the blinds crept timorously to the farther side of the room, and sinking on her knees beside her cousin's bed hid her face in her hands, while sobs of nervous tremor and excitement shook her whole frame.

Lucy Haslett was a heavy sleeper, and, occupied as Fanny then was with her own emotions, scarcely more than a vague hope that the invalid would not be disturbed and frightened had found place in her thoughts, when—she could never fully describe afterward what it was that happened—giant tongues of livid fire, like serpents' fangs, seemed to dart around the house. There was a more awful thunder clap than any that had yet preceded it, following another sound, a dull thud close to her, then a violent pain, as though her bare shoulder had been scarred with a hot iron, and a torrent of water came rushing through the great hole in the roof that the fire bolt had torn open.

Terror struck and injured as she was, Fanny's presence of mind did not forsake her. Into the other members of the family could reach them she had lighted a candle and to some extent discovered what had happened. Across the bed on which her cousin lay, having evidently struck the sleeping girl's head as it fell, was a heavy wooden beam, that required more than Fanny's strength to move away. Through the rent in the ceiling above through which the rain continued to pour the sky was black and inky save at the moments when its gloom was dispersed by the still recurring flashes; a smell of burning pervaded the room, and the woolen wrap with which Lucy was covered had [illegible] Lucy Haslett and the agonized father, as Fanny tried to lift the motionless form of her cousin. "A doctor! Where are they? Bring Hilda!—Fanny, my child, can you leave Lucy? Is Dr. Wilson [illegible] Haslett and Mrs. Haslett and the agonized father, as Fanny tried to lift the motionless form of her cousin. "A doctor! Where are they? Bring Hilda!—Fanny, my child, can you leave Lucy? Is Dr. Wilson [illegible] haven't yourself, dame; are whist mischief has been done about the house, and find out where this poor child can be taken out of the wet."

But amid these rapid utterances had fallen from her uncle's lips Fanny, conscious of [illegible] and a vague sort of faith in the presence of a doctor, had rushed out into the midst of the tempest. Fleet as a wild roe and familiar with every step of the way, she neither stumbled nor slipped down in the darkness, and was presently in the main street leading to the turning down which the doctor lived.

As might be supposed, not another soul was stirring out of doors at the lamplights in the club were the only indications [illegible] that other houses [illegible] awake and possibly in terror over the peril of their lives. In her soaked and clinging muslin dress, the skirt of which she had instinctively drawn up over her head, although it was no protection whatever, Fanny must have presented a very strange and wraithlike appearance, and it is not to be wondered at that the man whose thoughts were then occupied with anxiety for his son should be frightened during this fearful storm was struck with a vague terror when she came in sight.

Fane had reached the club before the full fury of the storm and was watching its progress to take advantage of the earliest lull to put off from shore. He alone remarked the ghastly little figure as he stood at the window, and smothering an ejaculation of horror and surprise he sprang across the window sill and rushed down the gallery stairs.

For a brief space a superstitious feeling prompted the belief that Fanny was killed and that this was her spirit come to tell him of it, but the next moment his arms were round her, and from her lovely parted lips, which did not avoid the kiss he pressed upon them, came broken murmurs of: "Oh, Captain Fane! The doctor—my cousin—the lightning!"

"What on earth's come to the skipper?" cried the youngest lieutenant, rousing himself from the rocker where he had been half asleep. All the occupants of the room crowded out upon the gallery in time to witness a part of the little idyl that was being enacted, and, to the credit of their sex be it recorded, one and all of them discreetly withdrew again into the room.

The rain was pouring now and day began to dawn. Dr. Wilson, as may be supposed, was up and stirring, and after having her supplied with a cloak and umbrella, which Fane held over her, the three hurried off to Mr. Haslett's temporary house.

Lucy was merely stunned, and in the course of [illegible] two appeared to be none the worse for the accident. She had been physically as well as mentally declining for many months, and nothing seemed to make very much difference to her; her unimportant life was not to run more than a few years longer.

Little more remains to be told. Before the Bluff was out of sight a letter from the captain was in Mr. Haslett's hands, in which he formally offered himself as a suitor for his niece, and Fanny's nerves recovered from the shock after they had endured far sooner than the fair skin upon her shoulder regained its normal whiteness. The good folks of St. Vitus were perfectly satisfied that the offer had been made at the government house ball, and with the exception of her friend Lottie, who was taken into her confidence, Fan did not think it necessary to undeceive them.

The oldest cathedral in England is probably that of Winchester. It is believed that it was built in 177 by the newly converted British King Lucas, on the site of a great pagan temple. The oldest portions of the present edifice date back to the year 980 A. D.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith? Cow Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I feel it my duty to say a few words about Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had a very sallow and lemon juice with very little effect. But [illegible] discovery the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

THE SEIZED VESSELS.

Newfoundland Enters a Strong Protest.

RELIEF HAS BEEN ORDERED.

"Gus" Howard Made the Seizures On Labrador Lumpthrifter Wallace Leaves For Manitoba—The Millers Object to Mixed Wheat—News Notes From the Capital

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 7.—Controller Wallace leaves for the Northwest and British Columbia to-morrow. The Controller's health has improved under the rest from contact with the Red Tape Circle, and he will be able to resume his duties in a few days.

Reports have recently reached the Department Mr. Wallace, when in Manitoba, will authorized to learn what are the views of the millers in connection with the mixed question.

The first official notification of seizures of Newfoundland vessels off the coast of Labrador came to the Acting Premier of Newfoundland to-day in the shape of a telegram from the head office of Bishop & Monroe, of St. John's, Nfld. The telegram stated that the schooner Crawford and three others had been seized and detained on the ground that they were in British waters. The Crawford, it will be remembered, put into Battle Harbor, Labrador, to land a sick man, and it was during the time she was there that the seizure was made. The owners of the vessels have been informed that they are forbidden fishing in Canadian waters, but that they were allowed to enter any port for shelter, repairs, or to land sick men.

A reference to departmental records shows that Capt. Howard was appointed a commissioner of preventive officer of Customs under date 4th of April last. He was authorized to seize any vessels found guilty of violating the Customs law, but was enjoined to be exceedingly cautious and to be very sure of his facts. He is not paid any salary, but is to receive a share of proceeds of any fines that may be imposed. He is under instructions to report from time to time to the Collector of Customs at Quebec.

Hon. Mr. Wood, Controller of Inland Revenue, has had under consideration representations of the Dominion Millers' Association in reference to a decision of the department to allow scoured wheat to be mixed with No. 1 hard. The following is a copy of the reply sent to Mr. Wm. Stewart, secretary of the Dominion Millers' Association, Winnipeg, with regard to the matter:

Sir,—Your communication of yesterday's date was duly received. Instructions have been issued to allow the Flour Board established at once. The date of the meeting will then rest with the chairman. With regard to the postponement of the decision as to the word "grown" in the statute, I have only to say that the Department has to consider the interests of the producers and of those who have invested capital in moving the western crop, as well as those of the eastern millers, who really are not in a position to meet the competition of Manitoba wheat, and who have for years enjoyed a protection which does not prevail there will not our products seek a foreign market, as the case may be, submit to the exactions demanded when shipped from our own ports.

The Atlantic and Northwestern Railway Co. gives notice of its intention to apply to the Governor-in-Council for approval of an agreement in which that company leases to the Canada Pacific Railway Co. for a period of 999 years from 1st April 1894 the portion of the railway between Farnworth and Rat Portage, and the Canada Pacific Railway Co. leases to the Atlantic and Northwestern Railway Co. the portion of the railway between Rat Portage and Winnipeg.

The Canada Gazette contains an announcement of appointment of Hon. J. C. Patterson to be Lieutenant Governor of Manitoba and of Sir John C. Schultz to be administrator of the Government of Manitoba pending Lieutenant Governor Patterson's return.

The Gazette also contains the new regulations defining the grades of wheat and oats, made under the General Inspection Act.

The meeting will take the opinion counsel of Mr. Carroll, editor of Le Temps, has received a communication from a legal of Montreal, one of the Christian Brothers, to offering him that unless he withdraws his aggression against the four Brothers an action for $5,000 damages would be entered against him. Mr. Carroll will not withdraw.

Senator Perley, of Wednesday, N.W.T., informed his friends in Ottawa that, making all allowances for possible damage by frost from every source the good wheat of this season will equal an average harvest. He goes on to say: "The crop is immense. You cannot walk through it. You will raise more grain per acre than you ever did before in the Territories. I have never seen such a crop. I have farmed in the Territories for twenty years, and have never seen anything like it. Last summer all dug and grey alone in Canada sent bottles to make two and five gallons.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 7.—In an interview to-day with Capt. He says they have fitted out a fleet of gun carrying vessels to enforce the Canadian laws. He met the Curlew and Petrel at Battle Harbor, Labrador, and they informed him that they had seized nine vessels. Capt. Pike says that the Curlew was ordered to Indian Tickle, but put into Battle Harbor for provisions. Capt. Pike says that the Canadian officials are acting in a high handed manner. He says that the Curlew was too powerful. He said he never saw an English steamer in Battle Harbor taking a census of fish and fishermen. BELLEVILLE SATURDAY, SEPT. 7.

THE WHEAT QUESTION.

It is now conceded by the best authorities that the English wheat crop will be the smallest known for many years past, and that instead of yielding the average of 60,000,000 to 65,000,000 bushels, it is not expected to exceed 40,000,000 or 45,000,000; but the most extraordinary thing is, that when the facts of the situation dawned upon the English people, it had not the slightest influence upon the market, except in a direction the very opposite of what would naturally be expected, namely a decline instead of an advance in prices. This paradoxical condition of affairs can be accounted for only on the assumption that the English people now depend so much on foreign supplies, that a small or a large home crop counts for very little in comparison with the prospective crops of other countries; and we go even further, and state that the prospects of the wheat crop in the United States and Canada have lost a good deal of the importance which they once possessed. In fact, out of a total world's production of nearly two and one-half billions of bushels of wheat the production of Canada and the United States is only a drop in the bucket. This is, however, not so surprising when it is considered that the shipments from the United States have fallen off very materially since 1893, while the shipments from other countries have increased. The most remarkable of those latter exports are those from Russia, which have exported from 3,557,000 cwt. during the first seven months of 1895 to over 14,141,000 cwt. in the corresponding period of the present year. The increased exports of Argentina have also been astonishing. England's total supply of wheat from abroad for the seven months ending July 31st, 1895, show an increase of 9,200,000 cwt., and this in the face of a decreased supply from the United States and Canada. Despite these facts, it will be something extraordinary and a matter of great surprise if such a big decrease in the home supplies of England do not result in stiffening values later on in the season. The poor English crop and the low prices prevailing is very discouraging to the English tenant farmer, and there never was a more gloomy outlook for him than at present.

Did You Ever Think

A WONDERFUL REMEDY.

A YOUNG LADY IN ELGIN COUNTY TELLS HOW IT SAVED HER LIFE.

THE CASE RECITED HAS LONG BEEN CONSIDERED GRAVE BY PHYSICIANS—HOME AND ABROAD—HOPE RESTORED AGAIN RESCUED.

From the Tilsonburg Observer

Mr. J. W. Kennedy, who resides on the 8th concession of the township of Bayham is one of the most respected farmers in the township. Recently an Observer representative visited his home for the purpose of learning the particulars of the recovery of his daughter, Miss Alice Kennedy, from a severe and trying illness, through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, after medical assistance had failed. Miss Kennedy now presents the appearance of a healthy and active young woman of twenty, and became the subject of having passed through an illness that baffled the Doctors' skill. To the reporter Mr. Kennedy said that in the autumn of 1893 she was taken ill and a physician was called in. Despite all the doctor did for her she continued to grow worse. She suffered from severe headaches, became very pale, rapidly lost flesh, and her limbs were cold and swollen. She suffered great pain and it was with much difficulty she could move about, and would sometimes lie for hours in a half stupor. At last the doctor said he could do nothing more for her, and the family asked his advice as to her using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He said he was of the opinion that they would not help her. In spite of this adverse opinion, however, she determined to give them a trial, and before the first box was finished the wisdom of the decision was made manifest. An improvement was noticed and with joy Miss Kennedy continued taking the Pink Pills until she had used fourteen boxes, when she felt that she was completely cured. She has not taken any since the early summer, and has not had any recurrence of her old trouble, and never felt better in her life. Indeed, Miss Kennedy says that as a result of the Pink Pill treatment she has gained 25 pounds in weight. A short time after she began the use of the Pink Pills the doctor who had previously attended her, called and was much surprised at the improvement in the young lady's appearance, and said that if Pink Pills had caused the transformation by all means to continue their use. Miss Kennedy's statements were corroborated by her father and mother, both of whom gave all the credit for her marvellous recovery to Dr. Williams Pink Pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are especially valuable to women. They build up the blood, restore the nerves, and eradicate those troubles which make the lives of so many women, old and young, a burden. Dizziness, palpitation of the heart, nervous headache and nervous prostration speedily yield to this wonderful medicine. They are also a specific in cases of locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, the after effects of la grippe, etc. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from over work, mental worry, or excesses of any nature. They are sold only in boxes, the trade mark and wrapper printed in red ink, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y.

The Cat Was Disgusted.

An interesting experiment in the rearing of animals is recorded by a German journal. A country gentleman, having captured a rat, gave it a few days old, conceived the idea of giving it as foster-mother a cat which had just had a litter of kittens. The cat showed no objection to this curious addition to her family, and the herbivorous nursling seemed to take very well to the regime to which it was so unexpectedly subjected. The rat have thrive and grow, and the cat soon thought it time to begin the education of her foster child. For the catching of mice, however, the hare showed not the slightest disposition, and at each fault committed the sceptical mother administered vigorous correction with her paws. This produced but little improvement, and the relations between the two animals were becoming somewhat strained, when, one day, they were placed together on the lawn in front of the house. The hare at once proceeded to nibble at the vegetation with remarkable avidity, to the evident astonishment and indignation of the cat, who could make nothing of such conduct. Finally, perceiving that she had mistaken anything but a kitten, the cat turned her entire attention with an expression of unmistakable disdain Westminster Gazette.

A MASSACRE

Of Cuban Men, Women and Children By the Spanish Troops.

New York, Sept. 7.—A despatch from Havana to the Herald says: Reports have been received here of the massacre by Spanish troops of a party of Cubans, numbering 200, who had gathered together at Jaguey Grande, province of Matanzas. Among the victims were a number of women and children, who, when the troops arrived, had collected in a church, where they had taken refuge. The troops, after murdering the men, women and children, set fire to the church, and burned the bodies of the victims. The Spanish troops, after committing the massacre, returned to their camp, and reported that they had had an engagement with a party of insurgents, and had killed a number of them. The municipality of Geneva has recently built a new reservoir on the Bessinges heights, at an elevation of about 100 feet above the level of the lake. The water is raised by a motor power obtained from an artificial fall of the waters of the Rhone, where it leaves the lake. A second reservoir is being constructed on the same plan, and a waterspout is provided, which is turned on Sunday and several evenings during the week. The spout is the biggest in Europe rising nearly 200 feet in the air.

There are many trades and professions in which a well-developed organ of sense are more or less essential. A perfect sight must b possessed by the engraver and touch characterizes the expert typewriter and pianist; and a sensitive palate is indispensable to the tea-taster. But it is less frequent to hear of lucrative employment being obtained by persons possessing an unusually keen sense of smell. Nevertheless, a certain "smeller" of this kind exist, and performs very useful functions. Any person visiting the barrel cleaning department of one of our large breweries may find him there at work, applying his nose to the bunghol of barrel after barrel.—Boston Transcript.

Great Britain has been striving for several years to change the taste of the tea drinkers of the world—to oust the black Indian and Ceylon teas and get better worth using than those of China, Japan and Java. Russia, which has a home consumption of 30 pounds a year, has taken a strong fancy to the Ceylon tea, and the demand shows a remarkable increase. Large amounts of money have been spent in creating a demand in the United States and Canada, but the returns are not satisfactory, the progress has been slow, and now the conservation "after several years of arduous work and costly expenditure" has only doubled from about 1,500,000 pounds to about 3,000,000 pounds a year. The Australian colonies appear to be taking the lead in pushing the British product from patriotic motives. The figures seem to show a strong love for the mother country as well as for tea.—New York Times.

DEFENDER FOUR SECONDS BEHIND CROSSING THE LINE.

The Race Begun with a 8½ Mile Wind, but it Increased to Eight The Defender in Lucky Water Excursion Steamers Interfering-Official Measurement of the Two Boats.

SANDY HOOK, N.Y., Sept. 7.—8 a.m.—Wind northeast; 12 miles; cloudy.

NAVESINK HEIGHTS, 8:30 A. M.—The wind is from the northeast and blowing about 8 miles an hour here.

NAVESINK HEIGHTS, 9:30.—Both Defender and Valkyrie have put about the point of the Hook, each boat sailing at one under mainsail, bound out towards the starting point.

9:50 a.m. Both boats have hoisted jibs.

NAVESINK HEIGHTS, 10 a.m.—The Defender, which is about a mile in advance of Valkyrie, has just passed Scotland lightship, bound for the Hook. Both boats are still sailing under mainsail and jibs.

NAVESINK HEIGHTS, 10:10 a.m.—The judges' boat is off the lightship waiting for the yachts to come up.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 10:12 a.m.—The wind is from the northeast and blowing about 9 miles an hour here.

NAVESINK HEIGHTS, 10:20 a.m. Wind hauling south and decreasing. Both yachts in sight.

NAVESINK HEIGHTS, 11:02 a.m. The committee boat is now standing in shore in the direction of Scabright, and it is evident that the start will be made somewhere in that direction. The yachts are slowly following some distance behind. The wind here has fallen away, but it appears to be a little stronger out where the boats are.

SANDY HOOK, N.J., Sept. 7. The 20 foot sloop yacht Mayflower went ashore on Sandy Hook Point at 10 o'clock. Her crew of three men had to be helped ashore. The life saving crew will try to pull her off, but she is in a bad position.

HIGHLANDS, 11:45 a.m. Both boats have now been hauled by the wind. Counter will be cast by south from a point off Scabright.

NAVESINK, 11:50 a.m. The committee boat has signalled that the course will be east by south. The yachts will sail fifteen miles to windward and return. The wind is now from the southeast and appears to be freshening a little; there is quite a swell on out where the boats are.

HIGHLANDS, N. J. Sept. 7. Valkyrie crossed the line at 12:20:05, Defender about 4 seconds later. Valkyrie increasing her lead. Both boats carrying mainsail and club topsails. Valkyrie is still increasing her lead. Both standing north east on starboard tack.

HIGHLANDS, 12:40 p. m.—Both boats have just gone about on the port tack. As they came about it was seen that the Defender had taken full advantage of her better pointing qualities and when they came about the American boat was seen in the lead. The wind is strengthening.

Wind increasing. Looks now as if boats would be able to finish within prescribed time

SEABRIGHT 12:54 p.m. The Defender leads about 100 yards and has the weather berth.

HIGHLANDS, 1:14 p.m. Both boats going about on starboard tack.

HIGHLANDS 1:30 p.m. Cable showing 8 knots. Seabright bearing fully one-quarter of a mile in the lead now.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 2:00 p.m.—Boats are now 10 miles from starting point. Wind freshening. Defender now 2 miles ahead.

HIGHLANDS, 2:26 p.m. Boats going out close hauled, seem pretty close together. They are on starboard tack.

NEW PARIS POST OFFICE. The official time of the start was: Valkyrie, 12:20:46; Defender, 12:20:50.

SEABRIGHT, 2:39 p.m.—Both boats are still on starboard tack, and calculated from these the Defender is about 1 mile ahead.

HIGHLANDS, 2:59 p.m. Both boats go about. Valkyrie goes on starboard and Defender on port tack.

Second wind Valkyrie. From present course the turn will be about sixteen miles at sea, about 15 miles south east from Sandy Hook Lighthouse. From then the boats will run fifteen miles back to starting point. The wind has hauled to southward, and Defender has the big end.

Excursion steamers gave a lot of trouble at sand and Valkyrie suffered most from the interference.

The Official Measurements.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6. The result of the measurers work was a great surprise. No good results are expected that the English yacht would give over a minute and a half in a thirty mile course to Defender, yet measurements made and filed by the challenger would give a minute, but that she should sail by more than a minute was astounding to all the smart people. However, here are the figures, and they speak for themselves:

Defender. Length on load water line, 85. Ie length from after end of main boom to forward point of measurement, 74.8. length from fore side of fore mast to forward point of measurement, 21.90. length of main gaff (1.95), length topmast, 37.42, one (0)0, 1.00. height of upper wheel main boom to top of halyard block 125.6, sail area as per rule, 17,26., sailing length as per rule, 90.4

Valkyrie. Length on load water line 86. 3. length from after end of main boom to forward point of measurement, 78.00. length from after boom, same length main gaff 29.20. length topmast, 36.50. one fifth, 14.78. height upper wheel of main boom to top of halyard block, 128.00. sail area, as per rule, 1111. sailing length, as per rule, 101.10.

When Mr. Hyslop brought the measurements to the New York Yacht Club house he said that Valkyrie would have to allow Defender 2m 30 seconds. It was only his business, he added, to turn in the measurements to the Regatta Committee, and let that committee decide what the time allowance would be. Never the less he felt that Defender was entitled to that time. The committee completed the question for a long time, and at 10:25 p.m. passed a motion on the yachts bulletin board to the effect that the allowance would be 2m seconds leaving off Mr. Hyslops added statement of a second. The races will probably be very close, but no matter how close a second will separate the boats at the finish.

No repairs have been made on the side walk on Patterson St., in front of Bellevue Terrace for years As a result it is in a most dilapidated condition and pedestrians who use that street complain bitterly against the city for not keeping it in at least a reasonable state of repairs. A Serious Charge.

P. C. Aikens acting on a telegram from George Hall, Napanee, county constable of Lennox, arrested Edward Sharpe, of Newburgh, on the bar room early yesterday afternoon The charge was an attempt to commit an indecent assault Sharpe was a member of the Odessa baseball team and pitched part of the game yesterday with Yarker. He was arrested shortly after the game was over. The alleged victim is Mabel Kellar, Newburgh, a young girl, about twelve years old. Sharpe is about twenty-one. Sharpes friends hint at blackmail Constable Hall arrived in the city last night and took the prisoner to Napanee this morning. Whig.

The young man is well known here, having played ball here several times He has a companion named Moore who has also been arrested.

Pointer for Butter Makers.

John Sprague & Son, of Amsterdam, Ont., the most member of which form is in Montreal for the week, in their circular letter states that they have received 2 barrels of Windsor Salt, and that it is the best salt for dairy purposes. We concur in the best salt they have used for years, and recommend it to all the creameries in Ontario.

A Common Sense Suggestion.

For protection from the cold nothing can excel a layer of Fabre Chamois through the coat, stitched or cemented any kind. Fine enough to be worn by an antagonist, porous for ventilation, pliable and of the same time frequently long enough to be impervious to cold or damp or any weather. Recommended by every physician as the most comfortable and healthful garment that can be worn. Sold by druggists and tailors. Manufactured by the Fabre Chamois Co., Montreal.

Whitewash Summer Drink.

An exchange tells us a recipe is popularly used in Paris for a summer drink. It is made by mixing whitewash with water, freely, and then straining it through a cloth. How delicious it would be! Mr. Young & Co., 21 Front street, Belleville, sell it ready for use.

Whenever the body has been weakened by disease, it should be built up by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this:

NERVOUS SYSTEM.

List of Diseases Caused by Special Occupations

An Italian Professor's Study of the Relation of Labor to Nervous Diseases—Children, Business Men and Laborers Suffer—Effect of the Bicycle Upon the Nerves.

Prof. Leonardo Cognetti di Martiis, of the University of Turin, discusses in the Giornali degli Economisti the relation of labor to nervous diseases. The article is mainly directed to show how that each occupation, mechanical or intellectual, has its peculiar nervous disease, and the enumeration as a whole, with its illustrative examples, forms a harrowing picture of the dangers attending modern industrial life. He begins by discussing the perils to the nerves of open-air workers.

Lightning is one of these. Not only does it kill twenty-two persons annually in England and seventy-one in France, but it leaves with shattered nerves many who escape death from the stroke. So of electricity used in various industries. A severe shock from electricity is always liable to produce important nervous changes in the victim. The malarial fevers to which many open air workers, especially agricultural laborers, are exposed are followed in many cases by severe nervous disorders and there is a true rural paralysis resulting from these fevers. Tetanus, which is common among the agriculturists than elsewhere, because the germ that produces the disease is often found in swampy ground, is followed by shocking nervous manifestations. Sunstroke often leaves its victim a prey to painful nervous disorders, and the peasant in the open fields, under the intense light of the summer sky, often suffers from nervous affections of the eye and more serious disturbances. Reflected light, as from snow, sometimes produces the familiar snow blindness, a nervous affection of the eye. It was once epidemic in southern Russia after a March snowstorm. One form of the disturbance makes the victim practically blind towards sunset and after nightfall. Foundrymen are subject to this form of the disease.

Miners, from an opposite cause, have painful nervous affections of the eye, accompanied with strange illusions, such as the apparent swaying back and forth of objects in the field of vision. Miners working in mountain shafts have the so-called mountain sickness, accompanied by headache, writhing of the body, hesitancy of movement, heart affections, nausea, and vomiting, sometimes followed by insensibility, delirium and coma. All these manifestations are to be ascribed in part at least to the rarefaction of oxygen. Aeronauts have the same trouble. Even worse are the nervous disorders that attack men who continue under high atmospheric pressure. The voice becomes metallic, utterance is difficult, and in the case of some sounds impossible; hearing is impaired, muscles are knotted, and smell and taste are sometimes lost, while the laborer handles his tools with difficulty. Seasickness is a nervous affection that has a remarkable medical history, and for which no satisfactory remedy has been found.

Neurasthenia in many forms is the enemy of intellectual workers. The modern school often brings children to epilepsy and St. Vitus' dance. Stammering sometimes comes from mental overwork, and, while a large proportion of children enter school with sound eyes, near-sight is quickly developed and is found to increase regularly as the child advances from class to class. With this eye trouble and weakening of the eyes, inferior at distances. Headache, dizziness of physical movement, sudden alternations of hot and cold, insomnia, and fleeting hallucinations are some of the results of too much mental labor in the case of children.

Business men engaged in speculative occupations are subject to neurasthenia, that manifests itself in the loss of the power of mental application. Madness often follows. Bianchi, the Italian student of nervous diseases, finds as a result of the pressure of modern life a tendency on the part of the young to imitate, accompanied by an intolerance of restraint and other signs of nervous degeneration.

Labor-saving machinery has resulted in making workmen work harder than ever with their nerves, and in severe nervous disorder among those that tend machines. The speed of modern machinery seems limited only by the power of the human attendant, and a constant strain of attention and a monotonous occupation tends to mental breakdown. Pain and cramp of the muscles, accompanied by forms of neuralgia, are some of the disturbances that affect the modern mechanical worker, driven by the pressure of his inanimate fellow-worker. The intense preoccupation and great manual speed of the piano player often produces paresis. Clarionet players have spasms of the tongue. Sewing machine makers, telegraphers, cigarmakers, buttonmakers and others required to maintain high speed at their work, are subject to like nervous disturbances immediately affecting the part of the body especially under strain, but extending to other parts. Dentists' leg is a paralytic affection of parts kept long under pressure. Paralysis of the hammer comes to the man that has one arm constantly plying a tool of the striking kind. It affects the right arm and the right eye is often sympathetically affected. Even the speech is impaired.

The professional bicyclist is subject to shocking nervous maladies. The phenomena are specially marked in his case, excessive weariness and a mental or perhaps moral deterioration that makes him easily subject to suggestion. There is progressive loss of the power of attention, of critical sense, of judgment, and of all the higher psychic manifestations. The professor evidently has some doubt as to the advisability of bicycling for women save in very moderate fashion.

Persons accustomed to use the [illegible] a great deal are subject to larvæ of spasms. Watchmakers and others using strong magnifying glasses become [illegible] Workers amid strong odors, pleasant or otherwise, lose the sense of smell, as others lose that of hearing in noisy occupations. The mechanic workers more subject to nervous diseases are carters, coachmen, omnibus and street car conductors, fruit sellers, perpetual vendors, tobacco dealers and workers, chemists, druggists, sewing machine workers, stationers, booksellers, printers, lithographers, and makers of fireworks.

The professor's list of employments in which the raw material or the polished product is deleterious to health, and especially injurious to the nerves of the worker includes gas-making, coke burning, dynamite manufacturing, brandy making, tannin, acid, dissolving chemical works of various sorts, working in the more volatile metals, and a dozen other occupations. The nervous injury extend all the way from slight affections of some single organ to loss of the use of all powers, mental and physical, through the peculiar poisons that abound in the system, produce in some cases a tendency to foolish gayety in others sleepiness, dullness, loss of memory, impairment of sight and hearing and convulsions. Men employed in some chemical works become [illegible] of skin, and are consequently unable to do any delicate manual task. The vapor of petroleum certainly inhaled has a narcotic effect. Finally men exposed to violent shocks such as often occur in railway employment, Bianchi says, suffer severe nervous changes, attended at times with impairment of vision, or with general nervous breakdown, one or [illegible] predisposed in part, no doubt, by the constant nervous strain of danger or responsibility. The professor is not without remedies for all this but states facts; nevertheless he seems to have hope that the shortening of the hours of labor in perilous occupations might lessen the evil results to the employes.—New York Sun.

When Creditors Lose Nothing.

A novel plan to get ahead of other creditors and not lose anything in the failure of a customer, has been devised by some Canadian manufacturers. It has been in use for some time, but is not generally known.

The manufacturers sell goods subject to a discount of 50 to 60 per cent., with an extra 5 for cash. The goods are invoiced, however, at a gross or list price, and a memo attached saying that if the account is paid on July 1 a discount of 50 (or 60, as the case may be) and 5 per cent. will be allowed. If not paid before August 1 they will not get the extra 5 per cent. If not paid by October 1 no discount whatever will be allowed. If the buyer fails, the creditors at once make a claim for the full amount of the invoice, which is in reality 50 per cent more than the actual market value of the article. That is, an article which usually sells at $4 and is invoiced by everyone else at that price is invoiced by these particular manufacturers at $2, less 50 per cent. If paid at the usual time. If the estate pays 50 cents on the dollar, by this system these manufacturers get the full amount of their actual claim—and sometimes more—while the others get only 50 per cent. or less.

The scheme is a clever one, but recently the inspectors, representing other creditors, when examining the affairs of the estate, have "got onto it," when there has been unusually a "pretty row," after which the clever manufacturers must amend their claims. A number of estates, however, have been wound up without the inspectors discovering the trick.

HOW QUEENS SPEND THEIR TIME.

Victoria Studies Dutch, Empress Dagmar Sews and Denmark's Queen Makes Bonnets.

Though it might be thought that the royal ladies of Europe are very superior personages, a near acquaintance with them reveals the fact that they are after all very human, and women before all. A man who had traveled very extensively over the continent took pains not so very long ago to find out what the favorite occupations of the women at the head of the great European Governments were. He managed to unearth some little known peculiarities, which are the more especially interesting for the reason that they never find mention in the court circulars or the letters of the foreign correspondents.

Queen Victoria has two hobbies which she pursues even now, despite her feebleness. One is music, the other languages. As a young Princess the monarch of England was noted for her sweet voice and her excellent touch upon the piano. It is no exaggeration to say that in both these she was more than an extraordinarily good musician. Though rheumatism prevents her playing now, and she seldom sings, she still retains her love for harmony and enjoys nothing more than a quiet musical morning in the ballroom at Windsor.

A fact known to all the European families, save those of her own race and [illegible] years, but the secret to which she owes the most popular home in Britain is that she has a very thorough knowledge of this delightful dialect and has even thrown off many of the [illegible] which are part of it. She [illegible] has done, [illegible] authority to purchase [illegible] Lowndes and Fifth are [illegible] from one language to another.

[illegible] loved mother Victoria Adelaide now becomes Empress of Germany, is a fine musician and has made one of the delights of her childhood to arrange the surprises that the Yeatts have [illegible] her. Not only has she been interested in musical matters ever since her girlhood, but she is also a very fair artist, and had she not been born to the purple there is little question but that her painting would have brought name and fame.

Turning to Russia, the Dowager Empress Dagmar is an expert needlewoman and spends all of the time she can spare embroidering. There is hardly a family connected with the Russian royal house of marriage or kinship that has not some specimen of [illegible] handiwork. Her daughter-in-law, the reigning Empress Alex, is very [illegible] woman, has developed no particular tastes as yet, nor for that matter as the present Empress of Germany, who has been absorbed ever since her marriage in her maternal duties.

Margherita, the Queen of Italy, is a born theatrical critic, and the patroness of everything relating to the stage. She also takes much interest in linguistic matters, and it is a point of etiquette with her always to address her visitors in their own tongues.

Cooking is the fad of the Crown Princess of Sweden and Norway, and there is a pleasing story to the effect that some years ago this royal young woman, while on a visit to Berlin, went down into the great kitchen of the old palace, tucked up her dainty sleeves and started in making various concoctions for the old Kaiser, her grandfather, who was mightily tickled at the attention and enjoyed his meals during her visit more than he had for a long time previously.

Louise of Hesse-Cassel, reigning Queen of Denmark, and the mother of the Princess of Wales and of the Dowager Empress of Russia, could easily become a professional milliner and make a great deal of money out of it. The innate taste of poking up a small bunch of ribbon and a sprig of flowers together so as to make what women call a "confection" of a hat is hers, and has been for a good half century. All her daughters have to a certain extent inherited this taste, and the Princess of Wales in particular is indebted to her royal mother for the admirable taste she has always had relating to matters of personal adornment.

Years ago the Empress of Austria used to hunt unceasingly, and she kept it up until her health broke down. What was even more remarkable, she broke her own horses, and she was such good effect that she became very nearly the best-mounted woman in all Europe. Since her health has failed she has devoted her energies to [illegible] and to studying modern Greek. The practical end of this latter is hardly evident, but it is certain that the Empress takes a keen delight in it.

"What are they going to call your new brother, Jack?" "Don't know," says Jack, I guess." "But that's his name!" "That doesn't make any difference. It was papa's before I had it, and ma have a way of talkin' to use up old things."—Harper's Young People.

Strong and most convincing proof comes from one who suffered for many years with [illegible] Canada, and who, after the use of the present, have been successful with physicians and the [illegible] medicine of the day.

The marvellous and speedy cure of Mrs. A. R. Parsons, of Sutton, P.Q., has created a wonderful sensation in that special section of the Eastern Townships. Professional men, business men and farmers have discussed the subject, and to-day Paine's Celery Compound has a reputation and a fame in the district that no other medicine ever possessed.

Mrs. Parsons writes very briefly, but to the point, as follows:

"I am delighted to send my testimony regarding your most valuable medicine, Paine's Celery Compound.

"Some years ago I had Grippe, which left me very low and weak, that for six months I could not do without help. I tried [illegible] but [illegible] could help me, [illegible] and doctors had failed.

"After I had used [illegible] bottles of Paine's Celery Compound I felt that I am cured. I can now walk and go up and down stairs with ease, and do all my housework. I owe the blessing of [illegible] and your Paine's Celery Compound, I am now well.

A GENIAL DUKE.

The Young Duke of Marlborough is an Athlete and Fond of Sports.

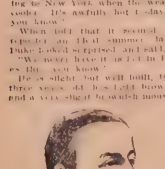

The young Duke of Marlborough was seen by a reporter of the New York World at the Waldorf Hotel, New York, where he made a short stay en route to Newport. Asked how long he intended remaining in America he said:

"I shall be over here several months perhaps. After a short lay in New port I shall go to Bar Harbor, and then coming down a little I shall probably run and do Niagara and maybe return by the New York, when the weather is cooler. It's awfully hot today, don't you know."

When told that it seemed to be the opposite on that summer day, the Duke looked surprised and said,

"Why, indeed it never is cold in London as the sun knows."

He is stout but well built, twenty-three years old, has light brown hair and a very slight brownish moustache.

THE DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH.

His eyes are blue and their expression is of the utmost frankness and kindliness, and as his face lights up with merriment, as it constantly does in conversation, the eyes twinkle. It is easy to see that he possesses the best sort of disposition. He wore light gray cheviot, with a Fedora hat of the same shade, a black and white pin check madras outing shirt, a pair of white Russia shoes and a red lemon and blue striped four-in-hand tie. The tie is in the colors of the Zingari Cricket Club of England, of which he is a member. He has the appearance of a all-round athlete, and says that it is equally fond of all sports. When asked if the report of his engagement with Miss Vanderbilt was true, he laughed and said:

"I certainly am not engaged," and then he became the interviewer, asking a number of questions in a very animated and interested manner, the first of which was:

"How many lady reporters has the World?" We don't have them at all, yes, you know. There are a few on the Press Association, but we don't count them for the same reason over there."

"Of course I only been in the country but two few hours, and this being my first trip over, I have'e its formed no opinions as yet, but you have a most magnificent harbor, and some of the architecture on Fifth avenue is very fine. You know we do not pay very much attention to the exterior of our London houses, for they are so soon blackened by the smoke. The Vanderbilt houses are very handsome structures. You are the first press representative I have seen," he continued, "although a number have called. But why do the Americans want to know anything about me? Do you know I can't understand it."

The Duke does not care about the doings of people in other countries and it is odd to me that any of the New York papers should want something about me.

The Duke said, with his frank, boyish smile, as his shook hands in parting, "I am very glad to have met you, from instead of starting on my trip, so that I might say something to you about your great country."

Rose Lizards.

The Digger Indians and Plutes live in mountains and in the forests on the verge of Death Valley. That region is known as the white Arabs of the desert. Their staple food is lizard flesh, which they catch on the borders of the valley. These lizards are about two feet long. The Indians call them "chuwallas" and roast them as caught between hot stones. They also eat them, too, but dress them and boil them over a sage brush fire. They are said to be very good eating and to taste like frogs' legs.

There are no birds in this neighborhood save the weird, mysterious raven, whose ominous voice fitly croaks the fatal entrance of those who brave the terrors of the valley. Howling coyotes add their howls, rising a chorus of horrors about the place. Curious reptiles uncanny and hotgoblin in appearance, are found here. The most deadly creature next to the Gila monster is what the natives call a "side winker" snake, which is peculiar to this desolate desert. It is rather about twenty inches long, which moves from side to side with a startling surprise instead of sliding along. Moreover it has horns, and I don't know but hoofs, too. It is as surely of the evil one. Scorpions tarantulas, centipedes, deadly lizards and rattlesnakes add to render Death Valley the most appalling place on earth. There are white, bleaching bones upon every pebble and there are rats with human ears, a sight to scare the dogs.—Peoria Herald

Crabs That Fight.

The blue crab is a natural born fighter, the probability is that he would a little rather fight than eat. The spider crab is not so much of a fighter as that, still, the spider will put his claws up. There are eight or ten big spider crabs in one of the tanks at the New York Aquarium, the biggest of them four inches in length of body and counting eight inches in the spread of legs. Two of these spiders of about equal size met in the tank the other day, and stood up on their hind legs and faced each other like two boys meeting in the street. Then they threw their upper legs around each other and grappled, and began dragging away at each other with their pincher claws. A moment later one pushed the other over on his back and fell on him but he hit him once after he was down. Then they went their ways.—Rochester Herald

PRESERVING THE EYESIGHT.

Rules That May be Useful to Those Threatened With Blindness.

A few simple rules carefully obeyed will do much to preserve the eye in health. Light and color in rooms are important. The walls are best finished in a single tint. Windows should open directly upon the outer air, and light be admitted on only one side together, not separated by much wall space, nor distributed. Light should be abundant, but not glaring. It should never come in front of or behind, a subject, but upon one side or on the pillow's right. Never read new in the twilight after an exhausting fever nor before breakfast. Use up the printed book at work and let the eyes rest some distant object. Dream up the sketch of wall by pictures that have a good perspective. These rest the eye, as does looking out of a window.

When at work on minute objects rise occasionally, take a deep inspiration with the mouth closed, stretch the body erect, throw the arms backward and forward, and step to an open window or out into the open air for a moment. Two desks of different height are valuable for a student or writer, one to stand by and the other to sit at. The use of spectacles or glasses to avoid eyestrain.

The peculiar care of its nervousness in has much to do with the exercise of seeing. I have some study frequently by moonlight when everything in the room is there was light, and no disturbing cause, and alcohol sometimes destroys it entirely, causing a local inflammation but it sets up. City life with shut in streets and rooms is not favorable to the healthy parents are in special danger. The trouble continues care. It is hard to say all children's eyes examined at six years of age. The children's eyes are better than those of the average. Of 1,000 children examined at six years of age, 1,000 were found to have defective vision. Of these 1,000 children, 1,000 were found to have defective vision. Of these 1,000 children, 1,000 were found to have defective vision. Of these 1,000 children

Why Not?

Our manners are shadowy views
I am with the times to-day—
I fancy gives that tender charm
To long departed days.

Ink modern finishers, who work
Upon the pictured lives
In bits out dim, uncertain lines
With its own curves on graves.

Is it one what is harsh and hard,
It shadows what is bold
It whips out Time's defacing marks—
Each tell-tale frown and fold.

Then lightens up the doctored scene
With its dim, mystic rays
And we, enraptured, gaze and cry—
"O, dear, departed days!"

Now fancy is a servant that,
Though wayward may be,
Let's bid it leave the past and work
In painting days instead.

It can make pies of all its scum light,
The present pass exhibits
And prose is turned to poesy
Where its soft colors glance.

All things are good, all things are bad
When thus they seem to be,
And life is this, or life is that Just as we think or see.
—Laura G. Carr, in Boston Transcript.

MY MYSTERIOUS LADY.

You want to know why I gave up being a detective. Well, I will tell you, though it is a sad story.

You know, sir, that I had a daughter—as fine a girl as you could wish to see. All the young fellows around sought her notice. Well, she got a bit spoilt, and then she fell in love with a good-for-nothing, lazy fellow, and when I objected, grew angry.

One day she went away, with never a line to say where she had gone.

One day the great Langton case made a sensation in the town. It was the case of wholesale robberies committed in railway carriages; purses, watches, bags and other things had been taken from people in the most clever manner.

One thing we knew—that most of the robberies had been committed in first-class compartments, on elderly people, and often in the night trains, this made our chances of discovery more likely.

One day, as I was walking up and down the platform at Paddington Station, I noticed a tall, handsome lady-like woman, who was evidently going by the same train as myself. She wore a thick veil, so I could not see her features, but she was very dark, with black hair.

Her walk seemed familiar to me, and I tried to recollect where I had before seen her, but could not remember, try as I would. She appeared to be quite young, not more than eighteen or nineteen and twenty, and was dressed in plain black.

I got into a first-class carriage, and it was with a peculiar sensation of surprise that I found myself opposite my friend of the platform. There was only one other person in the compartment, an old lady surrounded with luggage of all sorts, bags, baskets, an' wheat not.

At last a sweet voice broke the silence.

"Can you tell me, sir, how long we stop at the next station?"

I gave a start—that sweet, musical voice thrilled me strangely. In a moment my memory flew to my long-lost daughter. How like, how exactly like; voice and figure were as hers, but here a brunette beauty, with her dark skin and black hair, while my girl was as fair as pretty.

"You will only have three minutes more to wait, madam," I answered; "it is a important station, and few get in or out."

She never lifted her veil, but I could see she was watching me with unusual interest.

I had asked to be permitted to open one of the windows, but my lady companion had implored me not to do so, as she was suffering from neuralgia. I could say nothing farther, but inwardly cursed her malady.

I pulled out my watch. In half an hour we should be at our next stopping place. The tall lady in black had drawn from her pocket a little bottle of strong smelling stuff for her headache; she seemed in great pain, and used the remedy very freely. The already stuffy air of the compartment was still more stifling, a peculiar odor floated around me. It was of no use, I must open that window—I felt myself drowning off—I must make haste, or—I knew no more.

When I was once more conscious I was still in the first-class carriage, but was asleep as before, but the tall lady in black was gone.

Looking out of the window, I saw we were some way past our last stopping place. I had actually slept through all the bustle of the lady's departure and the noise of the station.

I put my hand to pull out my watch, Lo! it was gone, with my purse. With a groan I cursed my stupidity. It evidently had had the noted robber in my very clutches and had let her go.

As soon as we came to our next stopping place, I at once gave a full description of the lady to all likely places and then took the train back to the last station.

It was about 4 o'clock when I reached the place. Madam had alighted on that very platform just two hours before.

It was necessary to act cautiously. I inquired of the ticket collector if a lady, tall, and dressed in black, had passed out through the gateway that afternoon.

He thought a minute and then said "Yes." He said she had carried a small portmanteau and refused assistance; he thought she went the road to the village, but was not sure. She walked away, after first taking care to utter my appearance, so that she would not recognise me should I overtake her.

That she was in the village somewhere was pretty certain, unless she was driven on to Clifford station, a distance of ten miles. Into the postoffice I hurried and telegraphed particular and orders. It was none of a use, the lady might have driven to Clifford and got off by train half an hour ago, and then all would be lost.

I would go to the village inn and get a meal. I waited until my tea came up, and asked the girl who brought it if they had many visitors in the house.

"O, no, sir; only a lady beside yourself—a tall lady in black she be, I just took her some tea a few minutes ago, and she is a beauty, sure enough—"

"Is she fair or dark?" I inquired, carelessly.

"For the life of me, sir, I couldn't say—told you until half an hour ago I'd seen her all muffled up like—and so cross, sir, she said; but when I took her some tea she was under—and looked lovely, just like an angel."

She had told the waitress she was suffering from neuralgia; I would intend to be the fair lady, and succeeded in for a chat with the landlady, then, hearing of her suffering, longed if I could do her any good.

I went straight to the door and knocked. A sweet, musical voice bade me to enter; my heart leaped as I heard the voice of my traveling companion. I pushed open the door, and stood before a tall graceful woman—a woman with [illegible] golden hair.

[illegible] I had expected my daughter would [illegible] and at the [illegible] she [illegible] I had not seen [illegible] Why, [illegible] I knew [illegible] Whose [illegible] I was [illegible] wall [illegible] I [illegible] day, [illegible] Presently she freed herself from my arms, and, white and trembling, sat down again in her chair.

"Lizzie," I said, "I only know what I am, what my business is."

For you are a detective, and for weeks past you have been hunting in shame and imprisonment for your own daughter. I took those things from you, not because I wanted them—not because I was mad at the idea of my own father hunting me down—but you should have had your witness sent for, meant to send them back with a daughter's love."

"Who did you go away with, Lizzie?" I asked. "Was it that scamp of a——"

"Mention no names. It is over and past, but my husband has drawn me with him to ruin and shame. He was up to justice now, it will be better than the life I am leading now—"

"Lizzie," I said, pleadingly, holding her with all my heart in my eyes, "will you give up him and your present life, and you and I go to a new country and turn over a fresh leaf?"

"While I live, I am his. I live for him, steal for him; one day, perhaps, I shall die for him."

Without a word I kissed her, went silently from the room and out into the darkness.

Years ago after, I sent in my resignation. I had been untrue to my country, so could not remain in her service, but I never saw my daughter again.—London News.

CYCLING AND WALKING.

Few Have an Idea of the Distance Which the Cyclist can Cover in a Given Time.

The great distance covered by the bicyclist with ease shows conclusively that the human walking apparatus, although it may be the best possible contrivance for all the uses for which human beings can be put, is to be compared with wheels, for the one purpose of getting over the ground. A single revolution of a wheelman going at a moderate speed and pushing with an effort which in walking would result in two steps of say two feet each, will cover a total distance of four feet, with the wheel the advance movement would be two bicycle steps, or downward pressures of the feet, each resulting in a forward movement of 7 1-2 feet or 15 feet for one entire revolution of the pedal shaft, and this is more than a man can do when required to take two steps. In fact, it would be easier for the bicyclist to make the 15 feet on a level with one pressure of one foot than to take two steps.

Now, in view of these magnified steps made by the bicyclist, it would be interesting to know what the situation of a man must be to make in walking the same distance made by the bicyclist, with the same number of movements of the feet. Clearly the steps in this case must be 7 1-2 feet each, which, at the lowest estimate, represents three steps of an ordinary length. It would perhaps be nearer the mark to say four steps, but to be safe we call it three. The pedestrian to get a total of 15 feet movement must be at least 18 feet high. The man with this great stature would, after all, fall far short of making the speed of the bicyclist. There is little like ease of motion; the wheel would be the winner in any race. While the bicycle has the advantage over the extremity of a pedestrian, it is obvious that the tall wheelman has no advantage over the short one.

Why One Shouldn't Drink.

The reason why drinking should not accompany eating, but be indulged in before or afterward, is, in the first place, because liquids are food as well as solids, and repasts must be kept as light as possible at all costs. But there is another reason. Dry repasts, if light, lead to a loss of flesh, whereas the same quantity of food, if it include liquids, is devoid of this effect. It is not easy to say why this should be, but the most probable explanation is that when only solids are eaten the juices of the body are called on to assist in digestion rather than otherwise, in order to further the process of digestion, whence a sensation of thirst is usually experienced. The body thus has lost more than its ordinary quantity of water, and it thus loses be not compensated by drinking it will be replaced by the body itself, which will draw upon its superfluous fat for the purpose. The fat is decomposed into its elements, and combined with the inhaled oxygen, produces more than an hour after eating, and if drinking be deferred until then it may be indulged in afterward with profit. Inasmuch as it promotes the very process which half an hour earlier it would have prevented. But in any case, and at all times during a repast, liquids must be taken with as much moderation as solids.

WINTER WHEAT EXPERIMENTS.

Concise Results of Co-operative Tests Conducted by the Ontario Agricultural College.

I—Reports of successful experiments with winter wheat have been received this season from thirty counties in Ontario, and from one in Manitoba; and eleven west of the city of Guelph.

2—The counties of Hamilton, Middlesex, Huron, Grey, Perth, Simcoe and Bruce furnished fifty-one of the one hundred good reports received in 1895.

3—Of the two hundred and forty-seven experimenters who reported results of their tests, only eight speak of winning by omitting the co-operative experimental work, and manifest interest in managing the wheat.

4—Lessons—Golden Chaff, Early Genesee Giant, Early Red Clawson and Jones' Winter Fife gave the highest yields of grain among nine leading varieties of winter wheat tested throughout Ontario for two years in succession.

5—In average yield of winter wheat per acre, Dawson's Golden Chaff stood highest among eleven varieties tested over Ontario in Bulletin varieties in 1891 and nine varieties in 1894, also among fifty-three varieties grown at the Ontario Agricultural College in four years in succession.

6—In the co-operative experiments in 1895, Dawson's Golden Chaff, Jones' Winter Fife and the Early Genesee Giant gave the best yields on heavy clay, and Dawson's Golden Chaff [illegible] early Genesee Giant and the American Bronze on sandy soil.

7—While the different varieties [illegible] gave satisfactory results, Dawson's Golden Chaff [illegible] to be the most [illegible] in this region.

8—Early Genesee Giant and New Era of High Chaff made [illegible] at Bolton, in the spring of 1895, and Early Ripe looked the poorest.

9—American Bronze, Early Genesee Giant and Dawson's Golden Chaff possessed the stiffest straw in 1895.

10—Pride of Hybrids and American Bronze produced the largest heads of grain, and Pride of Genesee and Early White Flint the smallest heads.

11—Early Ripe and Dawson's Golden Chaff ripened first, and Early White Flint and Pride of Genesee last. Early Clawson was the most productive and Early White Flint the most unproductive.

12—Dawson's Golden Chaff was the most popular variety with the experimenters in each of the past three years, having been selected for that reason. It was secured by sixty-six per cent of the farmers who sent in full reports, and stood highest among its variety tested.

In the following table will be found two lists of winter wheat varieties, which will be sent free by mail in half pound lots of each variety, to farmers applying for them, who will carefully test the five kinds in the list which they choose, and will report the results after the harvest of 1896. Each kind will be sent out in the order in which the applications are received as long as the supply lasts.

For Cooling Milk.

The accompanying illustration represents a device by which vessels containing milk can be hung in a well and kept cool. A supporting piece is used, which can be raised and lowered by means of one small windlass. I have used this for several years and find it quite satisfactory. Stock is watered from this well. A pump is placed close to the wall, and as the well is a large one does not interfere with the raising or lowering of the milk pails.

The Chinese.

The merchant class of China is composed of polite, patient, extremely shrewd, well-dressed pattern shopkeepers. The leisure class is graceful, polished and amiable, but the peasantry remind one of the country folk of Europe, excepting Russia.

As compared with Japan, one feature of every view is striking in the case of China. The dress and behavior of the Chinese will not offend European. The women are modest and dress in a baggy garment which completely covers them.

In spite of their majesty Chinese girls do flirt, and in proper European fashion. At church they make eyes at the young men, and on the way to school.

The most beautiful women of China are of Soo-Chow. They are as a rule prettier than the women of Japan.

The Chinese thrash rice by a handful and beating a log with it to scatter the kernels on the ground. The farmers break up the soil and punch holes in it for seeds with a stick.

Very Sorry.

He was going away the next day on a holiday, and he thought the last night was the time to spring the momentous question. He kept him himself together until the last thing. It was 11.30 by the clock, and it was not a very rapid clock.

She was seen a hasty lesson in its use, and was told to answer it when members of the family were abroad. The second afternoon every bell in the house rang but the Indiana product. She was in her room.

An hour before dinner the female maid of the family returned.

"That thing in the closet was ringing for ten minutes this afternoon, ma'am," said the new girl.

"Why did you not go to it as I told you to do, Mary?" said the mistress.

"I would have missed it, Mary, only I was half undressed and I was afraid it might be a man."

CARING FOR FORESTS

MICHIGAN HARDWOOD TIMBER LANDS WILL NOT GO TO WASTE.

When the Lumberman Does Not Make Provision for Future Growth the Farmer Comes Along and Puts the Ground to Good Use in Raising Crops.

Secretary Rich has recently completed a report of the forests in Michigan. He is associated with M. A. Bullard, of Lansing, Mich., one of the best known lumbermen in the state. In this report he discusses the subject in a most exhaustive manner. Mr. Rich says:

"Lumbering as it was conducted in the early days must come to an end but not all of them have deemed it necessary to do more than urge the necessity for it.

When the cedar and pine came into worth to Michigan, said Mr. Colman, in his address before the only timber really worth the dignity and efforts of the genuine lumberman in search for which the state was relatively limited and the hardwood forests were left to the little operators in the net which they choose, and will report the results after the harvest of 1896. A PAIR OF BRONCHO PIPES.

excellent layers. The writer kept nine of the Plymouth Rock cross during the winter of '94, raised 45 chickens, and used all the eggs needed in a family of four where eggs were used to take the place of meat to a great extent. These nine hens averaged six or more eggs per day from January 1 to December 31, and all that the hens not setting or brooding persisted in laying till moulting time, when they were killed for the table.

A further testimonial to the value of these hens as winter layers is the fact that although the temperature went down to 30 degrees many a night, yet there is a full stock of eggs in the country stores and eggs at that are dozen, and most of the fowls in this country feed themselves from the scattered wheat, and roost where they can.

PROFIT IN CHICKENS.

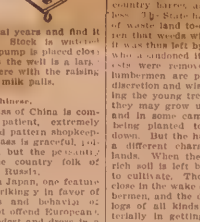

Poultry and Eggs Will Pay Well if the Business Is Properly Conducted.

But the fact that more profitable poultry and egg production can be made, provided as much time and attention is given to it as to many other less important vocations. Some one has decided that a hen can be kept for less than 50 cents a year. It is a poor specimen of a hen that will not lay ten dozen eggs a year. At the low price of ten cents a dozen, this would leave a net profit of $4.50 certain. And then it will pay every farmer to keep a flock of hens and give them proper care. There is no danger of over production. Almost all the United States annually imports millions of dozens of eggs, the market will not be glutted.

Fowls be profitable must be given proper attention. Those running at large will almost take care of themselves for a part of the year. They are out grains and considered for they every day convert into eggs what would otherwise go to waste. However, fowls in confinement need different treatment. Meat food must be supplied. The most satisfactory means of providing this to secure a green bone mill and give them green-cut bone. This meat food, or at least such a sort of a similar food, is almost an absolute necessity for good fowls. Tender green stuff is also valuable. Last fall I sowed a patch of rye for early spring "greens." In the spring this patch of rye was put in to furnish green food after the rye had become too far advanced. Early each morning and every evening a basket of green stuff was cut with a pair of shears and given to them. The results have been a good supply of eggs, fowls have had lots of fertile eggs, and nice, thrifty, healthy fowls. It pays to raise chickens and to attend to their wants and needs.—American Agriculturist.

A Creamery Crane.

A strength saver for the creamery that takes in several hundred cans of milk daily is worth having. Here it is: A rough wooden crane that swings a big tin funnel out of the door where the cans are usually lifted in, then swung against a stationary timber and hooked to it, thus giving the teamster a solid place to rest the neck of each can while emptying it. It saves the cans from getting bruised also. A lift from hoops is fastened to the top bar of the crane and the funnel-head is in it. Where the funnel tube passes the crane standard a strong leather strap is passed over it and buttoned into the screen, thus keeping it steady. The milk flows into the weigh can instead of being carried there and dumped into it. When the funnel is closed it is swung in from the weather.

Dealing With Wast Lands.

Austria gives an object lesson in dealing with waste lands. Prizes are given to farmers to encourage them to recover waste lands, and lay them down as pasturage, and also to erect shelters or stables for cows in high altitudes. The importance of this may be seen from the statement that one-quarter of the total fodder required for cattle and horses in the empire is derived from Alpine districts.

The Indians do not number on a big scale nor do they do it systematically, but in the aggregate they kill many annually. The Indian farmers often haul logs to market, but the largest consumption on their part is in manufacture in the Indian baskets for the summer resort and export trade. No kind of timber that grows is looked upon as worthless, and any kind of a log the farmer brings in has a value and will bring cash at the mill or delivery and the pine resources of Michigan brought many millions of dollars into the State, but in real richness and value from its hard wood forests will yield far more."—Buffalo Express

Three Fishers

Three fishers went cautiously out the bay bank,
In the morning gleam while their tapers were high;
Each thought of the school-room deserted once more
And the pious boys jeered them as downward they crept.
But boys will fish
While mothers are smug,
For fish books are plenty,
And worms are a drug.
And the pond is full of gudgeon.

Three mothers rose in their righteous wrath
As soon as they found that their offspring were gone,
Each sought for her slipper and followed the path,
Where the dear ones had vanished at early dawn.
But boys will shock
And mothers are stern,
And in smiles they went forth
But in tears they return,
Though the pond is full of gudgeon

Three urchins lay supperless down in their beds,
And they sighed when their mothers had left them alone;
For their rods had been broken across their heads,
And the fishes had been eaten up all but the bones.
For boys will fish,
And mothers must lick
And the fellow that stands it the best is a trick,
And is apt to get most of the gudgeon.

IN THE "LION'S" DEN.

"Come, hurry up, Joe," said Tom Bently to his younger brother. "The sun's most an hour high, and we've got to go over the divide before we'll find any game. It's all been scared away from this side."

"All right, Tom; I'm just putting up some lunch. We'll likely want it before we get back."

The two boys, aged respectively 17 and 15, were the sons of John Bently, the "working boss" of one of the gold mines, whose boarding cabin was situated well up in the Rocky Mountains, about three miles above Georgetown, Col. They were going out for a day's hunting, and as both were fairly good shots, they expected to bag an elk or a black-tailed deer, and perhaps, better still, one of those exceedingly wary creatures, the mountain sheep.

For hours the hardy young fellows toiled steadily on and up, over and around rocky bluffs and through intervening gulches, until at last, far above the timber line, they reached the summit of the "divide" and began to tread the ravines and climb over the billowy hills of the Pacific slope, but as yet without seeing a sign of game.

By noon they had got once more below the region of eternal snow, and found a sheltered but gradually thickening clump of pine, spruce, quaking aspen and poplar, while on every sheltered spot between the giant bowlders were luxuriant patches of grass and blooming flowers.

"We'd better take dinner now," observed Tom, as they seated themselves by a babbling spring, "for we won't get before long and we won't want to stop then."

Each of the boys carried a good Winchester rifle and a hunting knife. They were tolerably expert in the use of both and, with the daring impetuosity of youth, neither would have hesitated to attack anything in the shape of a wild beast.

Now one who knows nothing of mountains is apt to think that the sides of such are continuous ascents or descents, but this is far from being the case; the traveler, whether going up or down, is at one moment winding through a ravine and the next climbing a corresponding acclivity, or, perhaps, walking over a stretch of level tableland, being at times, except from the nature of the ever-changing flora, quite unable to tell whether he is ascending or descending.

As your young hunters were silently eating, Joe happened to glance at a perpendicular cliff, which rose abruptly from the little valley to a height of 200 feet or so, its base being at least 250 yards from where the boys sat.

At this moment a mountain sheep, a big male, with a prodigious pair of curling horns, showed out against the sky on the very edge of the cliff and stood surveying the country below, as is the habit of this animal. Doubtless he plainly saw the two youths, but considered himself perfectly safe.

"Let's take a crack at him," whispered Joe. "He's got the biggest pair of horns I ever saw."

In that wonderfully clear air the keen-eyed boy could, as he said, almost count the wrinkles on the horns.

"It's a mighty long shot, well on to 200 yards, counting the rise," replied Tom; "but put up your back sight to that notch and we'll try our luck. Fire at the word 'three.'"

Each boy now knelt behind a sapling, to the side of which his outstretched left hand firmly held the rifle while his eye ranged along the sights. "One, two, three!" softly cried Tom, and the two reports rang out as one.

"Hooray! Hooray! We've got him!" Joe yelled, as, after reeling for an instant, the great ram pitched headlong down the precipice.

"I'm afraid he's smashed all to smithereens!" said Tom. "Didn't get what's left of him, anyhow. Come on," and the excited marksman dashed down through the intervening thicket to inspect their prize.

"Why, he's hardly smashed a bit! My, ain't those bully horns, though!" exclaimed Joe. "But it'll be a tough job to get them and the hindquarters back to camp."

(The writer once killed a mountain sheep whose head and horns, the latter of solid, adhering flesh, weighed 60 pounds.)

"Well, we've got to do it," responded Tom, "for I don't believe even father himself has ever seen such a head as this. But say, Joe, we needn't go back to-day unless we like. We've got lots of meat now, so we can hunt all the afternoon and sleep in this cave at night," pointing to a low, dark opening at the foot of the rocks.

"Yes, it looks warm and dry in there," assented Joe. "We'll see what kind of a place it is after we've examined the sheep and hung up the head and saddle. If we want to eat any mutton now we can take some off the forequarters."

It took the lads nearly an hour, however, to remove the heavy hide and properly dress the carcass by removing such parts as were badly bruised. Then, leaving the meat meantime piled up on the skin, Joe said: "I'm going in now to look at our bedroom, Tom. There can't be any living thing in there, for I don't see a single track about," both boys totally ignoring the fact that hundreds of animals might have passed over the rocky ground without leaving a mark.

So taking only his knife with him, the ready youth crept into the hole, while Tom sat down to rest. In a few seconds he heard his brother utter a joyous shout and this was immediately followed by a series of angry, blubber-like mewings and a slight scuffling noise.

Tom was alert enough now, and seizing his rifle, he sprung to his feet, anxiously awaiting developments.

Presently Joe, crouching with head bent, scrambled awkwardly out, having manifestly retained his hold upon three beautifully striped animals, about a little over a foot in length, which he bore in his hands.

"What in the world can these be, Tom?" he asked. "They're not rabbits, I'm quite sure. They look like kittens of some kind of wildcat, but who ever saw even a tame cat with such lovely fur as this? They're not much bigger than rats, but just see what teeth and claws they've got!"

Tom could not answer as he curiously examined the soft, fluffy things, which bit, scratched and resisted handling with all their little might.

"I can't imagine what they are," he said at last. "If I didn't know that the jaguar called a tiger down South —never comes so far north as this, I might think they were cubs of that kind. I give it up, but let's leave the mutton till to-morrow and take the pretty little things to camp. Maybe some of the old hunters there will know what they are."

The mutton was not to remain so long unsalted, however. With some trouble and amid much puerile struggling and mewing the boys managed to get the furry toys of two of the pugnacious younglings, which, in fact, lay helpless on the ground, while they were occupied with the third, when close at hand, between the thicket and the cliff, resounded a harsh, screaming cry of rage and before either of the startled youths could grasp his rifle, a great, tawny-gray body shot through the air, and knocked them both down, as if felled by a lightning stroke. Then, providentially not stopping to dispatch both despoilers, a full-grown female puma picked up one of the recumbent cubs and darted into the cave.

"Quick, Joe! Quick, for your life! It's a mountain lion!" shouted Tom, staggering to his feet.

How Tom has done these could never tell but both the partially stunned boys managed to seize rifles and, before the enraged beast reappeared; and when, terrifically snarling, she bounded toward them, both fired; and both, tremulous with fright, scored a clean miss.

Yet the mother instinct was so strong in the furious creature that she merely brought up another cub in her mouth and again glided into the den.

"Steady, brother, steady!" gasped Tom. "Shoot while the brute is crawling out of the hole. It's a case of life or death with us now."

By a mighty effort of will, forcing their trembling nerves into quietude, the imperiled lads stood shoulder to shoulder, with rifles pointed straight for the cave's mouth and the instant they caught the gleam of the puma's blazing eyes, both again fired together, this time with true aim; for, at the crack of the guns, the cat sprang high, wormed under other circumstances of a better fate, stretched quivering out to death, both bullets having pierced her brain.

Weak as infants, now that the danger was past, the brothers sank half fainting to the ground; and then for the first time Tom noticed that a stream of blood, running down inside his coat sleeve, was pouring over his left hand, the fourth finger of which was gone, and that his shoulder had been rather severely lacerated by a passing stroke of the puma's claws when she first charged. But the young fellow felt too thankful for his own and Joe's escape to heed this somewhat serious wound and by the time the two turned up both boys were themselves again.

Dragging the great carcass out to the open, they stripped off the valuable pelt and quickly cut off enough for their supper and breakfast, after hanging the remains of the mountain sheep on a limb beyond the reach of possibly prowling grizzlies, they set our for camp, one carrying the puma's skin and the other the orphaned cubs.

I had come up from Georgetown that afternoon to inspect the mine and was in the cabin when the boys arrived shortly after dark. The youngsters were greatly elated over their good luck and their father seemed as proud of them as if they had discovered a bonanza.

As the only one present who had ever seen puma kittens, I was obliged to give a little lecture on natural history, which I concluded by saying: "If those cubs live, boys, you'll see them turn the color of their mother before they're grown. The creature that you call mountain lion is the puma or cougar. Many people in the Eastern States and Canada call it 'panther,' or, vulgarly, 'painter.' But there is no panther in America. That is a spotted beast, much resembling the leopard and is found only in Africa, Asia and the East Indian Archipelago."

The next morning Joe went out with one of the men and a burro and brought in the dead sheep, with skin and horns complete. All hands, in consequence, feasted for several days upon wild mutton, in this case father fat meat, but when taken from a young and fat animal it is far superior, in my estimation, to that of either the elk or buffalo.

The cubs were nourished for a while by the milk of two goats kept in camp, and two of these, when they were only six months afterward, had become tame and playful as domestic cats, but the other was killed by a savage dog not more than a week after its capture.—Chicago News.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

By the use of good rams in breeding this fall a fine crop of lambs can be secured next spring.

It is a good thing to grade up stock and a better one to weed out every inferior animal. Better to sell an inferior animal than breed it, even if you must sell at a sacrifice.

It requires just as much care and more feed to make the same weight with scrub stock than it does with pure breeds, and the price is never as high for the first as for the last.

If the hens can have a dust bath they will keep free from vermin much better, but, strange to say, it is frequently the case that the hens can barely scratch out a place necessary to stir up a piece of ground for their purpose and heavy soils that have been baked in the rains, and on grassy plots the dusting is even more difficult.

Dropping of the wool is one of those common troubles of sheep that is distinctly avoidable. It is mostly due to some congestion or irritation of the sheep caused by some adverse condition during the winter. When this happens, remedy is too late, because the wool is already lost. But it is a costly disease, and should be stopped by immediately shearing. If it is necessary to blanket the sheep for a time as a protection against the cold, do so, avoid it, dipping in some medicated solution may be tried; it has been generally found effective.

In some feeding experiments made by the Kansas Experiment Station, the native scrub stock throve better under neglect than did the choicest thoroughbred animals. This was to be expected. If a farmer does not intend to give good stock good care and feed he would better not waste money on them. Better sell what he has and buy what will make the most profit. Much of the worst of yours that has been bought has cost more than a good grade of sheep. There is a natural tendency with the deteriorated to feed and treat them as they deserve, and it requires a continuous line of good care to keep them up to the standard. Their tendency is to grow scrubby and run back to the original. Improvement will soon make it worth its while in character with itself.

A full litter of pigs ought always to be raised whenever possible, partly for the value of the pigs and partly because this also is best for the sow. Most sows, if well bred, will fatten in summer if they are not suckling or bearing a litter of pigs. The fall pigs are also generally healthy and thrifty at birth, because during the summer the sow at pasture has had a due amount of laxative food, keeping her digestion good. It is true that fall pigs often quickly become stunted, but this is because corn is then to often their whole ration. The young pigs get too large a proportion of corn and too little milk. If the main food of bleeding sows and young pigs in fall and winter were roots and wheat bran middlings, the complaint that many worthless pigs stunted would be less heard.

Clover is as much an egg producing material as it is a producer of milk. It is rich in nitrogen and mineral matter, thus providing the hens with substances that are derived from it more than any other. Lime is an essential substance in the production of eggs, and there are some who use oyster shells for supplying the hens with lime, but clover contains lime in a soluble form and ready prepared for use. The various grains are deficient in lime, and when poultry receive no food but grain it is impossible for the hens to lay. When the needed elements are supplied, and the hens lay freely, the carbonaceous matter is appropriated by the eggs, but if the hens do not lay they become fat, and remain in a condition which invites disease. Clover, by displacing the grain, supplies the hens with substances which are packing and fattening in the direction in which it is desired to travel. In this case it will be necessary, according, to M. Kroll, merely to let the balloon travel; in case, however, the hydrogen balloon does not raise the outfit to the desired altitude, the crew of the lower balloon will fire up their apparatus and inflate the lower balloon. Naturally this will gradually relieve the upper balloon of the weight suspended below it, and so the whole concern will continue to rise until the drought-for current is reached. Then the fire in the lower balloon will be turned down, or entirely off, as may be needed to hold the balloon at its proper altitude.

Eventually, of course, the hot air will cool off a bit, and the upper balloon will be unable to maintain the altitude. Then, too, the favoring current of air may cease to flow or may change its course. At such times as these it will be necessary to again fire up the apparatus for inflating the hot-air balloon, and so keep the balloons in the old current or lift them to a higher level in search of a new current. In case they get too high weight can easily be added to the load on the upper balloon by deflating the lower one, and so the hydrogen gas can be kept intact and the balloon be sunk or raised as the balloonists may choose.

M. Kroll's description of the apparatus for forcing the air was not detailed, but he said, in general, that the petroleum would be carried in rubber bags and fed by pipes to a system of 600 burners of the Welsbac gas burners in a Yankee butter-cake baker, the flames being six centimeters long and the area of the arrangement of burners one square metre. Above this heating surface a metal cone would capture the hot air and conduct it into the bag above. The engine provided for carrying 300 kilograms of petroleum, and it is calculated that this would entirely fill the bag sixty times. M. Savine thinks this will be ample for all alterations in ballast during the journey, even for even a voyage to the pole and back. M. Kroll says that experiments have been made with the air heater in the presence of many balloon experts and that in twenty-five minutes was the average time required to fill the bag holding 1,000 cubic meters.

The date for starting for the pole is fixed for a day next June, and the starting point is to be Spitzbergen Island. The time for sailing from New York for Paris will be fixed whenever any New York capitalist is sufficiently interested in such doings to contribute a matter of $8,000 or $10,000 for preliminary expenses.—New York Sun.

NOVEL BALLOONING.

A TWIN-SYSTEM SCHEME FOR LONG VOYAGES.

Hydrogen and Hot-air Balloons to Work in Tandem—The Hot-air Apparatus to Raise and Lower the Outfit to be Preserved Intact for Unloading and Carrying Purposes.

M. Savine, a Russian living in Paris, who is at once a scientist and a maker of pictures for illustrated newspapers, has invented a ballooning project, with which he hopes to accomplish some remarkable things, the first of which is a voyage from New York to Europe, and the second starting with the warm weather next year, a journey to the pole. To attempt first the first mentioned voyage, an agent has been engaged in New York, M. Kroll of a mechanical turn, and the new design in balloons was described by M. Kroll to a Sun reporter.

The ballooning power is somewhat novel, there is nothing novel in M. Savine's invention. He utilizes the hydrogen gas largely commonly in use among balloonists, with the usual basket below it. This gas bag is of 3,000 cubic metres capacity and the basket will hold two men. No ballast of any kind is carried in this basket, save such supplies of food and drink as would be needed in long voyages. It is in the air ballast that M. Savine has developed a novelty. At the end of a cable forty metres long, hanging below the basket, is suspended a second balloon of 1,000 cubic metres capacity, with a stout metal rod attached that will carry two men, 300 kilograms of petroleum, and an apparatus for burning the oil, and by its combustion to heat the air for inflating this lower balloon.

The operation of the whole outfit, as described by M. Kroll is easily understood. On inflating the upper gas bag with hydrogen the lifting power obtained will be sufficient to carry up the entire outfit to a moderate height, possibly high enough to reach a steady current of air flowing in the desired direction in which it is desired to travel. In this case it will be necessary, according, to M. Kroll, merely to let the balloon travel; in case, however, the hydrogen balloon does not raise the outfit to the desired altitude, the crew of the lower balloon will fire up their apparatus and inflate the lower balloon. Naturally this will gradually relieve the upper balloon of the weight suspended below it, and so the whole concern will continue to rise until the drought-for current is reached. Then the fire in the lower balloon will be turned down, or entirely off, as may be needed to hold the balloon at its proper altitude.

Eventually, of course, the hot air will cool off a bit, and the upper balloon will be unable to maintain the altitude. Then, too, the favoring current of air may cease to flow or may change its course. At such times as these it will be necessary to again fire up the apparatus for inflating the hot-air balloon, and so keep the balloons in the old current or lift them to a higher level in search of a new current. In case they get too high weight can easily be added to the load on the upper balloon by deflating the lower one, and so the hydrogen gas can be kept intact and the balloon be sunk or raised as the balloonists may choose.

CORN HARVESTER.

A SIMPLE DEVICE THAT CAN BE MADE AT HOME.

The Cheapness of the Machine is a Point in Its Favor—Patience and Judgment Used in Running the Cutter Will Bring About Good Results.

The illustration represents a device which I made last year for cutting corn [illegible]. Make a platform with two pieces six feet long and two inches thick, the higher the runners are the better it will cut. I used six-inch runners but would advise eight-inch planks if I had my choice. Mortise the front ends of each into the [illegible] to make the frame in square shape and nail boards on the top and bottom in order to make a movable platform 20 inches wide and 6 high. Get a piece of iron hoop and [illegible] be sure that it is not a good butcher knife will cut like a butcher knife. Next procure a piece of board about five inches wide to fit under the knife. Bevel the edge from the bottom or under side, that is to be made with an eye in the centre and curved, in order to fasten either end to a runner and bolt it down to the centre. This rod should be of half-inch round iron, and long enough to work freely (see letter a in cut). Bore a hole in platform for each end, and put in a stake about six inches high on Sickness Cannot Cope With It—Has Cured the Worst Cases on Record—Cures at the Nerve Centers, and Thus Cures Permanently —A Wonderful Specific in All Cases of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Nervousness and General Debility— Has No Equal as a Spring Medicine.

There is a great deal of uncertainty in the methods adopted to remove disease. Doctors are not free from this kind of thing themselves. The poor patient has to put up with a good deal of experimenting. The discoverer of South American Nervine takes too serious a view of life to play pranks of this kind. He does not think that these human bodies of ours should be fooled, dormized, or there would be no end of nervousness. Nervine rebuilds and strengthens the nerve tissues, and hence its marvellous powers in diseases of this kind.

In the spring of the year the strongest suffer from general debility. The blood, through neglect, has become impoverished and the whole system gets out of order. We speak of it as a spring medicine. Nervine restores the exhausted vital forces that have gone to this tired, don't-care, played-out, miserable condition. No one can take a bottle of Nervine at this season of the year without its effects quickly giving way to abounding health.

The moral is plain, simple and easily understood. If you would not be troubled with disease, then you will take South American Nervine, which will not fail with you.

A MEMENTO OF '37.

UNVEILING OF A MONUMENT TO JEAN OLIVIER CHENIER

Historical Sketch of the Hero and the Battle of St. Eustache—A Conflict in Which 10 Patriots Lost Their Lives

August 24, 1895, will remain a red-letter day in the mind and in the memorandum books of the patriots of '37, and of all those who have come to the conclusion that the independence of the province was after all justified, both on account of the success that finally followed it on and of the noble part they played in securing constitutional government for the country. All who think this way will, therefore, remember this day with pleasure, for the unveiling of the Chenier monument has been made the occasion of recalling many of the incidents not only of the patriot war, but also of the noble deeds which have given the names of those who took part in it undying fame. A brief biographical sketch of Chenier, and the circumstances attending his tragical death will no doubt prove interesting.

Jean Olivier Chenier was born in Longueuil, in 1806. He was the son of Monsieur Chenier, who had been struck with the appearance of the little boy, took him under his protection and gave him his classical and professional education. Having graduated in medicine in 1825, young Chenier settled in the parish of St. Benoit, county of Two Mountains. In 1831, he married the daughter of Dr. Labelle of St. Eustache, and his father-in-law having died shortly afterwards, he took his place in the last mentioned parish. From the very beginning of the movement which finally resulted in open rebellion, Dr. Chenier was one of the most active patriots, and at the meetings that took place in the parishes of St. Benoit, Ste. Scholastique and St. Eustache, in April, and in the month of October of the year 1837, he was among the most fiery orators. In Ste Scholastique he said: "Only what I say I mean, and I will do it. Follow me, and I give you permission to kill me, if ever you see me retreat." He was one of the first to adopt as his uniform the homespun cloth or "étoffe du pays" for his dress, and his words and example had great influence over his compatriots. Dr. Chenier was the soul of the insurrection in the northern districts, where camps had been organized in the parishes of St. Eustache and St. Benoit to resist the approach of the volunteers of St. Andrew's and of Chatham and to prevent the arrest of the leaders of the movement. On November 4, 1837, a proclamation from Lord Gosford, offering a reward of $2,000 for the arrest of Dr. Chenier, was published in the county of Two Mountains. This had the effect of grouping the patriots around the leader in whom they had such confidence, and the St. Eustache camp soon numbered between 1,000 and 1,500 men. During the few days immediately preceding the battle of St. Eustache, Chenier had to contend with many difficulties. A number of his men, being unable to secure arms, went over to their homes, and many followed the advice of the cure of the parish, Abbe Paquin, and his curate, who told them that resistance to the troops would be disastrous. The cure even tried to dissuade Chenier himself, but his efforts were unavailing. In the afternoon of December 2 the cure of Ste. Rose, having brought the news of the defeat of the patriots at St. Charles, Dr. Chenier was called to the presbytery and efforts were again made to induce him to give up the fight. Again their efforts were useless, and while doubting the correctness of the report, Chenier said, "Anyhow I am decided to die in arms rather than surrender. The fear of death will not enchain me a moment. You might as well try to stop the furious sea or to keep the wind back."

However, the fatal day arrived. On December 14, the alarm was given and the patriots got ready for the battle. Two thousand infantry, with nine guns, a hundred cavalry and a company of volunteers, all under the supreme command of Colonel Gifford, were marching on St. Eustache. The volunteers appeared first on the St. Rose side of the river, and Chenier, believing that he had to deal with there alone, started for the ice bridge. With unbounded energy men to defend them back. But the Chenier band had barely reached the middle of the river when a volley from behind them caused consternation in their ranks. Reinforcements from the north shore stood Colborne's two thousand men. At this sight most of the patriots lost courage and commenced to fly in every direction, amidst the bullets that wounded a good many. It was with great difficulty that Chenier, followed by the bravest among his men could reach the village of St Eustache. By this time cannon balls were pouring into the village, and Colborne's troops, now reduced to five or six hundred men, only half of whom had guns took up their positions in the church, the presbytery, the convent and a few adjoining buildings. Of the two hundred men who had entered the church with Chenier, between sixty and eighty only had gun—some one-barrel. What shall we do, we have no gunpowder?" Chenier asked, replied the leader with a solemn voice. "Some will be killed and you take your arms."

Meanwhile, the cavalry and infantry had surrounded the village, and Chenier and his men were perfectly aware that they were lost. A good number found safety in flight, but the bravest among them made up their minds to die rather than surrender if possible. The signal for a general attack having been given, the patriots found themselves in a moment crushed by volleys pour-

THE DEFENDER WINS.

Valkyrie Defeated in the First Race

BY NEARLY NINE MINUTES.

At First the Englishman Led. But Soon Was Overhauled—The Wind Was From 5 to 8 Miles an Hour With a Steady Increase.

New York, Sept. 9.—Defender, the aluminum and bronze boat, defeated Valkyrie III. 8 minutes 49 seconds in the first of the races for the America's Cup Monday, according to this table of official times:

	Start.	1mm.	Fin.	Elaps'd Time	Corrected
Defender	11 00 00	1 40 00	3 30 00	3 30 00	3 30 00
Valkyrie	11 00 45	1 39 08	3 19 49	3 19 04	3 19 04

A critical consideration of the comparative merits of the two boats shows: First, that Defender was unquestionably better handled than Valkyrie; second, she outpoints her in going to wind; and, third, she seems better before the wind, though as was said the wind had shifted so that the so called run home was really a broad reach.

Also it appears that Defender foots faster than Valkyrie in stiff weather, besides beating her to windward. The English boat is undeniably faster in a light breeze such as the race began with, but even then she cannot sail so close to windward.

It would seem that Dunraven's only hope now is a drifting match.

Twenty thousand people on board the greatest flotilla that ever assembled off Sandy Hook witnessed the race, and there was a scene of hilarious joy when Defender crossed the line fully two minutes ahead of Lord Dunraven's boat.

The joy of the multitude was undoubtedly increased by the fact that Valkyrie led the Yankee boat for the first hour. She whirled away from Defender in a way that led Englishmen to fondle the hope that their day had come at last. Hardly visions of the America's Cup floated before their eyes, while the patriotic Americans who were packed tier above tier on the many-decked excursion steamers were very glum.

A hush fell over the marine amphitheatre when the boats neared, and all the joys of yachting seemed gone when the Valkyrie easily moved to the front and showed a neck to Defender. Cheers and enthusiasm were missing for a full hour when the British leader was leading. There was only a five-knot breeze at the start, and, as predicted, Valkyrie was able to creep through the water faster than the Defender in the light air. There was a lumpy sea, and quite a heavy swell set in from the ocean, but the buffeting of the waves against the Britisher's bow did not check her pace. She quickly left the Defender behind, and the excursion fleet moved up and turned and outfooted the Herreshoff boat to the amazement of the great crowd of spectators. But after establishing a lead of a good quarter of a mile, the wind having shifted, the Defender hunter failed to hold her own, and the Yankee began to gain. When the crowd saw it there was a general brightening up, and as it became plain that the prowess of American brains was picking up her rival a cheer went up and tug boat whistles screeched.

As both yachts were beating to windward, it is impossible to say just when the Defender overhauled the British boat, but it was about 1.25 p.m. when the boats had covered nearly half of the 15 miles of windward work. Once the Defender got her gait there was no catching her and as the wind continued to freshen she piled up a very large gap between her stern and the bow of the Valkyrie. When Defender reached the outer mark she had an advantage of 3 minutes and 27 seconds. There was a big demonstration as the Yankee's sails made the turn. The wind having shifted the run home became a broad reach, and it was of constant gain for the American boat, rising home the gain was 4 minutes 42 seconds.

With the time allowance of 29 seconds the Defender's victory was by 8 minutes 49 seconds.

The wind was 10 knots an hour at the finish. The day's race showed Valkyrie III. more like a ghost in a wind of less than 6 knots and that she seemed speedier than Defender in that wind. In fact she showed that with a wind of from 8 to 10 knots in which to windward work and broad reaching the English boat would not keep the pace set by Defender.

Sailing at times somewhat interfered with by the attendant fleet, but the patrol yachts kept a fairly clear course except at the start and finish.

It was just 12.29 o'clock when the preparatory gun boomed out and the red ball was hoisted on the consolidated boat, the Walter A. Luckenbach. The wind was very light, perhaps five miles an hour, and was from the east south east. The sea was moderately still. It was Valkyrie's weather, in which she ought to do her very prettiest. If she did not run now, there was little hope for her. Both boats were standing along the line, close hauled on the starboard tack, and heeled for the Long Island shore. Valkyrie was to windward and Defender had just walked through her lee, so sailing was apparently, although not actually ahead. Defender had spread her main sail, club topsail, jib and jib topsail, with her big spinnaker ready and jib, with no stay sail. Now came the prettiest part of the race, where skilful seamanship is of the highest premium—the manoeuvring for the weather gage. Defender went about followed by Valkyrie, and both ran back along the line with becoms to port. Valkyrie went about again beyond, breaking out a baby jib topsail and her staysail. Defender got on her course a minute longer, and when she too went about on the starboard tack again, she broke out a number two jib topsail one size larger than the Valkyrie's. Valkyrie went about off the line and ran back to meet Defender, with her boats well standboard, but well in board, and the wind to her beam Defender meanwhile coming up from the southward close hauled on the starboard tack. She had the right of way and passed to the windward of Valkyrie, thus gaining the coveted windward position; then stood for the line still on the starboard tack with the wind on her beam and Valkyrie after her close hauled. Valkyrie lifted over and found herself to the lee-ward of the Defender. In this wise they approached the line. The royal Champions calculated their time well.

Both boats were to the leward of the line when the starting gun sounded at 12.26. Both headed for it at once and passed over as follows: Valkyrie, 12.26.05. Defender, 12.26.50. Defender crossed much nearer the top of the line, however, and so was considerably to the windward for the British boat in the races were now well away. Standing as they had crossed, on the starboard tack, with sheets close hauled, which, in the wind, meant that they were heading along the Long Island shore. Valkyrie was leading by a hundred yards or more as well as the distance could be estimated from the press boat, some distance behind her. Well inshore and to her lee windward position, which to some extent was an off set to Valkyrie's lead. As they got on the excursion fleet massed up to windward, and gave way and opened a narrow channel which navies fancied and the gap between the two great boats narrow enough at first, began to widen slowly but surely. Measured by the comparative speeds by the eye and patent which they showed in the wake of the excursion boats it looked as if the English boat would pass three feet to the Defender's every two. Defender was pointing up to windward a little lower.

At 12.39.09 Defender went about and Valkyrie followed her, both standing off on the port tack. This brought the Defender apparently ahead, but as the Valkyrie was considerably to the wind the American boat's lead was only improved, and she was actually some distance astern. Defender was much the quicker in stays, seeming to whirl about on a pivot. The conditions on these tacks were different from the preceding one, as the sea was then on the beam and the yachts rode easily over it. Now it was on the weather bow, and they had to cut through it. Both yachts began to pitch and to splash the spray from their bows. The English boat seemed to ride the waves more easily and with her less than Defender. But it was plainly to be seen that she was not gaining as she had on the opposite tack. She had held her own and no more.

Then Capt. Haff tried an experiment and Defender was seen to veer away a trifle from the wind. She rode the waves much easier this way, and edged at once began to outfoot the English boat, though of course she lost to leeward. Valkyrie, sailing easily, responded still further up to leeward. This was by the lowering for by Defender, however, and at 1.12.36 she went about and stood towards the Long Island shore, outfooting Valkyrie again. Valkyrie followed instantly and it was seen that the English boat was fully a quarter of a mile ahead, though a little to the leeward. In the light wind and with the sea on the beam the Valkyrie had a decided advantage, and again she began to work away from Defender. The latter's American boat made her worst showing at this point of the race and it almost seemed as if the Englishman's next wind from one which was doing much good to Defender as the Dunraven craft. Now, however, the luck turned and fortune began to favor the American. The wind began strengthening, increasing from 5 or 6 knots an hour to 8 or 10. Defender began to pick up noticeably. She not only pointed better to windward than Valkyrie, but she had done all along, but she now seemed to feel it as well and to like better.

The Valkyrie went about and stood over towards the Defender on the port tack. The latter kept right on her course. It was evident they would pass close together, and for the first time since them it was evident that the yielding privilege of the rule would be clearly seen. Defender was on the starboard tack and had the right of way. Would Valkyrie give her room or would she pass astern?

The excitement and excitement was intense. It looked as if the Valkyrie would cross the Defender's bows, until suddenly, as they got very near together, the English boat suddenly put her helm right in the Defender's lee and stood off on the starboard tack. She had failed in her attempt to cross ahead and Defender had the right of way. Would Valkyrie go astern or would she pass astern?

The Valkyrie went about and stood over towards the Defender on the port tack. The latter kept right on her course. It was evident they would pass close together, and for the first time since them it was evident that the yielding privilege of the rule would be clearly seen. Defender was on the starboard tack and had the right of way. Would Valkyrie go astern or would she pass astern?

The Valkyrie went about and stood off on the starboard tack, and, coming up rapidly, took the wind from the Defender's sails, and would not pass astern. It was a costly move for Capt. Cranfield, and he had only got his boat about when unsuccessfully but he had also run near his opponent's lee.

In the midst of the excitement, at 1.56 the Defender went about, and the two boats were repassing each other. At 1.44 the Valkyrie went about also, and a minute later the Defender also tacked, coming up to windward on each other as before, Valkyrie on the port tack and the Defender on the starboard, with the right of way. At this time the Defender crossed the Valkyrie's bows, amid another deafening cheer, and, going about quickly, took up a position just ahead of and to the windward of the Englishman, at the same time showing him a neatly-lettered stern. This was too much. The Valkyrie could not stay there and be blanketed. She promptly whirled part, and went off on the starboard tack. She had had quite enough of jockeying, too, and she did not come about again, but stood away for the beach for the mark. The Defender soon tired of her course to the southward, and, coming about, stood on on the port tack, well up to windward of the Valkyrie, though behind her in distance.

The Defender had unquestionably gotten the best of the two little encounters, and her friends were highly elated in consequence. Moreover, the fact that she had been in a position to do so showed that she had overcome the Valkyrie's lead since the wind freshened and that she seemed the speedier than Defender in that wind. It also showed that with a wind of from 8 to 10 knots in which to windward work and broad reaching the English boat would not keep the pace set by Defender.

WHAT IS STANDARD TIME?

Some thirteen years ago—1882—in order to regulate the railway time on this continent a conference of railway magnates deemed it necessary that time should be kept according to certain meridians. For instance, a train running from London, Ont., to Chatham and Detroit would pass through different times, and between Montreal and Vancouver, say, there would be a difference of fully five hours—taking meridian time, or time calculated from the altitude of the sun at a given hour. But really the correct observation is not made from the sun, but from the North Star, which is the centre of another system of worlds. Those meridians are difficult to handle, from the fact that 75.90, 1.15 meridians means nothing whatever, unless they are counted from a zero point or from a first meridian. With the world going at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour one way, and 1,000 miles a minute around the sun, the fixing of this point has been the study of the greatest scientists of this age.

In 1892 five standard meridians were adopted for Canada and the United States, as follows:—

Intercolonial, 62° west from Greenwich, Eng.
Eastern.....	75°	" "
Central.....	87°	" "
Mountain.....	105°	" "
Pacific.....	120°	" "

The Eastern standard meridian by which our city runs her time passes near Prescott, and is only 21 minutes and 14 seconds ahead of our meridian time; and our sun time or our local time would vary this much. The Central standard meridian strikes outside of our latitude, and comes in about Detroit, and passes through New Orleans and St. Louis. The Mountain meridian passes through the Rocky Mountains very near Pike's Peak, Colorado. The Pacific standard meridian is near the Pacific Coast, San Francisco being about nine and a-half minutes west of it. Now between Intercolonial and Pacific, or, say Vancouver, time there is a difference of five hours, or four hours between our city time and the Pacific Coast (that is taking the 75 meridian as our standard). Of course Eastern time is fast and West-ern time slow, and taking a standard meridian and within 7½ degrees of it, one minute of time must be deducted from or added to the dates for every quarter of a degree of longitude that the place is distant from that standard meridian, or four minutes of time for each degree. But explanations like this are of little use unless there is a uniformity of time, and this can only be brought about by an electric service, or having the public and private clocks synchronized from a central meridian. Of course, this central meridian means that the longitude of the place is fixed, the same as Greenwich, Eng., Montreal, or Washington, D.C. The longitude of Montreal has been fixed at a very large expense both by the Dominion and Home Governments, and from this point we must look for correct time. All the railways in the United States run by Washington observations, and so does the Michigan Central on this side of the lines. All through the United States they have what is called electric time; that is, all the clocks in railway, bank, insurance, counting room and other offices are synchronized daily from a certain clock at Washington, where the observation is taken. Those clocks are supplied or rented by a company, and the Government guarantees the correct observations. Uniformity of time is a great desideratum, and to maintain this there must be a central point as a guide, and systematic synchronism. The loss of a few minutes owing to a difference between two clocks has been the cause of some appalling accidents, and of great annoyance in business appointments. Those annoyances and the excuses which are furnished for them would disappear if electric clocks regulated from a common centre were adopted. Of course the Dominion Government would have to deal with the question, and as fixing the longitude of Montreal came under their special jurisdiction with the aid of the English Government an electric time service is essential for public business—railway and otherwise. It is a remark of common occurrence that our city time is not within a couple of minutes a day of what standard time should be. This could all be obviated by having standard time, regulated from a given point—and this point the Government observatory—and by electric time service.

NEW TRANSATLANTIC LINE

To Be Subsidized By the Imperial Government—An Inter Imperial Route.

New York, Sept. 8.—Mr. Ballard Smith cables the following to The World from London:

I have information that the British Treasury is now seriously considering a scheme for the establishment by the Canadian Government of a new transAtlantic service between England and both Canada and the United States, aided by a special Imperial subsidy. This proposal was first mooted at the Intercolonial Conference at Ottawa last year, and Lord Jersey, the representative of the Imperial Government at the conference, supported it tentatively in his report to the British Cabinet. The plan was, at the instance of the Canadian Government, remitted for examination to a committee of experts which had been considering the condition of the mail service with China and the Australian colonies. The experts' report was presented to Lord Ripon early in the year, and was strongly in favor of the Canadian scheme, but as one of its main features was the complete ignoring of Queenstown as a port of call for the proposed new service Lord Ripon dropped it as its adoption would have antagonized the Irish party.

Sir Charles Tupper, Dominion High Commissioner, has been energetically pressing the scheme, at the instance of his Government, and is aware of the favorable report in the pigeonholes of the Colonial Department. He brought the matter under the notice of Mr. Chamberlain instantly he succeeded Lord Ripon as Minister of the Colonies. Mr. Chamberlain's avowed policy is to do everything possible to develop the interests and trade of the British colonies, as against competing foreign countries, and being indifferent about Irish hostility he promptly approved the Canadian scheme and forwarded it only a few days ago to the Treasury with an urgent minute asking the Chancellor of the Exchequer to report as soon as possible on its financial aspects.

The subsidy proposed to be paid by the British Government to the Canadian Government in aid of the new service is £240,000 a year and as this is a vital point of the scheme the decision of the Treasury sanctioning or refusing the expenditure will determine the fate of the proposal.

The scheme provides for building a new fleet of crack steamers for the service, those for New York starting from Southampton and those for Canada from Liverpool via the North of Ireland. The adoption of this proposal would be a reversal of England's established policy as to giving bounty to Anglo-Canadian shipping, and hardly any other member of the Government except Mr. Chamberlain could hope to carry it through. But he has already asserted himself as the strongest departmental chief in the Cabinet. Lord Salisbury undoubtedly appointed him with the express intention that the somnolent traditions of that office would overpower him.

If successful, besides its obvious importance to New York, the scheme avowedly means an arbitrary transfer to Vancouver from San Francisco of all the English mails as well as freight.

COLONIES AND THE NAVY.

Proposal to Give Them a Voice in Its Control.

London, Sept. 9.—Correspondence between the Imperial Federation Committee and the Ministers of State, which was published to-day, indicates that the colonies of Great Britain may be called upon to contribute towards the cost of maintaining the Imperial Navy and in return be offered a proportionate share in its control. The Imperial Federation Committee argue that this arrangement would lighten the burden of the British tax-payer and at the same time advance the cause of Imperial unity.

The utterances of colonial statesmen, including Sir Julius Vogel, formerly Prime Minister of New Zealand, are cited to show that they support the movement.

Lord Marquis of Salisbury pointed out to the members of the committee that there was fair room for settling a divided control of naval affairs, but the Duke of Devonshire, Lord President of the Council, the Marquis of Lansdowne, Secretary of State for War, and the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, all promised that the proposal should have careful consideration.

In this connection The Globe this afternoon, in the course of a long article, says that the British Empire may truly be said to be on its trial. The anomaly of the present position has forced the question whether the result is satisfactory and whether we can go on much longer without a radical change. The London paper points out that the Empire is to be tested by the question of any of the colonies against any one of the great powers is so manifestly out of the question that the colonies would be thrown back upon the Imperial Navy. Colonial governments, The Globe adds, do not hesitate even now to claim the services of the Queen's ships whenever they think fit. It seems to follow, the Globe concludes, that there should be no doubt as to the obligation of the colonial tax-payers.

BUCK LAKE TRAGEDY.

The Two Men Charged With Being Implicated in the Death of James Barrett of This City Released.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 9.—The case against Maurice Miles and Charles Melbourn, charged with murdering James Barrett, formerly of this city, at Buck Lake, was resumed and concluded before Justice Street at Osgoode Hall on Saturday. Charles Warner testified that deceased had told him along a year ago that he was troubled with heart disease. The fact that the boat was not overworthy and that it was unfit to carry three persons safely was also strongly brought out.

Crown Attorney Johnson, in summing up, spoke at some length on the evidence given by Dr. Harrington of this city, which went to show that every symptom favored the idea of death or at least unconsciousness before sinking in the water.

The prisoners were ably defended by Mr. Tytler, who pointed out the previous good character of accused, the defectiveness of the boat, the absence of motive and the possibility of deceased having received the blow by falling on the boat in jumping out.

Justice Savage did not consider the evidence strong enough to warrant a committal, and they were accordingly discharged.

THE HAND OF DEATH.

Three More Homes Made Desolate by the Removal of Loved Ones.

The reaper of death has been very active in the city and vicinity of late and to day we have to chronicle the demise of three persons and as a consequence sadness prevails in once happy homes.

MRS. MARSHALL.

The subject of this sketch was a man known to many in the city. The deceased was well advanced in years, being in his 86th year. He was born in the county of Antrim, Ireland. He came to this country in 1851 and lived in New York for fourteen years and then came north and settled near the town of Port Hope, where he was a successful farmer for a long time. Becoming enfeebled he removed to this city twelve years ago, residing on Albert street with his daughter. He has been a victim of dropsy for years, which disease caused his demise at an early hour Sunday morning. Mrs. Houston died 6 years ago. Deceased leaves a family of four daughters and two sons. In religion he was a life long Presbyterian and in politics a staunch Conservative. The remains were taken at noon to-day to Cobourg for interment. Services were conducted at the house by Rev. J. Mac C. Thompson. The bearers were Messrs. J. Mooney, A. C. Northrup, J. Forin, T. Givens, R. Templeton and J. McKeown.

John Mortimer.

After an illness lasting nine months and which was borne with true christian fortitude, Mr. John Mortimer, living about two miles east of the G.T.R. station in the second concession of Thurlow, passed peacefully away on Saturday afternoon. Deceased was afflicted with a disease of the nerves. He was about fifty years of age and leaves a wife and two daughters to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and kind father. Deceased was a well-to-do farmer and devout christian, being a member of the Tabernacle. The funeral took place this afternoon. Rev. E. Roberts conducted the service at the house and at the cemetery, where the interment took place.

Allen Frederick Greatrix.

Allan Frederick Greatrix, aged 6 years and 7 months, the oldest son of Mr. W. R. Greatrix, died yesterday morning at the residence of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Greatrix, Pinnacle street. The deceased had been ill but a short time with an affection of the brain. He was an unusually bright child and his demise is a sore affliction to the parents and members of the family, who will have the sympathy of the community. The remains were interred in the cemetery this afternoon, the funeral services being conducted by the Rev. H. C. J. Hutton, of Christ church.

The bearers were: H. Lake, W. Collins, F. Brown, J. Petrie, W. Hanwell and R. Garratt. ACTIVITY AT THE SOO

The New Canal Had a Busy Day Yesterday.

41 VESSELLS PASSED THROUGH.

A Half Note Raiser Captured in Calgary — Decisions by the New Board of Customs — Personal Notes From the Capital — Number of Insurance Prosecutions

Ottawa, Sept. 10.—According to telegrams received at the Department of Railways and Can. to-day, the new ... Marie has been ... officially opened. On Saturday the ... steamer Majestic, drawing ... feet, and with a party of 100 on ... board, was the first vessel to pass through the lock, supplying word Mr. ... Secretary, the Deputy Minister, that a continual stream of the largest-sized ... vessels was passing through the canal during the whole of to-day. The ... locks and valves, which are operated entirely by electricity, worked splendidly. Electricity, as a motor power in this connection, is an entirely new thing, Canada being the first country to adopt it for canal purposes. Until ... canal lights have been put up, vessels will not be allowed to pass through the lock at night. The channel, of course, is a new one for lake craft this, and the Department desires to take every precaution for the safety of vessels. Mr. Anderson, chief engineer of the Mining Department, is at present at the Sault, locating points where the range lights will be placed. A gratifying message was received at the Department to-day from Mr. Wheeler, engineer in chief of the canal which is now being constructed on the Michigan side of the river. It read as follows: "Accept congratulations upon successful opening of your canal. 41 vessels, 44,469 tons. All this was done between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Everybody pleased with quickness of despatch."

A private message from Winnipeg says that Hon. A. Patterson received a cordial greeting there to-day on his arrival to assume the duties of Lieutenant-Governor. He was met at the station by the late Governor, Sir John Schultz, by members of the Provincial Government and by the Mayor and corporation. Lieut.-Governor Patterson replied briefly to the address which had been tendered to him.

Archbishop Duhamel left for Quebec to-day to attend a session of the Provincial Educational Council.

The Board of Trade at Calgary have arrested a young fellow named A. Bowen, who was wanted in Hull on a charge of raising Dominion notes. Bowen, when indicted, was allowed out on bail, but did not put in an appearance when the court met.

Insurance agents in this vicinity are on the jump just now. The latest prosecution is against George Skipworth, secretary of the Sons of England Benefit Society, for acting as an insurance agent in contravention of provincial regulations without having the necessary license. The Recorder reserved judgment till Thursday to consult several points of law which are involved.

ACTIVITY AT THE SOO

The New Canal Had a Busy Day Yesterday.

41 VESSELS PASSED THROUGH.

A Hull Note Keiser Captured in Calgary — Decisions by the New Board of Customs — Personal Notes From the Capital — Number of Insurance Prosecutions

Ottawa, Sept. 10.—According to telegrams received at the Department of Railways and Canals to-day, the new canal at Sault Ste. Marie has been successfully opened. On Saturday the excursion steamer Majestic, drawing 14 feet, and with a party of 700 on board, was the first vessel to pass through the locks. Superintendent Wm. McSentcher, the Deputy Minister, that a commercial census of the largest-sized vessels has been passing through the canal during the whole of to-day. The gates and valves, which are operated entirely by electricity, worked splendidly. Electricity, as a motor power is proving to be an entirely new thing, Canada being the first country to make use of it. The current of the beacon lights have been put up, vessels will not be allowed to pass through the lock at night. The channel, of course, is a new one for lake captains, and the department desires to take every precaution for the safety of vessels. Mr. Anderson, chief engineer of the Marine Department, is present at the Sault, locating points where the range lights will be placed. A gratifying message was received at the Department to-day from Mr. Wheeler, engineer in chief of the canal which is now being constructed on the Michigan side of the river. It read as follows: "Accept congratulations on successful opening of your magnificent lock." Telegrams of congratulation were also received from Mr. Hugh Ryan and Mr. M. J. Haney.

Deputy Superintendent Scheibner to-night received the following from Superintendent Boyd of the Soo Canal, which was formally opened for traffic Monday: "Everything worked smoothly and satisfactorily, passed 41 vessels of 44,460 tons. All this was done between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. Everybody pleased with quickness of despatch."

A private message from Winnipeg says that Hon J. C. Patterson received a cordial greeting there to-day on his arrival to assume the duties of Lieutenant-Governor. Lieut.-Governor Patterson declined the escort of Dragoons which had been tendered to him.

Archbishop Duhamel left for Quebec to-day to attend a session of the Provincial Educational Council.

Harding Defeats Sullivan.

London, Sept. 10.—The race for the sculling championship of England between Wm. Harding, the present champion, and Tom Sullivan of New Zealand, for the championship and £100 decided over the course on the Thames, was easily walked in a victory for Harding.

Above Hammersmith a foul occurred, but the boats kept on. Reaching Chiswick Eyot Harding darted ahead, and, rowing very fast, won with perfect ease in 22 minutes and 50 seconds.

Harding got away first, and led for a few strokes, but Sullivan overhauled him and was half a length ahead at the London Rowing Club house. As the contestants reached the mile they were both driven over to the Surrey side by the crowds of spectators. At the Soap Works Harding was gaining, but Sullivan again drew away, and was two lengths ahead at Wig-an-Inn. Harding then began to row a fine stroke, and at Hammersmith bridge Sullivan's lead had become reduced to a length and a half. Hammersmith bridge was reached in 8 minutes and 56 seconds.

DANGEROUS CONSULTATION

All Right in a Day or Two, But the Lay Never Came.

"All right in a day or two" is the thought that consoles every one who is suffering from any indisposition that does not prostrate him. In the case of a per on bedridden for months with disease of the kidneys being asked, "Did you not have any warning of this condition you are now in?" "Yes, I was bothered at first with backache, with occasional headaches, but did not consider myself sick or the necessity of medicine further than a plaster on my back or rubbing with any favorite liniment. It was months before I began to realize that it was useless to further force myself to ignore my condition. The backache had become a pain in the back and sides, weak and tired feeling, high-colored urine with frequent and sediment, pain in the bladder, palpitation of the heart, poor appetite, indigestion, and a dull, languid feeling, with entire lack of energy. Had the first signal of distress from the Kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills, the assistance of Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the after state of misery and suffering could have been avoided. A few doses stopped the pain, relieved the distress in the back, and prepare for such an attack by keeping on hand a bottle of Pinney Davis Pain Killer, which is a safe, quick, and infallible cure for diarrhœa, cholera, cramps, or, indeed, any disorder of the stomach. Two teaspoonfuls in one dose bought at any reputable drug store 25c will purchase the Big Bottle. New size.

SYNDICATE OF FIREBUGS

The Montreal Gang Operated Throughout Canada.

MILLIONS MADE WITH THE TORCH

Chiefs of the Gang Posed as Wholesalers and Terrorized Customers Until They Decided to Their Propositions — Some Arrested Will Go to the Grand Jury at once.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—The eight merchants arrested on charges of arson were brought before the police court this morning, but were not asked to plead. The Attorney-General gave notice that they be brought at once before the grand jury and this will be next to-morrow.

John Beiser, the leader of the band, for ten years has denied detection while gathering in thousands of dollars which will stand out conspicuously in annals of crime. Beiser and his associates had nothing whatever to do with the Reid, Gillies & Co. fire, but the repentant boy-pal stated that some hot valid would be laid initial crime, but gave the Crown its first clue to the great Bleiser conspiracy.

Evidence already in possession of the Crown identifies Beiser's hand with fifteen fires in Montreal alone within the last three years. These are recent, it is confidently believed, only a small part of the crimes committed by the band in the Canadian cities westward from Quebec as far as Winnipeg.

The total loss to English and Canadian fire insurance companies mounts into the millions. Beiser's gang made heavy losses for half a dozen leading companies, whose private detectives for years have been trying to catch them, to well-nigh fatal drain upon their surplus funds.

Mysterious fires began to attract general attention in 1885, and so abnormally heavy grew the insurance losses that the rates were advanced year after year until in this city where fire departments are well made and where the fire department is well disciplined and well equipped, rates on certain risks rose as high as $100. The merchants of Montreal protested. It was universally recognized that there was system in a part of some of the operations of an organized gang. Nine out of every ten fires of mysterious origin were discovered at some time between Saturday night and Monday morning and the losses invariably reported to business were presumably very small. Investigation of the Boyd, Gillies & Co. fire threw a flood of light on the mystery. D. Hanson, chief adjuster of the Dominion Adjustment Bureau, took the history of the work of running down the conspiracy, and employed Silas H. Carter, one of the Canadian Secret Service Company as chief detective. M. J. F. Quinn, Q.C., was employed, and together the three men began operations three months ago. Little by little they accumulated the evidence against Beiser and his fellow conspirators.

The method of the gang may be described briefly as follows: Beiser, Thomas and Davis were wholesalers in various lines who would sell out to merchants on liberal terms as to time. When under pressure of unsuccessful business they would sell out their stock for cash, the wholesaler would urge him to accept more stock and increase his insurance.

This was done in all of the 15 cases where fires occurred. The insurance amounted frequently to double the value of the goods. The Beiser gang selecting their style in No. 2 premises and making sure of his moral pliability, would secretly advise him to burn his store, at this advice he would accepted the crime was insisted upon under penalty of suit for bankruptcy. With ruin staring him in the face, the unfortunate victim would consent to the arrangement and on the Saturday night set for the fire would turn "cold" and refuse to go on with his followers. The conspirators would then secretly remove the greater part of the stock and arrange the mechanism destined to create the fire.

An ordinary alarm clock was in variably used. The glass bulbs at back and sides were removed, the goods taken off, and the metal work of the alarm was filled with a glass bulb filled with sulphuric acid. It was then wound up, the alarm set for any hour at which the conspirators desired the fire, and the floor beneath was covered with chemical preparations. When the alarm finally struck, the glass bulb was shattered, sulphuric acid mingled with the preparations and the fire fiend's chief was accomplished. Beiser and his confederates then arranged for all that their victim should pay them not only the original bill, but also for the goods which had been secretly removed—in this way approximating the bulk of the insurance money collected by the unfortunate. They invariably worked upon weak men, who kept quiet, fearing to be involved in the ruin certain to follow exposure.

John Beiser, the chief, has lived for the last twelve years in this city, in a suburb known as St. Lambert, and is supposed to be a man of large means. He is 55 years old, and if the authorities are correct, is a fugitive from justice in New York city. Victims of the conspiracy who have filed their confessions with M. J. Quinn assert positively that Beiser was originally identified with a small but desperate band of firebugs who operated successfully for a year in New York city, and that when forced to leave that city he purchased the secret of the alarm clock method from his chief for $500. Adjuster Hanson and Counsellor Quinn quietly visited New York city in August and devoted an entire week to the case. Their work was directed against the Beiser syndicate. Some of the most desperate retailers lured into crime by these conspirators had left Montreal in terror and settled in New York. It was to reach these men and to obtain their confessions that the two Canadian officials made the trip.

Full immunity was pledged, but the denial of conspiracy was found to be overcome in a day or a week, and the two investigators returned with Montreal practically in their hands. Success crowned their subsequent efforts, however, and the arrests of nearly all implicated by the Beiser syndicate with a few at least, of their crimes.

New York, Sept. 10.—Counsellor Quinn arrived in this city early yesterday morning, and associated at the Hotel Brunswick, where I found him later in the day. When confronted with the facts as given above Mr. Quinn reluctantly, but positively, confirmed every detail.

"It is true," said he, "that we have unearthed a mammoth conspiracy which has been in existence for the last ten years, and which has cost our insurance companies millions of dollars. I am not at liberty now to reveal all that I know of Beiser's identity nor the methods of his confederates, who are numerous and conspicuous publishers in Canada. And the to-day's arrests are merely preliminary to a wholesale hanging of the guilty, if it can be accomplished. There are no doubt that Beiser is in New York. We have the organizer an I leader."

As the conspirators are arrested their pictures will be taken and forwarded at once to counsellor Quinn. He will submit them to Acting Chief Conlin, and every effort will be made to get at their records. The police of this city know none of the men by their present names, but the Canadian authorities are confident that both Beiser and Davis are fugitives from New York.

WILL SAIL AGAIN TO-DAY

Valkyrie and Defender to Second Race Over a Ten Mile Leg Triangular Course.

New York, Sept. 9.—The Defender and the Valkyrie lay at anchor this morning about a mile-and-a-half off Lay Bridge. They were continuously surrounded by fleet of boats containing various specimens. The sailors on the Defender were engaged in washing down decks and scrubbing her deck and making the mainsail ready for preparatory before a race. H. Maitland Kersey went on board the Valkyrie at 10:30 o'clock. He said: "The Valkyrie will be all ready for to-morrow's contest. We all hope to do better than on Saturday. I have no more to say about Saturday's race. It is now a matter of history."

The Valkyrie crew were busy all the morning as the Defender's, and going practically the same work. Weather Observer Dunn has promulgated for to-morrow, the second day of the International yacht series. "The present indications for to-morrow," he said, "are that we shall have fair weather and light to fresh winds, generally from the southeast. The wind may increase with probably very from 6 to 10 miles. The chances are that we shall have a good during the entire period of the races. There is no strong high, and I see no reason to expect one."

The race for to-day will be sailed over a triangular course. The start will be from the Sandy Hook lightship, unless the wind and weather make some other buoy inadvisable. Each leg of the tri angle will be 10 miles.

Harding Defeats Sullivan.

London, Sept. 10.—The race for the sculling championship of England between Wm. Harding, the present champion, and Tom Sullivan of New Zealand, for the championship and £100 decided over the course on the Thames, was easily walked in a victory for Harding.

Above Hammersmith a foul occurred, but the boats kept on. Reaching Chiswick Eyot Harding darted ahead, and, rowing very fast, won with perfect ease in 22 minutes and 50 seconds.

Harding got away first, and led for a few strokes, but Sullivan overhauled him and was half a length ahead at the London Rowing Club house. As the contestants reached the mile they were both driven over to the Surrey side by the crowds of spectators. At the Soap Works Harding was gaining, but Sullivan again drew away, and was two lengths ahead at Wig-an-Inn. Harding then began to row a fine stroke, and at Hammersmith bridge Sullivan's lead had become reduced to a length and a half. Hammersmith bridge was reached in 8 minutes and 56 seconds.

DANGEROUS CONSULTATION

All Right in a Day or Two, But the Lay Never Came.

"All right in a day or two" is the thought that consoles every one who is suffering from any indisposition that does not prostrate him. In the case of a per on bedridden for months with disease of the kidneys being asked, "Did you not have any warning of this condition you are now in?" "Yes, I was bothered at first with backache, with occasional headaches, but did not consider myself sick or the necessity of medicine further than a plaster on my back or rubbing with any favorite liniment. It was months before I began to realize that it was useless to further force myself to ignore my condition. The backache had become a pain in the back and sides, weak and tired feeling, high-colored urine with frequent and sediment, pain in the bladder, palpitation of the heart, poor appetite, indigestion, and a dull, languid feeling, with entire lack of energy. Had the first signal of distress from the Kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills, the assistance of Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the after state of misery and suffering could have been avoided. A few doses stopped the pain, relieved the distress in the back, and prepare for such an attack by keeping on hand a bottle of Pinney Davis Pain Killer, which is a safe, quick, and infallible cure for diarrhœa, cholera, cramps, or, indeed, any disorder of the stomach. Two teaspoonfuls in one dose bought at any reputable drug store 25c will purchase the Big Bottle. New size.

DENIES MURDER TRIAL.

Counsel For the Crown Outlines the Case Against the Accused.

Montreal, Sept. 10.—When the trial of Napoleon Bernier for the murder of his wife on June 13 last, began yesterday in the Court of Queen's Bench, every available seat and inch of standing room was occupied. Mr. Justice Wurtele occupied the bench. Bernier betrayed some nervousness at first, but soon regained his self-control. A murder jury was sworn in, but not until 51 names had been called, both defence and prosecution taking advantage of the privilege of challenge. Forty witnesses were summoned for the Crown and forty-five for the defence. They answered their names and then had to withdraw.

Messrs. M. J. F. Quinn, Q.C., and Archambault, Q.C., Crown prosecutors, took up most of the day in addressing the jury, outlining the crime and the evidence against the accused. They told how the woman was found lying in her home, with her throat cut and her infant lying in the cradle waiting for food, and proceeded to state that they would show that the woman could not have committed suicide. Then it must be murder, and the jury would have to decide if anyone else but the husband had committed the deed. The Crown proposed to show that the woman was dead before she left the house in the morning to go to his work and to show that the stories he told about her preparing breakfast for him, bidding him good-bye, etc., were falsehoods by numerous witnesses. Bernier said the milkman had not arrived at a quarter past 6, but they would show that two milkmen called before 6. The Crown contended that the woman was first struck on the head and then her throat cut, as pillow found need to prevent the splashing of the blood.

A. U. Beaudoin, M.D., was the first witness, and produced a plan of the premises, which the jury afterwards visited.

CANADA MAKES HER OWN LAWS.

So Said Sir C. H. Tupper in Speech Yesterday.

Toronto, Sept. 11.—Sir C. H. Tupper, Minister of Marine, at the Exhibition luncheon yesterday in the course of his speech dealt with the copyright question, incidentally thanking the directors for an opportunity of utterance on the subject. What do we know about author's rights? some might ask. What do we care? It meant little to us.

He was a loyal subject of Her Majesty, most of those around him were loyal subjects of Her Majesty, for loyalty had stood the test. We had been subjected to disagreement by Her Majesty's ministers in the past, and might in the future. We must remember that we had not only the rights of 5,000,000 citizens to consider, but of millions outside again in the future. If the ties between us and the Mother Country were to be cemented and made stronger our rights of self-government must be respected.

In regard to the copyright question, we must know whether the unanimous will of the House of Commons is to be respected. He believed that Mr. Chamberlain, great man as he was, would rise equal to the occasion. It was not a question of rights against rights, we have a right to misgovern ourselves if we choose, either in regard to copyright or in regard to tariff. In England there were cotton and copper interests, which would be glad to see our tariff was reversed. We must be given latitude to work out the burden of our responsibilities.

The demand of the House of Commons from 1889 to the present time on the matter regarding the rights of self-government must be heard. Canadians were one; Canadians had spoken as with one voice in the House of Commons. There might be differences of opinion as to the bottom of the Canadian Itself, but there was no difference of opinion as to the fact that a demand by the Canadian people was existing their rights of self-government, as in the past, must be conceded by Great Britain. Let us hold only the exceptions of British statesmen, both at home and in the colonies, may be long and unfortunately delayed.

Therefore he halted with pleasure the news that the Colonial Secretary was going to give us the advantage of his great ability in the amicable settlement of the difficulty.

TWENTY-NINE MINERS LOST

Efforts at Rescue at Oregon Prove of No Avail.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 10.—Ten miners went down the southern shaft of the Tecoma Mine this morning. The party descended in the skip or iron car, used in bringing up rock from the mine to the 24th level, and managed to press north on that level within 250 feet of the shaft sunk for the purpose of burning one. At that point two of the party were overcome by the gas, and to save adding fresh victims to the already long list, the relief expedition turned back in No. 1 shaft, at the other end of the mine. A similar attempt was made, but at a depth of only 280 feet down the shaft Captain Nicholas Vivian, a volume that it was deemed foolhardy to descend further, and the miners quickly came to the surface.

THE VALKYRIE WINS.

THE DEFENDER CLAIMS A FOUL AND ENTERS A PROTEST.

The Yachts Start in a Light Wind—Valkyrie First Over the Line—No Trouble From the Steamers—The English Boat Four Minutes Ahead at the First Turn—Valkyrie Wins by 47 Seconds.

The second of the great international yacht races off New York between the Valkyrie and the Defender took place to-day. Following is a report furnished by special arrangement up to the time of going to press:

SANDY HOOK, 8:10 a.m.—Wind southwest, 8 miles, cloudy and hazy.

SANDY HOOK, 9 a.m. The Defender, in tow of the tug W. B. Flint, is passing out. She has mainsail, forestay sail and jib set. Wind southwest, 8 miles.

SANDY HOOK, 9:30 a. m.—The committee boat, Walter A. Luckenbach, is passing out. The Valkyrie is going out through Gedney's channel in tow of the tug Record.

NAVESINK HIGHLANDS, 10:03 a. m.—The wind at this point is light, and off shore it does not appear to be much better. The Defender has lowered the club topsail she put up a short time ago, evidently to exchange it for one more suitable to the air. She is getting in the fog out near the light ship.

At 10 o'clock another top-sail had taken the place of the one lowered and it looks somewhat larger. The Valkyrie is holding the same sails, both yachts are almost completely out in the fog. Wind 5 or 6 miles, cloudy and hazy.

SCOTLAND LIGHT SHIP, 10:46 a.m.—Valkyrie has jib, main sail and club top sail set. Defender has jib, mainsail, club topsail and fore staysail.

NAVESINK HIGHLANDS, 10:50 a.m.—Wind is due south with prospect of increasing.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 10:50—Boats manœuvring for start off Sandy Hook Light ship.

SANDY HOOK, 10:50 a.m.—Number yachts passing out is greater than ever seen before.

ON BOARD MACKAY BENNET STR.—Valkyrie is standing away to the eastward, rolling up the usual bow wave. Defender has discarded the ill-fitting plain head sails she carried in yesterday's sail sketching trip.

NAVESINK HIGHLANDS, 11:05—The wind has decreased to 4 miles an hour.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 11:14—Fifteen seconds before starting gun Valkyrie broke Defender's topmast stay, bending the topmast to leeward and cracking it. Defender continues on the course, starting a protest.

11:11 Preparatory signal just set 11:15, Valkyrie crossed line shortly after 10 minute signal. Defender barely saved the two minute gun Valkyrie leading in the windward position.

11:15 a.m.—Valkyrie plainly at fault. Defender had right of way.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 11:16.—Defender rapidly closing on Valkyrie.

NAVESINK HIGHLANDS, 11:20.—Both boats still on port tack, standing in shore. Wind 6 miles, south.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 11:20 a.m.—Steamers acting better than Saturday, keeping astern and to leeward of the racers.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 11:27 a.m.—Defender goes about, closely followed by Valkyrie, both on starboard tack.

NAVESINK HIGHLANDS, 11:29 a.m.—Valkyrie about 1 mile ahead.

NAVESINK HIGHLANDS.—Defender has shown decidedly better than Valkyrie and she is on this tack, evidently outpointing Valkyrie.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 11:28, Valkyrie slightly to lead passing here, but Defender has rapidly closing gap.

11:30 a.m. Valkyrie leads by 150 yds., but Defender is rapidly closing gap.

NAVESINK H'S.—Valkyrie has best position to windward.

NAVESINK, 11:35.—Boats just gone about on starboard tack, Valkyrie appears to have lead by about 3 mins. Wind about 8 miles.

SEABRIGHT, 12:01—Valkyrie gaining on Defender.

NAVESINK HIGHLANDS—To-day's course is a triangle, 10 miles each side, 30 miles in all. Boats have gone about 6 miles on first leg. Boat for turn not anchored yet.

SEABRIGHT, 12:15—Valkyrie is gaining on Defender. The English boat is sailing faster than the Yankee and is carrying a baby jib top sail.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 12:19 Official time of start: Valkyrie 11:33:13, Defender 11:01:15. Valkyrie has still the windward; appears to be a quarter mile ahead, but as yachts are going straight from us it is hard to distinguish them.

LONG BRANCH, 12:42—Both yachts are still on starboard tack; Valkyrie appears to be to windward and has a lead of 2½ mile.

NAVESINK, 12:39 Looks as if Defender is catching up to Valkyrie. Every time Defender goes about Valkyrie does same to keep her to leeward.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 12.23—Valkyrie still holds the lead.

SEABRIGHT, 12.47—Indications now that Valkyrie will turn first mark. Defender's wind is passing.

NAVESINK, 1.—Boats are nearing first turn and are about 11 miles off shore.

NAVESINK, 12:56. Defender seems to be improving her position slightly.

NAVESINK, 1:30.—Yachts are rounding fair to the Vanuxem and is carrying a baby jib top sail.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 12:59 Official time of start: Valkyrie 11:33:13, Defender 11:01:15. Valkyrie has still the windward; appears to be a quarter mile ahead, but as yachts are going straight from us it is hard to distinguish them.

LONG BRANCH, 12.42—Both yachts are still on starboard tack; Valkyrie appears to be to windward and has a lead of 2½ mile.

NAVESINK, 12:39 Looks as if Defender is catching up to Valkyrie. Every time Defender goes about Valkyrie does same to keep her to leeward.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 12.23—Valkyrie still holds the lead.

SEABRIGHT, 12.47—Indications now that Valkyrie will turn first mark. Defender's wind is passing.

NAVESINK, 1.—Boats are nearing first turn and are about 11 miles off shore.

NAVESINK, 12:56. Defender seems to be improving her position slightly.

NAVESINK, 1:30.—Second leg of course will come to wind and will be on Monmouth. Wind now south about 10 or 12 miles. Third leg will be almost due north.

Valkyrie turned first turn 12:57:30 and Defender 1:00:50.

Valkyrie and Defender fouled at start just as they were going over line and Valkyrie's boom raked across Defender's deck, carrying away the topmast backstay of the American boat.

NAVESINK, 1:30 p.m.—Yachts are rounding in fog but wind is blowing 12 miles and may dispel it.

SANDY HOOK, 1:40—Wind here is 16 miles an hour south.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 2—Official time Valkyrie turned first 12.57.13, Defender 1.01.35.

2:10—The signal scow shows that the second leg is northeast by east and third northwest by half west. This makes the yachts about two miles out. Yachts are still out of sight.

HIGHLAND LIGHTSHIP, 2.30—Valkyrie about a mile ahead of Defender and about 4 miles from Sandy Hook Lightship, the finishing point.

HIGHLAND, 2.32—Both yachts carrying main sail, club topsail, jib and jib topsail, Valkyrie about 3 minutes in lead.

HIGHLAND, 2:40 Valkyrie about a mile from finish.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 2.51 p.m.—Valkyrie leading about half a mile. Valkyrie finished at 2.55.30.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP, 3.15 p.m.—Official Valkyrie crossed 2.55.22; Defender 2.57.40. Valkyrie's score 3 minutes after allowing Defender 2 minutes time allowance.

MILLERS UP IN ARMS

At the Mixing of Manitoba Wheat.

DETRIMENTAL TO THE COUNTRY.

The Rescinding of the Order-in-Council Denounced as a "Crazy Act," and Strong Resolutions Passed Urging Its Reconsideration Be Given the Question.

Toronto, Sept. 11.—The annual meeting of the Dominion Millers' Association, held yesterday in the board of trade rooms, was remarkable for the strong resolutions condemning the Government for rescinding within the last 10 days the Order-in-Council prohibiting the mixing of Manitoba wheat. It was argued that the reputation of Manitoba Wheat throughout the world would be injured by this mixing under sanction of the Government, and an agitation throughout the country was threatened if the Government refused to carry it, and the members warned to be on their guard, that they could then demand a margin to be put up, or take other steps to protect themselves.

The secretary, in his report, said: "If some system could be devised by which the different qualities, whether flour or produce, made by members, could be reported to the association, the secretary of the association, it might be discovered that men were buying flour, etc., for export that they had to carry it, and the members warned to be on their guard; they could then demand a margin to be put up, or take other steps to protect themselves."

The secretary made a reference to the deaths of Messrs George Elliot, of Finkerton and Charles Whitlaw of Hamilton.

Mr. William Galbraith read the treasurer's report, which showed that the annual dues amounted to $1282, and entrance fees to $105. A balance of $400 remained in the bank.

The report of representative on Exhibition Board stated: That the exhibits of grain are crowded into a space altogether too small, and not arranged as to prevent any visiting miller from examining the various varieties. With proper care there is no question but the most interesting kind of an exhibit could be made by the flour and oatmeal millers, and there is not the slightest doubt of the importance of this matter commending itself to the ability to make go de equal to, if not better than, any in the world.

During last year it was altogether probable that a Dominion Exhibition will be held either in Toronto or Montreal, and he would recommend that a strong committee be appointed.

The report was adopted.

The Executive's report was read by the secretary. It referred to references to the scoured wheat question and the duty on reimported Manitoba wheat, and to legislation on the Newfoundland question. The secretary was sent to Ottawa and he succeeded in convincing the Newfoundland delegates that Canada does not import Ontario flour simply, but can manufacture flour of as high a quality as is made in the United States. The report suggested that bonuses of 25c be paid to the treasurer and $500 to the secretary.

The report and its suggestions were heartily adopted.

A report on mixing secured wheat with No. 1 hard was submitted. It stated that during the summer there had been complaint as to the mixing of Manitoba wheat at Port William, and the issuance of certificates of inspection for the same. It was reported that during August, 1894, shipments were made on the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Owen Sound of mixed wheat, of which the following is a sample: 15,000 bushels inspected No. 1 hard, consisting of 12,500 bushels No. 1 hard, 2000 bushels No. 1 Northern and 500 bushels of No. 2 hard all inspected as No. 1 hard, per certificate issued. Other examples were given, and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, Carruthers & Co. issued a writ for $1000 damages on account of the mixing.

Mr. Gibbs, the inspector of Port Arthur, was present, and stated that he considered the mixture better than No. 1 hard, as all the small stuff had been taken out. He said when he inspected it as No. 1 hard when cars were mixed with cargoes when asked if he would inspect it as No. 1 hard in cars for shipment to Montreal, he replied that he would, if the shipping agent mixed ten per cent. of it in a cargo of No. 1 hard in this way.

A deputation was appointed by the Executive committee, consisting of Messrs. William Galbraith, Toronto; D. L. Spink, Robert Noble, M. McLaughlin and the secretary, to interview the Canadian Pacific Railway authorities in Montreal, and also the Government at Ottawa.

The report gave particulars of these interviews. Sir William Van Horne stated that any regulations made by the Government regarding the inspection of Manitoba wheat, the Canadian Pacific Railway would assist in every way possible in carrying out.

The deputation told the Government that they had no objection to wheat being scoured at Port Arthur or any other point where it was of advantage to the farmer and grain dealer to have it scoured, provided that such precautions were taken as would prevent its being mixed in the standard grades but that the Government certificate of a grade should be like the Government stamp, a guarantee that it is genuine.

In this matter the deputation really represented the views of the millers, not of Canada alone, but of the United Kingdom.

The Ministers stated that they were extremely anxious that the good name which Manitoba wheat had abroad should be maintained, and would try and frame regulations which would secure the desired effect.

On June 24, 1895, a communication was received from the Department of Inland Revenue, stating that the Department had determined to allow by the regulation that no scoured wheat shall be allowed in No. 1 hard, and on Aug. 3 last, an order in council was issued on the subject.

On Aug. 31, within three weeks of passing this order in council, another was issued, rescinding the previous one.

The report continued: As the Government could only have received information from private individuals, and, for their own selfish ends, as to how the decision on this matter continued until the season meeting, we feel that a strong stand should at once be taken by the association in the matter and the Government be given to understand that in our opinion the action be sacrificing the interests, not only of Canadians, but wherever Manitoba wheat is used, and also the interests of the farmers of Manitoba, because, when a miller pays a higher price for a wheat of quality or wheat, he required it.

A long resolution, in 12 clauses, following, concluding with the statement that: "The association abandon any further agitation on the Order-in-Council which they only passed after having the matter under their consideration for over four years, and after obtaining the opinion of the best authorities on the question in this matter apparently shows that it considers the interests of the few individuals as of paramount importance, while the interests of the farmers who grow Manitoba wheat and the millers who grind it are disregarded.

"And that the association will regret exceedingly if the Government persists in such action on this important matter as will involve the continuation agitation but to start an agitation throughout the country to give effect to their efforts to have this grievance remedied."

Mr. McLaughlin said the conclusion he had come to was that there was nothing in mixing Manitoba wheat, but the fact that had formerly been in vogue was becoming extended. As one who used a good deal of hard No. 1 wheat he strongly objected to the new regulations. He had just returned from a two months' visit to England. The millers there, to a man said, "Manitoba is the best wheat we get" (Applause). But they would not take stuff but was graded to suit requirements in Canada. On the previous day he was in Montreal, and the excitement there was great. The feeling of uncertainty exceeded that of the yacht race. Whether they may be the reasons at Ottawa, for this change, one thing was certain, it was not done in the interests of the farmers. It could not do the farmers of Manitoba any good to send trash all over the country, and it behooved the millers was it for the benefit of the millers. They could not wheat from Manitoba which is above suspicion. The English miller is hard to fool. If it is not for the benefit of Manitoba, nor of the miller nor the exporter, for whose benefit is the change made?

A voice: The Canadian Pacific Railway and the Great Northern.

Mr. McLaughlin: That may be, but it is going to ruin this c[illegible] reputation. From my recent visit to England I am satisfied that if the Government persists in this course it will destroy the reputation of Manitoba wheat. It would pay every man in the room to go to Ottawa and see the Government what dire effect this policy is going to have.

Mr. McLaughlin concluded by moving that the report be adopted and a committee appointed to wait on the Government.

Mr. John Brown, in seconding the motion, said that in no country on the face of the globe would this be tolerated, save in Canada. He did not know where the responsibility for this mossbackism at Ottawa rested, but he did show "there is something rotten in the state of Denmark."

The motion carried unanimously.

The president's address stated that there had been considerable fluctuations in the wheat market. For the first time since June, 1891, prices were above the dollar point, and some millers were so keen to buy that they offered farmers as high as $1.06, delivered at the mills. In consequence of these abnormally high prices, the quantity of wheat and flour were imported into all parts of Canada from the United States. These importations were nearly half a million bushels of wheat and 60,000 barrels of flour, or equal to three-quarter millions bushels of wheat in all, on which a duty was paid of over $300,000.

Both the farmers and millers received the full benefit of the protective tariff of 15 cents per bushel on wheat and 75 cents per barrel on the flour. If there had been any real scarcity, of course the natural trend of prices would have caused importations. Unfortunately the high prices were really caused by the unfair speculative deals, with the result that while the farmers had a bonanza of 40c per bushel to unload high-priced wheat on the millers and grain dealers throughout the country the profits of millers were relatively much below the price of wheat, and little or no flour was sold at the top figures.

The president directed attention to the fact that the National Millers' Association of the United States is pressing the example of the Canadian Association, and they are incorporated. Last year reference was made to the encouragements which the Government of Canada had given to millers were giving to the milling industries. This year the millers of Argentina had approached their government with similar objects. In view of such encouragements given to the milling industries in the country the president said it was not surprising that in Canada the industry is not a more thriving condition, where they get very slight encouragement from the Government. Instead of using every legitimate means to encourage milling in the country, as in England which is almost entirely agricultural in natural products, the Government had actually refused to make reasonable representations on questions affecting the trade and our business.

Within the last 10 days the president continued, the Order-in-Council prohibiting the mixing of scoured wheat with "No. 1 hard" was rescinded, an order that was only obtained after continued representations of the necessity of such a measure to protect the millers standing of our Manitoba products. I would strongly urge upon the incoming executive to take this question up again with the Government for a renewal of the order. It is a very reasonable measure to ask at their hands, and is very important to those engaged in the flour and grain trade.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, A. Dobson, Beaverton; vice-president, Thomas Cummings, Lynn; second vice-president, S. H. Hunter, Hamilton; treasurer, William Galbraith, (re-elected); executive committee, J. L. Spink, Toronto; H. Harbert, Port Hope; W. McLaughlin, Toronto; W. H. Meldrum, Peterboro; R. Noble, Norval; James Goldie, Guelph; T. O. Kemp, Seaforth; representative on Toronto Industrial Fair board, John Brown, Toronto; the board of arbitration was re-appointed, with the substitution of D. Fisselle for John Galbraith.

Imperial Federation League.

Toronto, Sept. 11.—Lieutenant-Colonel G. T. Denison presided over Imperial Federation League in Canada, held yesterday afternoon in Shaftesbury hall. Several prominent Canadian Federalists were present. The principal business was the consideration of the report of the Executive Committee, in which the dissolution of the English branch and the action of the city of London branch in requesting the Canadian League to co-operate in reconstructing the society on a firmer basis, were referred to, also the formation of a new organization, presided over by the Duke of Devonshire, and styled the "British Empire League." After discussion, it was decided to adopt, with slight changes, the constitution of the new organization, so that the Canadian Imperial Federation League will no longer be known as such, but will form part of the new society.

A WIN FOR VALKYRIE.

Defender Beaten By Forty-Seven Seconds.

A MISHAP LEADS TO A PROTEST.

The 30 Mile Race Around a Triangular Course, the Second For the America's Cup, Ends in Favor of the Englishman—A Protest Lodged by Defenders.

New York, Sept. 10.—Close jockeying between the British and American contenders of Sandy Hook today resulted in the victory of the America's Cup in the first international race for the trophy won by the Canadian. The result was a victory for the Englishman by 47 seconds, according to this schedule of times:

	Start.	Finish.	Corrected Time.
Valkyrie....	11:00:13	4:55:52	4:55:09
Defender....	11:00:00	4:56:39	4:56:56

The boats in jockeying for the line had shown some of the prettiest work that has been seen here, and brought in the Valkyrie obtaining the windward position. As the two boats bounded for the line it was observed that Valkyrie had the advantage. Both were fully approached, shutting their sails with Valkyrie leading and to the windward of the Defender. Had both held on they would have passed over the line first and to the windward of the enemy made it a question if he would not have just returned the starting gun sounded. To prevent such a predicament the Valkyrie broke away a little and came about the shoals. There a ain boom of the Britisher swept over the Defender, carrying away the topmast shrouds on the starboard side and tearing out the jaws of the upper spar. The topmast crossed and was badly sprung. Just as the crash came the starting signal was given and the Valkyrie shot away like a rocket. Defender was luffed in the wind, the lift of a mast boom and the mainsail was moved, and Mr. Iselin decided to continue the race. A protest flag was displayed and the committee boat showed an answering pennant.

There was a good sailing breeze, the sky was clear and the mist of the morning had been dispelled, and the ocean was comparatively smooth. In the lead at ten miles to windward of the first turn, Valkyrie gained an advantage of 7 minutes and 25 seconds. Defender gained 41 seconds on the run home, but was not able to overhaul the Valkyrie. At 1:55 Valkyrie took in her balloon jib topsail, and at 1:58:10 she turned the second mark, standing up a No. 2 jib topsail as she did so. She then hauled in her spinnaker and started for home with her mainsail and single jib and jib topsail set. At 1:59 p.m., the Defender was by the mark, that time nearly reached the mark, took in her balloon jib topsail and jibed around the mark at 1:59:30. She set a No. 2 jib topsail, which in size was about the same as that which the Valkyrie had. Just as the boats were rounding the mark, the breeze took another spurt, and the Valkyrie ran down again, it had reached a velocity of 12 or 13 miles an hour. Defender was half a mile astern of the Valkyrie when she rounded the stake boat, and in less than two minutes she had cut this distance down to three-quarters of a mile. The Valkyrie won by 47 seconds corrected time.

GRAVEYARD INSURANCE

Body of Mrs. George Alger of Pickering Exhumed.

WHAT THE POST MORTEM SHOWS

Within One Month Death Application Was Made to Place $5000 Insurance Upon Her Life in Addition to the $1000 Placed a Year Previously.

Provincial Detective John Murray, accompanied by Drs. John Ferguson and George A. Bingham of Toronto, Deputy Coroner Charles E. Farewell and High Constable Cuiverley of Whitby, and Undertaker Smith of Pickering village visited the Duffin Creek cemetery at Brougham on Saturday and exhumed the body of Mrs George E. Alger. The action was taken at the instigation of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, which had issued a $1000 on the life of the deceased and the Home Life Association, to whom application had been made for an additional $5000, a policy for which was issued to Mrs. Alger's death. The first policy taken out in the Equitable was issued about a year ago for $1000. An application was made to the Home Life on July 11 for an additional policy of $5000, but Mrs Alger died before the application could be properly filed.

The publication in the papers some days ago of the fact that an investigation was being made by the insurance companies, and that the body was to be exhumed, created great interest among the residents of the township, the parties to the fact that such is the case. Information of the object of the residents when an exhumation for the purpose of investigating the cause of death has taken place in the township, and because of the family of the deceased having been one of the most widely known and most honored in the community.

Since it has been noised abroad that the insurance companies were probing into the payment of the policy and asking for an official investigation, the rumor of rumor has not been idle, and when the officers arrived at the little cemetery just outside Brougham many of the curious who had gathered were whispering of rumors of murder having been done and some were apparently disappointed when informed that the most serious charge likely to be preferred was that of conspiracy to defraud.

High Constable Cuiverley had spent the night in the cemetery, being subsequently joined by Provincial Detective Murray, and when the gang arrived at the grave, fears having sufficiently been entertained that an attempt would be made to remove the body. Mrs. Alger was buried in the grave of Mr. Hubbard's family plot.

Messrs. Macdonald & Fitch, Alger's solicitors, were on hand to look after the interests of their client, and threatened to resist any attempts to raise the body, but finally thought better of it. They then intimated that the coroner's jury be called, but when this request was refused Dr. Bateman of Brougham, Brodie of Claremont and Robinson of Markham were admitted to the post mortem on behalf of Mr. Alger.

To set at rest the rumors of murder by poisoning that had been flying round the township, Messrs Macdonald & Fitch decided that the head of the stomach be taken for analysis. The two officers acceded to the request, though the detention was particularly devoted to the lungs, where evidences of the cause of death were expected to be apparent. The official analysis will be made known in a few days, when specialists call off the case of Mr. Alger will be present, but a superficial examination was sufficient to reveal that the woman's death was due to consumption. The left lung had almost entirely wasted away, the small portion that remained having grown to her side. The right lung was also in an advanced state of decay. There are gangs, the brain and the contents of the stomach were taken charge of by the physicians, and the body again lowered into its resting place.

A press representative called at the residence of Dr. Lamb, in Whitevale, but was informed by Mrs. Franey that the doctor had left for Toronto that evening. As to where he went, or when he intended to return, Mrs. Franey said she was entirely ignorant. She expected him home Monday evening, but he did not appear and as she had no word from him she did not know anything of his movements. Dr. Franey's name has been given as both applications as medical examiner of Mrs. Alger. He has practised in Whitevale for some years.

Mr. Alger, the husband of the dead woman, is a farmer in comfortable circumstances. His home, two miles west of Brougham, is one of the model farms of the township. Mr. Alger had leased his farm and issued posters announcing a sale of his stock and implements for Sept. 26, Realizing that this would only add to the rumors which had been circulated, he drove down to the township Monday calling in the posters and announcing the indefinite postponement of the sale.

When a reporter interviewed Mr. Alger, he declared his innocence of any complicity, and expressed a desire for a searching investigation into the whole matter. When told that Dr. Franey's name had been given on Saturday, Mr. Alger remarked, "The man is a fool, if he is as innocent as the claims to be, I don't fear an investigation, as I have done nothing wrong." He complained bitterly that the crown authorities had given him no official notice of the exhumation of the body.

Messrs. Macdonald & Fitch were seen in reference to the position of their client, Mr. Alger. In the matter, "Mr. Alger is a perfectly innocent man," said Mr. Fitch, "and the action of the authorities to-day in dragging the body of his wife out of the grave we consider a scandal and an injustice to him. The first policy we admit. That was the result of a mutual arrangement between Mr. and Mrs. Alger, when they agreed to insure their lives for $1000 each, in favor of one another. Mr. Alger was the first carried insurance for $5000, and he added another $5000. This last application Mr. Alger had nothing to do with. He had no idea of its existence until after his wife's death. There was no conspiracy to defraud the institution company but our client had no knowledge of it. The whole affair is a mystery. Even any attempt to collect the money if the policy had gone through."

Mrs. Alger, the dead woman, was 41 years of age. She was the only daughter of the late William Webb Hubbard, who was one of the wealthiest farmers in the township. He died a year and a half ago, but Mrs. Hubbard is till alive. Mrs. Alger was the mother of six children, the youngest of whom are twins, a boy and a girl, about 7 years of age.

BABY'S BURNING SKIN.

Skin Peeling Off, Skin Literally Afire, Cooled and Soothed by Chase's.

The great feature of Chase's Ointment—Almost Instantly it touches irritating, burning, scaly skin, relieving the pain—is a boon to mothers whose children are afflicted with eczema. There is nothing, however, about it or the way of speaking about it:

Mrs. six-year-old daughter, Bella, was afflicted with eczema for 24 months, the poison so cost of drugging being behind the worst. Did almost every remedy I saw advertised, bought numerous prescriptions and consulted a number of local specialists in skin diseases, but without success. Finally, a week ago, I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and the first application gave relief. The child's suffering was almost instantly relieved, and in a few days the skin was entirely healed. I can confidently say my child was cured by Chase's Ointment.

Scott's Sarsaparilla

IS A MOTHER'S REMEDY regulating and strengthening the maternal functions. It purifies the female system of ulcerative weaknesses and debilitating humors. It expels the first symptoms of hereditary humors in children and youths that may wea their origin to past generations. It searches out and renders the system free from disease-breeding germs.

"THE KIND THAT CURES."

There are not many forms of disease upon which Scott's Sarsaparilla does not act favorably, because pure blood carries to the diseased parts renewing and building up properties. This medicine makes pure blood which builds up where disease has torn down, and carries away the impurities upon which it feeds.

Practical jokers of Theodore Hook's type still flourish in England. Mr. S. Edalji, vicar of Great Wyaley, an out-of-the-way place far from the railroad, has for three years been the victim of some one, who sends out letters of all kinds in his name. Clergymen come to conduct funerals for him or to visit dying persons who need them; lawyers and detectives are sent for valuable information which he is said to have; managers of newspapers receive from him bogus notices of deaths, marriages, and births, and tradesmen are directed to send to him ancient articles of all sorts from spirits and medicine to musical instruments.

The supply of natural gas in the old fields of the east is decreasing steadily and materially, according to the last report of the American Geological Survey. In most places artificial means have to be used to force the gas through pipes to distant points where not long ago the natural pressure was more than sufficient. The total value of natural gas consumed has fallen from $22,500,000 in 1888 to $14,000,000 last year. Many factories that used natural gas for all purposes have returned lately to the use of coal. Meanwhile new fields are developed and prospected in the west, which promise to afford new supplies in great quantity; but there is only a certain amount of natural gas contained in the earth, and scientific men agree that, at the rate at which it has been used heretofore, it will not last long at the best.

A study of the military records of Europe proves that in 1610 the average height of man was 5 feet 9 inches. During the following 100 years this average decreased to 5 feet 7¼ inches. In 1790 the average was only 5 feet 6 inches, and in 1820 it was but 5 feet 5 inches. At the present time it is but 5 feet 3½ inches. A contemporary says that it is an easy matter to deduce statistics from the above figures to prove that human stature is gradually on the decline. Figuring upward, using the same ratio, we find that Adam's sons and neighbors averaged 16 feet 9 inches in height, and at the opening of the Christian era the average height was a fraction over 9 feet. Looking into the dim future our contemporary can see a time only 2,069 years hence when human stature will be reduced to an average of only 15 inches. No one living to-day need worry much, however.

Practicing medicine in Chinatown, says the N. Y. Sun, is not devoid of dangers. As a rule the Chinamen are healthy, amazingly so when one considers how they brave the cold winters in light, loose garments and low shoes. When a Chinaman is taken seriously ill he prepares to die and there's an end to it. If he doesn't die it isn't his fault, and his friends are more than likely to look on him with suspicion as having cheated the gods by his recovery. Under no considerations would he have an American physician, but as a matter of form his relatives summon a Celestial medicine, who does little to influence the case for good or evil beyond making a noise and disturbing the patient. What the medicines are no white man knows, and but few Chinamen outside of the profession. If the patient dies the doctor is not blamed; if he gets well the doctor takes the credit. But should any peculiar symptoms manifest themselves, then the physician is in an unpleasant position, for he is held directly responsible.

Perhaps the oddest pavement ever laid is one just completed at Chino, Cal. It is made mostly of molasses, and, if it proves all of the success claimed for it, it may point a way for the sugar planters of the South to profitably dispose of the millions of gallons of useless molasses which they are said to have on hand. The head chemist of a sugar factory at Chino, S. Turke, was led to make certain experiments, of which the new sidewalk, a thousand feet long, from the factory to the main street, is the result. The molasses used is a refuse product, hitherto believed to be of no value. It is simply mixed with a certain sand to the consistency of asphalt and laid like an asphalt pavement. The composition dries quickly and becomes quite hard and remains so. A peculiar fact is that the sun only makes it drier and harder, instead of softening it, as might be expected. A block of the composition, two feet long, a foot wide, and one inch thick, stood most severe tests, and laid with an inch or so of its edges resting on supports, it withstood repeated blows of a hammer without cracking or bending. The Peculiar case of Mr. McKnight Resigning the Presbyterian Church

Hamilton, Sept. 10.—The case of Robert McKnight, formerly a Presbyterian pastor at Dunnville, who found matters at Dunnville so unpleasant for him that he resigned his pastorate about two years ago, was once more up before the Hamilton Presbytery today. Not only all Mr. McKnight, who is a young man with a wife to support, but he withdrew from the Presbyterian Church, his doctrinal views not being quite consistent with Presbyterianism. But the young man was sorry for this a short time afterward, and he applied for re-instatement. He had intended entering the Anglican Church, but he repented this move.

Young Mr. McKnight's case has been considered several times by the Presbytery, and to-day a special meeting had the case on again. Mr. McKnight was given an opportunity to explain himself, and he attributed his Dunnville trouble to bad food and too much politics. The bad food came from the Meindoe boarding house and the politics from several unfriendly members of his congregation in regard to the former. Rev. Mr. McKnight objected especially to soggy potatoes and fried liver, the Meindoes serving this combination one day while Mrs. McKnight was not feeling well. The Presbytery refused to receive him back into the ministry.

Great Horses Hatched

New York, Sept. 9.—August Belmont and Count d'Henry of Navarre, J. R. and F. D. Hennessy, owners of Dominie and F. J. Sutton, owner of Rey El Santa Anita, have finally agreed to race their great 4-year-olds, and it is altogether likely that J. E. Rose will be induced to name Clifford for the event, which will be arranged for Sheepshead Bay, Gravesend and Morris Park. The Coney Island Jockey Club's race will be run on Wednesday next, at one mile and a furlong, and will be for $1000 a contest, or pay or play, the Coney Island Jockey Club to add $500, and the winner to take all.

Convicted of Ticket Scalping.

Toronto, Sept. 11.—Morris Switzer, a German who claimed that he did not understand the laws of Canada, was convicted at the Police Court yesterday of ticket scalping, and sent to jail for ten days in default of $20 fine.

Morris offered to sell to Detective Day of the G.T.R the return half of an excursion ticket from Sudbury to Toronto and was promptly arrested.

Cloudburst in Kansas

Kansas City, Sept. 10.—Passengers arriving here to-night, who were tied up by the washouts in the storm-swept districts of Kansas, report that a new saw so much water fall at one time as came down there Sunday. It was a cloud-burst, accompanied by wind and hail that was as large as walnuts, some stones the size of goose eggs, covering the earth. For many miles the fields are a perfect sea of water. Only the low corn yill be injured.

Neel Wins Everything

Hamilton, Sept. 10.—The final games in the Ontario championship tournament, under the auspices of the Hamilton Lawn Tennis Club, were played to-day, Neel, the college phenomenon, easily defeating Parker in the all-comers singles for the Cuthbert Cup. Results:

Championship singles—C. H. Neel beat R. F. Fischer, 6—1, 6—3, 6—4.

Men's doubles—Neel and Wrenn beat E. S. Gilmore and Harris, 6—3, 6—2, 6—1.

Mixed doubles—Neel and Mrs. Sidney Smith beat Fischer and Miss Wood, 6—2, 6—2.

Threescore and Ten.

Who reach their threescore years and ten,
As I have mine, without a sigh,
Are either more or less than men—
Not such am I.

I am not of them; life to me
Has been a strange, bewildered dream,
Wherein I knew not things that be
From things that seem.

I thought, I hoped, I knew one thing,
And had one gift, when I was young—
The impulse and the power to sing,
And so I sung.

To have a place in the high choir
Of poets, and deserve the name—
What more could mortal man desire
Than poet's fame?

I sought it long, but never found.
The choir so full was, and so strong
The jubilant voices there, they drowned
My simple song.

Men would not hear me then, and now
I care not, I accept my fate.
When white hairs thatch the furrowed brow
Crowns come too late!

The best of life went long ago
From me; it was not much at best;
Only the love that young hearts know,
The dear unrest.

Back on my past, through gathering tears,
Once more I cast my eyes, and see
Bright shapes that in my better years
Surrounded me!

They left me here, they left me there,
Went down dark pathways one by one—
The wise, the great, the young, the fair;
But I went on!

And I go on! And, bad or good,
The old allotted years of men
I have endured, as best I could—
Threescore and ten!

—Richard Henry Stoddard, Sag Harbor, L.I.

"Knickers" for Servants.

Lady Habberton, who is nothing if not a dress reformer, is urging that women servants dress in knickerbockers. This, she thinks, will do away with skirts which catch fire from the stove, knock over fine china and porcelain, interfere with the movements of the wearer, get torn by clumsy people and carry dust from the street into the house. This idea, however, is not original. At different times in France, Italy and Spain, the maids of the royal palace have been attired as pages. Lady Habberton and Rosina Vokes share the glory—if there be any—of having invented the divided skirts. Lady Habberton also invented a dress waist which suspends the weight of the garments from the shoulders.

An observer asserts that beer drinking of different nationalities act very differently when a fly happens to fall into the drinker's beer. A Spaniard pays for the beer, leaves it on the table and stalks out; a Frenchman does the same, and also does some tall swearing, an Englishman throws the beer away and calls for another glass, a German fishes out the fly and then finishes the beer; a Russian swallows the beer with the fly; a Chinaman takes out the fly, swallows it and then drowns it with the beer.

According to the Berliner Tageblatt the plan is seriously considered to make the capital of the German Empire a "sea port." The construction of a monster canal from Berlin to Hamburg or Stettin is being agitated with more zeal than ever before. It is recognized that transportation by water is the cheapest.

In Italy it is possible to have two wives without coming into conflict with the written law of the country. One may get married in church—a marriage which is not valid before the civil law—and then one may contract a valid marriage before a magistrate. But the popular sense of justice aids and makes dangerous any attempt to override unwritten moral law by trickery made possible as above suggested.

BELLEVILLE MARKETS.

INTELLIGENCER OFFICE,
Sept. 11, 1895.

The grain market is quiet owing to the absence of receipts. Wheat has dropped to 60c on the local market, with indications of a still further decline. December stock wheat is quoted at 57 cents and a fraction. Other grains seem to be in sympathy with their big brother and show a downward tendency.

Live hogs have dropped 25 cents per cwt., but are firm at our quotations.

The local produce market remains for the most part unchanged from last week's quotations except that poultry is slowly declining under the influence of increased offerings.

There is no change in our quotations for hides, but the market is weak and likely to go lower. Chicago markets indicate a downward tendency.

Priestley's "Eudora" Cloth

Priestley's "Eudora" Cloth is one of the new black dress fabric put upon the market by the Priestley Company. Famous dress goods are a household word all over the world. It is like the much esteemed Henrietta cloths; indeed, it has all its merits, and a few things which they lack. It is made in black only, it is a perfect dust shedder; has extra weight and width; and, fitting easily and draping gracefully, is a delight and admiration to the wearer which all of Priestley's goods confer. This is their excellency, which sets them apart from all other goods. "Eudora" is wrapped on "The Varnished Board," and Priestley's name is stamped on every five yards so that ladies cannot be deceived.

THE B. OF Q. EXHIBITION.

Fine Weather All That is Needed to Make it a Success.

The Bay of Quinte Exhibition, which will be held for four days next week, commencing on Tuesday, promises to be the most successful ever held here. The secretary, Mr. Jas. A. Cooper is kept busy receiving entries which will exceed those of any previous year. The directors are also doing all in their power to promote its interest. The merchants of the city have taken a lively interest in the show and their displays will no doubt fill the greater portion of the new building, so the space allotted to them has nearly all been taken. The Horticultural department also promises to be filled with an admirable exhibit. The programme of events for each day as published, are attractive and the evening entertainments should be the means of attracting a large crowd.

President Ponton and Manager Hurley have returned from Toronto and have been instrumental in securing additional entries and attraction.

A Mistake.

That little notice in last night's paper that Haines & Lockett's shoe store would be open in the evening was a mistake. They close like all progressive firms at 6 o'clock except on Saturdays and a few special occasions. All work and no play would make Jack an old boy.

A SEVERE STORM.

A Barn Struck by Lightning and Consumed With Its Contents.

One of the heaviest thunder storms of the season passed over the north eastern part of Thurlow township last night about 12 o'clock. Our informant says he never heard such thunder and the lightning was very vivid. Rain fell in torrents for a time and was accompanied by a gale of wind which caused some damage.

During the storm the barns of Wm. Foxton, living in the 8th concession, north of Plainfield, were struck by lightning and burned. They contained the whole season's crop and several farming utensils, all of which were consumed. The insurance, if any, could not be ascertained.

YACHTING.

Dungeness Corinthians Off.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Rated by the Atlantic Yacht Club's measurer, Edward Burgess, and the captain and the crew of Valkyrie, the challenger for the America cup, have entered the Dungeness Corinthians' yacht Navahoe in the international race for the America cup. They believe that every man will do his duty," said Lord Dunraven, addressing the officers of their commanders. "I am sure that no one on board will ever consent to the manner in which the measurer views all the series. With that end in view I desire to say that if the time allowance, as declared by to-night or to-morrow morning, I will protest to the measurer and put myself on record. Further, unless a wide sea limit is allowed I expect that for a windy race a word was spoken. Then, actuated by the course of impulse, the county eight men of the crew knocked him to the floor and thrashed him.

Montreal Markets.

MONTREAL, Sept. 9. Grain Little can be said in connection with the grain market to-day. The price of oats are unchanged from Saturday, with very little business doing. Other grades are very dull. There is not any change in the feeling in flour. Some small sales of Duluth wheats were made for export at Montreal. Wheat No. 1 and No. 2 hard, nominal; corn, duty paid, nominal; peas, per 66 lbs, in store, 72c; oats, old, per 34 lbs, in store, 32c to 33c; oats, new, 31½c to 32c; rye, No. 2, 53c to 61c; barley, feed, 45c to 50c.

Flour—The demand for Manitoba grades is improving on local account but no export business is being done at present. Ontario flours are meeting with a fair demand, also of new testing transpired at $4.50 per bbl. Straight rolls, $4.60 to $4.70; do in bags, $1.90 to $1.75; strong bakers', Man., new, $4.60 to $4.75; spring patents, Man., $4.15; winter patents, Ontario, $4 to $4.25.

Meal—The demand is slow and prices show no change. Rolled, per bbl, $2.80 to $3.00; rolled, per bag, $1.00 to $1.05, standard, per bbl, $3.80 to $3.90; standard, per bag, $1.85 to $1.90; granulated, per bbl, $3.90 to $4; granulated, per bag, $1.90 to $1.95.

Feed—A somewhat easier feeling was noted in bran to-day and sales were made at $16. Shorts and mouille are steadily. Bran, $15 to $16; shorts, $18 to $19; mouille, $23.

Cheese—There were a few buyers down at the wharf this morning and about 6,000 boxes of last week's receipts were sold. The price realized was 7½, although it was said that some sold over this figure. This statement, however, was not corroborated. The local market still remains unchanged and an extremely dull and quiet feeling prevails. Values are merely nominal and we quote so for western and 7¼c to 7½c for Quebec. The English cable is unchanged at 37s 6d.

Butter—The fair demand for creamery previously noted still continues at 17½ to 18c, while there is not much doing in town ships dairy, at 16c, and western is quiet at 15c to 16c. A reaction in the market is said to be eagerly looked forward to.

Eggs—They are still unchanged. A small jobbing business continues to be done, but this is almost all. Candled stock is quoted at 11c to 12½c, and common at 9c to 10c.

Provisions—The provision market is not very active just now, but prices are well maintained. We quote:—Canada short cut clear, $15.50 to $16; hams, city cured, per lb, 10c to 11c; lard, per lb, 10c to 10½c; lard, pure Canadian, per lb, 9½c to 10c; lard, common, refined, 8½c to 9c.

LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Sept. 9.—In consequence of all this week's space having already been secured there were hardly any export sales made in other the Point St. Charles or the East End Abattoir markets to-day, and business, though showing a little more activity than last week, was exceedingly dull. There were hardly any cattle in the market except those of inferior quality in the former market they ranged from 2c to 3½c. Good export sheep, 3½c. Hogs, 5c. There were about 750 head of butcher's cattle, 150 calves and 650 sheep and lambs offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. The butchers were present in large numbers and trade was fairly active, but the prices paid for cattle were the lowest of the season. A considerable number of the cattle offered here to-day will have to be held over until for another occasion. There were no really good cattle offered here to day and the highest prices paid by butchers were only about 3c, a few fairly good shippers bringing a little more. Pretty good cattle sold at about 2½c, common dry cows and rough young stock sold as from 2c to 2½c per lb, and the leaner beasts brought less than 2c per lb. Geo. Rose, of Brockville, sold a load of superior shipping cattle at Point St. Charles for 3½ each, or about 4½c per lb. Good large calves continue to sell at from $6 to $9 each and common ones at from $4 to $5.50 each. Shippers are paying from 3½c to 3¾c per lb for good large sheep; good lambs sell in lots at about 4½ each, or 4½c per lb; common lambs sell at about $2.50 each, and calves at from $1.50 to $2 each. Fat hogs are in moderate supply and sell at about 4½c per lb.

McKean have all found employment with farmers around and in the vicinity of Missouri, Assa. East, at remunerative wages. A very heavy rainfall set in here on Saturday afternoon, accompanied by sharp thunder and lightning, during which Mr. John Preston's barn was struck and burned with all his outbuildings and contents. A Runaway Accident

Mr. Will St. Charles, of Belleville, who has been spending a few days in town, says the Peterborough Examiner, met with quite a severe accident on Saturday night when out driving with a friend. The gentleman was thrown by a very spirited horse, and taking advantage of a moment when the lines were held a trifle slack, the animal bolted and turning a corner very suddenly, upset the buggy and dragged both the occupants. Mr. St. Charles was unfortunate enough to bruise his knee badly and also receive a severe cut over the left eye. The driver escaped unhurt and the horse was caught a trifle further on, having damaged the buggy only a very small extent. Mr. St. Charles returned home yesterday and is pretty badly broken up.

She was detected by a neighbor who reported the matter to Mrs. Ingoldsby upon her return home.

Well Sold.

We take the following from the Gananoque Reporter. The sale of the town debentures $10,063 for school purposes—to the Merchants Bank at par is the most profitable and satisfactory way to realize on the cost made here. It was thought to be a big thing when the bank gave 98 for the water works bonds a few years ago, and so it was. But this is better by 2 per cent. And it is satisfactory as showing the high appreciation of the town's stand ing, and the confidence the bank has in the town's future progress. Mr. Hinds local manager of the Merchants Bank, considers it a good investment and recommended the purchase. He says the town's progress and prosperity more than warrants the bank, so he aims to do all he can for the interest of both." Mr. Hinds is well known here and his friends will be pleased to learn that good Gananoque piece so much confidence in him

THE GOOD ANGEL.

By OCTAVE THANET.

difficulty in escaping the fixation. And at once, to this self indulgent, unanimous, semi-humoral creature there came a great fortune from a Californian uncle. Reisling simply lost his head; he went all to bits. The money began to fly in huge chunks to sharpers of all kinds, and his wife—he was married—took fright. She and one other were his nearest relations. By the laws of his state a spendthrift who drinks to excess may have a guardian appointed to take charge of his property. The guardian has other powers of extensive nature, one being the right to send his ward to an asylum for treatment. I had won a case involving some Chicago property—rather a neat case—and somehow they had an exaggerated idea of my services, Mrs. Reisling especially. She was a good sort, although not always discreet. Now she wanted me to advise her. No doubt Jimmy increased her confidence. But what was Jimmy doing with the Reislings? I asked him.

"He threw back his chin with the dimple in it and laughed his old, ringing, jolly laugh. He had the sweetest laugh, confound him!

"'Well you may laugh,' says he; 'dear boy, I am no longer a waiter. I am a moral constable and amateur guardian of the family altar, good luck to it! I'm keeping Reisling straight.'

"'How did you get the job?' said I.

"'Most natural thing in the world,' said he. 'The Reislings came to our hotel, and I had to steer Reisling up stairs. One time I saved him from taking a good tumble. They were there a month; he wouldn't go home, and she wouldn't go without him, and so she got into the way of rather depending on me. She thinks I am a good young man because I take off my hat to women and amuse children, and once she saw me going to church. I assured her it was a habit, that I was not particularly good,' sang man, but she took all that for my modesty. So finally, as she came to need me, and as I couldn't get my time when I was a waiter, she indeed me to resign and become a gentleman detective. I keep Reisling out of all the mischief I can, and keep track—of him generally, if I can't restrain him. I have a very liberal salary, and I am to have something very handsome should I succeed in reforming my charge.'

"'Do you think it safe for you?' said I, rather dryly, I imagine.

"'Jimmy was not offended; he answered more seriously: 'Well, yes, Roger, I do. In the first place, I haven't any present inclination for little birds; in the second, I rather take to Mrs. Reisling, who is an awfully good little woman, and so plain you can't help but be sorry for her, and so nice you have to like her, and there is a kid, a nice little fellow with something the matter with his hip—that's why they are here, you know—and, in the third place, I'm interested in the case itself. I think you may depend I shall not run crooked, Roger, and I'd a little rather you wouldn't show me up to the Reislings. It is a new sensation being respected morally. I give you my word I'll not sign and take myself off to the dogs alone if I feel the bad fit coming.'

"It struck me there was something different about Jimmy. I couldn't put my finger on it, but I felt it, just as you feel when your witness is telling you the truth. I promised, and we had an amazingly pleasant half hour. Then Jimmy had to betake himself to Reisling.

"'He has been drinking very hard,' said Jimmy, 'but now we have corralled him in his room and taken all his clothes away except pyjamas, so he is just where we want him.'

"That evening, as I was waiting for Mrs. Reisling in their parlor, I had an interesting insight into Jimmy's methods. My client's bodchamber was the next room, and I overheard Jimmy fining $100 for [illegible] made [illegible].

"'I'll tell you something, Mr. Reisling,' resigned Jimmy—imperturbable accents. 'I am a gentleman. Kindly don't insult me with bribery and corruption. You haven't enough money to buy a suit of clothes for me. See?'

"'I don't know exactly. I'm so stuck on you,' Reisling whimpered back; 'you're forever slanging me. Why don't I send you off?'

"'Possibly you have a drop of some left, and to-night I am going to take a chance of being up and living like a man and not a dog,' says Jimmy sweet ly. 'Now you lie down, and I'll sing to you.'

"Jimmy had a most lovely voice. That was one reason I despaired of him. When so much sensibility and tenderness and indescribable purity of melody got into a man's voice he was pretty much the made he was. All the pretty things are in the voice, and none left in the moral nature. But that's merely my theory; how I don't know one more than a voice without the words. Jimmy did have words, and sweet. Now he began to sing 'Rock Me to Sleep, Mother,' in his most dreaming manner. Directly there comes a roar from the bed:

"'Don't want me to warble?' says Jimmy, sweetly.

"'Want you to sing something lively,' growls the invalid.

"'You don't need anything lively,' answers Jimmy placidly; 'what you require is to have your consciousness washed and your soul [illegible] and a [illegible] I'll tell you were dead tonight.'

"Some groans back from the chelose shore.

"'Drop that pitiful! You'll have to go with my sleeping recommendations if you hurl them all at me. But anything to please.

"'Nelly was a lady; last night she died. Toll the bell for lovely Nell'—

"'That too melancholy for?'

"'Shut up, you fool! I think it's divine.'

"But soon blackness overcame oblivion!

"Reisling was quiet now, and he remained quiet while Jimmy glided into 'Old Folks at Home,' and when Mrs. Reisling entered he was singing old hymns in more chanted that she didn't know what she should do with out Jimmy, and [illegible] him with tears in her eyes. Of course he knew nothing about Jimmy's real name or his relation to my wife. The next morning Jimmy appeared at my office again. He was more angry than I ever had seen him, and he explained at length just how Reisling had outwitted him and escaped while he took the inebriate to drive. It was comical to watch Jimmy's mounting indignation. Particularly did he bubble over the drunken cunning and duplicity of his charge.

"'They are all like that,' said I philosophically, and the red climbed up into the roots of Jimmy's hair.

"'Are I like that?' he burst forth.

"I repented several episodes which at the time of action had amused Jimmy more than his friends. He made no comment, though, from then, though, I noticed that he got into the way of comparing his own past with Reisling's present. 'The mischief with Reisling,' and he once very seriously, 'is that he thinks he has a good time, while he is driving his wife crazy with anxiety, wasting his money and ruining his health. Such rot! But, Lord, ain't the an object lesson!'

"'I am hoping he will save you, Jimmy,' said I, 'whether you save him or not.'

"'Oh, I'm going to save the bloomingly little cad's soul,' said Jim very solemnly, 'if only out of gratitude. That isn't all; he is really very fond of me, and he has some mighty good streaks, so I am bound to save him. What he needs is an almighty scare. I wish you would go round and talk a little stiff to him' (I was by this time his duly appointed guardian); 'you used to talk uncommonly well, Roger,' says Jim, with all the assurance in life, 'and I believe you might get through the hair with him. I have been at him about his health; got him into Severne's hospital—the one I was in, you know—and Severne has kindly collected the grewsomest lot of cases of the effects of alcohol on the human organs, and I am trying to impress Reisling. Yes, Roger, if that fellow won't be sweetly persuaded into a better life he has to be clubbed; that's the size of it.'

"I wish you could have listened to Jimmy! I used to sit and shake, he was so funny in his dead earnestness, that was so different from the usual manifestations of earnestness. Well, shortly after this conversation, Reisling got his scare. It was this way: Reisling gave the doctor the slip, and Jimmy and I pursued him. We caught one man on a train going [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

GIVEN TO DEFENDER.

Valkyrie Fouled the Yankee, the Committee Say.

DUNRAVEN ACCEPTS THE DECISION.

And the Englishman Hasn't Even a Chance to Sail the Race Over Again —There Was a Miscalculation of the Distance Between the Boats.

New York, Sept. 11.—Both Valkyrie and Defender were taken from Bay Ridge to the Erie basin, at South Brooklyn to-day, the last-named to make repairs of the damage which was inflicted by the former in yesterday's race. The English challenger will go to the Bucklin to make a few necessary preparations for the third race of the series, which is to be sailed to-morrow, a course 15 miles to windward, or leward, and return.

Several hours were spent in taking evidence before the committee, and finally this letter was sent out:

"We beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of yesterday, protesting Valkyrie. We have given the matter our careful consideration and believe that the foul occured through the misconception of the rule governing the two yachts at a critical moment. From our observations, sustained by that of others who were in a good position to see, we find that the Valkyrie in contravention of section 2 of racing rule 16, bore down upon the Defender and fouled her by the swing of her main boom, before luffing to straighten her course. We also consider that Defender allowed Valkyrie sufficient room to windward to pass clear of committee boat. Your protest is, therefore, overruled."

In order to remove all doubt as to the effect of this decision, J. V. S. Cobb, secretary of the New York Yacht Club, announced that it awarded the race to the Defender without the necessity of another race.

Strong efforts were made by the committee to bring about a mutual agreement to recall the race, but Lord Dunraven and Mr Iselin insisted upon judgment. The decision this left the committee only two things to do—to decide that Valkyrie fouled Defender or that Defender fouled Valkyrie. It was finally agreed here that the British yacht was at fault. Lord Dunraven and his friends held, however, that his foul was crowded by Defender and that the accident was unavoidable. The committee gave each side ample opportunity to state its case, and took the evidence of the captains of each yacht and of others who were on board.

The racing rule referred to is the following: "A yacht shall not bear away out of her course so as to hinder another yacht in passing to leeward."

Section 2 of the same rule says: "A yacht free shall keep clear of one close hauled."

The rule covering disqualification is: "If a yacht, in consequence of her negligent of any of these rules shall foul another yacht or compel another yacht to foul any yacht, or to run ashore or to run around, she shall be disqualified and shall not sail the course."

Lord Dunraven accepts the decision, and will have the Valkyrie at the line to-morrow for the third race of the international races. The Regatta Committee posted the following notice at the house of the New York Yacht Club this evening. "To members of the N.Y. Y.C.: Your committee beg to state that before arriving at a decision on Defender's protest, they endeavored to bring about a mutual agreement between the respective yachts to re-sail yesterday's race, but each preferred that the committee should pass judgment on the protest. (Sgd.) The Regatta Committee."

Lord Dunraven left the club house after hearing. He declined to talk. Messrs. Kenny, Dolphin and Watsey of the English contingent were equally reticent. After the long session of the committee, which was ended, following Grinnell, one of the members of the committee, was asked if there was any question whether Lord Dunraven would race to-morrow, in view of the published report that he would not do so if the decision should be adverse to the Valkyrie.

"No," replied Mr. Grinnell, "the accepted the decision as any true sportsman would. He did say, however, that he would not race unless the course was kept clear of excursion boats. Some of these boats he said very badly yesterday and Lord Dunraven was sympathetic in his protests against them.

To-day's race will be 15 miles to windward and return. The start will be from Sandy Hook lightship, unless the committee establish another starting point in order to obtain windward course of 15 miles. The same rules that governed the first two races will prevail.

How Britain Views the Verdict.

Glasgow, Sept. 11.—The Mail says: The decision of the committee is sure to be challenged. In the circumstances it is certain that all Americans who have the true interests of sport, will receive the verdict with dismay. Had the committee declared the race void on account of a technical breach, few persons would complain, but they cannot surely they overstepped the bounds of fair play in awarding the race to the Defender This seriously handicaps the British yacht, and robs future races of all interest, as international contests."

The Herald says: "The decision of the committee will cause bitter disappointment in this country. We cannot, however, impeach the fairness of the committee's decision, or question their right to award the race to the yacht by which they declared was fouled by the actual victor. The only question is, whether it would not have been more sportsmanlike to have avoided the race altogether, and that is more a matter of opinion. We must, however, accept the decision with the best possible grace."

London, Sept. 11.—The Yachting World in its first leader on the subject, written before the decision, says: "Both races have been sailed. The Valkyrie lost one actually and the second virtually. Whatever may be the committee's verdict it is impossible to doubt that the American champion has achieved a moral victory. There seems to be small doubt that Mr. Herreshoff has again designed a yacht that is exceedingly well adapted to the purpose for which she was built. Therein we must seek our consolation, for, were he handicapped by having to design a vessel which, first of all, has to cross the Atlantic, it is more than likely that Mr. Watson would turn out a shell capable of turning the tables. For our challengers are left to sued with full knowledge of the hardships of the ordinary ocean racing contest, and there is no use of crying and lamenting afterwards, but, for the sake of cheering up our disappointed friends, let us imagine that the Yankees challenged for the Royal Victoria Gold Cup.

The Chronicle says: "We confess we see no reason in the decision of the committee, awarding the race to the Defender. The foul occurred before the starting gun was fired, and before the line was crossed. The Defender might have backed out, but she elected to race. Had the Valkyrie wilfully fouled the Defender during the race the penalty could not have been greater. The committee's explanation does not improve matters. We should not be surprised if Lord Dunraven declares the rest of the races off and refuses to come again. But if he consents to continue, as we hope he will, Thursday's race will probably settle the matter, as there is not much doubt now that the Defender is the fastest yacht."

The Daily News says: "The committee has not only taken Tuesday's race from Dunraven, but given it to the American. This seems to be rather bad practice. It may be the rigor of racing law, but it is hardly sport. If the yachts had been sailing the race they would have recalled the yachts and had a fresh start. The committee's severe penalty seems to us reciprocity for the [illegible] treatment of the Cornell crew on Tuesday.

Lord Sandhurst Dead

London, Sept. 11.—The death of Mr. J. C. Ashbury, formerly a member of the House of Commons, and a well-known yachtsman, is announced to-day. The announcement says he died on the 9th instant, but does not give the place of his death. Mr. Ashbury took the yacht Cambria to America in 1870, and unsuccessfully challenged for the America's Cup. In 1871 he again contested for the Cup with the yacht Livonia, which won one out of the four races sailed.

DURAND'S HARDSHOOT.

He Takes More Interest in the Yacht Race Than in His Trial.

San Francisco, Sept. 11.—W. H. T. Durant, the alleged murderer of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams, appears to take a greater interest in the international yacht race than in his own trial. During the afternoon session of the trial yesterday, early edition of the afternoon papers were brought to him; there were columns of his own fight for life—the story of the Valkyrie's evidence. Was he concerned about it? Not at all. He read the account of the great yacht race and bore himself with disappointment over Valkyrie's victory. The paper in his hands was held without a tremor. The first impressive point reached in the trial yesterday was where Mr. Barnes called Durant behind the witness stand and brought out the black draped dressmaker's model, upon which were the clothes that had worn by the murdered girl. There was intense excitement in the audience, but Durant was unmoved.

POSED AS A GREEN GOODS MAN.

And Is Now Prosecuted For Obtaining by False Pretences.

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—Edward Johnson, a farm hand from Metcalfe, was charged at the police court this morning on two counts, the first of obtaining money under false pretences and the second of stealing $100 from Mrs Durham of Metcalfe. It is alleged that Johnson represented himself to young Canuck as a green goods man, and, while he did not actually sell any of the spurious notes, had in his possession found on him, he, it is charged, obtained certain moneys on the representation that he had spurious goods to dispose of.

64 MILES AN HOUR.

The New York Central Makes a New Fast Train Record.

New York, Sept. 12.—An experimental train, consisting of five cars, left here at 4.30 p.m. from the Grand Central Station, with the intention of covering the 143 miles between here and Albany in 160 minutes. The passengers on board are Vice-President Webb of the New York Central Railway and seven invited guests. The cars were one baggage, one smoker, two coaches and a private car.

It is understood that the intention of the management is to run the train through to Buffalo if it proves a success. The trial of to-day is simply a test of the capacity of the new engines and the ability of the roadway to stand such terrific pressure.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 11.—The New York Central fast train arrived at East Buffalo at 12.34.37. The official record of the trip is as follows: Distance from new York to East Buffalo, 436 1-2 miles; elapsed time, 427 minutes; average per hour, 64 1-3 miles. English record, 64 1-3 miles.

The leave of absence granted in the spring to Mr. Justice Fournier expired on the 1st instant, and it is currently reported to-day that he has now sent in his resignation, which, if accepted, will be accepted. His successor will be appointed before the autumnal court term commences.

With reference to the proposed visit to Canada of Mr. Hall Caine, the well-known author, as the representative of the Society of British Authors, to discuss with the Government the copyright question, the Mail this evening, remarks: "It would be well to know from the Government whether the wisdom or the absence of wisdom of the legislation passed by the Dominion. That could be a subject of discussion only with the British Government.

The charge made by The North British Agriculturist that "imitation" or diluted cheese in Canada is being sold in England, has caused considerable perturbation, on both sides of the Atlantic. The evidence of Sir A. P. Caron, Acting Premier, in communication was sent to the High Commissioner regarding him from the statement of The Agriculturist is distinctly libelous and requesting him to demand authority for it. The following message was also sent to the British Government, through the Department of Agriculture authorizing the publication of the following statement: The cabled report of The North British Agriculturist, stating that a considerable proportion of cheese exported as Canada is made from separated milk, fattened with oleomargarine, is absolutely without foundation. Canadian cheese are made from pure, whole milk only. Not one box of filled or oleomargarine cheese is made in Canada. In 1885, when it was rumored that a foreign firm proposed to start factory in Canada for filled cheese, Parliament immediately passed a prohibitory law forbidding manufacture or sale under heavy penalties, going up to $400, half of the fine being payable to the informant. Not one case has occurred. The Canada Inland Revenue Department, for the purpose of collecting a heavy fine or imprisonment. The law forbids the manufacture or sale of adulteration or unwholesome dairy products. Importation is also prohibited. Use of brand "Canadian" is restricted by law to cheese and butter made in Canada. Canada is the only dairy country where oleomargarine and manufacture or importation of imitation cheese are prohibited.

Messrs. Brabazon and Cote, leaders of the last of the Canadian field parties in connection with the Canada-Alaska boundary delimitation returned to the city to-day. The two surveyors were engaged for several months in the inhospitable region of Mount St. Elias, lying between the Saint Elias Alps and the coast. The United States commission has one party in the field working in the mountains. Commissioner King and his staff at headquarters here will be actively engaged from the present until the end of January in preparing their report for submission to the government of Great Britain and Prof. Saunders, of the Experimental Farms, has returned from a prolonged tour through the extreme Northwest and British Columbia. The object of the trip was to study the crops for seven weeks altogether, and returns to his duties imbued with a strong sense of the great value of our Western country and of the magnificence of its resources. He made interesting experimental farms in the west. Mr. Saunders spent some weeks in Kootenay district, the rapidly growing valley in British Columbia. While there he says there was considerable excitement over reported gold discoveries. In the Kootenay district the output of the ore was great and several mines changed hands at very high figures. The rapidly growing industry of British Columbia has developed rapidly. The cultivation of plums extended more than any other kind of fruit. The apple crop was very good. Mr. Saunders stayed over at Calgary looking into the irrigation work there an dthe effect that it had on the crops. His report to the department will be favorable on question of irrigation.

Prof Robertson left this evening for Toronto to spend one day at the Exhibition on his way to the Northwest and British Columbia. He will arrive at Moosejaw on Sunday and hold a meeting there at the Government Dairy Station Monday. He will arrive in Victoria, B.C. on Wednesday evening, and address the farmers on the Agricultural Exhibition at Victoria on Friday, Sept. 20. One of the Dominion traveling dairies will give illustrations of butter making at the Exhibition during the week. After spending some days on Vancouver Island with the traveling dairy Prof. Robertson will return to the mainland and visit districts including the Okanagan Valley. He will go over the Calgary district to give such directions as may be needed by the managers and patrons of the new creameries in that district, and then return to attend the Exhibition of the Royal Industrial Society at New Westminster, Sept. 30th. While in the West the Dairy Commissioner will also endeavor to make arrangements for a cold storage service for butter and other [illegible] Winnipeg only on his return journey.

It is stated here that Mr. Dale, late professor of Latin in the University of Toronto, has been offered the chair in the same subject recently vacated by Mr. Fletcher of Queen's. In this case if Mr. Dale accepts, the two professors will simply change places.

The Government has been notified of the seizure by a United States cruiser in Behring Sea of the Canadian sealing schooner Beatrice. She was sent back to Victoria and arrived there yesterday. The offence in failing to keep a record of the number of seals and location of capture.

Mr. J. Lorne McDougall, Auditor-General, and his wife celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding on Saturday. A number of handsome gifts accompanied the congratulations of their many friends.

Sir A. P. Caron will not be able to go to Richmond on Friday, and Sir C. H. Tupper has consented to take his place. The Postmaster-General will leave for Quebec to-night and spend a couple of days with his sister, who sails on Saturday for South Africa, where she is going as a missionary.

Carlere, Lane & Co. of Quebec are suing the Government for extras on the contract for repairs to the Dominion steamer Druid. Deputy Smith of the Marine Department has been subpoenaed to give evidence in Quebec Sept. 10.

Col. Anderson, Chief Engineer of the Marine Department, will leave Quebec on the Government steamers to carry 500 tons more freight than by using the Welland Canal.

CANADIAN GAZETTE COMMENTS.

Board of Agriculture Urged to Analyze the Cheese and Disprove of the Rumors —An Alleged Copyright Agreement —Increase of British Imports of Canadian Produce.

London, Sept. 11.—The papers here publish the official denial from Ottawa of the alleged adulteration of Canadian cheese.

The Canadian Gazette, in an article entitled "Hitting Below the Belt," urges that the Board of Agriculture here adopt The North British Agriculturist's suggestion and analyse the Canadian cheese, so as to finally dispose of such charges, which, it says, are designed to ruin the cheese trade.

The British exports to Canada increased 12 per cent. in August as against the last year, and declined 5 per cent. in the eight months ending. The imports from Canada decreased 2 and 3 per cent. for the period. The increase in imports during the eight months were: Cattle, £100,000; [illegible], £46,000; butter, £200,000; [illegible] metals, £200; [illegible] £160,000; fish £100,000; wood, £200,000. The increase in cattle suggests that cargo is not an unmixed evil.

F. L. Newcombe, Deputy Minister of Justice of Canada, is in this country for Canada. He says his conferences with the Government here have been confidential, and refused to anticipate the report which will be made to the Canadian Government. He learn, however, that it is believed that the basis of an agreement has been reached with the London authors and publishers, the Canadian Government insisting that Canada must retain her most favored nation treatment. On no account will the principle of self-government be sacrificed, but certain amendments to the Canadian Act are promised to satisfy the English authors and publishers, while doing full justice to the Canadian readers and publishers.

Regarding Lord Rosebery's reported intention to visit Canada at an early date, it may be said that he has made no political engagement at Scarborough, Yorkshire, for early in October.

LIGHT IN SCHOOL ROOMS.

The Popular Science News publishes an abstract of a paper recently read upon light in school rooms by Dr. A. G. Field before the Ontario Medical Association at Baltimore. Dr. Field showed that too much light was as dangerous to the eyes of pupils as partial darkness. Both conditions cause an undue strain and induce myopia. The great difficulty is in regulating the light in a proper manner. There is need of constant and intelligent care in keeping study rooms light enough for the normal eye and preventing overstrain from glare or the partial darkness of very cloudy days. It is certainly very injurious for pupils who are studying to face windows that open to the sky or the full glare of the sun. The light of the sky so contracts the pupil of the eye as to prevent proper vision, unless a book be held very near. Under such conditions the muscles of the eye are strained and short-sightedness is induced in a brief time. The case is recalled of a professional man, who, having occasion to use a typewriter, pushed it up to a window and sat facing the bright sky. In a short time the pupils of his eyes were so concentrated on account of the intense light that the keyboard could not be clearly seen without a great effort. Not fully realizing the conditions under which he was taxing his eyes, he lighted the gas, but without relief. Finally he turned his back to the light to ascertain if he was suddenly becoming blind or not. This experiment relieved his eyes from the glare and vision was fully restored. It is probable that many pupils of our schools have had the same experience, with the exception of the discovery of the real cause of difficulty in seeing print. Most of them cannot relieve their sight by turning away from the bright light, but bring their books close to the eye, inducing myopia. Seats in school rooms should be so arranged that the light may come from the side or rear. When such arrangement is impossible, light coming in front should be subdued with curtains of a soft neutral tint. Dr. Field recommends that the light of school rooms should be regulated by tests with sensitive photographic paper. Such tests would be very useful, but somewhat costly. It would be much better to require that all teachers be well versed upon elementary optics and the structure of the eye. The preservation of the eye is as important as education. There is reason to believe that owing to neglect of the eye in schools, we are rapidly becoming wearers of spectacles at an early age.

Literary Notes.

Writing to Peacock, in 1818, Shelley said: "I have lately found myself sadly incapable of original composition. I employed my mornings, therefore, in translating the Symposium, which I accomplished in ten days. Mary is now transcribing it, and I am writing a prefatory essay. This essay Shelley never finished. In her remarks on Shelley's translations, Mrs. Shelley refers to her husband's version of The Banquet or Symposium of Plato as for the first time introducing "the Athenian to the English reader in a style worthy of him." A writer of eminence and distinction claims that Jowett's translation of the Banquet bears the same relation in point of merit to Shelley's as dross bears to refined gold.

Shelley's version of The Banquet, we believe, has never been published in a book by itself in a form worthy of its exquisite beauty. This act of piety he is now to have paid to his memory by Messrs. Way & Williams, of Chicago, whose edition will be ready early in November, and, with its decorations by Mr. Bruce Rogers, will be in a style that will commend it not only to lovers of Shelley and Plato, but to book lovers generally.

A new edition of Mr. George Gissing's novel, The Emancipated, considered by many to be one of his most powerful works, is to be issued in America by Messrs. Way & Williams, of Chicago, about the middle of September.

Mr. Gissing is quite frequently referred to now as "one of the three foremost English Novelists."—Mr. George Meredith and Mr. Thomas Hardy being the other two.

Local Co-Operation.—The Fair.—The Battalion.

To the Editor of the INTELLIGENCER.

Sir,—In a visit yesterday to Belleville in the interest of our own Mr. Burley at Toronto, we were pleased to find that the latter is [illegible] be the outlet for a rich and extensive agricultural country, and that business men in Toronto generally are [illegible] Belleville as the [illegible] Exhibition. [illegible] and [illegible] in the management, once its development force took beginnings and its prestige not to the attractions secured nor to the managers, but to the practical sympathy expressed and volunteered by the public of Toronto individually, who feel it a privilege to participate in the success even though their exhibit may occupy only a few feet of frontage. In London it is the same way. I feel confident there is the same spirit in Belleville, but it does not come to the front and is not evidenced by unanimous action, although many have given liberal subscriptions. The main building is small and is not in itself attractive, but it is never filled and it could be made attractive by the exhibitors themselves by cheap bunting, flags, etc., such as they use in Toronto. The Manager cannot afford to do everything; they become personally responsible for many hundreds of dollars besides giving their time and [illegible] TO THE PUBLIC; and they cannot expect to draw crowds from outside unless the citizens unite in doing their share by making the Fair Grounds the most attractive centre of interest and subject of universal comment. Apart from the splendid advertisement afforded is there not a civic duty resting on all public spirited citizens to make the best display possible and show that Belleville is the best trading and residential centre as exemplified by this recognized public exhibition which is not merely a farmer's fair. Every available space in the main building, upstairs as well as down stairs should be taken by our merchants or by anyone who has anything of interest to show. The wings have been kalsomined and the building swept and garnished; it remains for the public to do the rest. Good pictures or curios for the Art Display will be most acceptable and will be carefully cared for. If the ladies of Belleville will consult the prize list they will see that their special departments have been given special attention this year. On every afternoon especially the first Tuesday) and on two evenings an excellent programme will be offered full of dash and life. Everyone will find something to his and her taste, and some surprises are in store. It is hoped that the ranks of our city battalion, who will aid each evening with their silver and bugle bands, will be filled so that they can take their proper place among the public organizations of the city and merit and receive public support and encouragement. Have the young citizen-soldiers a cheer they get nothing else in the time of peace. Five of the officers have sacrificed their summer holidays this year in order to attend the Royal Schools of Infantry and qualify themselves for their honorable and onerous posts. Anyone who witnessed the parade in Picton on the first of July last must not only have been proud of the 15th, but must also have seen what a nugget a military display is and what a money-creating factor in city life a good regiment can be made to be. Thousands of dollars were left in Picton on that one day. But apart from pride and mercenary motives there should be a loyal support to loyal soldiers who in time of need are needed indeed. Patriotism and the need of patriotism are not gone yet. Much can be done by personal speech and writing, but much more by personal attendance and publicly evinced interest. I am sure that the municipal authorities join me in [illegible] speaking this for all municipal institutions and organizations, and more especially for the two that I have mentioned, so that all things may work together for our city's good.

Yours, etc.,
W. N. PONTON.

Agnosticism a Dying Force.

Agnosticism is only a transitional and temporary phase of thought. The human mind can no more surrender its belief in God, than its belief in a world or in a self. Contemporary agnosticism, strange as it may sound, is in part due to the great advance which knowledge has made during the last half century; it is blindness from excess of light.

But the agnostic fever seems already to be burning out. And as reason cannot escape from its three fundamental ideas—nature, self, God—and the development of reason consists in enriching the contents of each and adjusting them harmoniously to one another, it cannot be doubted that the history of human thought confirms the expectation—that reason's next step will be to modify or reinterpret the idea of God so as to inform and harmonize it with the revelation which science has deciphered in the operations of nature and the life of humanity. Nay, has not reason already to some extent accomplished her task? The conception of God as spiritual and not mechanical as immanent not external; as working by law not by caprice, and with eternal infinite patience not by catastrophic outbursts; as adumbrated in nature and revealed in the moral and spiritual qualities of man, who is the goal of evolution and the epitome and abridgment of existence: is not this conception, in combination with the idea of the divine Fatherhood (which is the essence of Christianity), taking possession of the best spirits of the modern world and dislodging the agnostic ban by which it was preceded and by which, in a sense, it was originated? Even the greatest of living agnostics—Mr. Herbert Spencer—while still strenuously denying that we know anything about God, yet advances so far as to posit the existence of God as indispensable first principle both of knowing and of being. * * * But as we strain our eyes to catch the first glimpse of the blessed morn, let us remember that but for its humiliation and chastening in the valley of the shadow of agnosticism the human mind would not in our generation have initiated the most important reform since the Reformation—the substitution of the spiritual religion of Christ for the speculative religion of Christendom.—President Schurman, of Cornell.

A Pretty Wedding.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season occurred at the residence of W. H. Cadman, Adolphustown, Wednesday, Sept. 4th, when his daughter Minnie was united in matrimony by Rev. R. M. Pope, assisted by Rev. Mr. Shorey, to C. P. Allison, Adolphustown. Miss Cora Murdoff, Belleville, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Allison, Port Perry, assisted the happy couple. After a sumptuous wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Allison, followed by good wishes and showers of rice, left on the steamer Hero for an extensive trip in the eastern states. A pleasing feature of the ceremony was an isle formed of white satin ribbons held by four young ladies, who undertook to keep a place clear for the bridal party. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by a well and favorably known Kingston young lady, cousin of the bride. The presents were both numerous and costly.

THE THIRD RACE A FIZZLE.

A PILOT BOAT STOOD IN YAKYRIE'S WAY.

The English Boat Holds a Perfect and Drops Out Defender Sailed Alone—Something About Saturday's Race—A Sketch of Donavon—An Opinion on Tuesday's Protest—Fast Wheel Time—The Default Scored.

Lord Dunraven, like a true sport man, had his yacht ready for to-day's race, despite the rumors that he would race no more owing to the committee's decision on Tuesday's protest.

At 10.30 the wind was blowing 18 miles an hour from south-west, with a light sea. The prospects for a grand race were good. The course laid out for to-day was fifteen miles to sea and return.

The second starting gun was fired at 11:30a and Defender crossed the line at 11:36:30. Valkyrie made for the line, but suddenly stood to the south, going about on the starboard tack and returned. She at once hoisted a protest flag and headed for the judge's boat. The trouble seemed to be that pilot boat No. 10 was directly in her way. Defender kept on her course and was evidently going to make the trip.

The Committee's Decision.

Rollins Jarvis, the Mail and Empire's special correspondent, and a yachting authority of some note, gives his views of the committee's report in the following despatch to his paper:

New York, Sept. 11.—(Special.)—In last night's despatch I mentioned that there were rumors that the owners of Defender were going to protest yesterday's race, on the ground that Valkyrie fouled Defender at the start. After considering the evidence to day the Regatta Committee allow the protest, and awarded Defender the race. The decision states that Valkyrie in crossed rule E, sec. 2, of the New York Yacht Club racing rules, the text of which is:—

"A yacht free shall keep clear of one close hauled.

Now, as both yachts were sailing with the wind abeam almost parallel to each other, and both heading for one objective point, namely, the boat marking the weather end of the starting line, Valkyrie to windward about half a length, was in the case opposite to me to be a misapplication of this specific rule. Many mind, it is not appropriate. This is all the more strange in the face of a decision given by the committee on a type identical case upon which Mr. Iselin, of Defender, asked their ruling before the race, and which was as follows:

To yachts heading for the starting line on the same tack, their courses converging, the yacht to windward, being the overtaking yacht, have established an overlap, has the right to keep clear, and is held by consequence to have the right to hold her course [illegible] side of the mark [illegible] was [illegible] the leeward boat must give sufficient room and had not the right to crowd the other off the line.

To my mind this hypothetical case is exactly in accordance with the case in point. Valkyrie was to windward, slightly ahead, and the courses of the yachts were converging. As her boom struck Defender's stay boom abroad Valkyrie evidently had not sufficient room, and one which also proves that she was in the lead. The position whence I viewed the start was exactly astern of the yachts, so that their courses and the relative position of both boats and the mark boat was clearly defined, but I could not estimate how far they were from the line at the time.

Why Valkyrie Tired.

A great deal of discussion has taken place as to why the Valkyrie did not continue the admirable burst of speed which she exhibited at the start in Saturday's race and for the succeeding half hour.

As to this one expert has said that there must have been two different helmsmen steering. One of them, he said, brought her across the line and gave her a good nap full when she passed along through the trying water in which the first tack was made, and the other took her afterwards.

He points out that during this time the Defender was pinched up into the wind and was almost stalled when she wanted all the power she could get.

His idea is that the Valkyrie, being a very broad and quarter boat, was thrown out by the amount of generous full to be given her that was usual among the broad yachts of the former American type.

He claims that this helmsman sailed her as she ought to be, and that it was not until the first coming in sight of the pilot boat helmsman took the stick and at once began to gradually lose the race by pinching by a slightly closer than the Valkyrie ought to be sailed.

Certainly there seems to be some probability in this suggestion. When the boats headed over into the port tack for the first time it was seen that the Valkyrie was pointing most of the time higher than the Defender, but not getting through the water at the speed for which made her first exhibition of supremacy.

It was a very slight difference in the steering, but one that could be sufficiently marked by a close observer. It was just one of those fine points, few but practical yachtsmen understand and which make or mar success when boats are equally matched.

Apparently the man who did the rest of the day's steering was one who was accustomed solely to the narrow Royal Canter, which can stand a comparatively large amount of pinching without being seriously damaged in their best windward work.

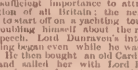

But Valkyrie III. has an entrance very like that of the Valkyrie, which boat was not in a heavy seaway able to point quite as high as Valkyrie II., but could make better time to windward by using a slightly less full to drive her wide entrance through the water.

Valkyrie's Chief Owner.

Lord Dunraven, the managing member of the syndicate that sent the Valkyrie to America, is an Irishman, whose family name is Quinn. Lord Dunraven has a soldierly bearing, and is distinguished by courtly manners combined with very great energy. He has been a lieutenant in the First Life Guards; was A.D.C. to the Earl of Kimberley, and served with distinction as Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for War under Salisbury. He has been noted as an eccentric politician. One day he might make a speech in the House of Lords in favor of the Irish tenants; then is of sufficient importance to attract the attention of the British nation; then he is likely to start off on a yachting tour with out troubling himself about the result of his speech. Lord Dunraven's interest in yachting began even while he was at college. He then bought an old Cardiff pilot boat and sailed her with Lord Ramsay. Then he took to steeplechasing and gave up yachting, only to return to it when he met "Willie" Jameson in the Solent in 1885. Later he joined the Royal Yacht Squadron and became a member also of nearly every yachting club of any importance in the United Kingdom. Lord Dunraven has played many admirable parts in his thirst for adventure and athletic sport. When the war with Abyssinia broke out he secured the appointment of special correspondent for the London Daily Telegraph, and gave up his commission to do the work. He accepted a tent with Henry M. Stanley, who then represented the New York Herald. Lord Dunraven went to Berlin for the Telegraph during the Franco German war and served there until he broke his arm. Just before the capitulation of Paris, and was invalided home. Lord Dunraven is now 54 years old. He is not only a sailor of boats but a designer as well. His tweeds

ARRESTED FOR FRAUD.

Charles Panter Issues a Cheque for Which There is no Funds.

Charles Panter, who runs a laundry opposite the upper bridge, was arrested last evening on a warrant sworn out by Durland Clapp, charged with fraud and false pretences.

The particulars of the case are as follows

Dorland Clapp, who owns a livery stable behind the Gibson House, and Panter were under an execution from the Division Court for a debt which amounted, with costs, to $24.23. John H. Gordon, bailiff, had the execution placed in his hands for collection and he seized chattels belonging to Clapp to satisfy the claim. He then went to Panter to endeavor to get his share of the debt. Panter told the bailiff that he had no money, but he would give him a cheque on the Dominion Bank, where he expected to have funds in a few days. The cheque was given on the 28th of August, and Mr. Gordon called on three different days following that date, but was told there was no funds. He went to Clapp and he paid $16 of the debt which Panter promised to get the balance and pay Clapp. Panter did not pay the money promised, and Clapp paid it in two instalments, the last being paid yesterday. Panter gave as the reason he had not been able to keep his promise that he had received a cheque for an amount due, but it was not honored and he had returned it.

The case came up in the police court this morning for a preliminary hearing and in the absence of magistrate Flint the Mayor and Ald. Yeomans occupied the bench. P. J. M. Anderson conducted the prosecution, and Messrs. S. Masson and John Williams appeared for the prisoner. The evidence of Clapp and Bailiff Gordon was taken and the case enlarged till Monday next. Panter was allowed out on his own personal bail.

The loss to the stockholders will be heavy. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Weak, Tired, Nervous

Women, who seem to be all worn out, will find in purified blood, made rich and healthy by Hood's Sarsaparilla, permanent relief and strength. The following is from a well known man:

"I have suffered for years with female complaints and kidney troubles and I have had a great deal of medical advice during that time, but have received little or no benefit. A friend advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began to use it, together with Hood's Pills, and I have realized more benefit from these medicines than from anything else I have ever taken. From my personal experience I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be a most complete blood purifier." Miss O. CHOMPTON, 71 Cumberland St., Toronto, Ontario.

ACCIDENT AT STIRLING.

A Man, Horse and Watering Cart Fall Through a Bridge.

STIRLING, Sept. 11th.—(Special)—As Jas. Wescott, street sprinkler, was crossing the county bridge opposite McKee's harness shop, the entire structure gave away and Wescott with tank and horses was thrown into the creek, a distance of about 15 feet, where the bed is of solid rock. Mr. Wescott's escape is marvellous and although he is lying in a critical state Dr. Zwick has hopes of his recovery. Neither of his horses were injured.

Sentenced by Justice Jerome.

[illegible] Medicine Company has been [illegible] month in running [illegible] Toronto. They have been down [illegible] AT STIRLING [illegible] making [illegible] these children [illegible] £100, trademark "Carter's Little Liver Pills." [illegible] £1, Notices have appeared of several [illegible] which the company has made. For a week past one of these cases has been on trial in the Court of Special Sessions, before Justices Jerome, Jacob and Hoyes. The prisoner was Thomas B. Hughes, a druggist at 281 Tenth-ave. On Wednesday the prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to three months in the penitentiary. In delivering the sentence of the court, Presiding Justice Jerome said

"Hughes, the Court after a long and careful trial, has come reluctantly to the conclusion that you are guilty man. The whole value of many of these articles lies in the trademark. Thousands and hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent annually in placing them before the public. If the public cannot rely upon these articles, then a fraud is being practised upon them, and upon the proprietary rights of those persons who own trademarks. New York is a great commercial city and trademarks are as important to this city as [illegible] city is to a coiner. This is a class of cases which the Court does not look upon with any leniency at all. The sentence of the Court is that you be confined in the penitentiary for a term of three months

The Judge also intimated that but for the prisoner's previous record and the fact that he had been in jail for some time his sentence would have been much heavier.—New York Daily Tribune.

No person should go from home without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial in their possession, as change of water, cooking, climate, etc., frequently brings on a bowel complaint, and there is nothing like being ready with a sure remedy at hand, as the difference may be days of suffering and frequently valuable lives. This Cordial has gained for itself a wide spread reputation for affording prompt relief from all summer complaints

15 Years of Itching.

Wm. Golding, commercial traveller, 139 Eathyn street, Toronto, for 15 years suffered untold misery from itching Piles, sometimes called pin worms. Many and many weeks have I had to lay off the road from this trouble. I tried eight other pile ointments and no extra remedies with no permanent relief to the intense itching and stinging, which irritated by scratching, would bleed and ulcerate. One half a box of Chase's Ointment cured me completely.

The Owl and the Rabbit

I once saw a rabbit hop out of the bush near my shingle shanty in the woods just at dusk, and begin to nibble at some buds. On a hemlock bough just over the rabbit sat a big horned owl that took a step or two along the limb the moment the rabbit came in sight. The rabbit became alarming, and dropped to the brush, and the owl adjusted its wings and looked disappointed. In a moment the rabbit skipped out again, and the owl let himself drop noiselessly and caught the rabbit. Then the owl flew into the tree with the rabbit, and all of a sudden a wildcat that I hadn't seen before, ran up the trunk, gave the owl a cuff and knocked it out of the tree, swinging down upon its and taking the rabbit away. The owl sailed off through the woods, and I clubbed the wild cat to death while it was crunching the rabbit's bones.

VALKYRIE WITHDRAWN.

Excursion Boats Blocked the Course.

THE DEFENDER AWARDED THE CUP

It Was Dunraven's Turn to Protest, as the Cup Committee Could Not Keep Excursion Boats Clear—He Wanted the Race to Take Place Off Marble Head

New York, Sept. 12.—The decision of the Regatta Committee last night, sustaining Mr. Iselin's protest and awarding Tuesday's race to the Defender, left her only one more race to win to make the America's Cup safe for another year. It was thought here that Lord Dunraven, after hearing the decision, would refuse to start in any more races and take his boat back to England, but he proved to be too good a yachtsman for that.

The Defender has been given a new coat of light blue paint, and her bronze hull was rubbed until it looked like burnished gold.

The Valkyrie did not show signs of starting for the course until 9 o'clock. Sir Walkey took to the water with the Millard, and was towed down through the Sandy Hook channel on her way to the starting line.

The probability of this being the last of the great International yacht races of 1895 brought out an immense fleet that, as usual, participated in number to the great gathering of last Saturday.

The preliminary signal was set at 10.55, preparatory at 11.40, start at 11.50. Before the starting gun was fired the course was entirely clear of boats, and the two racers had all the room possible to jockey in. There were no signs of making ready for the race aboard the Valkyrie, and the eyes of the thirteen men stationed upon it turned towards her.

The start was made, Defender 11.30.24, Valkyrie 11.31.34.

Defender broke out her spinnaker immediately after crossing the line and began on with a foot inch of centreboard, Valkyrie with maintail and jib. Dunraven at once began a protest, fing, and a claim for judge's boat. Valkyrie withdraws and went in tow of her tender. Defender sails for course alone. The pilot boat, Thomas H. Williams, was in Valkyrie's way, directly in her course. The judge's boat now gone after the Defender.

The Defender finished at 4.04.

The America's Cup Committee notified C. Oliver Iselin that the three races and the cup were awarded the Defender.

Dunraven Objected to the Course.

Immediately after the race on Tuesday Lord Dunraven sent the following letter to the America's Cup committee. It was made public last night:

Gentlemen,—It is with great reluctance that I write to inform you that I decline to sail Valkyrie the race under the circumstances that have arisen in connection with the race, and for the following reasons:

First, the course was not kept clear by large vessels in such confined space and timing, and, secondly, the course was not laid up against, exceedingly dangerous, and I will not further risk the lives of my men or the ship.

Second. At the start of the first race, the Defender got the best of the start, but was not see the mark-boat, and could not tell when we were near the line, and we were much hampered by steamers, especially on the race home.

Today on the reach home, eight or nine steamers were to the windward of me, and as I am aware, a block of air was thereby shutting it off with me and close under my lee. I sent a man into the main rigging in thinking, broken water, in the hope of seeing the cross lee, but was not under these conditions is, in my opinion, steered, and I decline to subject my men to them again.

I would remind your committee that, foreseeing the trouble that might occur, I urged upon them the desirability of sailing off Marble Head or some other place other than New York Bay, and that they refused to do so. I am sorry that I am compelled to notify to you that under your committee have done everything in their power to prevent or reconcile.

The fact is that, in my opinion, between the representatives of two yacht clubs sailing a most important race and attracts such crowds of people, if the races are sailed in the immediate vicinity, instead of a press of steamers and the dates of the races and times of starting are known and advertised, it is impossible to keep a course free from causes of exceptional danger and close contact to ensure fair play under these conditions is, in my opinion, absurd, and I decline to subject my men to them again.

Upon Valkyrie's arrival at Bay Ridge Mr. Glennie explained why the Valkyrie did not race to-day. He said:

"Lord Dunraven handed a letter written yesterday to A. Cass Canfield, secretary of the America's Cup Committee, with a request that it be not opened until after the decision in the Defender's protest. The substance of the letter was that Lord Dunraven did not think a fair course could be obtained in New York, and asked the committee to provide a course that could be kept clear of boats. He suggested Marble Head or some other place distant from a city like New York. He received no reply from the committee and did not expect one until to-day. He went down the bay like a true sportsman to give the other boat a chance to start and make it a race if he choose to. Had Lord Dunraven received a reply to his communication he would have raced to-day." Mr. Glennie was asked if Lord Dunraven had not found the course clear at the start to-day. He replied:

"Certainly, but how about all the rest of the races and the finish? We did not want to go and wallow over the course. It is not fair for one boat or the other."

Lord Dunraven said this evening: "I am quite satisfied that Defender and New York sail a race for the America's Cup under satisfactory conditions. I do not believe that I have a superior boat. I do not believe that I should be subjected to an insult from the Regatta Committee of any yacht or club or the representative of any syndicate.

"There is an element of opinion about our boat. It is a simple matter of refusal to sail under existing conditions."

Holmes Indicted For Murder.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 12.—Coroner Castor, in his verdict in the inquest on the remains of Howard Pitezel, declared that the child came to his death at the hands of H. H. Holmes. The Marion County grand jury yesterday afternoon found an indictment against Holmes for murder in the first degree, and should he escape trial in Philadelphia he will be brought here.

Another Indictment in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—The grand jury has found a true bill for murder against Herman Mudgett, alias H. H. Holmes, for the murder of Benjamin F. Pitezel.

MIXED WHEAT DEFENDED

The Strong Protest Made By Manitoba Grain Men

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 13.—The report of the proceedings at the annual meeting of the Dominion Millers' Association in Toronto on Tuesday has been received here. The following resolution was passed:

That this association has heard with regret that the Ontario millers have taken exception to the mixing of Manitoba wheat with Ontario wheat, and from the information furnished by him it appears that there is another side to the question, differing widely from that put forward by the Ontario miller in that it is not confined to quality but to the question of Ontario dealers, millers and the Department, there are two or three facts which must be borne in mind.

First that of the Manitoba wheat crop only 70 per cent. is handled by the Manitoba dealers. In other words, only 70 per cent. of the crop of Manitoba passes through the hands of the Eastern men when this fact is taken into consideration materially weakens the force of the strictures of the speakers at the Toronto meeting.

Second, the only change made in the regulations of this year, as compared with past years, is that No. 1 hard Manitoba wheat of 58 2-3 lbs. per bushel must have been grown in Manitoba or the Territories. This left a margin of 1 1-3 lbs. per bushel for the Ontario men to work upon. In other words it was possible for them to mix 23 1-3 per cent. of Ontario red wheat with the Manitoba product and make the grain still grade the same as Manitoba No. 1 hard. Now this is no longer permissible. With this single exception, there has been no change in the present regulations from those in force for several years past.

Third, The Ontario millers and grain dealers incline to the belief that the quality of Manitoba wheat will be depreciated by allowing a proportion of cleaned wheat to be mixed with Manitoba No. 1 hard. The fact is that Manitoba, however, is that the present grade of No. 1 hard is too high. Duluth No. 1 hard may contain as low as 61 per cent. of red Fyfe, while Manitoba No. 1 hard, as previously stated, must not contain less than 66 2-3 per cent. of Red Fyfe. To raise the grade still further would be to force the Manitoba farmer at a considerable disadvantage, as compared with his American competitor.

The strongest defence which the Department has taken on the grain question which it has taken on the grain question is contained in a memorial of the Winnipeg Board of Trade with reference to the Department in November last. Although this memorial was published in Winnipeg papers at the time, no reply to it has been forthcoming.

With regard to the question, however, of mixing of wheat, it will be remembered that representations on this subject were made to the Controller of Inland Revenue last year by Messrs. Wood. Instructed Assistant Commissioner of Inland Revenue, Mr. Gerald, to proceed to Port Arthur, Duluth and other western points, to examine into and report upon the method of grading at the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg Railroad Company, was smashed into kindling wood and piled up on the tracks. The evening train had just arrived with about 200 people on board for Kingston, ont. The boat succeeded in getting away from the dock with most of the passengers.

It is feared that three others will be added to the list of deaths resulting from the collision on the depot. Those who are in a critical condition are: J. M. Anderson of New York, Mrs. Fitzgerald of Ottawa, Ont., and Mrs. Fitzgerald of Cape Vincent.

Reports from various parts of Jefferson County show that probably 100 barns were uprooted and some blown down in the gale.

Heavy Gales on the Atlantic.

Southampton, Sept. 13.—The American line steamer St. Louis, which arrived here from New York yesterday, encountered severe northwesterly gales on the passage. The same thing is reported by the steamer Lahn, which arrived here on Sunday night, at the height of the storm, Captain Randle was thrown from the bridge and sustained a severe scalp wound. He did not appear on deck for the remainder of the voyage.

THEORY OF RENT.

Decrease of Rentals Discussed by the British Association.

London, Sept. 13.—Sir Douglas Galton, who presided at the meeting fit at Ipswich last night while reading an address before the British Association for the Advancement of Science, of which he is president, is much better.

The principal feature of the morning's session was an address to the Economic Science Section by Professor L. L. Price, the president of the section. In the course of his address Mr. Price discussed "Theory of Rent," saying:

"The theory of rent is not a maxim of conduct, but a rational explanation of fact. It has certainly seemed to me that, as a matter of fact, the tenant considers the rent to be property that which is left when, on an average of years, he has reaped a fair profit and paid his laborers the wages they command. Looked upon, so far as they have been able to discover, occupies, in his eyes, the position, to use the language of Professor Marshall, of a quasi-rent by General Walker, in his "Political Economy," of a residual claimant. And such, as far as I can see, is the case in the place which he fills therein. It can hardly be doubted that one of the most remarkable changes of recent years has been the development of the means of locomotion and the cheapness of transportation. This change implies a loss of the disadvantage interpreted in the language of the theory of rent, by Goschen land, as the property certain proportion afforded by its situation near to the market. The partial loss of this advantage has also disappeared, and the result is the decrease in the cost of transportation has opened the European markets to the virgin soil of America and other countries. And, with regard to products which admit of conveyance from a distance, the fertility of English land, whether it be due to the skill of generations of comparatively high farming or to natural qualities of soil, has lost part of its advantage. In the language of the theory of rent, the forfeiture of these two advantages involved compensation in the form of increase of rent, and as it seems to me, the frequent failure of those deficiency of theory is evident as rational explanation of fact.

Thrown From His Vehicle.

Mark Kinsella, a Jew peddler, who lives at 103 York-street, was driving a wagon along Gerrard east at 5 o'clock last night when at the corner of Broadview-avenue a wheel came off the rig. His injuries were attended to at the General Hospital, where he is doing well.

Kingston Visited By a Severe Cyclone.

$100,000 DAMAGE IN 31 MINUTES

The Cotton Mill So Badly Damaged That 700 Employes Will Be Idle For Weeks—Scores of Buildings and Some Barns Blown Over.

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 13.—A cyclone and electric storm Wednesday did much damage here. Hundreds of trees were levelled, chimneys knocked down, windows smashed and telephone and telegraph wires torn from their fastenings. The storm began at 9 o'clock and lasted half an hour. T. Clyde's house in Jenkins-street, newly built and occupied, was demolished. One lady was slightly injured.

The car works' buildings were much shattered, while cars were wrecked. The loss is $1000.

The cotton mill is badly damaged, and the repairs will require $70,000. Twenty-five hundred feet of roof was destroyed. The roof then collapsed into the mill, wrecking six miles and 1500 spindles. The water pipes burst, flooding the mill. For some weeks over 700 employes will be out of work.

Scores of barns and houses in the country were unroofed, while walks, trees, fences and outbuildings both in city and country, were ripped up. The various parts scattered for yards around. Many streets were blocked with fallen trees.

The Kingston Field Battery, cramped on Barriefield Common, received the full force of the cyclone. One magazine and the harness totally destroyed and 13 tents were damaged. The harness and equipment were blown all over the camp and two limbers were blown from the middle of the commons clear across to the military reserve. Forty of the men were merched to "A" Battery barracks, where they were quartered during the night.

Possibly $100,000 will cover the damage in this section.

ACROSS THE LAKE.

Two Men Killed Two Canadian Women Severely Injured.

Watertown, N.Y., Sept. 13.—A terrific storm swept over this section at 9 o'clock last evening, causing much damage to property generally and culminating in a serious disaster and fatality at Cape Vincent, at the foot of the Lake Outlet. Joseph Aimer and his son George Godfrey of Cape Vincent have been killed from internal injuries receiving, the Winnipeg Board of the depot and Prudence Aimer and others were injured. Among the injured are Miss Maude Walsh, Kingston, Ont., severe scalp wound; Mrs. John Aiken, Hamilton, Ont., fractured limb and internal injuries; the cyclone which wrought the destruction was also a tremendous gust, coming so suddenly and passing so swiftly that it seemed not to have lasted more than a minute and yet in that brief time showing a power before which almost everything movable gave way. A large barn belonging to the estate of the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg Railroad Company, was smashed into kindling wood and piled up on the tracks. The evening train had just arrived with about 200 people on board for Kingston, ont. The boat succeeded in getting away from the dock with most of the passengers.

It is feared that three others will be added to the list of deaths resulting from the collision on the depot. Those who are in a critical condition are: J. M. Anderson of New York, Mrs. Fitzgerald of Ottawa, Ont., and Mrs. Fitzgerald of Cape Vincent.

Toronto Almost Without Water

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 13.—A very grave crisis has arrived in the position of the city with regard to the water supply. The Rosehill Reservoir is for all practical purposes empty At 6 o'clock last evening it contained less than 4 feet of water, and before noon to-day this will be exhausted. The city will then have, as the only present available source, the Waterworks at North Toronto, whose capacity is only sufficient to afford a very limited quantity.

Brady Says Cholera is Healthy.

New York, Sept. 13.—The Sanitary Code of Cholera is in a condition having reached the crisis of Brady, Corbett's campaign. We are accredited officially in New York as follows:

Since they have made out that Corbett has consumption, malaria, partial paralysis and a few other things, he has been in bed all night," and they say he is afraid of Fitzsimmons. Fitz has not been in bed or fought with his trainer on this account. Physicians are called to notify Corbett that if his will get himself removed to a hospital and after instructed to think he will spend most of his time at Asbury Park until he is ready to fight. Corbett is in excellent health. He has done some training and will do more. I do not notice any white feathers in my condition of a fresh air and sunshine. I do not notice any white feather on the part of Fitz's friends as to my condition or the result.

Corbett is to box three men at his show in Madison Square Garden to-night.

Rebels hand has no active during the last week, having blown up a troop train by dynamite near Sibanigo. De Cuba and a bridge near Sagua. The Spaniards admit that the train was blown up, but claim that only five men were killed. Advices received here state that nearly 100 soldiers were mangled by the explosion.

FIRE AT LONDON FAIR

Two Buildings on the Grounds Burned,

$10,000 WILL COVER THE LOSS.

A Badly Insulated Electric Wire Causes Destruction of the Carriage, Poultry and Other Buildings—The Exhibits Had Just Been Put in Place.

London, Ont., Sept. 12.—With a meteoric display of fireworks the Western Fair was opened this evening. The exhibition was not set down on the official program, and although it involved an extra expenditure of $10,000 it went through without a hitch. Before the spark from the electric wire which started the blaze was extinguished the whole of the carriage building, the poultry house and the W.C.T.U. building, besides several floor erections, were in smoking ruins.

The formal opening of the Fair was set for Friday, and all day to-day people flocked to the grounds, and exhibits were being put in place.

Shortly after 7.30 the good ladies of the W.C.T.U. had prepared a little supper in their building and were seated around to enjoy it. Then a wave of fire flew in the back windows and the ladies and the refreshments scrambled incontinently out the front. Somebody cried fire and when the department arrived the poultry sheds were all ablaze. In a moment the carriage building caught and the dry wooden structure swept up like a match box.

The exhibits, amounting in value to many thousands of dollars, were hastily removed.

There were only a few hens in the poultry sheds and the loss of life was not great. The panic among the exhibitors was general, and from all over the grounds people were hastily thrown out. Then the firemen began to get in their work and the fire was confined to the carriage building. Little could be done but let the buildings burn, and they did so to the intense enjoyment of the crowd of 20,000.

While the ruins were still smoking the Fair directors held a meeting and decided to go on with the show on schedule time. It was decided to send a petition to the Industrial Exhibition at Toronto and Guelph to allow a few spare hen coops in which to house the poultry coming as invited guests. The carriages will have to take a chance around among the other buildings.

The entire damage was placed at $10,000 and insured

Grateful Women Write Us Letters.

From every corner of the country come thankful letters written by those who have been lifted into cheerful, vigorous, healthy strength by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Thousands on thousands of women have been relieved of the nerve-nagging pain of weakness and ills.

They have been made better wives and better mothers by having perfect health and strength restored by assimilating exposure of examinations so generally insisted on by physicians.

The stereotyped treatment by "local applications" is seldom necessary, and there is no reason why modest, sensitive women need submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is of purely vegetable composition and is perfectly harmless in any condition of the system. It exerts a wonderful soothing, healing and strengthening power over women's delicate organs. It is an invigorating tonic for the whole system, and is almost an infallible specific for the peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and painful derangements of woman.

To these causes may be traced the innumerable "dragging-down" sensations, internal fluxes, irritable, worn-out and nervous feelings, "all gone" sensations, creeping chills, faintness, dizziness, headache, backache, "bearing-down" pains, neuralgia, hysteria, and many other symptoms.

Inflammatory Rheumatism is produced by an excess of uric acid in the blood. Paralysis is nearly a dead certainty when produced by impure and impoverished blood. So-called neuralgia of the thigh is seldom anything but rheumatism. Scrofulitic rheumatism is hereditary; syphilitic results from syphilis; gout is caused by high living; sluggish circulation affords false health.

"THE KIND THAT CURES"

Thus the whole line of rheumatic diseases owe their being to an acknowledged circulation of impure blood. No person can suffer a rheumatic pain that has a free and equal circulation of pure blood, and this accounts for Scott's Sarsaparilla curing the supposed incurable cases. It eradicates all rheumatic poisons and acids from the blood and equalizes the circulation.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, SEPT. 13.

THE "SCARE" ABOUT FILLED CHEESE.

Some of the English papers have been trying to get up a scare against Canadian cheese, following the scare about cattle. The North British Agriculturalist alleges on what it terms good authority, that a considerable proportion of the so-called full milk cheese from Canada is really made from separated milk, fattened with oleomargarine, which is very difficult to detect. It urges the Board of Agriculture to make an enquiry, and suggests that this explains why the Canadians are able to undersell the British farmers.

The charge that Canadian factories are turning oleomargarine filled cheese is so silly that it is strange that newspapers of the standing of the North British Agriculturist and the London Times should promulgate it. There is not a pound of oleomargarine or butterine made in Canada, as in 1892-93 the Dominion Government passed a law not only condemning the manufacture of butterine or oleomargarine in the Dominion, but making it a criminal offence to import such from any country. We can neither make nor import oleomargarine into Canada, much less adulterate cheese with it. Oleomargarine is made from pure animal fats, and by careful rendering a coal fat of a cow or ox it assumes a neutral taste—that is, you cannot tell by the taste what animal fat it belongs to. To give a flavor however, to those neutral fats the oleomargarine or butterine is churned with so much cream or new milk. This gives the butter flavor. But with our co-operative factory system in Ontario, how could oleomargarine filled cheese be made, unless the whole of the patrons entered into a conspiracy with the cheese-maker to practice fraud?

Oleomargarine filled cheese might be made by a private company, as in Chicago or New York, but that it could be made undetected in cheese factories here where 50 or 60 patrons are contributing pure milk under an inspection act is impossible. To profitably make oleomargarine filled cheese would require a special and costly factory with each cheese centre; and one oleomargarine factory would cost more than a dozen cheese factories. The successful oleomargarine or butterine factories in the United States, with all their equipments, have cost more than half the cheese factories in this Belleville district. Oleomargarine cannot be made profitably save on a large scale, and at the present price of cheese it would not pay to fill them, as the pure article cannot be produced cheaper than oleomargarine.

Under the Dominion and Ontario milk inspection acts there could be no possible way of adulterating cheese. The milk, in the first place, is tested by a meter, and the amount of butter fat and solids ascertained. So searching is this test that a farmer cannot even water his milk but he is found out. If you have very rich milk and reduce to normal consistency this reliable test shows that rich milk has been watered. The inspection of cheese factories by Government officials, too, precludes any frauds in cheese-making in this country. Our cheese trade has gradually risen from a small commencement in 1868 to $15,000,000 in 1894, and we have an undisputable reputation of making in bulk the best cheese in the world. That our rich cheddar should be set down as filled with oleomargarine is preposterous, as a pound of this stuff could not be found in the length and breadth of Canada.

In Your Blood

Is the cause of that tired, languid feeling which afflicts you at this season. The blood is impure and has become thin and watery. That is why you have no strength, no appetite, cannot sleep. Purify your blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will restore you appetite, tone your stomach, and invigorate your nerves.

ROYAL TOUR OFF—Mr.

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—Mr. Smith, acting by Minister of Marine, received a letter from the Attorney-General of Great Britain, Sir Richard Webster, [illegible] that it had been with profound impression he [illegible] last committee of the House [illegible] during the late short session of Parliament. There were admiralty [illegible] from the Navy, and certain [illegible] of the committee, had [illegible] last session, and so were no longer eligible to serve on the committee. It is understood that the committee will be reappointed early next session. The imperial committee on [illegible] of British ships, Mr. Smith [illegible] from the same source, has not been called together yet, but it is probable it will do so—and about the middle of October.

Mr. Collingwood Schreiber left for the Pacific Coast to-day.

The next issue of the Canadian Gazette will contain a notice to mariners regarding a fixed red light which the Department of Marine has had erected on the eastern pier at the eastern entrance to Toronto Harbor.

Dr. Bell, Director of the Geological Survey, arrived here to-day, after making an inspection of the experimental boring for petroleum at Athabasca Landing. He found the boring progressing satisfactorily under Mr. Fraser. He has the contract for the work. The borings are now down to a depth of about 1500 feet, and the prospects appear to be good for getting down two or three hundred feet deeper, to the carboniferous, which underlies the cretaceous formation, and in which the petroleum is supposed to exist.

The Reformers on the Ottawa Separate School Board are gathering ground. The Board met to-night, when the difficulty in reference to the teaching staff, in Garreau school was settled by the Board authorizing the dismissal of the two assistant Brothers from the school, and the appointment of two nuns and one male lay teacher in their stead. Another light is looming up in connection with the appointment of an English teacher in La Salle school, which means dismissal of two more Brothers.

The ballot papers for the Toronto University Senate election are now in the hands of graduates and from the interest taken in the approaching election it is evident that a very large vote will be polled in the Capital. The organization of Toronto graduates here has nominated Hon. A. R. Dickey; his claims are pressed on the grounds that he is prepared to attend meetings of Senate, and take the necessary time to master the intricacies of the many problems now awaiting solution, affecting the University's welfare.

MARRIAGE BY LICENSE.

Anglican Bishops Desire the Marriage Laws of Ontario Amended by Abolition of the License.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 12.—At to-day's session of the Anglican Provincial Synod much discussion was created in the Lower House by a message from the House of Bishops relative to asking the Ontario Legislature to amend the marriage laws of that province. Rev. A. Brown of Paris, Ont., spoke strongly against the license system of [illegible], as it prevailed in Ontario, and said that it led to perjury in many cases, and under it a clergyman was an innocent party to solemnizing marriages that were an outrage against the laws of God and man. It was an invitation to young people to get privately married. Under the marriage laws of Ontario, those portions of the province which were adjacent to the States afforded greater facilities for clandestine marriages than did the adjacent States. The Lower House refused to concur in the message, being of opinion that the question was one for the consideration of the Ontario diocesan synods, rather than for the Provincial Synod to deal with. The Lower House referred the reports of the Joint Committee on Marriage and Divorce to the general synod after much opposition on the part of a majority of the House.

Addresses from the Protestant Episcopal Church in the States, and inviting the Bishops of Maine and Michigan, were given a hearty welcome by the synod.

A Dog's Heroic Faithfulness.

Wheeling, W. Va., dispatch says: A Baltimore and Ohio train brought the mangled body of James Settle, a 10-year old boy, to Bellaire this morning. The boy had been killed by the train at Point Pleasant. He had special last night with a party of friends in the woods and got but little sleep. When he came home this morning he drove the cows to pasture, accompanied by a dog belonging to the family.

Engineer Henry McAtirey says that when the train rounded the curve at Mason Mills he saw the brave dog, frantic with grief, running the passenger train backward and forward in the sunlight, leaping as he passed instantly in the rail, trying to pull his master's body off the track. The train was so near that it could not be stopped, but the dog was put and the speed checked, while the wheels were tested.

The boy was partially awakened by the frightful efforts and began beating the faithful dog with his fist, but the dog held on and cut forth all his power to save his master. As the engine drew nearer Alexander and the fireman shut their eyes to hide the death scene from their view. When the train was stopped and run back both the boy and his constant companion were found horribly mangled.

Beauty unadorned may do in poetry, but the nicely fitting gown is the desire of every true woman. Priestley's dress fabrics have done much to realize a woman's ideal by offering, in their texture, appearance, fit and weave, a character and distinction, which no other dress goods, however excellent, have quite attained to. And now Priestley's have something new. The "Eudora" is all the rage. It is even better than the Henriettas, so much admired. The "Eudora" has something which the Henrietta lacks—to wit: greater width, greater softness, and superior dust shedding quality. And then it has an exquisite surface which gives it an almost regal presence. Wrapped on "The Varnished Board," and the name, Priestley, stamped on every five yards.

Medical Men and Intoxicating Drinks.

Medical men are constantly called upon to prescribe alcoholic liquors for their patients, and it is a question of the greatest importance to the community at large whether they should do so or not. Dr. Richardson, M.D., F.R.S.

Dr. Norman Kerr said he was perfectly convinced that alcoholic drink—medicinally—did more harm than good. It was neither a food nor a medicine, and nobody ought to prescribe it. Of course, there were cases in which alcohol was necessary, but they were very few indeed. Alcohol was a poison, and a dangerous one. It was the most overrated medicine in the pharmacopœia, and the fewer we had to do with it the better.

Of course, there were cases in which alcohol was necessary, but they were very few indeed. Alcohol was a poison, and a dangerous one. "Intoxicating liquors, in all their forms and however disguised, are the most productive curses of disease with which I am acquainted." Dr. Trotter

"If you value your happiness, if you value your lives—banish from your house from your tables, from your sick rooms, every drop of intoxicating drink; for the unmanned liquor produces weakness—not strength; sickness—not health; death not life."—Dr. Collenette

The following declaration was signed by 2000 members of the medical profession in the United Kingdom

"That the most perfect health in man or child is obtained by abstaining from all intoxicating beverages, whether in the form of ardent spirits, or as wine, beer, ale porter, cider, &c., &c. That persons accustomed to such drinks may, with perfect safety, discontinue them entirely, either at once, or gradually, after a short time. That total and universal abstinence from all alcoholic liquors and intoxicating beverages of all sorts would greatly contribute to the health, the prosperity, the morality and the happiness of the human race."

Three hundred leading physicians and surgeons of the metropolis agreed:—"That no medical man should prescribe alcohol without a grave sense of responsibility."

If Constantinople Falls.

What the first two powers, Germany and Austria would do in some future Russian advance toward Constantinople remains to be seen. As long as they are not occupied with serious business of their own, they will be at liberty to watch the movements of their giant rival. But let war break out between Germany and France, and Austria will be changed service of human life comfort involved in the use of Pyle's Pearline. Do not be misled by peddlers who say they have something "just as good" or "the same." Pearline is never peddled. If your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, which may be all right, send it back—you should not be cheated.

Barbaric Customs.

The nearer a nation approaches to the barbaric, the greater the love for the spectacular, and the smaller the regard for any sacrifice of human life or comfort involved in the gratification of this love. Pyle's Pearline is never peddled. If your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, which may be all right, send it back—you should not be cheated.

Deceased, who was 75 years of age, was born in Tyrone, Ireland, and came to this country many years ago. LATEST SPORTING NEWS.

YACHTING.

Duration's Action Justified.

Sailing news in to-day's Mail and Empire gives us news on the Defender's Bedford victory. They are as follows:

"There is no doubt Lord Dunraven will have a wash-out of American interest, but it appears his course was the dignified one. As a sportsman he has not ill-petted the decision of the Regatta Committee, and he bowed to it without any complaint. Therefore he is entitled to every credit for the programme of sailing as many races as may be necessary to get out of one or the other yacht winning three heats. He no doubt feels that the committee of the New York Yacht Club, in awarding the last race to Defender, were exceeding the prerogative of sportsmanship, and placing an award in accordance with public sympathy rather than upon the merits of the case.

I venture to predict that the America's cup will drop into oblivion for years to come, as no other challenger is likely to venture, in the face of Lord Dunraven's experience. The situation of the yachts in the fog of Tuesday's race was so ordinary as to connect with a yacht racing, and the rights of the case subject to the mark are as clearly understood by racing yachtsmen as the rights of starboard tack over port tacks. In writing as I do it is not because my sympathies are with Valkyrie, or because I know the majority of Canadians entertain this feeling, but because I believe it is the correct stand, and is concurred in by all well informed and unprejudiced American yacht racing men. In fact, three years ago, prominent racing Americans who were on board the same steamer as myself held these views, and did not imagine for a moment that the protest would even come before the committee. I thought it very bad form of Mr. Iselin showing a protest flag which raised a question that there could be so little doubt about.

There is no mistake, however, the Defender is a fine craft, and sails and handles beautifully. In a nine knot breeze there is no doubt that in such weather as we have seen both perform she can beat Valkyrie 5 days out of six. She does not stand up stiffly as Valkyrie, but does not list further than a certain distance, where she hangs. Valkyrie is as stiff as the proverbial church, in fact too much so for my fancy.

The weight of these suits may be imagined when it is remembered that a fallen knight had usually to wait to be lifted, it being impossible to rise on the weight of his own armor. The most powerful man of the Imperial Guard are selected to wear the symbolic suits, therefore, but on every occasion the burden of the knight on foot has proved beyond human endurance. The soldier who served at the obsequies of Nicholas I. fell dead of exhaustion on reaching the Church of Saints Peter and Paul, where the royal mausoleum is.

At the funeral of his successor Alexander II., the unfortunate black knight fainted while marching from the Winter Palace, and died that night at the hospital whither he was borne.

During the progress of the funeral procession of the late Czar, it was noticed that the black knight dragged himself along with over-increasing difficulty, and on reaching the fortress he sank to the ground unconscious, and died soon after.

Perhaps the new Czar will be content to die without exacting a spectacular victim when his time shall come.

Harry Lindley Coming.

The following article is from the Peterborough Examiner where Mr. Lindley is playing to crowded houses this week:—

"Harry Lindley, the well known and popular comedian, opened Cook's engagement at the opera house last night, supported by a strong company of 17 players. The house was crowded to the doors and standing room was at a premium. The play presented was the melodrama, "Sunshine and Shadow," and the audience was delighted indeed by the manner in which Mr. Lindley and his company rendered it. Mr. Lindley himself is too well known to need any comment, as his visits to Peterborough are always remembered with pleasure. The support in the strongest that he has gathered about him for years, and therefore during the ensuing week the Peterborough public may expect a treat in the line of portrayal of the company embraces some of the strongest plays of the season.

Mr. Lindley, Belleville's favorite comedian, will be seen in engagement in the opera house here Monday, Sept. 16, in the great melodrama "Sunshine and Shadow." Popular prices will prevail during the engagement. Secure Don't fail to attend the opening Monday night. Prices 10c, 20c and 30c.

A Great Institution.

Buffalo is the home of [illegible] institutions and industries of various descriptions. Among the largest of these is the Buffalo Hotel and Sanitarium, a great institution [illegible] founded over by Dr. R. V. Pierce.

Here is the instance of a [illegible] the practice of his profession, finding [illegible] in dollars an accessful that he [illegible] have them used beyond the limit [illegible] merely personal practice, reali however large this might be, it [illegible] public benefactor among [illegible] valuable remedies. With this [illegible] advertised, and their merits became [illegible] until they attained a world-wide sale. [illegible] received numerous consultations by mail from those who had received benefit from his medicines, and desired further professional advice. This department continued to grow by reason of successful results, until he now has eighteen experienced and skilled physicians associated with him, among whom are specialists in every chronic, or long standing disease.

Then the call for personal [illegible] from all parts of the country became so great, that it was necessary to erect an Invalids' Hotel so large that under no circumstances might he be found very far away from the [illegible] of life for the guest, who in the capacity of an invalid would receive treatment from specialists of the highest medical skill, assisted by the most complete staff that Dr. Pierce, the President of the Faculty. That an institution like this, great in conception and perfect in detail, of large dimensions containing patients from all sections, that a physician practicing medicine should have, so to speak, extended his practice over the world, by founding an institution like this, seems remarkable, and yet that is just what Dr. Pierce has done. Space will not permit us to describe this great Invalids' Hotel, but it is complete in every detail. Reception rooms, parlors, library, reading room, magnificent private rooms, a bath department supplied with Turkish and other baths, medical, surgical, electrical departments, etc. In passing we would allude to its Bureau of Medical correspondence, where from ten to twelve physicians with their stenographers are constantly employed in attending to vast correspondence received from invalids residing in all parts of the United States and Canada. Every important case receives the careful consideration of a council composed from three to five of these expert specialists, before finally passed upon, and prescribed for.

In the rear of the Invalid's Hotel is the World's Dispensary. This building, a hundred feet square and six stories high, contains the laboratory where Dr. Pierce's celebrated remedies are prepared from whence they are shipped to the world. Dr. R. V. Pierce, who for [illegible] of this institution that had no model. This seems to perfect in its appointments to [illegible] imitation, maintains constant personal supervision over every detail of [illegible] and is not yet sixty years of age. The young looking man for his age, and [illegible] the foremost citizens of Buffalo. [illegible] elected to the State Senate, and [illegible] to Congress, but felt [illegible] that high and honorable [illegible] to devote his [illegible] to his profession, and the service of his patients, [illegible] reals the secret of his wonderful success by showing the earnestness and devotion with which he applies himself to his chosen profession, always seeking new and improved methods to extend his usefulness.

Although a very busy man, Dr. Pierce has found time in which to write a great book of over a thousand pages entitled, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English, or Medicine Simplified. Few books printed in the English language have reached so great a sale as has this popular work, over 680,000 copies having been sold at $1.50 each. The profits on this enormous sale having repaid its author for the great amount of labor and money expended on its production, he has now decided to give away, absolutely free, 500,000 copies of this valuable book, the recipient only being required to mail to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N.Y., of which company he is the chief consulting physician, a cover cost of customs and postage only, and the book will be sent post-paid. It is a veritable medical library, complete in one volume. It contains 1008 large pages, and over 300 illustrations, some of them in colors. The Free Edition is precisely the same as that sold at $1.50, except [illegible] are bound in strong manilla paper covers, instead of cloth. It is not often that our readers have an opportunity to obtain a valuable book on such generous terms, and we predict that the first [illegible] availing themselves of the unusual and liberal offer to which we have called their attention.

Death of Richard Morden, of Northport.

At 9.30 p.m., on Sunday, Sept. 1st, at the residence of James Munro, Crofton, there passed away Richard Morden, a well known resident of Sophiasburgh. Deceased, who had attained the age of three score years and ten, was of United Empire Loyalist descent, having spent nearly all his life in Prince Edward county. He was at one time a merchant and postmaster at Northport, and in later years owned and managed the dock at that village. He was a man universally honest and upright in all his dealing, and at one time had amassed a property worth $40,000. Business reverses and other misfortunes followed and in his declining years found him reduced in circumstances. He was unmarried, a Conservative in politics, a zealous member of the Orange body and a consistent [illegible] with the Order of Oddfellows. He died in the house in which he was born. The funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon from the residence of his brother-in-law, W. F. Simpson, of Northport. There was a good attendance of friends and neighbors. Religious services were conducted by Rev. R. W. Meech, pastor of the Methodist church, after which the remains were interred in the Northport cemetery.—Detroit Tribune.

FIRE AT LONDON FAIR

Two Buildings on the Grounds Burned.

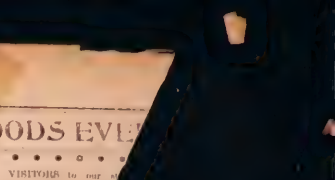

$10,000 WILL COVER THE LOSS.

A Badly Insulated Electric Wire Causes Destruction of the Carriage, Poultry and Other Buildings—The Exhibits Had Just Been Put in Place

London, Ont., Sept. 12.—With a meteoric display of fireworks the Western Fair was opened this evening. The exhibition was not set down on the official program, and although it involved an extra expenditure of $10,000 it went through without a hitch. Before the spark from the electric wire which started the blaze was extinguished the whole of the carriage building, the poultry shed and the Dairy and Bee building, besides two smaller erections, were in smoking ruins.

The formal opening of the Fair was set for Friday, and all day to-day people flocked to the grounds, and exhibits were being put in place.

Shortly after 7.30 the good ladies of the Women's Aid had prepared a little supper in their building and were seated around to enjoy it. Just then a wave of fire flew in the face of the ladies and the friends scrambled hurriedly out of front. Scenes of fire and when the departure sheds were the carriage wooden

THE "SCARE" ABOUT FILLED CHEESE.

Some of the English papers have been trying to get up a scare against Canadian cheese, following the same about cattle. The North British Agriculturist alleges on what it terms good authority, that a considerable proportion of the so-called full milk cheese from Canada is really made from separated milk, fattened with oleomargarine, which is very difficult to detect. It urges the Board of Agriculture to make an enquiry, and suggests that this explains why the Canadians are able to undersell the British farmers.

The charge that Canadian factories are turning oleomargarine filled cheese is so silly that it is strange that newspapers of the standing of the North British Agriculturist and the London Times should promulgate it. There is not a pound of oleomargarine or butterine made in Canada, as in 1892 93 the Dominion Government passed a law not only condemning the manufacture of butterine or oleomargarine in the Dominion, but making it a criminal offence to import such from any country. We can neither make nor import oleomargerine into Canada, much less adulterate cheese with it. Oleomargarine is made from pure animal fats, and by careful rendering a cool fat of a cow or ox it assumes a neutral taste—that is, you cannot tell by the taste what animal fat it belongs to. To give a flavor however, to those neutral fats the oleomargarine or butterine is churned with so much cream or new milk. This gives the butter flavor. But with our cooperative factory system in Ontario, how could oleomargarine filled cheese be manufactured on the wholesale scale?

GIROUARD FOR JUDGE.

He is Mentioned as Justice Fournier's Successor.

NOTES AND GOSSIP FROM OTTAWA.

English Capitalists Investigating British Columbia Mining Prospects—Heavy Mails on the Pacific Route —Sons of England Services—Other Items.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—Despite the statement in The Globe that Mr. Justice Fournier does not intend to resign from the Supreme Court bench, it is a positive fact, as announced by your correspondent the other day, that his resignation has been sent in, and more signed by him has been accepted. Within two or three weeks a new judge will have been appointed. Several names are being canvassed as possible successors to Justice Fournier. Mr. Girouard, M.P. for Jacques Cartier, being most prominently mentioned. Mr. Girouard it is said, can have the position if he is willing to take it. He is one of the best known men in the Province of Quebec and has a very large practice. Intimate friends say, however, it is doubtful whether he would care to surrender an income estimated at from $15,000 to $20,000 a year for the salary of a Supreme Court Judge, which is only $6000.

The ultramontane press in Quebec in discussing the order-in-council on the school question sent by the Government to Manitoba in July last, and which contains an expression of hope that Manitoba will accept "the middle course," affects to discern a surrender of the minority's legal rights and a justification of Mr. Angers' course in withdrawing from the Quebec last session rather than consent to further negotiations with Manitoba. Speaking of this attitude, a prominent Quebec Conservative said it would be a surrender of Mr Angers were thus making excuse with opponents of the Government for adopting a policy of conciliation. You read the statement which Mr. Ogilvie has made in the Senate and upon which he based his bolt, you will see that the essential point of difference between the Government's statement of position is that the late Minister of Agriculture protested against further negotiations with Manitoba on the subject, yet expressed the opinion that Manitoba should be given another delay effect, which really seems to me a case of hair-splitting. And it is upon this flimsy structure that friends are basing their arguments that by refusing to remain in the cabinet Angers, Sir Adolphe Caron and Mr. Oumet considered the cause of the Manitoba Catholics. Of course they did nothing of the sort and Conservative of Quebec fully realise that they had the fullest authority for the position taken by them in regard to the willingness of the minority to agree to a compromise upon details, not of principle, of the Separate school system. They were fully justified in holding to the belief that the Catholics of Manitoba were willing to accede to such provincial regulations and inspection as would ensure secular efficiency of those schools, stipulating merely that they should have control of the separate education of their children. I may tell you," he added, "that the Manitoba school question is less now exciting very little interest in Quebec. You hear much less of it in Quebec than in Ontario."

Sir C. H. Tupper and Hon. J. F. Wood left for Carleton Place and Richmond to-day. They were driven out by Warden Mohr. The day was a very pleasant one. Although none of the Ministers had a good opportunity for seeing the resources of the County of Carleton as effectively as at the show. During the afternoon addresses were delivered by Sir Charles Tupper and Mr. Wood.

The Journal, discussing the difference between the Agricultural Department and the grain men, says that "it looks like commonsense that Manitoba grain should regulate Ontario grain standards. The Montreal and Toronto Boards of Trade had better let Winnipeg alone."

The Marine Department was notified to-day of the wreck of the Sydney schooner, Lady Aberdeen, on the Island of St. Pierre. Mr. Steer, American consul at St. Pierre, has charge to provide the shipwrecked mariners, and to forward them food and a passage to Sydney with funds to be repaid by the Dominion Government.

A few weeks ago your correspondent announced the receipt at the Customs Department of a buckskin bag of gold dust from Yukon, which bag had been acquired by Inspector Constantine in payment of customs duties. The dust was sent to the mint in New York, and the department has just received a stamp of its value. Before melting the dust weighed 203.27 ounces. After melting 193.8 ounces. Value of the gold in money is $3,876.13, and of silver in it $18.55. The charges for melting, refining, alloy, etc., amounted to $2.41, the total sent to the department being $3,287.77.

Hon. Norman, Fred. Masters and J. H. Clemes, three English gentlemen representing a number of syndicates with a large amount of British capital at their back, are in the city en route for British Columbia. They bring letters of introduction from the High Commissioner to leading officials of the Government here. These gentlemen will proceed to the Coast on Monday for the purpose of looking into the mining prospects of British Columbia and reporting upon them as possible fields for investment of British capital.

An instance of the extent to which the mail service to Australia, via the Canadian route has developed, is afforded by figures which have just reached the Postoffice Department of mail taken out by the Warrimoo last month. The Warrimoo had 263 bags of mails on board, upwards of 200 of which were from Europe.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Hon. Mr. Daly are expected here on Monday morning from the Northwest.

Lieut.-Col. Joshua Wright of the 43rd Battalion, returned yesterday from a sojourn in British Columbia. He went out as the representative of an Ottawa syndicate, which is interested in gold mining claims near North Bend.

Deposits in Government savings banks during August totalled $314,094, and the withdrawals $257,862.

George Hilyworth of Hull was condemned yesterday by Recorder Champagne to pay $40 and costs for infraction of insurance regulations. The accused is connected with the Sons of England Benefit Society and has done much work for this organization, which is flourishing in Hull. The charge was laid by Inspector Bowker. The case will be appealed.

The analytical branch of the Inland Revenue Revenue Department is at present engaged analyzing samples of patent tinctures, candies, etc. procured in different cities of the Dominion.

LORD DUNRAVEN UPHELD

The British Press Unanimous on His Action in Withdrawing

New York Sept 14.—Valkyrie was towed to the Erie basin this morning, reaching there shortly before 10 o'clock. She did not enter the dry-dock, but was moored in a slip and her men began at once to strip most of her racing rigging. Valkyrie is badly decorated with flags and in lieu of a tug, left Bay Ridge about. Had this morning, presumably bound for New Rochelle.

According to the statements of Lord Dunraven, the regatta committee of the New York yacht club [illegible] races for the cup between defender and Valkyrie III., which ended in a victory for Defender in our race were by sailing, another won by a foul, and a third by a walk-over in breeze that [illegible]

Lord Dunraven asserts that he did not get any answer to a letter proposing certain concessions by the committees and that the committee fully understood that unless this reserve such answer he would consider at the line yesterday, cross, and then race, giving the race to the Defender. Commodore Smith was asked why the committee did not respond to any of the changes proposed by Lord Dunraven. He said that the conditions under which the races were to be sailed were made by mutual agreement and it was impossible to make radical changes at such a day. It would be a breach of the general understanding of the agreement and would only have caused more trouble. The committee did not, however, understand that Lord Dunraven intended only to cross the line and not sail the race if he was going to a finish, or they would have notified the public of his intention and the crowds would have gone home. In this case a race would not have been dispensed with.

The letter which was sent to the committee by Lord Dunraven was not published. Its contents had been fully considered before, and he had been told by Messrs. Cantiel and Busk that it would be useless to send it, as further reply was thought to be unnecessary. In the event of changes in the course, he said that while the rules of the club did not call for any particular course, they did call for one. It was also silent upon that point, the agreement covered that fully and could not be changed except by mutual consent.

For the cup He thought Lord Dunraven was quite right in his refusal to race, as it would have caused endless trouble.

On page 119 of the New York Club book is found a clause which gives the Regatta Committee absolute power to order the race be sailed over if in the judgment it should be. The Regatta Committee supported the action of Mr Angers were thus making excuse with opponents of the Government for adopting a policy of conciliation. You read the statement which Mr. Ogilvie has made in the Senate and upon which he based his bolt, you will see that the essential point of difference between the Government's statement of position is that the late Minister of Agriculture protested against further negotiations with Manitoba on the subject, yet expressed the opinion that Manitoba should be given another delay effect, which really seems to me a case of hair-splitting. They were fully justified in holding to the belief that the Catholics of Manitoba were willing to accede to such provincial regulations and inspection as would ensure secular efficiency of those schools, stipulating merely that they should have control of the separate education of their children. I may tell you," he added, "that the Manitoba school question is less now exciting very little interest in Quebec. You hear much less of it in Quebec than in Ontario.

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, SEPT. 14.

CANADA UNDER PROTECTION.

The Montreal Journal of Commerce goes to the trouble of replying to the London Economist letters under the above title, which have been reprinted in several Canadian Grit papers. So far as Canadian readers are concerned it seems scarcely necessary that any reply should be made to such a libel on the people's policy and commercial standing of this country, because similar tirades from Sir Richard Cartwright and others have been fully dealt with from time to time; but it is well that the facts should be published for the information of readers abroad who might be misled by the letters appearing in a leading English journal. After pointing out that the writer in the Economist committed the grave error of presenting only liabilities in this country and omitting all reference to assets, after noting that the debts of Quebec had no comparable relation to the National Policy, after showing that the effect of the coal duty had been to supply Canada with coal at cheaper rates, and after remarking the absurdity of the contention that protection had ruined Canada in the face of the fact that her financial reputation had so improved that while her municipalities were paying from 6 to 8 per cent. for money in 1878 they were now paying only from 3½ to 5 per cent., the Journal of Commerce proceeds:

"Against the sweeping assertion that Canada has made little or no progress since its present trade policy was established in 1879, we put the following facts: In January, 1878, the aggregate deposits in banks payable on demand or after notice were $82,276,000; last January they held $180,870,931, an increase of $111,954,892." In the same period the note issues have increased close upon $10,000,000. In June, 1878, the deposits in the post office and other savings banks were $14,128,185; since then they increased more than $40,000,000. In 1878 the loan companies held on deposit $8,270,000; this year they held 10 millions more.

While, then, "Canada under protection," as depicted by the Ottawa writer in the Economist, has been sinking deeper and deeper into financial distress, the people of Canada have enlarged their deposits in the banks of the country by $102,000,000! The total of $30,000,000 which our people owned and had stored up in 1878, they increased "under protection" in 15 years to $253,000,000, a sum sufficient to pay off the Dominion debt. In those 16 years the market value of the stocks of the six leading banks of Canada increased from $35,640,000 to $67,000,000. In 1878 the total premiums paid by the people of Canada for life insurance amounted to $2,610,000; last year the sum was four times that figure. The amount at risk under fire insurance policies has more than doubled in the same time.

Under free assets and proofs of increased financial resources we refrain from stating; the list is too lengthy. But, we submit, the above facts amply demonstrate that Canada under protection" has enormously increased her financial strength and her earning capacities; as a people numbering only 5 millions could not have increased their deposits at an average rate of 10 millions a year, steadily for 16 years, unless their incomes had, to that extent, exceeded their expenditures; nor could they have been enabled to borrow money at such greatly reduced rates unless money had become much more abundant, and public confidence in the country and the prospects of business more firmly established.

There is no department of industrial or commercial life in Canada which the facts do not prove to have been vastly benefitted by the National Policy. Under protection this country has greatly increased in wealth, in productiveness, in industrial capacity, in earning power and independence. In that period her resources have been opened up to the world, and a great agricultural and industrial power presented among the family of nations. The great Canals of to-day has been created within the past sixteen years, and created by the National Policy of the Liberal Conservative party. If the people of 1895 could see Canada for a single day as she was in 1878, no further argument in favor of the National Policy would be required during their natural lives. The contrast would astonish some of them.

Paine's Celery Compound, the Only Medicine that "Makes Sick People Well."

In the vast majority of cases, when sickness and disease lay hold of men and women, their first thoughts are connected with Paine's Celery Compound. This statement unvarnished and true is supported by thousands of letters from clergymen, medical men, business men, and our plain, every day people.

We are quite within the bounds of truth when we assert, that in times of danger, when nervousness, insomnia, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuralgia, debility, liver and kidney troubles or blood diseases threaten health and life—people think more of Paine's Celery Compound than above its long roll of marvellous cures, than they do of all the doctors around them.

A gentleman, who travels constantly in every part of the Dominion, says:

"Everywhere I go I hear people talk about Paine's Celery Compound and singing its merit. Very rarely have I heard any other medicine spoken of."

This statement means that Paine's Celery Compound has been weighed, tested and tried by our Canadian people, and has accomplished more than was promised for it.

Paine's Celery Compound truly and honestly "makes sick people well." It is therefore to the life-interests of all sick people that they insist upon getting the only medicine that cures, when they ask for it. Some dealers are inclined to recommend something else for the sake of profit to themselves. This reprehensive practice of recommending something else will not save your life; you are only certain of health and life when you use Paine's Celery Compound. No straightforward, honest dealer will offer you a substitute.

LARGE EXPORTS OF GOLD

Another Run on the U. S. Treasury Reserve.

London, Sept. 13.—The financial position of the United States Government continues to engage the close attention of the London press. The exports of gold to the United States are likely to be on a much larger scale than was anticipated a few days ago. A London financial house has received a cable message from New York announcing that the Treasury gold reserve has fallen to $60,000,000, and that the Government will be obliged to issue bonds unless the withdrawals of gold for export cease. The announcement has caused a panic in financial circles here, and it is feared that the withdrawals will continue running at the present figure, or even more, during the next week or ten days. The Government has been advised that the syndicate which undertook to float the last bond issue has made within the past two years over $6,000,000 more than the total Treasury balance to-day, so without these profits the syndicate would now be an empty Treasury.

The Times says:—"The Government's position is very serious. It seems to be left to the mercy of a number of speculators, who, by withdrawing gold, can at any moment force the Government to suspend specie payments. The only way to avert the danger is to borrow gold in Europe. Such a step would be a confession of weakness, which would be taken full advantage of by the enemies of sound finance in the United States. The condition of the exchange market has finally forced us to withdraw the gold for export.

The backwardness of the common and grain crops, and the fact that Europe is holding large stocks of our cotton at cheap prices, operate against a supply of commercial bills. Besides this, the cheapness of money makes it profitless for Europe to keep idle funds here. This shipment should not be considered of any importance. It is a few weeks before we will be in abundance of commercial bills in the market, and the pressure will be relieved."

J. P. Pierpont Morgan, when asked as to the report of the rupture of the Government bond syndicate, as indicated by the reappearance of Leonard Peckover's roll of marvellous cures, than they do of all the doctors around them.

"There has been no rupture. The syndicate is going on just the same, trying to help all it can, but its obligations expired some time ago."

On being asked if he did not anticipate a decided increase in the supply against common and breadstuffs, he replied in the affirmative, and expressed some surprise that a greater supply of bills was not in the market. Sub-Treasury officials express confidence that the impairment of the Treasury gold reserve by the exports would be made good. The withdrawals of gold from the sub-treasury for export during the day amounted to $4,650,000, and the deposits by National banks to off-set this, to $2,400,000.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Secretary Carlisle positively declined to-day to express an opinion on the subject of the heavy withdrawals of gold at New York for shipment to Europe. As a means of obtaining gold Secretary Carlisle accepted the offer of several parties to supply gold at New York, and he agreed to give them Government contract rates for shipments in currency from Washington to any point designated upon their depositing gold in New York. The last evening deposited was not drawn from the Treasury. At present shippers have to pay bankers' rates, which are considerably higher than the Government rates.

His Head Cut Off.

Watertown, Sept. 13.—Miles J. Parsons, sprinkler inspector, caught his head between a sprocket and a chain on a carrier at Watertown engine house this evening. The last evening. His head was severed from his body. Death resulted instantly. He was playing with the machinery at the time of the accident.

Fatally Injured at Sarnia.

Sarnia, Ont., Sept. 13.—Ed. Kelly and H. Hunnington were raising the mast off the barge Severn, when the platform tipped and both fell. Hennideon broke his leg and Kelly fell into the hold and was fatally injured.

$5000 Blaze in Harriston.

Harriston, Ont., Sept. 13.—A frame building known as the Odd-fellow's Block, and occupied by J. C. Brown's Bloves and thinware, C. Johnston, spring matress factory, and Wright's repair shop, was destroyed by fire 15 day. Building valued at $2500 and insurance $1500. Brown's stock about $2500, insurance $1100; partially saved.

Carrier Pigeons

Mr. George Thompson, of the Canadian Express Company, sent off seven baskets of carrier pigeons from the lower bridge this morning between eleven and twelve forty-five o'clock, an interval of fifteen minutes elapsing between the liberation of each basket. It is always an interesting sight to see the pigeons escape, their quick, upward flight, then their wheeling until they got their bearings, then off to their destination. The first lot consisting of three had a hard time of it and their unusual non-appearance not at first to be accounted for, higher they rose in the air, went to every point of the compass and again returned to above where they were let loose. Finally it was noticed that there was a hawk in bird and this proved to be a hawk. Doubtless that "first law of nature," self protection, was stronger than instinct and they had to look out for number one before following their training.

A FINE STRUCTURE!

O'BRIEN'S BRIDGE FORMALLY OPENED TO THE PUBLIC.

The Old Wooden Bridge Replaced by a Beautiful and Substantial Steel One—Inspected by County Councillors and Others—A First-Class Job in Every Particular—Complimentary Addresses by Prominent Men of the County.

For some time past work has been going on on the bridge across the river Moira, known as O'Brien's bridge, between the sixth and seventh concession of the township of Thurlow. On Wednesday the structure was completed and yesterday it was formally taken off the contractor's hands by the members of the Gravel Roads and Bridges Committee of the County. The event had been looked forward to with much expectancy by the public which have occasion to use that thoroughfare. The old bridge was a wooden structure and for years has not been in a thoroughly safe condition. A large number were present, amongst whom were the following: W. S. Martin, Reeve of Stirling and Warden; J. K. McCargar, Dep. Reeve of Thurlow and chairman of the Gravel Roads and Bridges Committee of the County. The event had been looked forward to with much expectancy by the public which have occasion to use that thoroughfare. The old bridge was a wooden structure and for years has not been in a thoroughly safe condition. A large number were present, amongst whom were the following: W. S. Martin, Reeve of Stirling and Warden; J. K. McCargar, Dep. Reeve of Thurlow and chairman of the Gravel Roads and Bridges Committee of the County. Dench, 1st Deputy Reeve of Sidney; Jas. English, Reeve of Madoc township; J. W. Perry, Reeve of Marmora; J. Fanning, Reeve of Huntingdon; J. Montgomery, Reeve of Rawdon; J. C. Hanley, Reeve of Tyendinaga; J. Stokes, Reeve of Hungerford; N. Vermilyea, Reeve of Thurlow; T. Rickett, Reeve of Tudor and Cashel; F. J. Thompson, Reeve of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe; W. R. Aylesworth, County Clerk; A. J. Macey, of Sidney, ex-Warden; P. Vankleek, County supt. of roads and bridges; H. Corby, M.P. for West Hastings; W. B. Northrup, M. P. for East Hastings; Dr. Jacques, ex-Mayor of Trenton; E. Brintnell and R Weddell, of Trenton, the contractor.

The party arrived at Thrasher's Corners shortly after noon and partook of dinner at Thrasher's hotel. After dinner they proceeded to the bridge and found that a large number of persons had already congregated. The structure was thoroughly inspected, and tested by the driving over of heavy loads and the trotting across of Mr. H. Crook's cariol, in which were seated a number of persons. The test was considered to be perfectly satisfactory to all.

The Structure.

The bridge is built of steel and is 348 feet in length. There are four spans, two being 100 feet in length, one 70 ft. and one 60 ft. The bridge proper rests upon eight steel caisson piers, which are securely fastened on pile driven foundations, resting upon the rock bottom. The caissons are 4x12 feet and are filled with concrete. Six of these are in the stream and two at the northern end of the approach. At each end of the bridge are solid stone masonry abutments built of lime stone laid in cement. The flooring is laid with six inch cedar of the best quality. The structure proper is about 20 feet wide, there being 16 feet in the clear. The work was commenced on July 4th and completed in a little over two months, some two or three weeks before the time specified in the contract. It is a fine structure and reflects great credit not only upon the Weddell Bridge Company, of Trenton, which constructed it, but upon the County Council, which had it erected. It may be stated that the steel work was put up in Bridge Street Smith being the foreman. This is the first bridge built in this county which has the caission piers. They are considered by experienced men as much more durable than stone piers and less expensive. They will also prove beneficial in the spring time when the river breaks up, as being circular the ice cannot become blocked up as often the case where bridges are built upon stone piers. The total cost of the structure was $7,0.3. At the south end is hung a nicely executed wire screen up which is the following:

WEDDELL BRIDGE WORKS,
TRENTON, 1895.

After the inspection had been made those present congregated at the south end of the bridge and speech making was the order of the day. Mr. J. K. Hanley was chosen chairman and in a few well chosen remarks stated the object of the gathering, namely, to inspect the bridge and receive it from the contractor.

The Warden said the bridge was a credit to the County and also to the contractor. Although the expenditure upon bridges and other work in the county was large, the taxes had not been increased. He referred to the County's finance and the healthy condition in which they were. The county was second to none in the Province.

Mr. W. B. Northrup, M.P., was pleased with the remarks made by the Warden. The bridge was a fine structure. It was in his opinion a wise expenditure. He referred to the fact that it was the only bridge in the county built entirely of steel. All should be proud of it, as it had been constructed in a substantial manner and the expenditure had not been very great. The county showed a steady improvement and he was pleased to note it.

Mr. N. Vermilyea, Reeve of Thurlow, thanked the County Council for the erection of such a fine bridge in the township over which he presided. The Council was working harmoniously for the best interests of the county.

Mr. F. Thompson said all work done for the County by Mr. Weddell had given the best of satisfaction and he had no doubt this structure would prove to be satisfactory.

Mr. J. S. Dench was pleased to see such a fine bridge and he was certain that it would stand for years as it was of a substantial character, being built of the best material.

Mr. John Stokes said the old bridge had been considered unsafe for some time and he was pleased to see the new one. In his opinion it was economy to build such bridges.

Mr. H. Corby, M.P., was pleased to be present at the opening of the bridge. The County and contractors were to be congratulated upon its erection. There was not a county in the country which was better managed than Hastings county. He referred to his recent trip in foreign countries and progress which was being made on roads and bridges generally. Of all places he had seen there was no place he liked better than Hastings county and the Bay of Quinte. He hoped the county would go on and prosper in the future as in the past

Messrs. W. R. Aylesworth, J. M. Farley, J. Pearce, J. English, P. Vankleek, Dr. Jacques, of Trenton, and the contractor, Mr. R. Weddell, also spoke a few words, when the meeting closed with cheers for the Warden and County Councillors, Mr. H. Corby, Mr. W. B. North rup and the contractor. The structure was then declared formally opened to the public.

REMEMBER THE WIDOW AND ORPHANS.

Mrs. Richard Ham Presented With a Letter of Condolence and Her Husband's Insurance.

The following gentlemen, members of Belleville Lodge No. 81, I.O.O.F., called upon Mrs. R. Ham, Burton st., last evening: John Cook, Treasurer; L. P. Pinnegar of the I.O.O.F. Relief Association; C. H. Vermilyea, N.G.; A. McFeeand O. Brickman, P.G's. The object of the visit was to extend to her the sympathy of the lodge in her bereavement and to present her with her husband's insurance in the Relief Association ($2,000) and the Widows' and Orphans' Benefit ($500). The following letter of condolence was read and presented to her:

DEAR MADAM:—The members of Belleville Lodge, No. 81, I.O.O.F., desire to convey to you an expression of their deep sympathy and regret at the irreparable loss you have sustained in the death of a husband and father. We desire you to rest assured of the assurance of the high regard and esteem in which your late husband was held by every member of the lodge, and whose good qualities won for him the love and friendship of all who knew him. We know that the affliction is a heavy one and hard to bear, but we trust that He that hath taken him from your loving care here on earth, may fill the blank made in your home with the thought of a glorious reunion in the heavenly home above, where all pain shall cease and parting be no more. Signed on behalf of Belleville Lodge, No. 81, I.O.O.F.,

C. H. VERMILYEA,
A. BATES,
J. A. COOK.

Needless to say Mrs. Ham was overcome by the kind expressions contained in the letter and with difficulty expressed her appreciation of the order and the kindnesses she had met with from the members. It would be well if all working men, who have nothing but the fruits of their labor to depend upon, would take out a small insurance in some fraternal society where the premiums are small.

Sea Comforts for Railroad Men.

An innovation is welcome which combines an increase of comfort and economy. Most people will only need to be told once of the windproof qualities of Flure Chamois and the warmth it will give to a coat, vest, or wrap of any kind to make them want to try it. After that they will find out for themselves that it doubles the warmth of a garment without adding weight. Some sensible person proved this time to arrange that all the new uniforms of the G. T. R. employes should be lined with Flure Chamois, and as a result the wearers of the uniforms will escape many a nipping wind and dangerous chill.

LOOK OVER YOUR DISHES.

A Chance to Renew Them.

Commencing Monday morning, Sept. 16th, the Messrs. Stroud, of "The Ten Store," will offer every article in their stock of China, Silverware, Glassware and Crockery at big reductions on their usual prices. They have decided to do this to clear out everything before moving into their handsome new store, with a new stock, October 1st. Special bargain tables of odds and ends have been made up. These will be kept filled until all is cleared out. Store closes 7 o'clock week nights.

Another American Fraud.

A representative of T. D. Bezzell, of Montreal, was in the city to-day purchasing horses in company with Walter Fanning. To a reporter he said that the Americans were practising the same game in regard to horses that they some time ago worked with cheese. Quite recently 200 horses were shipped to Montreal from Chicago in bond and kept there for two weeks, when they were shipped to the old country as Canadian horses. Our horses, unlike our cheese, have won a reputation in England that the Americans are envious of, but if such reprehensible trickery is allowed to be carried on the market will soon be destroyed.

Stocks of Overcoats.

The cool weather is here and you will take cold if you don't watch out. The Oak Hall are all ready with a splendid assortment of fall and winter overcoats of every description. Long beavers, double breasted, will be worn this winter. We have them from $5 to $25. Don't miss seeing the Oak Hall stock of overcoats.

Bay of Quinte Exhibition.

The Directors of the exhibition are booming the fair. An impression seems to prevail among a great number that the exhibition is comparatively tame. This is not the fact, as on that day there will be fine bicycle races, and also some good exhibitions of speed by thoroughbred horses from the stock of the celebrated running horse Varsella and others will compete.

The fireworks from Prof. Hand's establishment have arrived and will be placed in position for the display on Thursday night.

The Premier Will be Here.

Mr. W. N. Ponton received a letter this morning from Sir Mackenzie Bowell, stating that he would be here two days next week to attend the fair. The Premier is an ex-president of the West Hastings Agricultural Society and has been none of his old County minister's annual fair.

Two of these he caught on two lines at the same time and the two of them weighed 18 lbs. Pike fishing was never better in the bay

Catarrh in the Head

Is a dangerous disease because it is liable to result in loss of hearing or smell, or develop into consumption. Read the following:

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H. The Baby Show.

To the Editor of the INTELLIGENCER.

The enclosed letter, which the writer kindly permits me to publish, was much appreciated by our Directors at our last meeting and I feel sure the public will recognize with favor the interest Mr. Millet takes in our great Fair and will regret that his negative is positive. Volunteers, (with or without arms) are now wanted to fill his honorable and perilous post. With regard to the evening exhibitions I am glad to say that some of our local musicians have offered their services for Wednesday evening, so that in addition to the band and "muskets of musketry," a rare treat may be expected at the illuminated promenade concert in the evening.

Yours &c.,
W. N. PONTON.

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 9th, 1895.

DEAR SIR,—I am in receipt of your kind favor of the 5th inst., notifying me of the fact that the Directors of the Bay of Quinte Exhibition had been so kind and had responded such confidence in me as to appoint me one of the judges on babies. I also note with pleasure the delicate eulogy you apply to my insight in human nature. In the face of such flattering testimony I can assure you that I could find no greater pleasure than to accede to your wishes. I can appreciate how mighty are the results that hang on the determination, incident to this position, and I can assure you that not even the vials of wrath and indignation that might be brought down on my head, should for a moment cause me to shrink from the trial of so exalted a position, or to swerve from my duty. I also readily understand that the effects of such a judgment, as one in this position would be called upon to pronounce, will extend far into the future and make or mar the life or lives of generations yet unborn. The baby who draws a prize in such a competition for its beauty must forever after wards be taken as beautiful, without question, on production of its medal; and so its children and children's children will claim inherently and by inheritance the beauty of their ancestor, and will mention the name of the judge who first discovered the family beauty with reverence and unfailing praise. It may further say that having been at one time one of our City's Fathers and for some time an officer of the Argyle Light Infantry I recognize my peculiar qualifications as judge of Kinds of Light Infantry, though that myimodesty prevents me saying so. However, I may say that notwithstanding all this I must withdraw my claim for the honor and honor preferred so kindly to me, because from present indications my professional duties will call me out of the city for a portion of next week and I do not feel that it would be just to keep the sad news from the Directorate so long. Let me say, however, that I could stave off this doom, but have abandoned the attempt in despair. Please accept my thanks and regrets.

Yours truly,
W. C. MIKEL.

The October Number of the Bellman is Called the Autumn Number.

And contains a choice and varied selection of timely articles. It gives an authoritative exposition of the Single Tax, illustrating a variety of novel, artistic and beautiful garments. Especially timely and valuable is its discussion of mourning. Mrs. Roger A. Pryor's paper on Etiquette of Grief is outlined from the highest authority by an instructive article giving patterns and designs for mourning attire. Every mother in the responsibilities of a home should study what is said about fitting out a family, the season's menus and how to prepare and utilize odds and ends being fully treated. The progress of co-education in Great Britain and Ireland is discussed by Mrs. Dodgson. Bookbinding as an occupation for women is entertainingly described by Evelyn Hunter Nordoff. Mrs. Wallace describes a new and amusing form of entertainment. The reopening of the Bellman is remembered in a number of things suitable for the children's luncheon basket, while A. H. Fox Pitt's article illustrating a dual exposition of how to live. The return of cooler weather makes timely the admirable illustrated designs for burnt work by Harriet Keith Fobes fully sustain the interest felt in these articles. Around the table has its usual admirable variety, and the newest books are sympathetically reviewed. Further directions are given in knitting, netting, tatting, etc.

Over the hills and far away,
A little boy steals from his morning play
And under the blossoming apple tree
He lies and he dreams of the things to be:
Of battles fought and of victories won,
Of wrongs o'erthrown and of great deeds done
Of the valor that he shall prove some day.
Over the hills and far away—
Over the hills, and far away!

Over the hills and far away,
It's oh, for the toil the livelong day!
But it matters not to the soul attune
With a love for riches and power and fame!
On, O man! while the sun is high—
On to the certain joys that lie
Yonder where blaseth the noon of day.
Over the hills and far away—
Over the hills, and far away!

Over the hills and far away,
An old man lingers at close of day:
Now that his journey is almost done,
His battles fought and his victories won—
The old-time honesty and truth
The trustfulness and his friends of youth,
Home and mother—where are they?
Over the hills and far away—
Over the hills, and far away!

As Seen by an Outsider.

The Port Hope Guide in its issue of yesterday says: Mr. Wilson, the senior member of the firm of Wilson & Sons that afternoon after spending a pleasant time in Belleville. The street car service of that city is indeed a credit to it and a finer hotel than the Quinte cannot be found even in our largest city.

A Chat on Tobacco and its Use.

In boyhood days many men began the use of tobacco. Some of them regret ever having begun its use, while others would not be without it for love or money. Tobacco is a poison to most men and authorities state it often paves the way to liquor. Many men want to quit tobacco but can't. PRICE'S TOBACCURE will help them. It's a guaranteed cure. $1 a box. FIRE EATING

No Worse Than Fruit Eating When One Is Used to It.

I have called me to the [illegible] but I have filled the [illegible] of explanations of chemists [illegible] to the [illegible] partially. My [illegible] to [illegible] in such it [illegible] the very magic of practice, but in some cases a an apparatus which must be very carefully and neatly constructed. The fire-eater usually performances on a raised platform, which hides the source of the fire while it seems only to lift the operator a trifle higher from the floor of the room and it is ordinarily covered with a handsome red carpet. It contains in the hollow space beneath a piece of rubber filled with ordinary illuminating gas and compressed by weights.

The fire-eater has beneath the sole of his foot an ingenious apparatus ending in a tube which fits exactly into another tube coming up through the platform from underneath, and forming a tight connection when he steps upon it; very fine rubber tubes of the same color of the magician's dress, which is usually a diabolical scarlet red, run up along his body and along the arms to the furthest end of the index fingers, another tube runs around his neck and up under his chin, which is usually covered by a false beard, ending at his nether lip.

When entering upon the stage all the lights are usually turned down to heighten the effect of the performance; the operator steps lightly upon the platform, makes his connection, and, after a sign that he is ready, the gas is turned on from beneath. When he feels that it is beginning to escape from the tube at the end of his finger he lights it by means of a little push button, which is conveniently located near by, and sometimes even within the clothes on the inside of the cloak. The gas once burning he has it entirely under his control, to light or turn out any one of the various jets he has previously arranged about his body. The jets on the fingers are controlled by pressure of the thumb upon the thin rubber tube; the gas jet on his lip is lighted by a motion of the hand, and he always turns up his face, opens his mouth wide and pretends to blow the flame from the mouth. The appearance is very deceptive, indeed, as the breath blown from the lungs give much life to the flame. As the scene is never very light while the fire-eaters are at work, their secret has never before been discovered.

Hope.

We sailed upon the desert sea,
Where for whole days we alone seemed to be,
At last we saw a dim, vague line arise
Between the lonely billows and the skies,
That grew and grew until it wore the shape
Of cove and inlet, promontory and cape;
Then hills and valleys, rivers, fields and woods,
Steeples and roofs and village neighborhoods,
And then I thought, "Some time I shall embark
Upon a sea more desert and more dark
Than ever this was, and between the skies
And lonely billows I shall see arise
Another world out of that waste and haze,
Like yonder land. Perhaps—perhaps—perhaps."

Miraculous Water.

St. John's Loch, or the Holy Loch, at Dunnet possesses a mysterious power for the allaying of diseases of divers kinds. Ere the sufferer can be healed he must walk thrice around the water before sunrise. On the surface of a well at Halkirk lies a slimy veil, the colors of which in the sunlight are brilliant and varied as the plumage of a peacock. To the faithful only is it given to see this phenomenon. Many a Caithness peasant believes in the efficacy of "casting the heart" for the cure of sickness. Into water drawn from certain wells and running streams some melted lead is dropped. Portions of the metal form into heart-shaped pieces, and if one of the lead hearts be put into all becomes drunk by the ailing person health is restored. This cure can, however, be effected on certain days only in each raith, or quarter.

St. Tredwell's Loch, in Papa-Westray, evidently one of the many centres of the ancient hermits of Papa, had of yore a wide fame, in part because its waters turned red as a prognostic of any important event in the royal family, in part because of its marvelous curative powers. A large number of coins, chiefly of the seventeenth century, have been found at the chapel-hard by, offerings of gratitude, doubtless, from those who were healed by washing in the loch or by walking silently around the edge.

A typical example of water worship survives in the north. The maiden who, on New Year's morning, first draws a pailful of water from the village well is accounted singularly fortunate. She has, in truth, secured the "flower of the well," and will be happy for the succeeding year.—Scottish Review.

Companionship in Golf.

The element of companionship enters seriously into golf. It enters considerably into most games, so that the majority of us care much for whom we play with than what we play. But one could play tennis with any player whose skill approximated to his own without much thought of the personal idiosyncrasies, for the net yawns and stretches between tennis players, keeping them apart; and while they are playing the action is too lively to permit communication of anything but the ball. But a fit person to play golfers with is one thing and a thoroughly satisfactory person to play golf with is another. Ivan Putney was trifling with a stroke, exulting when he made a good one, grieving when he didn't, and working hard all the time. And when he wasn't attending to his own game he was paying close attention to mine. That was, perhaps, his greatest charm. His interest kept me always warm, so that I held almost as much of my breath over his strokes as his own mine.—Scribner's.

PANTHER AND RATTLER.

Fight a Duel to the Death at West Point, N.Y.

Henry Willet, the telegraph operator at West Point, started an abattoir for rattlesnakes and panthers a few days ago in the mountains behind the Government reservation. He took with him "Joe" Stephens and "Joe" Stamm all being on their vacation, two tents to live in, and the necessary supplies. They were piloted to the camping place by Sergeant Kiernan, the original discoverer. It is such a hard place to find that it is worth [illegible] turning lost himself. Sergeant [illegible] declared that in the 25 [illegible] on wild cats that he [illegible].

While after a hard day's [illegible] Popolopen Lak and a hard [illegible] telling about his [illegible] on Monday night He [illegible] had an enormous rattlesnake coiled up on [illegible] breast. The snake roused him in [illegible] Willet didn't [illegible] unfriendly and natural stock. They exchanged [illegible] the telegraph operator being [illegible] but, expecting it, he bitten every moment.

The snake pressed [illegible] and [illegible] to the [illegible] suddenly [illegible] a rewl was heard [illegible] and then a couple of balls of fire were bounced [illegible] Willet. They were [illegible] panthers. [illegible] they were [illegible] eyes and he began to walk towards the unarmed man in order to eat him up. Suddenly the snake commenced to hiss and rattle his rattles excitedly. Then it made a jump and buried his fangs in th panther's [illegible] the snake did, not Willet.

Then the panther seized the snake with its claws and, taking his head in his mouth, crushed it to a jelly. After that the panther went into awful convulsions and in a few minutes was dead.

Dr. Saunders arrived at the camp a few hours later and skinned the animals. I. H. Wheeler, an undertaker, has the skins and is stuffing them. Willet says that it isn't a rare thing for West Point panthers and rattlesnakes to fight duels to the death. Willet was very much prostrated by his awful experience, but his troubles are yielding to treatment.—New York World.

Dazzled Insects.

The arc lamp has always had a strange fascination for birds and insects. The public has become quite accustomed to the periodical publication of statistics on the number of birds of passage killed at the various coast lighthouses by dashing against the glass in which the arc lantern was inclosed, drawn by the brightness of the light, and also to the stories of sparrows that have built their nests within the arc globes, and persisted in returning when dislodged. The arc lamp has, moreover, been the means of strengthening many of the best entomological collections in the country by the addition of rare insects that had formerly been most difficult to capture. These insects were almost invariably specimens of land species; but an unusual phenomenon has lately been observed in several towns, the insects of which are lighted by the arc lamp. Immense swarms of water beetles would surge toward the lights, and in the morning the carcasses of these aquatic coleopterа would be found lying by bushels at the base of the lamp posts. The insects would charge in solid column against the arcs, and fill the interior of the globes until the carbons were choked and the lamp went out. When daylight came the survivors returned to the neighboring ponds and hid themselves in the mud. A singular feature of the recent destruction of elms in New York and the New England States is that the work of the leopard moth seems to be confined to the brilliantly lighted streets and suares. Trees in dimly lighted suburbs have often been comparatively free from the attacks of both moth and beetle, while the trees within the city suffered severely. In some places it is even insisted that before the introduction of the electric arc for street and park lighting the trees were molested by few beetles, and the leopard moth was unknown.—New York Times.

Unique Copenhagen Concerts.

Every midsummer day a unique concert is given in Copenhagen, such as the whole world cannot show the like of. There are kept in the Copenhagen museum a number of ancient Scandinavian horns, more than 3,000 years old, called "Lurer," the [illegible] collection fourteen are in good condition. They have an elegant shape, and the flat metal plates at the mouthpiece show good technical perfection, and a developed taste together. They were found buried in moorland, and their good preservation is believed to be due to the turfy water. They are of very thin metal, and generally seven feet long. They were always found in pairs, the one in tune with the other. A few years ago a third was found out by Dr. Hammerich that they could still be blown or played upon. Their tones resemble those of the tenor horn, and they have a soft but powerful sound. Some are tuned in C and E sharp; others in D, E or G, and these tones form an accord, but no "scale." The midsummer concert is held as follows: On a balcony in the court of the princely palace in which is kept the Northern Museum, two members of the royal "capella" blow tunes on two of these primeval horns. An enormous crowd fills the court, the streets, the marble bridge, and the neighboring square as far as it is possible to hear the sounds.—London Daily News.

A PROSPEROUS REPUBLIC.

Rapid Growth of the Population and Power of the Nation.

Some figures of the new census of the Argentine Republic that has been taken this summer have been received in New York. It appears from them that the growth of the country has been steady and rapid during the past quarter of a century, and that next to Brazil it is the most populous, as it is the most prosperous of all the countries of South America.

When the last Argentine census was taken, twenty-five years ago, the population was 1,737,000, but within that time it has risen to 4,25,000, according to the statistics of the new census. The increase has been over 1,000,000, and it is going on. In these years, at a rate surpassing that of any previous period in Argentine history. This is a remarkable record, without a parallel in the annals of South America. The population greatly exceeds that of Chili, with its 3,000,000 inhabitants, or that of Peru, or Venezuela, or Bolivia or Colombia, while it is three or four times greater that that of the lesser Republics, Ecuador, Paraguay and Uruguay. It is one-third as large as that of Brazil, the most important of all the countries of the South American continent. Since the year of the census preceding that of this summer Argentine has taken its place next to Brazil.

The great growth of population is due in large measure to immigration from Europe, which Argentina takes by means to promote. Over one-fifth of the inhabitants are of foreign birth, mostly Italian, French and Spanish, and there is also a large number of Germans and Poles. The Italians have responded most readily to the inducements held out to them by the Argentine Government, and though 1,000 part of the census in which the people are classified by races

THE OPEN WINDOWS.

A SERMON ON CHRISTIAN CHEERFULNESS AND ENCOURAGEMENT

Rev. Dr. Talmage on Daniel's Devotions Before the Window that Faced His Native Jerusalem the Battle With Sin and Death the Victory.

New York, Sept. 8.—In his sermon for to-day Rev. Dr. Talmage has taken a theme overflowing with Christian cheerfulness and encouragement. The subject is "Open Windows," and the text selected was Daniel vi, 10: "His windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem."

The scoundrelly princes of Persia urged on by political jealousy, said Daniel have succeeded in getting a law passed that no one should pray to God; he should be put under the power of the lions, who were kept in dens, the prisons in rare cases, burrowed up and down the stone of a pit in which they have given a wide round for the lions to fill the earth in search for the Lion of the tribe of Judah not to devour. The enemies might as well have a law that the sun should not draw water or that the south wind should not sweep up from the gulf of magnolias, or that God should be abolished. They could not stop him with the tethering of mere mortal laws, they cannot now scare him with the lions. As soon as Daniel hears of the enactment he leaves his office of Secretary of State, with its opulent display of crimson and gold, and comes down the hall, the marble steps ascend to his own house. He opens his window and puts the shutters back and pulls the curtain aside—a clear, cool look toward the sacred city of Jerusalem, and then prays.

I suppose in the public street gathered under and before his window and said "Just see that man defying the law. He ought to be arrested. And the constabulary ought very much to the police headquarters and report that Daniel is on his knees at the wide open window. You are my prisoner," says the officer of the law, dropping a heavy hand on the shoulder of the kneeling Daniel. The constables open the door of the cavern to thrust in their prisoner they see the glaring eyes of the monsters. But Daniel becomes the first lion-tamer, and they lick his hand and fawn at his feet, and that night he sleeps with the shaggy mane of a wild beast for his pillow, while the king that night, sleepless in the palace, lies on him the paw and teeth of a lion not yet tame—the lion of a remorseful conscience.

What a picture it would be for [illegible] Darius, ill the early dusk [illegible] not waiting for footmen [illegible] going to the den, all [illegible] through the crevices of [illegible] see what had become of [illegible] "What, no sound!" [illegible] Daniel is safe! Daniel is [illegible] and they are sleeping after their [illegible] on the bones of the poor man [illegible] the floor of the cavern." With trembling voice Darius calls out, "Daniel!" No answer, for the prophet is in profound slumber. But a lion, more easily awakened, advances, and with hot breath blown through the crevice, seems to demand the cause of this interruption, and then another wild beast lifts his mane from under Daniel's head, and the prophet, waking up, comes forth to report himself all unhurt and well.

But our text stands us at Daniel's window, open toward Jerusalem. Why in that direction more than another? It was his native land and all the pomp of his Babylonish successes could not make him forget it. He came from Jerusalem at 18 years of age, and he never left it, though he lived to be 85 years. Yet when he wanted to arouse the grandest aspirations of his heart, he had his window open toward his native Jerusalem. There are many of you today who understand that without any exposition. This is getting to be a nation of foreigners. They have come into all occupations and professions. They sit in all churches. It may be but 20 years ago since you got your naturalization papers, and you may be thoroughly Americanized, and you can't forget the land of your birth and your warmest sympathies go out toward it. Your windows are open toward Jerusalem. Your fondest memories are buried there. It may have been a very humble home in which you were born, but your memory often turns around it and you hope some day to go and see it—the hill, the tree, the brook, the house, the place so sacred, the door from which you started off with parental blessing to make your own way in the world, and God only knows how sometimes you long for chance to see the familiar places of your childhood and how in awful crisises of life you would like to have caught a glimpse of the old, wrinkled face that bent over you as you lay on the gentle lap 20 or 40 or 50 years ago. You may have on this side of the sea entered on fortune, and, like Daniel, have become great and may have come into prosperities which you never could have reached if you had staid there, and you may have many windows to your house—bay windows and skylight windows and window of conservatory and windows on all sides—but have at least one window open toward Jerusalem.

When a foreign steamer comes to the wharf, you see the long line of sailors, with shouldered mailbags, coming down the planks, carrying as many letters as you might suppose to be enough for a year's correspondence, and this repeated again and again during the week. Multitudes of them are letters from home and at all the postoffices of the land people will go to the window and anxiously ask for them, hundreds and hundreds of persons finding that window of foreign mails the open window toward Jerusalem. Messages that say "When are you coming home to see us? Brother has gone into the army. Sister is dead. Father and mother are getting very feeble. We are having a great struggle to get on here. Would you like us to come there, or will you come to us? All join in love and hope to meet you, if not in this world, then in a better. Good-by."

Yes, yes. In all these cities and amid the flowering western prairies and on the slopes of the Pacific and amid the siberras and on the banks of the Lagoon and on the ranches of Texas, there is an uncounted multitude who, this hour, stand and sit and kneel with their windows open toward Jerusalem. Some of these people placed on the heathers of the Scottish hills. Some of them were driven out by the Irish famine. Some of them, in early life drilled in the German army. Some of them were accustomed at Lyons or Marseilles or Paris to see on the street Victor Hugo and Gambetta. Some chased the chamois among the Alpine precipices. Some plucked the ripe clusters from Italian vineyards. Some lifted their faces under the midnight sun of Norway. It is no disrespect to our kind that I remember the place of their nativity. Blue-grants would the sea, by which they have some of them swim twice open to take in the free air of America and the sunlight of an atmosphere which no kingly despot has ever breathed, they forget sometimes to go to the window toward Jerusalem.

No wonder that the son of the Swiss, when far away from home, hearing the national air of his country sung, the [illegible] no powerfully as to cause his death. You have the example of hero. Dwelled of my text for keeping early mornings. Such I must not the old folks at home. With often and if you have supplies of health and then are poor, make a practice of visiting the [illegible] that America is loaded to all the need by the [illegible] according to [illegible] nation. Who can tell how it escape intact by the consolidation of other lands? What a storm, men! Ho, this is the all the darkness and the path is open toward it while our windows are open toward them.

But Daniel in the text, kept this position of his domestic fortress until [illegible] Jerusalem was the capital of a good and holy nation. They had smoked the sacrifice. There was the holy of holies. There was the ark of the covenant. There stood the Lord. We are all tempted to keep our windows open on the opposite side, toward the world, that we may see and hear and appropriate its advantages. What does the world say? What does the world offer? What does it give? The Worshippers of the world instead of worshipping of God. Windows open toward Babylon. Windows open toward Athens. Windows open toward the flats, instead of windows open toward the hills. And mistake, for this world as a god is like something I saw in the museum of Strasburg, Germany. The dungeon was made in wood and iron. The victim in olden time was brought there, and this form would open the arms of a native life, and once enfolded, then figure closed with a hundred knives and lances upon him, and then let him drop by feet sheer down. So the world first embraces its idolaters then closes upon them with many fortunes and then lets them drop forever down. The highest honor the world could confer was to make a man a Roman knight, but out of 67 Emperors it allowed only six to die peacefully in their beds.

The dominion of this world over multitudes is illustrated by the names of coins of many countries. They have their piece of money which they call sovereigns and half sovereigns, crowns and half crowns, Napoleons and half Napoleons, Fredericks and double Fredericks, and ducats and Isabellinos, all of which names mean not so much usefulness as dominion. The most of our windows open toward the exchange, toward the salon of fashion, toward the god of this world. In olden times the length of the English yard was fixed by the length of the arm of King Henry I, and we are apt to measure things by a variable standard and by the human arm that in the great crisis of life can give us no help. We need, like Daniel, to open our windows toward God and religion.

But, mark you, that good lion tamer is not standing at the window, but kneeling while he looks out. Most photographs are taken of those in standing or sitting posture. I now remember but one picture of a man kneeling, and that was David Living-stone, who in the cause of God and civilization gardened himself, and literally died while his weary Arabian desert shifte dits sands between them. Yet through that open window Daniel looked, and saw, and heard, and between it, saw beyond, saw time, saw eternity, saw earth and saw heaven. Would you like to see the way through your life to be pleasant, and resources to comfort, through temptation to rescue, through dire sickness to immortal health, through the days to day, through things terrestrial to things celestial, you will not see them till you take Daniel's posture. No cap of bone to the joints of the fingers, no cap of bone to the joints of the elbow, but cap of bone to the knees, made so because the God of the body was the God of the soul, and especial provision for those who want to pray, and physiological structure joins with spiritual necessity in bidding us pray and pray.

In olden time the Earl of Westmoreland said he had not need to pray because he had enough pious tenants on his estate to pray for him, but all the prayers of the church universal amount for nothing unless like Daniel we pray for ourselves. O men and women, kneeling under on side by Shadrach's and Meshach's furnace and the other side by devouring lions, learn the secret of courage and deliverance by looking at that Babylonish window open toward the southwest! "Oh," you say "that is the direction of the Arabian desert!" Yes, but on the other side of the desert is God, is Christ, is Jerusalem, is heaven.

The Brussels lace is superior to all other lace, as beautiful, so uniform, so expensive—400 francs a pound. All the world seeks it. Do you know how it is made? The spinning is done in a dark room, the only light admitted through a small aperture and that light falling directly upon the pattern. And the finest specimens of Christian character I have ever seen or ever expect to see are those to be found in lives of all of whose windows have been darkened by bereavement and misfortune save one, but under that one window of prayer the interlacing of divine workmanship went on until it was fit to deck a throne, a celestial embroidery which angels admired and God approved.

But let us another Jerusalem toward which we now need to open our windows. The exiled evangelist of Ephesus saw it one day as the surf of the Icarian sea foamed and splashed over the bowsprit at his feet, and his vision reminded me of a wedding day when the bride by sister and maid was having garlands twined for her hair and jewels strung for her neck just before she puts her betrothed hand into the hand of her affianced. "I, John, saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down from God, out of heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband." Toward that bridal Jerusalem are our windows open?

We would do well to think more of heaven. It is not merely an annex of earth. It is not a desolate outpost. As Jerusalem was the capital of Judea, and Babylon, the capital of Babylonian monarchy, and London is the capital of Great Britain, and Washington is the capital of our own republic, the New Jerusalem is the capital of the universe. The King lives there, and the royal family of the redeemed have their palaces there and there is a congress of many nations and the parliament of all the world. Yes, Daniel had kindred in Jerusalem of whom he often thought, though he left home when a very young man, perhaps father and mother and brothers and sisters still living, and was honored to see them, and they belonged to the high circles of royalty. Daniel himself having royal blood in his veins as we have seen. Jerusalem a great many kindred and we are compelled to see them and they are all princes and princesses in them the blood imperial, and we do well to see, loud windows open toward their eternal residence.

The bride (who has to conceal her face with her long sleeves) and the bridegroom then bow their heads until their heads almost touch the ground. This they do two or three times, and are then man and wife. Loving cup is then passed around, and then the bride is taken off to the women's apartments of her husband's home, where she is looked after by her mother and mother-in-law, while the groom entertains his friends. The husband must maintain his wife properly and treat her with respect. Marrying is the great event of a Corean's life, for he then attains man's estate. Before marriage, no matter how old he may be, he is treated as a boy, and his is to maintain a deferential attitude toward the married men, even though they be only half his age.

Curious Facts About Stowaways.

Some novel facts about stowaways are related by a writer in Chamble's Journal. As showing what a number of voyages are made by one stowaway within a short space of time, a good illustration is on record, and is as follows:

"The individual in question began at Glasgow, and concealed himself on a boat about to start for Liverpool. Upon reaching that place, he shipped himself on a liner bound for Boston, Mass. This vessel had to bring him back again by direction of the United States officials. Again an Atlantic liner was patronized; but he was discovered at Queenstown. Some of the passengers, pitying the wretched appearance when brought on deck, subscribed sufficient money to pay the culprit's passage to New York. Two or three more times he managed to reach Liverpool, subsequently having his fare paid, before again reaching American ports. This time, however, he got played out, and he set out for the Far West, traveling as usual free of expense. Arriving at San Francisco he stowed himself away on a ship loading for Melbourne. Thence he got to Yokohoma, Shanghai, Hong Kong, Singapore, Calcutta, Bombay, Port Said and Malta. At each place he landed and traveled by another steamer. At Malta, this enterprising stowaway actually concealed himself on board a British warship—H. M. S. Serpis. At Port Said he was conveyed ashore and given into the hands of the British Consul with directions that he be sent to England. This was done, and in due course the prisoner was brought up at a London police court, where being remanded, all the foregoing facts were elicited. Were the incidents not so well authenticated, it would be very difficult to credit such a story.

"In addition to being a nuisance and expense, stowaways incur great danger of a violent death. In one instance a man hid himself away in a chain-locker, and when the anchor was lowered up the unfortunate creature was crushed to death, the noise made by the steam-winch and the rattling of the chain drowning his cries. Upon another occasion a man was found lead under the main hatch of one of the National line of steamers. He had concealed himself before the vessel left Liverpool, and died of suffocation. Curiously enough, in his pocket was found a novel entitled 'Doomed on the Deep.' In a third case, a man hid himself in the forepart of a steamer bound for London. While passing up the River Thames she collided with another steamer, and the stowaway was brushed to death."

No Ironclad Rules for Milking.

There should be no ironclad rules for milking, but improper handling will spoil a good milker very quickly. None but a careful and level-headed person should break in a heifer to milk. Women as Missionaries to China.

The Chinese are bitterly hostile to foreigners, while they regard with special distrust missionaries living in what appears luxury, accompanied by their wives and children. The massacres that have occurred at Wha-sang are proof of the danger of such family missions. Of course, reparation must be exacted, but in future it is to be hoped that a different system will prevail. If a man is minded to go to China to convert the Chinese to Christianity, he will not be let. He takes his life in his hands, and he can count the possible cost. But it is almost criminal on his part to allow his wife and his children to run such risks. And equally wrong is it for any society to subject girls to them. If girls feel an irrepressible impulse to indulge in mission work, surely there is a sufficiently large field for it in India, where they might missionize to their heart's content without peril.—London Truth.

MISSIONARY TREES.

"Not a cent to give—not one cent. And oh, them poor creatures scrost the sea! If it doesn't break my very heart to think of 'em."

Miss Susan Doff rocked backward in her chair, now and then wiping a tear as in thought she went upon the missionary talk she had heard at a meeting that afternoon. Her soul had been stirred to its depths by the recital of the old-time cry from Macedonia.

"Help!—ah me! Wouldn't I like to help 'em, poor souls! And the Lord give's me all my chance."

If there was a touch of rebellious feeling in the reflection it was put aside with a vigorous hand.

"Susan Doff, what are you, I'd like to know, to be setting yourself up as one the Lord can't get along without? He needs your help its like enough! He'll give you the ways and means to give it—be that cattle on a thousand hills. He knows you're willing enough, without your taking the trouble to make a baby of yourself in tellin' him of it.

"But it is wearing"—the rocking went on—"to think of me living in comfort and plenty, and so fixed I ain't a cent to give. My garden sass—enough for me and to spare, and the Lord forbid I should be one to be grasping thought of what I can give to my neighbors; but there's no money to be got by it. Only store pay, and how can he with my hogs; or as with my few potatoes more'n I need to keep for myself.

It was no use. Miss Susan had, time and again, beaten her brain to try and discover some way of raising a little money for the heathen. She was not obliged, as time and time before, to settle back upon the same wise conclusion as to the Lord's helping her help, never realizing, in the depths of her modest self-depreciation, the value of the service brought by her willing hands, in the way of cheer and comfort, to the burdened and the suffering; service given alike in loving carefulness for the scant pay offered, or for no pay at all.

She eked out her frugal living by sewing carpet rags for her numerous neighbors, knitting comfortables and mittens without number, acting, as nurse in times of sickness, and as general factotum and counsellor in all neighborly upheavals and adjustments. But for all these services she received pay, or no pay came, in such everyday way as to place her apart from those for whom he worked.

"Not a cent to be got out of any of 'em," by which she meant, not her neighbors, but the various shapes in which their pay came. There is no telling how far Miss Susan's perplexed thought might have gone but for the sudden demand upon her attention made by an unusual noise and commotion outside her small house.

"The land! What ails that horse?" And a woman and children!"

Miss Susan ran out and confronted the danger offered by a frightened horse driven by a woman accompanied by two children, all equally frightened. Something wrong with the harness had disturbed the nerves of a farm animal not given to disturbance, and the only backing in a way which threatened disaster to the occupants of the spring wagon.

With bravery and energy out of all proportion to her small frame, Miss Susan seized the horse's head.

"Now, whoa! whoa!

"Jump out, Jimmy—jump out!" cried the woman.

A momentary pause in the backward movement gave Jimmy courage, and he joined in his own efforts to those of Miss Susan. But the horse still backed.

"Jump, mother; he's backing down the bank!"

Undecided whether to go to her help or hold on to the horse, Jimmy watched while his mother and a small girl contrived to tumble themselves out of the wagon. The noise of backing ceased over the steep bank at the roadside.

By this time a man who was passing came to aid his wife and children and weak ones. The horse was quieted, and he looked to see what the damage might be.

"Not much," he pronounced. "If you say so, ma'am, I'll hitch it on to mine and haul it to the blacksmith's. That's far, for it'll be fixed so you can have it in 'the morning'."

"In the morning". Miss Susan saw the look of perplexity overspread the mother's face.

"If you'll stay with me overnight, ma'am, the boy and girl will be more than delighted to have you."

The offer was gratefully accepted, Jim completed the repairs and then began to the blacksmith's shop for repairs and then took the horse and rode to his home to give the mare due attention to those expecting them there.

And now was Miss Susan charmed in this rare opportunity of showing hospitality. She was obliged to take the rocking chair through the night, having only one bed, but her guests did not know that.

On the following morning Jim came with the horse to take his mother and sister home. Miss Susan followed them out to the road with good wishes and good-by.

"I'm more'n I can tell obliged to you ma'am, for your kindness," said Jim. "I want to leave you a remembrance of our visit."

He pointed to a large bunch of young trees in the back of the wagon, the roots of which were carefully wrapped.

"They're apple trees," she explained. "Me and father has for a long time felt we wanted something unusual to raisin' a lot of fruit—such as help in the family. And when Jim came from school the other day he was full of how these were taken from the orchard o' Governor Havin' appointed a tree-plantin' day. Think you can talk it better'n me."

But Jim was bashful; so his mother went on.

"They want folks to plant trees most anywheres. Any kind of trees they like—on their farms or 'round school houses or churches. And as when we heard of it, me and father said it would be a good time to set it out to-morrow. And—" the woman's face lighted up, "they has given for folks. The boys at school's goin' to plant some and call 'em 'A nation's gift to Lincoln and Grant' and mean to get 'em to plant one for each of the children. It'll be named after 'em, and they can head 'em and see how they grow. Don't you think it's a real nice idea?"

Yes, I do," exclaimed Miss Susan, heartily, her face beaming in sympathy.

"And," went on the mother in a lowered voice, while a patiently expectant shadow fell across her face, "there was a little one that died—and we'll plant a little one that died—and we'll plant a tree for her, and I'm going to give the fruit to the little children over to the poorhouse that's near our place.

"I think that's just lovely," whispered Miss Susan with a habit of no care of feeling. "I do hope all your trees'll grow good. I'm sure they will. Good-by, good-by."

"Stop," said the woman, "I'm comin' to leave you a couple of trees for the members of your family. I've got more'n I want for four times of 'em might die. They're good sorts, we picked 'em out careful from bein' out in the orchard, for father he says when you're goin' to give good care you'd better get 'em where it's worth givin'. Two of them bell-flowers, Jim."

"And say"—with the enthusiasm belonging with a charming new idea—"we'll stop and help you plant 'em. No; 'twon't take long. Jim'll do the rest of us'll look about for the best bush you've got. We'll all take hold for good luck."

They make a little frolic of it, bright ened and warmed by the glow of mutual kindly feeling.

"Now, be sure and send us word how they get on when you have a chance."

Years later, not very many, Miss Susan went to missionary meeting, and in a new joy she beamed in her face; and it was noticed that the gentle little woman did not sit with a pitiful look and downcast eyes when a collection was taken or a subscription paper passed, under or a suggestion given.

"How she ever does it's more than I can tell," said Mrs. Barrows, the minister's wife, "but she always has something to give."

"And gives it with such good will," added Mrs. Deacon Ray. "And won't be passed by. Feels absolutely hurt and slighted if we don't let her put up her chip-on. Now here's this call to help out the Bible women in Japan. In a hurry, too. We can't wait till the next meeting. We've got to go round."

"And you don't dare to miss Miss Susan?"

"No. You'll go out there with me, won't you?"

"Yes."

"It isn't a very pressing call, you see," Miss Susan," the deacon's wife went on, after stating her business; "and the money's most raised. Only $3 more, and I know she only could be to you because we know you always like to know what's being done—not because we expected anything in return; your turn again yet, after a) you've given since the year set in."

Miss Susan's face shone.

"I have a bit of money that's just come in," she said. "I might just as well make up that $3 as keep it lying idle."

"Miss Susan! There isn't a woman in the society that gives as you do. One would think the Lord put it right into your hand."

"I guess He does. Come out here and see."

She led them into her little garden. Half a dozen fruit trees were there, two of them almost within reach of the kitchen door.

"I look at them two," she said, pointing to them in pride. "I didn't buy 'em, they came to me unexpected like, and it's nice for me to say that the sun shines brighter on 'em than on the others, and that the cold winds don't as cruel to 'em. Only I guess I pint a mite earlier'n the others—and look at them apples up there."

Sure enough the golden fruit was of good color as it still drank in the mellow rays of the partial sun.

"These two stand sheltered from the north and"—began Miss Barrows.

"And I fancy you give them a little better care than the others," suggested the deacon's wife, noticing the pains taking evidence about the roots. "Perhaps that has something to do with it."

"No," said Miss Susan, firmly. "That isn't it. It's 'cause they're the Lord's own trees. I promised Him all that should ever grow on 'em. I mean I'm Goddess—only mercy—'cause that's what I always pray to have follow them that gets what He sends—on through these trees. And just after they began to bear," went on Miss Susan, with a triumphant air, "the railroad came through Shelbyville, and now there's men going through the country paying cash, and always glad to get such apples as mine. More'n half yet, you see, but Goodness pities a little earlier, and I sold the apples off it yesterday. I've got what you want, and enough for the whole of 'em. Then what Mercy brings will e'en for my givings next summer till fit to come again."

Returning to the house she opened her purse, still with the radiant face.

"I guess you're right, Susan," said the minister's wife gently. "I haven't a doubt the Lord sends His best to your trees."—New York Independent.

"In an Orchard."

Good is an orchard, the saint saith,
To meditate on life and death,
With a tool well, a hive of bees,
A hermit's grot below the trees,
God in an orchard, very good,
Though one should wear the monkish hood.

Right good when spring awakes her flute,
And good in yellowing time of fruit,
Very good in the autumn, when
And see the net work 'gainst the sky.
A living lace of blue and green,
And boughs that let the sun between.
The bees are types of souls that dwell
With honey in a quiet cell.
The ripe fruit figures soberly
The soul's perfection in God's eye.
Prayer and praise in a country home,
Honey and fruit; a man might come
Fed on such meats to walk abroad,
And in his orchard talk with God.

LOVE IS BEST.

Dusk had come in the drawing-room, but the lamps were not yet lighted, and the young women in the pictures on the walls were scarcely more lifelike than the real young women in the pictures. Their white dresses and illimitable skirts allowed and dipped their ample forms between the bursts of confidence proper to the half hour. They had discussed the reigning theme, touched upon the latest scandal, and were now busy with Jack Hodney's name and money. Alas! he had no money. The son of the court had given his inheritance to another heir, and then he had gone into Wall street and been caught on the wrong side of the market.

"I can't picture it," said Sally Littlejohn, balancing her little gold purse. "What will you do, Jack?" The spoiled darling! Why, he will have to go to work!"

"Work!" said Julia Montressor. "With those aristocratic hands! What sort of work?"

"Poor Jack!" said Arabella. "He wouldn't know himself out of his habits. How is he to go without his horses, his club, the opera, his London tailor?"

"I don't believe he will try to," said Felicia.

"Why, what will he do?"

"The only thing he can do—stop living."

"Oh, Bab! How horrid of you! Jack Rodney, the dear, splendid fellow! Show anyone him if you can. I wonder what he is doing now," said Sally.

"Walking on his uppers, don't they call it?" said Bab.

"Such a shame! And he has lent and given away a fortune to other people. He never seemed to care about money."

"No, indeed; I supose he has dropped [illegible] fortune in cards before this."

"Bab, with the [illegible] follow in [illegible] only does what all [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]ersus, and they don't [illegible]rough the [illegible] else [illegible] what has [illegible] what he [illegible] all the [illegible]haniel is sure [illegible] the next [illegible]ns are sleeping [illegible]acht that [illegible] great, the [illegible]s-Determan and had Princes on board for guests. It was intended that Jack should take children from Seven Alleys down the harbor every afternoon all the hot summer—"

"You always had a specific talent for turning a telescope on microscopic subjects," said Bab.

"No, thanks. I don't drink another drop of your tea, Felicia, though I declare it does put the spirit in you," said Sally. "Well, just one more sweet—yes," as Felicia's jeweled hand surrended the sugar. "What a perfectly lovely cup. Did you know that one of Dolly Vane's ancestors once had as a tiny thing of gold, crusted with peridots?"

"No!"

"And who do you think gave it to her? Well, Jack Rodney. And she cut him dead last week."

"She ought to," said Felicia, "for doing such an utterly silly thing."

"I suppose he paid for it," said Bab.

"Where is Jack; does any one know?" said Sally.

"Going to Texas ranching. He has cleared up everything and starts at once, someone said. He'd like it if it were play, poor fellow!"

"Oh, it is really getting dark," exclaimed Arabella, as the maid stole gently about the room, and great lamps flared like moons and settled in their fashion. And she pulled on her ermine cape. "We must be going. Why, Felicia, how white you are! And I don't think you were ready to faint yourself."

"The sudden light," murmured Felicia, and then she arose and looked in the glass, and passed her hand quickly over the shining olive eyes that glittered there for half a moment like points of steel.

Years afterward Felicia had only to make that motion with her hand across her eyes to call up the whole scene—the lovely, lofty room, with its old Gobelin hangings, the great mirrors framed in alabaster, the mossy lamps, the high vases filled with red roses, the lounges heaped with silken cushions, the Dresden and silver, the beautiful girls getting into their princely furs, talking scandal like dowagers, her sister Bab's face with the scarlet on both cheek's and her own, white and angry, in the glass, as the marble Diana behind her.

It was while the last dinner guests that night were departing that Felicia's nothings to Bab, as she leaned against the mantel and the low firelight played on the white sheen of her ball gown till she looked as if taking life from the flame tinted jewel, that a slender shape slipped swiftly down the steps and passed along in the shadow of the houses like herself. The girl had never been in the street at night before without attendance; every song-bird's delight was hers; she shrunk behind her veil from every passerby. As soon as she had turned the corner and entered the dispainer sight the parcel she carried, that she might pass more readily as a maid. A half hour's quick walk and she ran up some steps to make sure of a number, rang the door bell, said something explanatory to the man who answered it, passed in and followed him to the door up one flight of the broad, low stairway there.

The room was in confusion. A leather box and a portmanteau lay packed and strapped by the door. There were empty and discolored spaces on the walls where pictures had hung, brackets had held their busts and great vases and cabinets had stood. It was plain to see in its dismantled state that it had lately been a place of luxury.

A man sat there, with his head bowed upon his arms as they lay along the table, in an attitude of utter dejection. He did not look up when the door opened and closed, but the girl crossed the room quickly, and standing behind him stopped with her arm laid across his shoulder. He lifted his head, looking straight before him. "I suppose it is a dream," he said, half to himself, "if you are a dream—"

"I am not a dream, Jack," she said, bending lower, her soft, cold cheek touching his. "I am Felicia."

There was a silence in heaven for the space of half an hour. For one moment there was silence and rapture here. And then the transfer men came for the luggage. "And this parcel, too," said Felicia.

"Felicia!" he exclaimed.

"This parcel," she repeated. "You know I can not go back after coming here," she said, when they were alone again. "I have burned my ships behind me."

"Do you mean it?" he exclaimed joyously. And then his tone fell. "I thought—oh, yes; certainly, I must take you home before my train leaves."

"You will take me home? My home is with you, Jack."

"You don't know what you say!" he answered her. "Oh, no, I cannot accept the sacrifice!" the eager gleam of his eyes belying his words.

"Jack," she murmured, "the sacrifice was in my coming here unasked."

"You knew I loved you, you knew I loved you! And then this crash came—and there was nothing for me to say—to you, who have lain in the lilies and fed on the roses of life. I, whose part was the husks!"

"Yes, I knew it, or I could not have came," she replied as she moved away from him, going about the room, and pausing at the curtained window place where the moonlight lay upon her pale and impassioned.

"Don't make it so hard for me!" he exclaimed. "An hour ago it was the darkness of despair. I was going to fling myself in that ranch with a bunch of cattle, the one thing left me, as if it were a grave. Now I shall go and in that new life ending with this happy knowledge and my hope. And even if I should never prosper enough to come for you," he said after a moment, taking a step towards her, "if you should weary in the long waiting and give some other man the love I have won—well, I could bear it, perhaps, remembering and living again in that night's joy."

"Some other man!" she exclaimed, unclasping his arms and looking for the hat and jacket that had been thrown aside. "I am going with you, Jack. If you can live summer and winter in a tent in Texas, I can, too. I have the fit clothes for the arctic. I have my jewe's there. They were my mother's and are mine and I have the right to take them, and their price will hinder my being a burden."

"A burden! Oh, Felicia, if I might, if I dared—"

"You will have to," said Felicia, calmly. "The Church of Blessing is around the corner, and the rector is my friend. Jack, you made me propose to you. I shouldn't think you would make me ask you to marry me!"

Standing there in the moonlight adjusting her disordered hair, she was too beautiful, too sweet and tender for mortal man to resist.

"The train leaves at midnight," he said. "There is but scant time—oh, my darling, if you should repent—if! Oh, you must, you will!"

"Never!" said Felicia. And then lip to lip and heart to heart, they lingered one moment before they went out together.

It was a year afterward that Felicia sat one night in the refulgent moonlight on the flat prairie after a day of heat, tempered by the great Gulf breeze blowing over 300 miles of flowers.

"Are you sorry I came?" she said.

"Are you?"

"Do you know, it seems to me precisely as if we were living on an outskirt of the Holy Land with flocks and herds, and the fig and the pomegranate and the tender grape giving a good smell!" she said.

"Precisely. And the flocks and herds are prospering so that we shall have to take counsel of the prophet. Wasn't it Isaiah who said: 'Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thy habitation; spare not, lengthen thy cords, strengthen thy stakes'? Col. Harrison has a tent over yonder for a dozen years. But we may build our house next year, if fancy."

"With roses lying on the lower roof and a night-blooming cereus clambering across the gallery, like some of the houses in the old Spanish town there. I don't know ,but I like this better, though—the lovely freedom of it. Oh, we never lived before."

"Are you sure you never regret?" he asked.

"Regret! Wel, I confess I should like to have heard Bab read out our marriage notice at breakfast—and his so bitter the day before for fear of it! But regret those days of littleness and silences and fetters—confining clothes and cramping life!"

"Oh, it is really getting dark," exclaimed Arabella, as the maid stole gently about the room, and great lamps flared like moons and settled in their fashion. And she pulled on her ermine cape. "We must be going. Why, Felicia, how white you are! And I don't think you were ready to faint yourself."

"The sudden light," murmured Felicia, and then she arose and looked in the glass, and passed her hand quickly over the shining olive eyes that glittered there for half a moment like points of steel.

Years afterward Felicia had only to make that motion with her hand across her eyes to call up the whole scene—the lovely, lofty room, with its old Gobelin hangings, the great mirrors framed in alabaster, the mossy lamps, the high vases filled with red roses, the lounges heaped with silken cushions, the Dresden and silver, the beautiful girls getting into their princely furs, talking scandal like dowagers, her sister Bab's face with the scarlet on both cheek's and her own, white and angry, in the glass, as the marble Diana behind her.

It was while the last dinner guests that night were departing that Felicia's nothings to Bab, as she leaned against the mantel and the low firelight played on the white sheen of her ball gown till she looked as if taking life from the flame tinted jewel, that a slender shape slipped swiftly down the steps and passed along in the shadow of the houses like herself. The girl had never been in the street at night before without attendance; every song-bird's delight was hers; she shrunk behind her veil from every passerby. As soon as she had turned the corner and entered the dispainer sight the parcel she carried, that she might pass more readily as a maid. A half hour's quick walk and she ran up some steps to make sure of a number, rang the door bell, said something explanatory to the man who answered it, passed in and followed him to the door up one flight of the broad, low stairway there.

The room was in confusion. A leather box and a portmanteau lay packed and strapped by the door. There were empty and discolored spaces on the walls where pictures had hung, brackets had held their busts and great vases and cabinets had stood. It was plain to see in its dismantled state that it had lately been a place of luxury.

A man sat there, with his head bowed upon his arms as they lay along the table, in an attitude of utter dejection. He did not look up when the door opened and closed, but the girl crossed the room quickly, and standing behind him stopped with her arm laid across his shoulder. He lifted his head, looking straight before him. "I suppose it is a dream," he said, half to himself, "if you are a dream—"

"I am not a dream, Jack," she said, bending lower, her soft, cold cheek touching his. "I am Felicia."

There was a silence in heaven for the space of half an hour. For one moment there was silence and rapture here. And then the transfer men came for the luggage. "And this parcel, too," said Felicia.

"Felicia!" he exclaimed.

"This parcel," she repeated. "You know I can not go back after coming here," she said, when they were alone again. "I have burned my ships behind me."

"Do you mean it?" he exclaimed joyously. And then his tone fell. "I thought—oh, yes; certainly, I must take you home before my train leaves."

"You will take me home? My home is with you, Jack."

"You don't know what you say!" he answered her. "Oh, no, I cannot accept the sacrifice!" the eager gleam of his eyes belying his words.

"Jack," she murmured, "the sacrifice was in my coming here unasked."

"You knew I loved you, you knew I loved you! And then this crash came—and there was nothing for me to say—to you, who have lain in the lilies and fed on the roses of life. I, whose part was the husks!"

"Yes, I knew it, or I could not have came," she replied as she moved away from him, going about the room, and pausing at the curtained window place where the moonlight lay upon her pale and impassioned.

"Don't make it so hard for me!" he exclaimed. "An hour ago it was the darkness of despair. I was going to fling myself in that ranch with a bunch of cattle, the one thing left me, as if it were a grave. Now I shall go and in that new life ending with this happy knowledge and my hope. And even if I should never prosper enough to come for you," he said after a moment, taking a step towards her, "if you should weary in the long waiting and give some other man the love I have won—well, I could bear it, perhaps, remembering and living again in that night's joy."

And the large, white, lamp-lit room, sumptuous with mirrors and marble and heavy hangings and gildings, many bronzes and paintings, with priceless rugs and lounges, with its voluptuous space and great vases filled with ornament before her like the room you see painted through a window in the dark. She saw the young and splendid women, heard the sweet, high-bred voices, heard her stepmother's low laugh and Bab's shriller tone. And then she looked around her, at the sky flooded with splendor, at the vast softly dark slumbering land below. felt the preciousness of the love that was hers, and it seemed to her that a return to that other life would be like a butterfly creeping back into its chrysalis.

"Tell me my father," she said, and her lip quivered.

But her husband's arm clasped her, and the pressure of his own lips quieted the sob.

"But even,' she said presently, "if he never forgives us, or comes to see us, and if your Bab should never come down here and learn what it is to live, I shall be sure, I shall be sure, my dear, that love is best!"—Harriet Prescott Spofford, in Courier-Journal.

THE SODA FOUNTAIN OF WIT.

Effervescence, Fizz, Pop and Sparkle for a Blistering Day.

"Owing to your not having screens in your car windows," said the traveler, "I got a cinder in my eye the other day, and it cost me $10 to get it out. I want to know what you propose to do about it."

"Nothing, my dear sir," said the railroad official. "We have no use for cinder, and you are perfectly welcome to it. On a strict construction of facts you did get it on railroad property—the cinder of course was not yours—but we do not care to make trouble for you in so small a matter. You do not give the incident a moment's thought."—Harper's Bazar.

Compensation.

"So you consented to your father's marrying again?"

"Yes, it was agreed that I should have all their wedding presents, and my new mamma's engagement ring, so I consented."—Truth.

A Choice.

"I have finished your portrait, Mrs. De Pink," said the artist. "All but the coloring of the face."

"And why do you not finish that?"

"I wanted to hear from you as to whether you preferred me to have you look healthy or merely interesting."—Harper's Bazar.

Occupant of Fifth-floor Flat—Are you going away this summer, Mrs. Harker?

Occupant of Third-floor Flat—Yes, Mrs. Pinkerton, I think that I and the children will occupy an apartment on the hundred-and-eighty-six floor during August. I don't want to go—it's such a tedious journey in the elevator, but the doctor thinks a change of air is necessary for the baby.—Harper's Bazar.

CONSUMPTION IN COWS.

PRACTICAL MEANS FOR PREVENTING THE SPREAD OF THE DISEASE.

A Constant Supply of Cool, Fresh Air and Lots of Sunlight Is Death to Tuberculosis. Each Animal Should Be Separated From the Rest by a Wooden Partition.

Introduce a consumptive cow into a herd, and the animal on each side of her in the common stanchion, shown in Fig. 1, will be dead in a few months. Her breath and spit. Put a board partition on each side of the diseased cow, extending well out in front, and it will be long before the contamination her neighbor, if she ever does. Such a board partition is simple, extending over two years, with 208 head, show that "it is possible to rear a healthy herd on a farm where there is an infected herd if the two are separated by a wooden partition, and this will prove successful, even when the cows occupy the same building." G. N. Kinnell, a Pittsfield veterinarian, therefore advocates individual stalls for each cow, by simply running a partition between the stanchions, boarded tight in front, with a ventilating shaft 15 inches square over each cow's head, the top of all of them to join in a common shaft running through the roof. (Fig. 2 shows such partition not boarded up in front, the advisability of which we question.) He mentions that a herd that escaped infection from two badly diseased cows because the sick cows were kept in stanchions boarded up in front, with a tight partition between each stanchion. Dr. Kinnell wisely considers some such method of separating cows the most important, simplest and cheapest means of avoiding infection. He would allow at least 600 cubic feet of air per stall. Besides the 18-inch overhead shaft to carry off the heated foul air he would admit cold, pure air from below. For a stable of 16 cows, he would run through the back of the stalls a fresh air box three feet square, open at both ends outside the building, with four upright pipes two feet square at regular intervals running up through and a few inches above the floor, all openings to be closed with wire netting. Besides insures a constant supply of fresh, cool air, and does away with the danger of the much-dreaded draft. The germ of tuberculosis dies in sunlight, hence a stable cannot be too light and airy. It should be constructed so as to be easily and thoroughly cleaned and disinfected. The modern idea is to have cows in an ell or stable separate from the barn, well-lighted on both sides, cement floors, with gutter behind and spread on land daily; a row of cows on each side, so as to be fed from the middle floor. A partition between the cows' heads is certainly a desirable improvement even to such a cow lister.—American Agriculturist.

Preparing for the Winter Dairy.

Don't be guilty of the carelessness or unbusiness-like thoughtlessness of having cows calve now or during the next three months, so they will come in during the flush of feed and flood of milk. Another cream now butter brings so much then, and is really difficult to dispose of. If the cows are to calve next autumn, and calves fed a good start in September. Coming in at this time they will give more milk than they should otherwise do when milk and all dairy products are high, and the mercury nearly equalize the work of the year. Some foolishly fear it will be impossible to get cows to winter with only the grass to be depended, but this is proved to be a fallacy. The cow's conditions should be watched and she may then be treated patiently while in season, but the time when she is next to calve may be controlled as easily as most things in business life. Nature calls for 9 per cent. of the calves in spring, when even a calf will scarcely sell because there are so many of them. But the sensible farmer does not always let nature dominate. He has the market and other artificial conditions to meet, and must cultivate the cows at the periods of greatest profit.

One Leak That May be Stopped.

Losses are going on year after year upon farms that are conducted by their owners to be well and economically managed. There is so little necessary labor of the loss from cattle pilfering, and through stable floors, that very many do not consider it worth while trying to stop it. Remember that loss right here means clean money out, just as much as does a mouse hole in the granary floor; but it is more silent and treacherous. A ton of urine from a horse is worth three times as much as a ton of solid manure, and the value of cows' urine is worth twice as much as solid, ton for ton. What we would say is, put a cement floor right after harvest, and stop this silent leak.

GRANDMOTHER'S BIRTHDAY

"I say, grandm ," piped a plaintive voice, as the owner entered, "it's pretty rough on a fellow, don't you think so, when he can't find his mother once a week? Where's she gone this time, grandma?"

"You have been having one of your headaches at school, Willie, I can see that," and grandma looked at the frail little figure anxiously. "She's gone to her Woman's Club—no—it's the Working Girls' Aid."

"It makes a fellow almost wish he lived in a tenement or worked in a factory, so as his mother would come to see him sometimes," sighed the wistful voice, as Willie's hand went down in his pockets with an assumption of manliness comical to behold, and a frown puckered his face. "The girls are having some kind of a recess in the parlor, and I mayn't go in, and if it wasn't for you I'd rather be an orphan in an asylum and be done with it."

And Willie withdrew his hands to sit down in the big armchair and nurse his knee gloweringly.

"I suppose it's because you're the oldest and I'm the youngest, and you know what they say, grandma delicate. They think we can stay together, and kind of set to each other. What's in that box by you, grandma?"

"It's from your Aunt Eleanor, Willie, for my birthday, she says, however, that it will be impossible for her or for Hartman to be with me on that day."

And grandma took from the box a dainty cap, such as Aunt Eleanor, the wife of grandma's only son, had a especial pride in making for her, always claiming, so prettily, that the secret of her success with its bright red soft skin and fleecy white hair, was her inspiration. But despite the pretty gift, Willie saw that grandma was grieved, and felt that he knew why.

Had he been asked the date of her birthday, he most probably would have said, "the last Thursday in November," for, coming on the 27th of that month, it was the family custom to merge the two, Thanksgiving and birthday, into one celebration.

Uncle Hal, the jolly, rich Uncle Albert, grandmother's youngest son, had sent a check instead of coming, while Uncle Tom, the bachelor bookworm, had apparently forgotten all about it, and now, in addition, Aunt Eleanor, Uncle Hartman and children were declining.

And so the old custom, a reunion of all her children and grandchildren on grandmother's birthday, was beginning to be discarded, something that had never happened while grandfather lived and he and grandmother were in the old home. Not that grandmother was neglected in material comforts—it was not that.

Willie's head had ached all day, and now his heart ached. Had the boys been home from college, or even had his two sisters been present, he would have done it, but alone with grandmother, he often laid aside his manly little self-control.

"I think I will come and put my head on your lap," he said.

Sounds of music and laughter came from below, where Marion and Evelyn were entertaining the "Art Class."

Then some one called for song.

Grandmother sat up straight in her chair, with her hand wandering softly over Willie's curly head, and bright eyes looking straight ahead, listening.

"Oh, no—oh-h, no, no! Oh-h n-o-o-o!" the voice declared over and over, in as many different keys, to the amused grandmother, and then someone closed the door.

"I like your songs the best," said he. "Sing me one now, grandma."

Grandmother's eyes and thoughts came back to the little face on her knee.

"What shall I sing you, dearie?"

"I like soldier songs—'Oh, Give Me But My Arab Steed,' grandma."

"That was what your grandfather's friend, the Governor, always asked for. Dear, dear! of all the men of note who frequented our house, Governor Lane alone is left, and he must be—yes, he is 90 years old now if a day—"

"But the song, grandma."

"Oh, give me but my Arab steed,
A shield and falchion bright,—
And I will to the battle speed," sang grandmother, with now and then a break in her dear old voice.

"Now, 'Fitz Eustace,'" begged Willie.

And the afternoon wore away.

Had her youngest child, who had been taught to be prompt to meals; so now grandmother sat and waited, or ate alone. This evening she and Willie were half through supper when the first of the family appeared, full of an announcement Mr. Bethel had made.

"And as long as I have to go," he explained to grandmother, "I have been trying to get Madeline to go with me; for she has never been South, and even a hurried trip would do her good."

"And I have about decided that I will," added Madeline.

"But grandma's birthday," objected Willie.

Mrs. Bethel looked troubled. She had forgotten that.

Grandmother set her teacup down.

"The girls and Willie and I can have a quiet little celebration together," she said gently.

Who will keep the house?" asked Evelyn.

"Suppose you let me try this time, Madeline," replied grandmother, a little timidly, perhaps."

Mrs. Bethel looked dubious. She seemed to have forgotten that grandma had been a most famous housekeeper in her day.

"I am not sure that you understand the ways of servants nowadays, mother," she began; "they are so difficult. Now that dairy of yours—"

Grandma gave a quiet smile, knowing as she did that it was to her the servants would come with only the news delayed, but this is proved to be a fallacy. The cow's conditions should be watched and she may then be treated patiently while in season, but the time when she is next to calve may be controlled as easily as most things in business life. Grandma gave a quiet smile, knowing as she did that it was to her the servants would come with only the news of her country friend's Thanksgiving housepartly, and, seeing their eagerness, grandmother bade them go.

"You and I, Willie—she began, then turned her face away to hide the tears that fell on her wrinkled face.

"It is not," she thought, "that I would have them here, only willingly—not that; but it is better to realize what I am now, that they do not care to have me here, and to remember that I was before the world left me behind. Is it that old people cannot learn to step aside gracefully, or that—" But she was too old for her children to finish the thought. "So old, so alone of my generation—nay, there are some few left. Can it be they are lonely? Do they feel as left out of the life of today?" and grandmother mused on.

"I will do it," she said, rising suddenly and walking to the desk.

"Do what, grandma?" asked Willie. "There's the Governor and old Col. Haskins and Elihu Gallcher still writing poetry at 79, they tell me. And there is Hetty Ann Vanderkirk and Rosanna Pingree and I might ask Mrs. Metepont, the old Page's widow. And yes, there is Sallie Briscome. Who would have thought Sallie, witty, cultured Sallie would be spending her days in the Old Ladies' Home? Yes, I will be like old times, indeed, to have Sallie—"

"Have who, grandma?"

"You shall have a glimpse of the old-time life and manners, you shall see how grandmother was once regarded. They will all come—for the sake of old times, they will all come on my birthday. I will send for Celia; she has cooked many a supper for me in years gone by, and, I may say, she is not too old to prepare one more. It shall be like the old times, the table shall groan—and I shall see Aunt Albert's checks untouched, and my own china and silver for the table. Hand me my pen, Willie, it has rolled under the chair. They will come. I know they will all come.

And come they did, every one!

Grandmother, in black silk, with the dainties of her caps upon her snowy fluffs of hair, and a pink flush on her faded cheeks, received them with the dignity born of her old-fashioned ideas of hospitality.

Willie, in his new velvet suit, was the Judge's widow, whose handsome dress was covered with yards of prize. He has not since known a moment's quiet with time, while aloof, under Uncle Joshua Pringle, her children all physically new, a grandmother, she met with outstretched hands.

Then with a kiss on the withered cheek, she greeted dear Sallie Briscome, now decidedly, almost as timid now as of old, who, she kept on a sensible company smiling for dinner, standing, meanwhile outside the drawing-room door, trembling, almost in tears, afraid to enter until found out by the quick-witted hostess.

The dowdiest bowed low over grandmother's hand.

"A more charming hostess, if possible, than ever, so I cannot Dance To-night," "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead, You Rascal You," and "Love's Young Dreams."

And being over-come on all sides, she gave them Sweet As Love Is," and so laden with memories was sweet Alice, that it left not a dry eye in the room.

Nor would the evening have been complete had not Elihu Gallcher arisen, and addressed grandmother, declaiming himself of a poem in honor of the occasion, which in turn brought in several lines of music and he had indicted to her just 59 years before.

Then grandmother, on the Governor's arm, led the way to supper, and there being a gentlemen short, Miss Sallie Briscome smilingly accepted the arm which Willie, in imitation of the Governor, offered her.

And the supper! The damask, the china, the silver, the cut glass, and the salt-cellars, them asstive candelabra, all were grandmother's own, and with them each guest had past cause to be familiar.

The table groaned, as grandmother had predicted, beneath the results of Celia's old-time skill and hospitality. And when the Governor arose, and bowing to grandmother, said, "Madam, to us gathered here, you are but one toast, "The Past," every eye was dim, and every wrinkled hand trembled as it lifted its cup.

As the last guest departed, Willie looked up into grandmother's happy face and said:

"I like your kind best, grandma, for they don't treat a fellow as if he was always in the way, nor yet as if he wasn't there, which is worse."

And grandma, understanding, smiled.

Not the same day, nor even the same week, did they all set to, but eventually the newspaper containing the account of grandmother's "Centenarian Party" came to the hand and eye of each of her children and grandchildren.

How the paper got hold of it no one knew, and so great was her horror of a woman's name appearing in print, that grandmother was never told of it.

But, knowing Elihu Gallcher's fondness for "rushing into print," he was given the credit, for, save that his own picture, as well as the Governor's, graced the column, while creations of the fetus, Aunt Jane's and Celia's, certainly were not portraits of the originals, appeared as grandmother, the Judge's widow and Miss Sallie Briscome.

"There was something very near to pathos," the article ended, "in the gathering of this group—the oldest, the youngest 79—all relics of the society of a past day and generation, in celebration of the birthday of one, who, though surrounded by a host family of children and grandchildren, turned to the friends of the past, has shared in their joys in the past."

Aunt Eleanor buried her face in the paper and cried:

"We could have gone, Hartman, with such a little inconvenience; and how it must hurt her!"

Uncle Tom's eyes as well as Uncle Albert's grew misty as they read it, remembering the flimsiness of their excuses, and the gentleness of the old mother's rebuke.

In the midst of a gay house-party the paper was shown to Marion and Evelyn, and they felt keenly the rebuke in a companion's hasty exclamation.

"Your grandmother's 80th birthday! How could you bear to be away?"

In a Pullman parlor car, miles from home, Mr. Bethel read it, then gazed at the passing landscape with eyes that were strangely blurred.—Exchange.

A Point in Tile Draining.

In using tile drains it is sometimes absolutely necessary to change the pitch of the drain, but in locating the drain in the beginning such a selection should be made as will permit the change of pitch from a slower to a faster current as shown in the lower diagram of our sketch. In this case sediment will not be deposited at the point where the change of grade is made, as it would were the grade changed as shown in the upper diagram. Here there is a slackening of the current, and any silt in suspension in the water will in part, at least, be dropped at the point where the water in the drain begins to runa more slowly.

To Candle Eggs.

Have a room as dark as you can or use a box 12 by 16 inches with slide raised black inside. Stand on its end and open one side 8 inches from the bottom, and above 3 inches raised, put the box with this open side toward you and set the light in it. Nail a piece to the bottom, same size as the top and top of box back, this will enable you to see better. This box can be used in any place, though it is better in a dark room. Take one egg in the right hand, the best candlers use common candles. Take two or three eggs in left hand and the eggs you intend to candle in right hand sideways between you and the light, as close to the light as you can and let it rub against one of the eggs in left hand, some are quite particular about this as the eggs reflect the light through upon each other; turn the egg round until you are satisfied you have tested it. Take a strictly fresh egg as a standard to judge by. If a place like the vacuum in a small end appears on the upper side as you turn the egg, it is not strictly fresh; though if this vacuum is small and the egg is all right otherwise it may be comparatively fresh. A dark or black spot indicates a rotten egg, and if such a one is in a stale egg also looks thin and watery. Remember dark shelled eggs are thicker shelled and harder to candle than white ones. You can only learn by breaking suspicious ones and it requires much practice to excel.

THE TESLA MOTOR

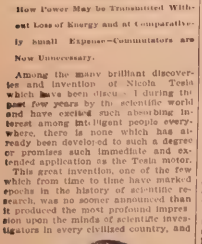

It Will Revolutionize the Electrical Industry.

HIS GREATEST HIT.

Solving a Puzzling Electrical Problem—How Power May be Transmitted Without Loss of Energy and at Comparatively Small Expense—Commutators are Now Unnecessary.

Among the many brilliant discoveries and invention of Nicola Tesla which have been discussed during the past few years by the scientific world and have excited such absorbing interest among intelligent people everywhere, there is none which has already been developed to such a degree or promises such immediate and extended application as the Tesla motor.

This great invention, one of the few which from time to time have marked epochs in the history of scientific research, was no sooner announced than it produced the most profound impression upon the minds of scientific investigators in every civilized country, and the theories upon which its apparently simple and yet wonderfully complex action depended began at once to occupy a leading place in technical literature.

From the date of the first of Mr. Tesla's many patents in this country by a long series of inventions bearing on the further development of the fundamental ideas mathematicians and theorists have been at work on the problems presented by the apparently simple idea of rotating magnetism carrying around with it an armature placed within its influence.

ROTARY MAGNETIC FIELD.

Rotating magnetism, or a "rotary magnetic field," as it is called, would be produced by mounting a magnet upon a shaft and driving the shaft at a high rate of speed, and such an arrangement would cause an armature to revolve with it by magnetic attraction and attain the same speed as the revolving magnet, even if the armature not allowed to come into actual contact with the magnet. In this way power would be transmitted by the driving shaft to the armature, but such an arrangement would be only an interesting experiment, illustrating the principle of the Tesla motor. The question which Tesla proposed to himself was how can this rotary field be produced without revolving against the magnet, and in such a way that currents generated by a dynamo can be sent to a distance and there produce this rotating field, with the resulting motion of the armature

This would mean the transmission of power to a distance without any of the clumsy commutator devices used with ordinary motors. The solution was reached by the combination of two or more alternating currents, the waves of which overlapped each other in such a way as to cause the magnetic poles to make a complete rotation for every alternation of the current. Currents combined in this way are called multiphase currents and are distinguished by two phase, three phase, etc., depending upon the number of separate currents used to effect the required combination

CHANGING THE MAGNETIC FIELD.

Alternating currents are liable for power purposes have rates of reversal ranging from 100 to 7,200 per minute, which means that a piece of iron magnetized by such a current would have and other purposes, no one recognized the possibilities of multipolar alternating currents for the transmission of power until Tesla applied them in his motor

Any dynamo is in reality a generator of alternating currents, and in order to produce the continuous current, such as is used in the ordinary form of electric motor, it is necessary to convert the natural alternating current into a continuous current by addition of a commutator, which continually changes the connections to the circuit in such a way as to make the current flow always in the same direction. The inability to operate ordinary motor by any other than a continuous current renders it necessary to use dynamos with commutators for all such motors, and in addition to this the ordinary motor itself has a commutator, so that the current is commutated twice when used in this way. And what is the use of this double commutation? Strangely enough, it is simply to produce alternations of current

TESLA'S MOTOR, WITHOUT COMMUTATOR OR BRUSHES.

Armature not connected in any way to the line

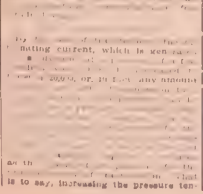

In the armature of the so-called continuous current motor, so that in reality the natural alternating current of the dynamo, after two complicated operations, goes into the armature of the motor in its original form, but delayed by the process of some of it most important and useful qualities

THE GREAT ALTERNATING CURRENT.

By using the alternating current directly without commutation either at the generator or motor, only all of these cumbersome appliances done away with, but many additional advantages result, both in the motor itself and in the generation and transmission of the current to a distance.

The Tesla multiphase motor does not require any connection whatever from the transmission circuit to the rotating armature, the whole energy both transmitted to it by the inducting influence of the rotating magnetic field produced by stationary coils and fed alternately directly connected to the coils. In some cases it is advantageous to invert this arrangement and feed the currents into the armature, but even in this modification the only additional parts are simply conducting rings which receive the current from the fixed contacts of the current.

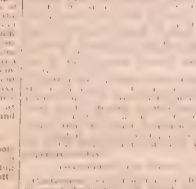

Among the greatest advantages of the alternating current is the possibility of using it at very high pressure to another with trifling l

The National Zeitung relates a story about Napoleon I, which is vouched for by an old citizen of Erfurt, who in 1812 was present when the incident occurred. In the ante-chamber of the guard of honor, according to an eyewitness, while in the city. He states that Napoleon, while in a fit of temper, struck and killed one of his staff officers on the parade ground. The old man says: "Our prisoners were with us on the march to Russia came in every day. The contributions and requisitions became heavier every day, and the suffering of the inhabitants of Erfurt had reached a point that seem d intolerable, and a further increase could hardly have been possible. All private houses were overridden by soldiers and the ordinary necessities of life rose in price to an extent heretofore unknown; all commerce and ordinary traffic was stopped. The French officers domineered the local authorities and the inhabitants were restricted in their movements to the most narrow limits. Finally Napoleon himself arrived, and a great review was arranged for in the vicinity of the town. During this parade a careful inspection of every regiment was ordered by the Emperor, who himself assisted in the work. At one regiment of artillery the Emperor halted, dismounted from his charger and carefully inquired into the condition of the regiment, personally inspecting the equipments of the artillerists, and, in some cases, demanding the prisoners to take off their coats so that they might be more car fully inspected. It was rumored that a complaint had been made to the Emperor by some person or persons that the money that had been provided for new equipment had only partially been used for the purpose, the greater part of it having found its way into the pockets of the Colonel; also that the rations were rather scant and foddder rence and of bad quality. During this inspection the commander of the regiment remained at the side of the Emperor, their conversation being carried on in a low tone, no one could understand what they were speaking about; the Emperor seemed very much dissatisfied. Suddenly the Emperor drew his sword and made a lunge with it at the Colonel, who fell back with a deep wound in his breast. Immediately the Imperial suite made a circle around the two, shutting out all the rest of the proceedings from the view of others present. Napoleon returned to the city on horseback shortly after the occurrence, and the Colonel, who died shortly after he was wounded, was carried to his quarters on a litter and buried the next day. No one dared to mention the affair, and word was given out to those present that they should not dare speak of what they had seen, or they would be held responsible for the consequences. The Emperor's spies being known to circulate freely in Erfurt at the time, good care was taken not to speak of the matter. Thus it was that this murderous deed of the quick-tempered Corsican was not mentioned in historical works, although tradition has continued it to our days."

CHRISTIAN UNION.

An Answer to the Archbishop of Canterbury

THE POPE MUST GOVERN ALL,

So Declares Cardinal Vaughan, and This Will End All Talk of Church Unity in Britain Lord Rosebery Not Coming to Canada The South African Investment Mania

London, Sept. 16.—The Catholic conception of unity finally held in England since the days of the Cathedral, under the auspices of the Catholic Truth Society, has hitherto been ignored by the press as unworthy of mention. It has this year suddenly assumed the importance of a leading question. The conference began at Brighton on Monday and terminated Thursday.

The questions before the conference were not new, but the meeting derived unwonted interest from Cardinal Vaughn's address on Christian unity. The Archbishop of Canterbury's recent allusive on the subject, which was a reply to the Pope's letter to the Anglican people, required a reply, and Cardinal Vaughn gave it in such clear terms as will end discussion within the Anglican church on the basis of an agreement with the Roman Catholic Church.

The kernel of the question of the reunion of Christiandom, and Cardinal Vaughn, contained in the admission of the Roman claim that the Pope had received by divine right authority to teach and govern the whole church. The essence of the Anglican position was a rejection of the Roman claim. Until this claim was admitted, no basis of reunion was possible.

The Cardinal further declared that he did not expect to witness the submission of the English people as a body to claims that were rejected at the time of the Reformation. He looked to the slow process of individual conversion. These declarations have been ill received by the Ritualists of England, and they are reported to be also causing the Pope disappointment, as a check to his plans for reunion of the Churches.

The report was accepted as true among the elders of the congress, that at the next consistory at Rome another cardinal will be created for England. The congress concluded on Thursday, with a pilgrimage to Glastonbury Abbey, the oldest shrine in England. Thousand of visitors, including prelates, traveled by train from Bristol to Glastonbury. It was not very long ago that popular sentiment would not have allowed such a pilgrimage. On Thursday a large crowd watched with the greatest sympathetic interest the long banner-carrying procession, composed of Catholic guilds, Jesuits, Dominicans, Franciscans, Benedictines and Carmelites, alternately singing and reciting prayers. The scene was an impressive and picturesque one, and marked an immense change in the position of the Roman Catholic Church in England.

The speculative mania in South African stocks shows no sign of abatement. Stock exchange dealers compare the present time with that of Law's Mississippi inflation in France, and the South Sea bubble in England. Men who were financially "broke" two months ago, now boast that they are worth tens of thousands of pounds. Stocks that were quoted in June at £1 are now quoted at £40. Brokers who were recently struggling to keep their heads above water are employing large corps of clerks, and net enormous profits.

Barney Barnato, the leader of the boom, who at one time, was an International Juggler, is now a multimillionaire. He is about to build a palace in Piccadilly which will cost £250,000.

In the meantime Barnato has loaned Earl Spencer's house. Despite the success of the Barnatos, and every other scheme into which he has entered, he has not succeeded in trying the high-est financial circle, which is also operating in South Africa, but which yet holds itself aloof from Mr. Barnato. The speculative spirit extends to other branches of the stock exchange, and gives impetus to business generally.

Several Canadian and American lawyers are expected to attend the reverse congress and meet the association for the reform and codification of the laws of nations, which is to be held in Brussels, commencing Oct. 1. At this meeting an attempt will be made to change the name of the organization to the International Law Association. The inaugural address of the meeting will be made by the president, Sir Richard Webster, at present Attorney-General for England

Among the reports and discussions at this meeting, the following subjects are included: International arbitration, the neutralization of seas and international canals, territorial waters, marine law and liability for collisions at sea, where both vessels are at fault.

Ex-Prime Minister Rosebery returned to London Thursday. He says there is not the slightest truth in the report that he intends to visit America.

Hall Caine sails by the White Star steamer Teutonic next Wednesday morning with him letters from Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies. Despite utterances by Sir Charles Tupper, the Canadian High Commissioner, Mr. Caine expects a friendly hearing from the Canadian Parliament on the subject of copyright. Mr. Caine said to-day that English authors were willing to admit the right of Canada to govern herself, whether wisely or unwisely, but what they complain of is that Canada demands power over the Book to govern one section of the United States, but refuses to grant the right of Mr. Appleton in the United Kingdom. He has accepted an invitation to a reception by the New York Authors' Club and to a dinner at the Lotos Club. He goes to Canada by way of Boston.

Britain Holds the Fast Train Record.

New York, Sept. 15.—The London Times claims that the Flying Dutchman Coast line still holds the record for speed. A correspondent says: "Taking the time of engines involved, the 11 o'clock train from the Westminster station, covering the 400 miles to Carlisle, a mile every 510 minutes to the ticket platform, where the journey practically ended, this is fractionally superior to the New York Central record of 60.16 miles in 64.12 minutes. As a further claim of the latter that the Empire State express is the fastest regular passenger train in the world, we will be capable of support. The West Coast train runs to Perth in 8 hours and 40 minutes. Curiously enough 8 hours and 40 minutes is the exact time taken by the Empire State Express in completing the course of 440 miles, but Perth is a journey of 490 miles. The corresponding East Coast train (to Aberdeen and 47 minutes slower) bears the American train."

New York, Sept. 14.—Throughout the United States the athletes of the country for track and field honors watched closely the results in the American Athletic Union championship games that were brought off on Manhattan field to-day.

The international games which will take place next Saturday between the representatives of the London Athletic Club and those chosen by the New York Athletic Club, have, so to speak, put the athletic cranks on edge, so as to get a possible line on the probabilities of the result. The London athletes will try conclusions with their American opponents next Saturday. Without a doubt, the success of the New York and London Athletic Club's representatives and the Cambridge-Yale-Harvard-Princeton boat crews on the second tier of the grand stand at Manhattan field this afternoon.

The discussion on the question occupied the whole morning session, especially of the New Testament was on his proposal to alter the Canon. Dr. Leach opposed the motion, claiming that the revised version was not in accordance with the church's prayer book in many instances, and particularly as neither the queen or Archbishop of Canterbury had authorized the use of the revised version in England. ROMANTIC MEETING OF THE PAIR

The Actress Set Him at the Hotel Where Both Boarded, and Retained Him to Prosecute a Suit Against Her Manager

Toronto, Sept. 16.—Nellie Ganthoa, the well-known entertainer, was married in New York last Saturday to John Clark, to Robert Grau, the theatrical manager, by Alderman Schilling at the City Hall Marriage Bureau, and Mrs. Clark informed the reporter that she would leave the stage for good and sail for England with her husband this week. The courtship of the couple was carried on in Toronto. Miss Ganthony was brought to Canada last October by Robert Grau, the theatrical manager, who has made more faces than other men of his calling in the world, and Toronto Grau abandoned the management of Miss Ganthony.

Miss Ganthony talked to know of the law could do anything for her, and consulted Mr. Clark, who is the well-known Ganthony, and in the time traveling at the Hotel Metropolitan, Toronto. The solicitor could do nothing for her in the way of legal redress, but as Miss Ganthony remained in Toronto during the winter, the pair saw a great deal of each other, and finally became engaged.

Miss Ganthony's real name, although she has taken the certificate, is Dilcy, daughter of Robert Davey, Surrey, Eng. She made several successful appearances here in monologue entertainments on the lines of Grau's sketch. She has sister of Richard Ganthony, the English dramatic writer, and many influential friends in London. She returned to Toronto in March last from a short visit to England, where her monologues were unsuccessful until she struck upon the idea of coaching her concert scene from "Trilby." Her height and proportions fitted her to represent Dumaurier's heroine, and she made a hit by her singing of "Hen Holt." She was the first to represent Trilby in New York.

Mr. Clark, who has married the actress, is a son of St. Mary's, Ont., where he is a mill owner. The newly-married pair remain in Toronto for some time and afterwards go to England, where Mr. Clark has married a woman from whom he afterwards legally separated. He then came to Toronto and opened a law office in the Janes building. He was well-known as a bon vivuer around town. He left the city about a fortnight ago with the intention of marrying Miss Ganthony.

DEEP WATERWAYS CONVENTION.

Program of the Meeting to Be Held in Cleveland This Week

Cleveland, Sept. 16.—A. B. Cooley, American Vice-President of the International Deep Waterways Association, has issued a statement regarding the object of the convention to be held in this city, beginning Sept. 24, under the auspices of the Board of Trade, and including on the deep waterway projects. The convention, he states, is in line with the policy outlined at the Toronto convention one year ago. The proposition outlined at that time was on the basis of 25 feet of water, the same as in the Suez Canal. Between Chicago and ocean navigation to the St. Lawrence there are scarcely 100 miles of shallows to be deepened and obstructions to be overcome by canals, and it is feasible to carry deep water to the Hudson and New York by doubling the amount of work. The commerce of the Great Lakes is already 10 per cent. of that of all the railroads of the United States. Had the commerce paid a tax averaging 1 cent per ton-mile of the railways, a $200,000,000 additional, or about 5 per cent. on the amount actually paid. A strange anomaly exists of the best railway properties in the United States being in lake territory. This, also, and prosperity are eloquent evidence of the economic value of water routes. Already the commerce into and out of Lake Superior through St. Mary's Falls canal is nearly double that of the Suez Canal, and exceeds in amount that that of all the other ship canals of the world. The lake region has one-fourth of the lake movement. It may well be believed that the difference to rail and water rates now existing one year would pay the cost of developing the navigation into and through the great lakes.

Many projects are under consideration in lake states, and the sanitary and ship canal of Chicago will soon be the most costly part of the work between the lakes and the Mississippi River in Illinois.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE IN MONTREAL.

William Bow Shoots Himself Twice. An Action to Recover $500,000 from the City of Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 16.—William Bow formerly employed as a foreman in a shoe factory at Three Rivers, shot himself twice to-day with a revolver, but may recover. He said family troubles had prompted the deed.

Messrs. Nicolte and Bernard have taken an action on behalf of the Provincial Government, to recover $500,000 collected by the city in the recorders Court, which it is claimed should go to the building of the Lachine canal.

Mr. Peter Dunne, senior messenger in the Senate since Confederation, died here on Saturday, as the result of an operation performed at the Royal Victoria Hospital. His son took the body back to Ottawa for interment.

Lord Dufferin in Retire

New York, Sept. 15.—A London special says: It seems probable that the Liberal split will be healed, and that Lord Dufferin from the embassy at Paris and diplomatic service altogether. It is said he is longing for a quiet life with leisure to finish after his book of travels. He has been a good example of noblemen in Ireland. Lord Dufferin no doubt he is tired of Paris and its petty intrigues and social work. The Paris embassy is considered the most important in the British diplomatic service, and usually only an experienced diplomat is appointed. Another reason for Lord Dufferin's desire to resign is the fact that he is childless, and consequently has no heir to succeed him. THE "PLOW DEEP" FALLACY

A farmer from New Zealand has been expressing a decided opinion against the English system of shallow ploughing. He is firmly in favor of "Poor Richards'" motto of

"Plough deep, while sluggards sleep,
And you will have corn to sell and keep."

In fact this New Zealand advanced farmer says the Essex and Suffolk (England) "farming isn't farming at all, and why, he added, according to an English exchange, the ploughs used in this country (England) are very useful as scarifiers, but they're worthless as cultivators. They don't touch the subsoil at all, and how can farming be profitable under such conditions? Every New Zealand farmer knows that in the subsoil lies a wealth of fertility—a fertility that makes all the difference between success and failure."

This opinion about deep ploughing is slightly erroneous. It may or not be advantageous, as the whole question rests with the geological formation of the soil. All soil is in reality disintegrated rock, and the remains of animal and vegetable deposits or organic matter. According to Darwin the solid rocks disintegrate even in countries where it seldom rains and where there is no frost. And in conformity with the views lately expressed by Dr Konnick, such disintegrations may be attributed to the carbonic and nitric acids, together with the nitrates of ammonia, which are dissolved in the dew.

Soils differ greatly, not only in chemical constitution, but also in physical characteristics, and whether you plow deep or shallow for the best results does not depend solely upon the chemical and physical characteristics of the soil. To plow deep in some soils would be disappointing, as the subsoil in certain districts in this country has no fertilizing material or elements of plant food in it. To plow up a gravel or sand bed, and bury rich organic soil would be folly. All the fertilizing powers of soil lie within a few inches of the top, and according to recent experiments in the leading experimental stations in Canada, England and the United States, shallow culture is recommended, especially for the sowing of seeds of all kinds and the ordinary cereals. The soil, in fact, is a composition, as far as plant food is concerned, of three main elements—potash, phosphoric acid and nitrogen (the latter in organic soil). But according to the recent researches of M. Pasteur and M. Ville, two French scientists, it has been found that certain plants—leguminous—have the power of absorbing, utilizing or appropriating free nitrogen from the atmosphere. This is brought about by certain bacteria, which have the power of manuring the plant from the atmosphere. This probably is the greatest discovery of the 19th century. Such a fact is bound to have a most influential effect upon the agriculture of the future, especially with regard to deep and shallow plowing. To cultivate this special bacteria and materialize it by watering those plants is all that is necessary, in order to produce first class crops of clover. And after producing this, other crops will follow in rotation.

Of course it is comparatively easy to adapt the plant crop to the nature of the soil when once we know what ingredients are required by them and afford all by the other but it demands close observation and a more diligent application of means to bring the physical or mechanical qualities of the soil into the state most conducive to the growth of its natural products. The necessary influence of mechanical operations such as plowing, here becomes obvious, for the circumstances of air, moisture and warmth, which are essential to the development of the changes which occur in the process of germination, are but slightly influenced by the chemical properties of the soil, being all dependent upon its mechanical condition. And this influence is not confined to the first stages of vegetation, for at no period of growth or maturity can the plants avail themselves of their full amount of food unless the state of the soil admits of the free passage of air and water and favors the extension of the roots in all directions. Hence, where deep plowing would be a benefit in hard calcareous clay, it would be altogether superfluous — in fact an injury where the soil is loose and friable as the case where there is gravelly and bad sandy subsoil, which has no chemical constituents, and which to stir up would be positively injurious. Even where subsoiling would be advantageous, plowing deep should be carefully practiced, from the fact that in order to get a proper mechanical texture, heavy clays especially require to come under the chemical effects of the air, heat and moisture.

Since Franklin's time and his "plowing deep" motto most important advances have taken place in agricultural science. Men like Sir John Lawes, Dr. Gilbert, M. Pasteur, M. Ville, Dr. Atwater, and a host of other eminent agriculturists and scientists have added their quota to better agricultural methods. In Canada we have some of the best agricultural schools and experiment stations in the world, and nowhere does farming receive a higher share of public interest than here. And the plowing and farming that might be successful in New Zealand might be altogether wrong in the Canada of ours, and on some of the soil deposits of Essex and Suffolk in England.

COPYRIGHT QUESTION

Will Be Settled Satisfactory to Canada.

THE AMENDMENT NOW ON THE WAY

Sir C. H. Tupper's Speech Criticized in London the Suggested Compromise. Says Correspondent Lord Will Satisfy Canadian Rather Than American Authorities.

New York, Sept. 16.—Mr. Isaac N Ford cables from London to The Tribune:

Sir Charles H. Tupper is known in London as a Canadian Jingo; hence his landmark speech at Toronto, declaring that "Canadians have a right to and govern themselves if they choose in the matter of copyright, as in that of tariffs and everything else," is not taken seriously.

His arrogant bearing towards the man of letters, who has been contemporaneous with the Colonial Office on the subject and who desires to protect the rights of the British author and publisher, not of Ottawa is condemned as a breach of good taste and courtesy.

It is Mr. Hall Caine's early visit to Canada and that in New York it will be brought to Colonial office has urged him to it and has armed him with letters to Governor-General. Put Sir Charles Tupper to proclaim in advance that he can have officially nothing to do with him or any other English author is alike premature and stupid.

Besides, Sir Charles, when he spoke, had not apparently received the right cue from Mr. Newcombe, the Deputy-Minister of Justice, who has been dining with the Colonial Secretary in London, and suggesting changes in the proposed draft of a new Canadian Copyright Act. The text of the official memorandum is not disclosed here but it is not unlikely that it will be a compromise, which will satisfy Canadians, rather than Americans. It is not improbable that the compromise contains an academic assertion of the principle of copyright, and then, in practice, whittles it down and fritters it away in licensing clauses in favor of Canadian printers.

Mr. Newcombe has not been idle in London. The draft which he takes back with him, while prepared by the colonial officers on lines suggested by British authors, has doubtless been altered materially in the interest of Canada. Sir Charles Tupper may be readily reconciled to it if the Canadian printers find that they can make use of it as a means of reaching the American market.

The subject is attracting much attention here. Henry Kleinau, who represents a great French publishing house in London, has written a strong letter to The Times, giving warning that the concession once made in favor of Canada could not be withheld from Australia and other colonies, and that France, Germany and other parties to the Berne agreement would have just cause for complaint, if partial and one-sided provisions were introduced. He asks in what position British authors would be if such important bookmaking centres of Germany as the kingdoms of Saxony, Bavaria and Wurtemburg determined to free themselves from the convention accepted at Berne for the whole of Germany. He predicts that piracy will soon again be the order of the day, if Canada be excepted from the operation of that convention.

Sir Charles H. Tupper can reply that under the Act of '87 Canada had a right to misgovern itself, and by giving a year's notice can withdraw from the Berne convention and legislate for itself on copyright. In theory he would be right, for in the Imperial Act copyright was not specified as a subject on which the Canadian Parliament might not legislate, and the Berne Convention has been accepted by the Dominion with the proviso that it can withdraw on a year's notice in proof. It will be a bad precedent to allow Canada to drive a coach and four through the Berne Convention for the sake of enabling a few printing houses of Toronto and Montreal to flood the American market with cheap editions and thereby expose the friends of copyright in the United States to a dangerous agitation for the repeal of the present act. Ambassador Bayard ought to be instructed from Washington to say something emphatic on the question.

KILLED ON HIS MARRIAGE EVE.

Thomas Young Killed on a Crossing—Patrick Delaney Fatally Injured by an Engine Jumping the Track.

Hamilton, Sept. 15.—At 11 this morning the body of Thomas Young, about 70 years old, boarding at 25 Park-street, was discovered by three boys lying near the Grand Trunk track at the Y, horribly mangled and bleeding about the face and head. He had been killed a few minutes previously by either the 9.02 express going west, which was late and left the station street Station at 10.25, or a freight train that passed out of the yards a few minutes later. Pilot Scotland on the 11.15 engine on the express did not see deceased and he was evidently seen by none of the hands on the freight, for it did not stop. Adding sadness to the affair is the fact that Young was to have been married this week. Miss Atkins, the bride elect, having sailed from Dublin, Ireland, and arrived in Toronto on Labor Day, where she was met by her fiancee and escorted to this city. The house was furnished and ready for the happy couple, the last of the curtains having been purchased on Saturday. Deceased left his home after 10 o'clock on Sunday morning to go for a walk, and it is supposed to attend church, but failed to get off the train in time. Coroner White ordered an inquest.

Hamilton, Sept. 16.—One of Contractor Underhill's contractors is having trouble in getting material from the Dundas front tunnel, the trestle dropped the tract past west of Locke-street, and with two dirt cars tumbled into the ditch. Patrick Mulvey was pinned between the cars and the trestle and received serious injury. The horses jumped and escaped injury. The accident was caused by the rails spreading.

The fair grounds presented an animated appearance this morning when visited by a representative of this journal. Everything was in a state of active preparation for the fair which will open to-morrow, and considerable time for four days. The main building has been repainted and is in a much better condition for displays than in former years. In consequence the demands for space have been freely Exhibitors have gone into the work with the same spirit of enterprise that has characterized the directors and are taking pride in improving the space allotted to them, and giving careful display. Already live stock has commenced to arrive. Mr. Thos. Hume, of Seymour, has on the grounds a fine exhibit of Shorthorn cattle. A number of hogs were also to be seen.

The stalls which were destroyed by fire have been rebuilt, thus affording plenty of accommodation for horses.

From the entries received by the Secretary all departments will be well filled, and all that now remains to make the fair a grand success is fine weather.

A Practical Joke.

Grand Trunk men are as a rule practical jokers, of which a popular engineer found himself the subject to-day. For several days past he had been endeavoring to discover the cause of a bad smell which pervaded the cab of his engine. This morning he found a dead mouse which some one had placed in his pocket.

RISING TO SAVE A LIFE.—A Georgia newspaper gave an account of the heroism of John Potter, a ten-year old boy who rode two miles for a doctor and then, for the purpose of calling a physician to attend his mother, who was believed to be dying with colic, the doctor could not be found, but a kind druggist gave the lad a bottle of medicine and ordered him to hurry home. The brave little boy rode home, poured the medicine, and then fainted from nervous exhaustion. The medicine cured the sick woman, and the boy as well. It is only necessary to say that the precious medicine was PAIN-KILLER, which for fifty years has never fails to cure disorders of the stomach. 25c old popular price for New Big Bottle.

—We can hear blasts being shot daily on the new Irondale railway north of here, so they are coming nearer.—Two very heavy thunder showers visited this section on the evenings of Sept. 10th and 11th. A great many trees were blown down and some roads were blockaded. A picnic was held at Mr. J. Sexsmith's, near Mr. C. Payne's lake, on Sept. 12th, which was quite successful. Dinner and tea were provided, bringing a sum of $25.30 in aid of the new English church here. After dinner a programme consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, readings and speeches lasted until tea time. Rev. Mr. Foster, of Bancroft, also played a few cornet solos which were very entertaining. At the close of the programme all crossed hands forming a large circle about the platform and sang "Auld Lang Syne."—Mrs. Wm. Elliott returned yesterday from visiting her husband who is engaged in the lumbering trade in western Ontario.—Mrs. Stouker, formerly Mrs. Isiah Walks, came back to these parts on Sept. 6th.

Important Notice.

Owing to moving into our new store and being overwhelmed with work, making off new goods, etc., we regret that we will be unable to make an exhibit at our Fall Opening, as intended. However, our baby show will go on just the same. Visitors to our fair will do well to pay our new store a visit (Brigdall & Thompson's old stand). It will well repay every person to call and see our exhibition more clothing, better clothing and cheaper clothing than any clothier in Canada. Opera House.

Harry Lindley's Big Co. open their season to-night as above, after a protracted engagement in Ottawa, where the company achieved a big success, and enjoyed the patronage of several cabinet ministers and where they return for six weeks further. Their plays are new, noticeably "The Circus Girl," which the Free Press pronounced as the best light comedy production of the season. Mildred, the great operatic danseuse, whose dancing is pronounced superior to Carmencita, appears nightly in ballet solos. Little Ethel Lindley also appears as a cantatrice. The prices are only 10c, 20c and 30 cts.

The Recital.

The Recital to be given in the B. B. College to-morrow night with Miss Kitty Hodgins as Elocutionist, and Mr. Fax, Mrs. Campbell and the I.C.O.F. Orchestra on the musical part of the programme, would seem to leave nothing to be desired and assures a delightful entertainment.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

The young men's meeting was largely attended yesterday afternoon. Rev. R. Boynton spoke for a few minutes upon "Service the Outcome of Love," taking for his remarks the words of Christ "Simon, lovest thou Me?" The orchestra rendered very acceptably "Praise ye the Father" and Messrs. Fax and Canfield sang a duet entitled "Jesus, Blessed, Sacred Name." These meetings should be attended by all young men, as the management are sparing no pains to make them truly attractive.

A Handsome Trophy.

A gentleman in this city has purchased one of the dwarfs exhibited some time ago by Crystal Hall, for competition in a tug-of-war between teams from the 15th and 49th battalions. The figure is a correct representation of one of the race of dwarfs that inhabit the Hartz mountains in Germany and will be a trophy well worth winning. The contest for this prize takes place at the fair grounds on Wednesday evening.

Saved an operation in the following case. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures when all others fail. It makes pure blood.

"A year ago my father, William Thompson, was taken suddenly ill with inflammation of the lungs, and suffered a great deal and was very low for some time. At last the doctor said he would not get well unless an operation was performed. At this time we read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to try it. Before he used half a bottle his appetite had come back to him, whereas before he could eat but little. When he had taken three bottles the medicine he was as well as ever." FRANCIS J. MOCK PARLIAMENT.

The Members and Their Constituencies.

The students of Albert College have commenced the organization of the various societies; the only one yet "posted" is the Mock Parliament. The framing of the constituencies took some time and ingenuity, for there must be an "eternal fitness" in these. Our readers would have to know the Mr. C——'s, their peculiarities, foibles, allinities, or former residence to see the points or where the rubs come in. All illustrations: The member for "Way Back" was born and lived all his life in Toronto. The representative of "Handy Andy" is "Jack-of-all-trades," his life on the prairies having taught him how to do everything. The "complexion of his hair" accounts for the M. P. for "Red Ochre." His having volunteered for mission work in China, to the reading for Mr. R. H. Gordon being the number for Pekin. The legislators from "Little Rose" and "Sagerville" have strong attachments for those names. Mr. C. C. Morrow by a strange contradiction upholds the interests of "yesterday." The member for "Curly Knob" it is said has not a straight hair on his head. Mr. Smith, who has a fine tenor voice, is the leader of the male chorus. We will see that "Sing Sing" gets it's share of what the government is supposed to give any member of the opposition. Messrs. McElhenney and Fenton, for "Bone Yard" "the free and independents" of "Banjo Corner" and "Fiddler's Paradise," will make the fellows on the other side dance lively times to the music they set on their favorite instruments. Where could a Rogers come from but from "Sheffield" or a Massey but from "Horse Radish." Lost, but certainly not least, for he is six feet four and a half inches in height, is the Honorable member for "Lanky Town," who never weighed over a hundred and ten pounds. Albert College must make provision for students who live so near the clouds as the M. P. for "Lanky Town," and as he boarded in the college will do it is said that the same bed will be made up for him. Appended to the names of all the members and their constituencies:

Government—Anderson, Dandy Andy; Boyd, Sound Banks; Coulter, Grey Pond; Clemes, Clementine; Doyle, Erin; Elmer, Elmsdale; Finlay, Red Ochre; Gordon, Pekin; Hewson, Antville; Hopkins, Confederation; A. R. Farrell, Shingle Bench; W. J. Farley, Chair Town; Kerr, Slab Town; Kirby, Little Bose; Lambert, Parsonage; Morrow, Yesterday; Mallory, Cobble Stone; McCallum, Curly Knob; McElhenney, Banjo Corner; Reid his Majesty, Dixie; Schlichter, Slick Hollow; Scotts, High Land; Wallwood, Woodville; Whitcside, Leanbury.

Opposition—Armour, Daylsford; Beatty, Way Back; Coone, Cornfield; Graham, Fiddler's Paradise; Henry, Chick Chick; Idle, Sagerville; Kemp, Down South; Lemsby, Mascott; Lazier, Lazy Hollow; Marsh, Marshville; McDonald, Brucesburg; S. I. Farrell, Westmoor; Parker, Bermuda; Ross, Low Down; Rogers, Shelbield; Robertson, Speckled South; Sing Sing, Sheridan, Rossessay; Shore, High Tide; Shackel, Handcuff; Tink, Tinkersford; Wood, Cedardale; Wright, Speckled; Wilson, Thlesburg; Young, Lanky Town.

Wholesome Summer Drink.

An article that has grown in popularity most largely as a summer beverage, and one that is recommended for its wholesome and refreshing in hot weather, is Adams' Wool Beer, which is sold by L. W. Noonan & Co. at 10 cents per package; sufficient to make two gallons.

Brecker Street Church.

The services in Brecker st. church yesterday were conducted by Rev. J. Anderson, who took for his text in the morning Luke 8-48, "And he said unto her, daughter, be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole, go in peace." In the evening he spoke from Job, 9-4, "Who hath hardened himself against Him and hath prospered?" Those who were present through the practice of sin, we harden our hearts against God. It being impossible for God to put man in such a condition that he must be saved.

15 Years of Itching.

Wm. Golding, commercial traveller, 130 Esther st., Toronto, says: For 15 years I suffered untold misery from Piles. At times sometimes called pin worms. Many and many weeks have I had to lay off the road from this cause. I used all kinds of pile ointments and so called remedies with no permanent relief to the intense itching and stinging, which irritated by scratching, would bleed and ulcerate. One half a box of Chase's Ointment cured me completely.

Struck by an Electric Car.

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Kingston, of the Township of Sydney, was driving up Front street a horse attached to a phaeton and when in front of C. B. Scantlebury's store the vehicle was struck by an electric car. The result of the collision was the breaking of the front axle and the breaking of a few spokes in one of the wheels. Mrs. Kingston claimed that she was unable to get out of the way on account of other vehicles.

25 Cents vs. Kidney Trouble.

DEATH OF H. BERRY.

A Promising Young Man cut off in the Prime of Life.

For some time past the death of Harry Berry, solicitor, has been looked for and at 4 o'clock Sunday morning he passed away. The deceased was in his 25th year, and was the youngest child of Mr. Jarvis Berry, who resides in the 1st concession of Sidney, a short distance west of the city limits. He had been ill for months, being a victim of consumption. He was a student in the office of the late S. B. Burdett, M.P., and latterly with Mr. Lyons. He succeeded in passing his examination as a solicitor and for upwards of a year conducted successfully a branch office in the village of Tweed, but owing to failing health was forced to retire. He was a young man who made himself popular with all whom he came in contact and his demise is regretted by a host of friends. The family will have extended to them the sympathy of the community in the loss which they have sustained of a dutiful son and a loving brother. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock to the R. C. church,

Out of sorts. Symptoms, Headache, loss of appetite, furred tongue, and general indisposition. These symptoms, if neglected, develop into acute disease. First and foremost amongst external curatives of pain is Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Not is it less esteemed as a remedy for coughs, colds, swellings, colic, bunions etc. It is economic as well as an inexpensive article, since the results produced by it necessitate the use only of a small quantity.

W. W. McLellan, Lyn P.O., writes:—"I was afflicted with rheumatism, and had given up all hopes of a cure. By chance I saw Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil recommended, I immediately sent (fifty miles) and purchased four bottles, and with only two applications I was able to get around, and although I have used one bottle I am nearly well. The other three bottles I gave around to my neighbors, and I have had no many calls for more, that I feel bound to relieve the afflicted by writing you for a supply."

The right kind of a man always learns something worth knowing from a mistake.

C. A. Livingstone, Tweedsville, says:—"I have much pleasure in recommending Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, from having used it myself, and having used it myself, and having sold it for some time. In my own case I will say for it that it is the best preparation I have ever tried for rheumatism."

There is no obligue way in reproof which takes off the sharpness of it.—Pope

The pangs endured by the early Christian martyrs were no doubt excruciating, but not so prolonged or scarcely more dreadful than those experienced by the sufferers from inflammatory rheumatism—a disease which is easily cured at the outset with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil—a sovereign remedy for pain—a reliable curative of kidney liver and other complaints, and a medicine of the purest as well as the most salutary kind.

P. Schiffman, St. Paul, Minn., will mail a trial package of Schiffman's Asthma Cure, free to any sufferer. He advertises by giving it away. Never fails to give instant relief in worst cases and cures where others fail. Name this paper and send address for a free trial package.

Scott's Sarsaparilla

AS A BLOOD PURIFIER and spring medicine it surpasses all other compounds. It is a concentrated and containing newly discovered vegetable ingredients, to other preparation.

IT ACTS WITH ENERGY ON THE LIVER, KIDNEYS AND POWERS OF THE SKIN expelling by means of these organs, disease germs, scrofulous, inherited, or contagious poisons which float in the blood, perspiration and urine.

THE NEW MEDICINE

Its most prominent feature is its remarkable efficacy in eradicating poison and impurities from the blood, and building up the worn and debilitated parts of the system. Thus, in stubborn cases of scrofula and other diseases depending upon impure blood, quick results are obtained from its purifying and tissue-building properties.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, SEPT. 17.

WEST HURON SAFE FROM TROUBLE.

Certain journals are unduly fretted over the assumption, which is altogether forced and gratuitous, that the translation of Hon. J. C. Patterson to the Lieutenant-Governorship of Manitoba will mean the disfranchisement of West Huron at the next session of Parliament. Those journals have evidently become infected by a false rumor, emanating from some irresponsible source. We believe an opinion was expressed that should there be no session of Parliament in January, no writ need be issued until the holding of the next general election. That opinion seems to have been predicated on the theory that a settlement of the Manitoba school question by mutual agreement was possible and probable, and that the session of Parliament that was promised not later than the 2nd of January would, in consequence, not be held. Such an assumption, however, was not warranted by the terms of the speech delivered by the leader of the House in making that promise. We are justified in the belief that Parliament will be summoned at or before the time named by the Hon. Mr. Foster, irrespective of any step that might be taken looking to a settlement of the school question by mutual agreement or of any conclusion that might be informally arrived at in connection therewith. This being the case it follows that, the seat for West Huron having been vacated by the resignation of Mr. Patterson, a writ must issue for a by-election before the meeting of parliament. The Government will not temporize over the question in any fashion that will give their foes an opportunity for cavil. The retention or loss of this riding—which was so long a stalwart Liberal stronghold, and only won by Mr. Patterson by a majority of twenty, cannot affect the attitude of political affairs in any material degree. A contest cannot, and should not, be avoided from any consideration of party expediency. The question whether the seat may be won or lost would be of small importance beside the question that would spring from such a strain upon the constitution as that which our Liberal friends are suggesting—might we say hoping for?—viz: on the disfranchisement of a popular constituency during a session of Parliament. Should a Liberal Conservative Government fall under the seeming necessity of paltering with such an issue "letting I dare not wait upon I would," it will have ceased to merit respect or support. The Government of Sir Mackenzie Bowell has not come to any such pass. It has the courage of its convictions as strongly implanted now as it has ever had in its career, and right will be done at all hazards in West Huron and elsewhere.

That Tired Feeling

Is a common complaint and it is a dangerous symptom. It means that the system is debilitated because of impure blood, and in this condition it is especially liable to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for this condition, and also for that weakness which prevails at the change of season, climate or life.

HOOD'S PILLS are easy to take, easy in action and sure in effect. 25c.

How can we raise more corn to the acre? Why, of course by using Putnam's Corn Extractor. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has given universal satisfaction, for it is sure, safe and painless. English Collegians Collapse in Their Second.

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—The University of Pennsylvania v. Oxford-Cambridge Cricket match was finished this afternoon, and resulted in a victory for the former team by 100 runs. The match goes on record as being one of the greatest ever played in this country, chiefly from the fact that when play ceased this morning on the second innings of the local eleven, the Englishmen had only to score 162 runs to win. As they had gathered together 283 on their first innings without much difficulty it was supposed that their task was an easy one. The wicket was hard and very much crumpled. George S. Patterson proved a veritable demon to the visitors, and to his remarkable bowling may be attributed much of the success of the day.

When stumps were drawn on Saturday Pennsylvania had gathered together 256 runs in their first innings, with Brooke not out and J. S. Clark and Goodman to bat. Clark was clean bowled by Mulligan. Goodman scored 5 runs before being bowled by Hartley, while Brooke carried his bat, for if many, which made the total 283, netting a total of 162 runs for the Englishmen to win, and as the score shows, they lamentably failed.

Play was over so soon that the visiting collegians gave an exhibition against a good all-round team. The visitors batted, and after two hours of lifeless, tiresome work, stumps were drawn after eight wickets had been taken for 230 runs.

QUINTE DISTRICT FAIR

FORMALLY OPENED BY SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL.

Fine Weather For the Opening—The Main Building Converted into a Palace of Elegance—The Management Pleased at the Prospect—All Departments Well Filled—The Exhibition Greater Than Ever—Notes of the Exhibits—Programme For To-Morrow.

To-day brought with it sunshine and invigorating weather, all that was desired for the successful opening of the Bay of Quinte District Fair, for which the Directors have labored so indefatigably, and the public generally had so much desired. It was indeed a happy day to those who have the exhibition to see a fair that would be a credit to the city and the country tributary to it. This year the Quinte Exhibition will, from all appearances, make a rapid movement forward, and place its banner in the front ranks of provincial fall fairs.

Exhibitors worked industriously all day yesterday and late last night to arrange their exhibits in the space allotted to them. The main building has been transformed from a blank, barren, uninviting place to an attractive resort, where it will be a delight to all who possess a cultivated taste to linger. The hall will be found by visitors to contain a concentration of the best stores of Front st. under one roof.

Upon entering the building from the north entrance the first exhibit to attract attention is that of the Oak Hall, the display being men and children's ready-made clothing. The other exhibitors on the ground floor are: Easton & Foster, stoves and furnaces; W. McGie, stoves and furnaces; Louis Bonmore, groceries; W. A. Hungerford, representing the celebrated Ramsay tea, of Toronto; Belleville Box Factory, showing baskets, boxes and other articles in this line in profusion; Haines & Lockett have a large and varied exhibit of boots and shoes; W. B. Riggs shows a number of the celebrated Mason & Risch pianos; John Lewis, stoves, furnaces and baths; F. W. Bronse, representing the Singer Sewing Machine Company; C. F. Smith, stoves, furnaces, plumbing apparatus and bicycles; H Bull, showing a number of Williams' pianos; R. H. Boyd, Acme smoothing iron; J. H. Young, teas; Hart & Lazier, a large exhibit of pottery. Upstairs is situated also a number of exhibits by merchants, namely: Wood, Vallance & Gibson, house furnishings tastefully arranged: Nathan Jones, carpets, curtains and house furnishings; J. Brasior, a fine show of furs; J. Copeland, harness. The ladies' department of fine work and art are also shown here and is one of the best ever seen. The principal exhibitors are: Frol Richardson, a collection of original pictures in oil and water colors, and ink drawings by Miss H. Crossbull, Kingston. Miss Fann Baker, Belleville, water colors and oil paintings; Miss Cora Lamont of Belleville, water color and oil paintings; H. Fairman, Gilead, oil paintings; Miss Fraser, of Kingston, paintings of various kinds. The main exhibitors in ladies ornamental work are Mrs. T. J. Spafford, Mrs. J. Lutton, Miss Stella Barber, Belleville; Thos. Steele, Trenton, and L. W. Bate, Brighton. A number of exhibitors' names could not be ascertained this morning as the exhibits were not placed in position.

Horticultural Department.

This part of the show is situated in the southern part of the main building and is without doubt one of the best ever seen here. The principal exhibitors in vegetables are S. Sinclair, J. Morris, J. Arts and H. Mussman. The display of fruit is simply magnificent, among the exhibitors being the following: W. R. Weese, N. Arnott, J. Arts, C. Vanderlouk, A. M. Weese, Geo. Williamson, H. J. Scripture, Jos. Petty, R. Lithgrow, W. R. Wilson, J. C. Creighton, B. Fuller and A. Sager. The display of flowers, while perhaps not as large as in former years, is nevertheless a pretty one. Those showing are J. Munro, J. Petty, W. Connor, S. Potter, J. Kennedy and W. Kemp.

Horses.

There are a fine lot of horses upon exhibition, including some thoroughbreds. Those who are exhibiting are as follows:

P. Mallory, A. T. Fink, J. M. Hurley, L. W. Bate and son, H. Weese, T. H. Mc-Kee, J. Hudgins, R. Ashley, Dr. Ackerill, O. Sills, A. Gerow, Dr. Sutton, F. McGowan, T. H. B. Purdy, Jas. Ketcheson, W. Clark, J. Bonsteel, F. Bonisteel, W. Brasher, W. B. Weese, W. Bensley, Jas. Cummings, Jas. Davis, R. J. Hewitt, B. Johnson, J. Ketchoson, W. H. Lyons, J. W. Twining, H. C. Purdy, W. Kerr, G. W. Carriages.

The carriage building is also well filled up with a varied display of vehicles made by the Ashley Carriage Company, J. Finnegan & Son, Brown Co. and St. Charles & Pringle.

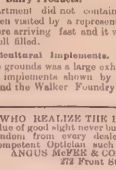

Dairy Products.

This department did not contain many exhibits when visited by a representative, but they were arriving fast and it will no doubt be well filled.

Agricultural Implements.

Upon the grounds was a large exhibit of agricultural implements shown by R. F. Hamilton and the Walker Foundry Company.

THOSE WHO REALIZE THE PRICE less value of good sight never buy spectacles at random from every dealer, but consult a competent Optician such as at ANGUS McPEE & CO., 372 Front Street.

EXHIBITORS' NOTES.

Oak Hall.

Mr. C. H. Veumilyea, proprietor of the Oak Hall, has eclipsed all previous attempts at displays of ready made clothing. His exhibit occupies a whole side of the main building, on the left hand side of the entrance, and is so arranged as to draw the attention of every visitor. Mr. Vermilyea designed the exhibit and has been ably seconded by Jas. Langley, who has executed the work in a manner to leave nothing to be desired. First of all the bare walls, ceiling and posts were nicely draped and festooned with bunting, a task of work necessitating a lot of labor and expense. Then over $2,000 worth of sample suits, overcoats, ulsters, etc., were taken from the big stock on Front st., and all day yesterday five men were busily engaged in putting it in order. The clothing is displayed in departments and the price marked in plain figures on symbolical tickets in the shape of oak leaves and acorns. On the top row is a range of boys' two and three piece suits of all qualities, but all manufactured by the celebrated tailor, Sanford, of Hamilton. Mr. Vermilyea simply has no competitors in this line of goods. Next in order come youth's and men's suits in Canadian and imported tweeds, cheviots, serges, etc., all of the best patterns and from the best mills. These lines are made by firms who employ the most skilled labor that money can procure and will fit as well as tailor made goods. Above is one line that Mr. Vermilyea takes pride in more than an other it is his overcoats. He shows overcoats as high in price as $25 and as low as $4. Beaver will be all the rage this winter and the Oak Hall are prepared for the rush with many lines to suit all pockets and tastes. He shows a beautiful coat at $10 that many tailors would be glad to own. Ulsters will be much worn again this season and the exhibit contains many of these coats in friezo and tweed. In children's overcoats and pea-jackets the exhibit is the largest ever shown in this city.

The clothing is so arranged on the forms that each piece can be readily seen. Along the front of the exhibit a number of figures have been dressed that show several suits to the very best advantage. The exhibit is unlivened by many colored motto cards in the shape of acorns and oak leafs, pictures, cards, streamers, pennerettes, flags and Chinese lanterns. The space attracted large crowds all day and Mr. Vermilyea was congratulated on every hand for his enterprise and taste.

A Hint From Nature.

When Mother Earth begins to change her emerald gown for the winter dress of brown, it is a hint to shivering mortals to prepare for the change. Only this year there is no need to insure comfort in spite of icy blasts. Fibre Chamois is an interlining that can't be penetrated by the wildest wind that blows, and yet has a porous nature which makes it a particularly sanitary warmth producer. A large lot of it just bought the body and sleeves of coats and jackets will add no weight, will ensure the necessary stiffness for style and increase the wearer's comfort more than you can guess, till you try it.

A Social Gathering.

A very enjoyable "At Home" was held in the Sunday School rooms of Bleecker st. church, under auspices of E. L. of C. E. of that church. The rooms looked very pretty and home-like, showing clearly that the decorating committee had fulfilled their duty well. The good programme rendered was opened by singing that old familiar hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," after which the Rev. S. Tink led in prayer. The latter followed an excellent speech from the President, Miss E. Watson, impressing on the minds of all the members the necessity of renewed vigor in their work for the Heavenly Master. The solos rendered by Misses E. Anderson and L. Watson were well received, also the reading by Miss J. Connor, recitation by Miss Bertha Watson and address by Mr. Teeley, of Albert College. These were followed by a generous plate of fruit, consisting of pears and grapes, and a few minutes chat over which Dr. Dunlop was sung and the company dispersed, all feeling more united to press forward in the work for the ensuing winter. Rev. J. Anderson in his genial manner occupied the chair

A Gift For $10.

Any clothing store can sell you one at this price. There is nothing new or striking about selling suits for this money. But the Oak Hall have got the very best $10 suits in Canada, either in black or fine tweeds. If you don't believe us you are quite welcome to look around and satisfy yourself. Then if we are right purchase, if not, we lose. We are not afraid to have you try the experiment.

SPORTS' DAILY ROUND.

Henry of Navarre Outfoots All the Cracks.

CLIFFORD AND SIR WALTER BEATEN

Trotting at Dufferin Park A Dump For the Talent at Windsor—Intermediate Lacrosse Finals—Results of the Baseball Leagues.

Gravesend, Sept. 17.—The fall meeting of the Brooklyn Jockey Club began under more favorable circumstances than usual owing to the cooler weather and a good crowd, little being at least 5000 persons present. The attendance was the largest since last season, and the fact that the aged society is a self-supporting one, and has together the two best horses in the country, including the great Henry of Navarre, who has flying finals still to come and has given out, should help the attendance in months. Clifford and Sir Walter were favorites in the sport that gave much promise of a lasting success. After several postponements on account of rain the first day's racing got away in good order, for a quarter of a mile, the two crack thoroughbreds were sent away to a good start by Starter Hunt pursuant different tactics from those adopted by the owners of the two horses. Clifford, who is owned by Mr. Keene, was allowed to make the running and he had not been long at it before Sir Walter, who has been shipped over from England specially to win the race for Clifford, also passed the post, and was left with the lead. Sir Walter made a rough and a hard finish, but Clifford was never headed, and won by a length. Time, 1.50 3-4. Another good race was that between Henry of Navarre and Kingston, the former winning by a head. Time, 1.50 3-4. Results:

First race, 5 furlongs—Laura C., 103, Mahoney, 4 to 5, 1; Cadley rose, 105, Ross, 6 to 1, 2; Nicholas, 105, Hamilton, 30 to 1, third. Time, 1.03 3-4. Jarret's, Princess Imam, Cecum, Gold Bound, Lucille Fitcher, Van Buskirk, Bourbeuf also ran.

Second race, 1 1-2 furlongs—Jessie June, 104, Doherty, 3 to 1, 1; Jester of Penn, 108, Ross, 8 to 1, 2; Metropole, 107, McCue, 3 to 1, third. Time, 2.38 3-4. Lizzie Lucas also ran.

Third race, 1 mile—Tasco, 98, Burns, 4 to 1, 1; Lady Rose, 98, Sweeney, 10 to 1, 2; Sonnetsaid, Metaline, 107, Ross, 3 to 1, third. Time, 1.42. Polly, Splendid, Miss Clark, Waterman also ran.

Fifth race, 1 furlong—Doubtful, 97, Sweeney, 20 to 1, 1; Duchess of Montrose, 95, Walsh, 4 to 1, 2; Quindaro, 103, Mc-Tighe, 8 to 5, 3. Time, 1.15. Lady Bolan-der, Sisket, Mistress, Inspector Blunt also ran.

Racing at Dufferin Park.

Toronto, Sept. 13.—The fall racing opened yesterday afternoon at Dunlop's farm, under auspicious circumstances. There was an attendance of about 600, while the track, the half-mile track in good condition and the paddock and stables in fine shape, and the good card did a good business.

Alice S. captured the first event after five heats. Avern was the first, but lost it owing to leaving his track. Gillespie went up behind Avern in the third heat, and in the fourth race Alice S. winning the fifth and race. The 2.17 pace was won by Mc-Call's well-known campaigner, Chloe, in straight heats, and another good card was announced. A good card will be presented to-day, starting at 2 o'clock. To-morrow day, besides the races events, there will be a boys' riding race. Summaries:

DUNRAVEN SAILS FOR HOME.

No Likelihood of Further Racing Between Valkyrie and Defender.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 18.—Secretary Griffin's office of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club received a telegram from Lord Dunraven, in which he stated he was extremely sorry at being unable to attend the proposed banquet in Toronto, but explained as he had missed him he would sail for England on Thursday of this week on the Teutonic. The steam yacht will go together the two boats in this country, including the Valkyrie and Vigilant, but Lord Dunraven will not be present. Mr. Clinton Gilbert and Sir Walter were invited as well, but gave much the same excuse as Lord Dunraven. After several more letters, or rather notes, had been exchanged Lord Dunraven's chief reason for leaving so soon is to be with his wife, who is to be confined in the first of September. Lord Dunraven's club reception, the steam yacht Erin, will be left in charge of Mr. Clancy, ex-M.P.P., that a further move would be to substitute the Defender for the Valkyrie, and in reply to Mr. Clancy's letter instruments, but cheaper than the former. He also shows a Bell and a Doherty organ, which are unexcelled. Mr. Riggs sold a handsome Mason & Risch piano yesterday afternoon to Mr. Geo. Ormand and will doubtless sell several more before the fair is over if merit in an article counts for anything.

J. F. Ramsay & Co.

J. F. Ramsay & Co., of Toronto, have in the main building one of the handsomest exhibits of teas ever made in Belleville. They are specially pushing the sale of Ram Say and Club House blend. Ram Say is put up in pound and half pound packages and retailed at 40, 50 and 60 cents per lb. It is a mixture of pure Indian and Ceylon teas. Competent judges say it is the finest package ever introduced in Canada. The firm have gone to an enormous expense in putting their teas before the public and their efforts should be appreciated not only by consumers, but by retail merchants. The firm carries all lines of teas, including Japans, Hysons, etc. During the Industrial Fair at Toronto the firm gave away over 15,000 cups of tea and have over 2,000 orders in Canada and the United States. Mr. W. A. Hungerford, who represents the firm in this district, is in charge of the exhibit. He is one of the most practical tea men in Canada, and when he tells you an article is right that settles it.

Fish's King Shirt at the Belleville Fair.

Patents are generally articles that have merit. There are so complicated that though being useful for the purpose designed are scarcely ever used through being so complicated; other patents are no good because found impracticable when they come to be used.

THE KING SHIRT is not built that way. This article of wearing apparel is the most simple invention ever given to the public and the good points are obvious at once. Mr. Fish has to be congratulated in bringing this useful article into practical use, as it is a departure that will eventually revolutionize the shirt business. There are nine good points about this shirt that no other shirt has and they all fill a long felt want. This shirt must be seen and worn to be appreciated, the firm of A. P. Fish & Co. are the sole makers of this celebrated shirt and are now increasing their capacity for its manufacture. Their place of business is 298 Front St., Belleville, where they carry on a large gents' furnishing store business, where they have been in business for 20 years.

"Salada" Exhibit.

"That is a good cup of tea," said a lady who had tasted a cup of the famous "Salada" tea, which is being served to the visitors to the fair. The exhibit is to the right of the western entrance and it is constantly surrounded by a crowd of sightseers who are anxious to taste this most delicious of all teas.

The exhibit is tastefully arranged in a pyramid in the centre against the back wall, with receding piles on either side. The booth is prettily decorated, having a sky blue canopy with a red back ground and bright colored drapings on the posts. The tea is sold by all leading grocers throughout Canada and is packed only in lead packages with the name "Salada" on the label, thus ensuring that the consumer invariably gets the same quality and kind of tea.

An invitation is extended to all visitors to the fair to call and try a cup of this delicious tea.

EARLY MORNING BLAZE.

One Residence Destroyed and Another Somewhat Damaged

Shortly after midnight last night Mr. Joseph Beardsley and family, residing on Maria street, were awakened by loud and rapid shouts which were the means by which they were aroused. They made a rapid exit only to discover to their consternation that the house on Lane No. 1 was in flames. The alarm was sounded at 12.15, but by the time the engines arrived on the scene the house was a mass of flames and too much credit cannot be given to the firemen for their work in preventing the fire from spreading to the adjoining buildings. Mr. Beardsley had but little of the contents insured and Mr. Beardsley had an insurance of $200 upon the contents in the London and $2500 upon the house. This will nearly cover his loss.

Adjoining was a house owned by Mr. Michael Wright, and occupied by Peter Cottee. It was damaged considerably by fire and smoke. Loss covered by insurance in the Commercial Union. The firemen were called out again at 2 a.m. as the flames had rekindled. The origin of the fire is not known.

A Large Funeral.

As might be expected from the esteem entertained for the deceased and the families she formed a part of, there was a very large attendance at the funeral of Mrs. F. A. Sills, nee Miss Annie Maud Pascoe this afternoon from the residence of her father, Mr. Lewis C. Pascoe, Alexander street. The floral tributes were many, among others a broken wheel surmounted by a snow white dove from Crystal Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 393, West Duluth; anchor from Orange Star Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 87, West End Duluth; large wreath from Liberty Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 286, Duluth; pillow with "Dollie" in immortelles on it from her husband; pillow with "Our Classmate" in immortelles from the young ladies of her former class in Bridge street Sunday school; wreath "sister" on it from Nellie, Louise and Eddie; wreath with "Annie" in immortelles, Mr. and Mrs. Sills; pillow with "Annie" Mr. and Mrs. L. A Question.

Several men we raise more corn to the acre? Why, of course by using Putnam's Corn Extractor. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor does give universal satisfaction, for it is sure, safe and painless. Like every article of real merit it has a host of imitators, but you should only use the genuine. Be careful to guard against those dangerous substitutes offered by the genuine Putnam's manufacturers, W. G. Tobin & Co., proprietors, Kingston.

The Premier's Visit.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who arrived in the city Monday night, received a hearty reception by his old friends, who congratulated him upon his apparent rugged health after his extended trip in the North West, to whom he remarked that he felt as well and able to work as he did twenty years ago. Last evening he spent quietly with members of his family and several old friends who were much interested in his reminiscences of the trip, particularly incidents relating to the Indian tribes, many of whom he visited. He related one instance when a chief in sign language pointed to the sky, to the earth, to him (Sir Mackenzie) and then to himself, the speaker, when he held out his hand to be shaken, which the interpreter said meant in the Indian sign language, "the sky and earth belong to you and me, let us be friends." A number of Parliament present remarked that he always knew that the Premier had a good grip on things earthly, but if he had such a "cinch" in the upper regions he and his friends would accept assistance, sometimes refused in a governmental way.

Sir Mackenzie left by the 11 o'clock train to-day accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. McCarthy and child. He was bid good-bye at the station by many old friends, including Reeve Thompson, of Elzevir, and English, of Madoc; Jno. Wiggins, W. Diamond and Peter Vankleek.

Yesterday afternoon he, accompanied by Mrs. Mathieson were: Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mr. and Mrs. Gerlach, Mr. and R. Sutton, W. J. McLaren, W. Rose Cuthbert, and Mr. Maud Gladstone. They were all past pupils with the exception of Maud Gladstone, who is now a pupil of the institution. It need hardly be said, a pleasant and profitable time was spent by superintendent and pupils.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Mrs. George Hall, of Sidney, Thrown From a Buggy and Severely Injured.

Mrs. Geo Hall, who resides in the 4th concession of Sidney, yesterday morning sustained injuries which may prove of a fatal nature.

It appears that she in company with her daughter, was driving down Davis' hill, which is about half a mile from their home, when the trace became unfastened and other portions of the harness became deranged, causing the animal to run off into the ditch and upsetting the vehicle. Miss Hall was not injured, but her mother was not so fortunate. Her face was badly disfigured, the skin being taken off, her nose cut open and her skull fractured. She was conveyed home and Drs. Bonker and Gibson, of this city, summoned to attend her. At the present time it is impossible to tell what the result will be, all depending upon the speed of the fracture of the skull. Mrs. Hall is a sister of Sergeant Downs, of the police force of this city.

There must be a reason for this growth of Oak Hall business. Our best friends would not buy from us unless the goods were not up to the standard. Good as ever, or the trade would dwindle. QUINTE DISTRICT FAIR.

ADDRESSES BY THE PREMIER, MAYOR AND THE PRESIDENT

Visitors Pleased With the Exhibition A Good Afternoon's Sport Yesterday Bicycle Races, Exhibitions of Speed and Quoit Match—The Children in Attendance Judges at Their Duties—Notes of Interest.

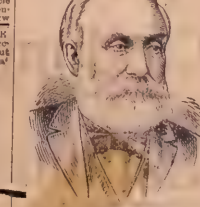

The exhibition opened yesterday after noon under favorable circumstances. At 2 o'clock those present gathered about the judges' stand to listen to addresses which were made by the Premier, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Mayor Walmsley and W. N. Ponton, the President of the Association.

On the stand in addition to the Premier and the previously spoken of were Mr. H Corby, M.P.; W. B. Northrup, M.P.; W. H. Biggar, M.P.P.; G. S. Sills, ex-M.P. P.; Mr. Farrelly, Father Carson, J. W. Lonsdale, President of the Horticultural Society; Col. Hendricks, J. G. Foy, President of the Board of Trade, and others.

Mr. Ponton was the first speaker and in introducing the Premier said all would be pleased to welcome him back after his trip across the western part of the country. The Premier had soon the golden harvest of that country. He had come in touch with every part of the Dominion, which was a grand thing. He was glad to find of the spirit of hope abroad. The fair was an incentive to doing good and he was pleased that the prospects of a good fair were bright. We should all join enthusiastically in making this a permanent exhibition. This we would glad to welcome home an old Belleville boy, Mr. H. Corby, M.P., who came back in renowned health.

The President called for three cheers for the Premier, which were given with much enthusiasm.

Sir Mackenzie was received with loud applause. In his opening remarks he said those present would have to bear with him as he was suffering from a sore throat and in consequence would be unable to speak loudly. He was pleased to be present at the opening of the exhibition, and to meet with his old friends once more. He was for years connected with the society and had worked with others hard for the success of the fair. It was a pleasure to him to assist in the opening of this exhibition, which promised to eclipse all previous fairs.

In speaking of Canada he said he had travelled considerably, but he could say that there was no portion of God's earth where a journeyman who was sober and industrious could prosper any better than in this country. He would congratulate the officers of the Association on the success attending their efforts and hoped that greater success was in store for them. All should endeavor to make the exhibition the success it was destined to be. He spoke of the agricultural products and advised the farmers to produce the highest class of articles. This would pay, to many, seem strange for him to say, but he had worked upon the farm, had labored in the workshop and had also been a "printer's devil." He had worked hard during his life. He advised the young men to be industrious, persevere and aspire to the highest pinnacle. Work for themselves and the result would be beneficial. Canadians should be proud of this country and the flag that floated over it. (Cheers). There was no country in the world with the same population as Canada, that had accomplished more. He again thanked the people for their cordial greeting he had received, and would take great pleasure in declaring the Bay of Quinte District Fair open. (Loud applause.)

Mayor Walmsley spoke briefly and said he was pleased to be present. He hoped the exhibition would be a great success. All citizens should take an interest in the fair and endeavor to boom it. He said that by next year he was certain that the electric railway would be running to the grounds, and if he had anything to do with the Bay Bridge Company, he would endeavor to have exhibitors who crossed the bridge come over free. He was pleased to welcome the Premier and Mr. H. Corby.

Mr. Ponton said there were other gentlemen present whom all would like to hear speak, but time would not permit.

The bicycle races were then called on.

The concluding event proved to be an exciting one for a short time, but was unfortunately not concluded owing to an accident. Mr. R. Hewitt's thoroughbred team, Eclipse and Fandango, became a racing "bike" and DETHRONED Another thoroughbred, was driven by William Stewart. They were at a rapid pace, and for twice around the track. Instance around the track. In turning the south bend Mr. Hewitt's team struck the track on the home stretch and ran into who was driving the team, Mr. Stewart, and the animals, being She registered by Don Pedro, continued the race, and rested around the track without stopping. It was expected that they would make it. Mr. Stewart was thrown out of the sulky, and was picked up by a number of the People who rushed to his assistance, expecting to find him severely injured, but the only injury he sustained was to the right leg, which was slightly bruised. His escape was miraculous. One of the wheels of the bike was badly damaged, the spokes being all broken out. This concluded the afternoon's sport and the visitors began leaving the grounds.

The judges were Col. Hendricks, R. Rollins and J. F. Baird. They did their duties in an impartial manner.

A number of exhibits have been placed in the main building since our report of yesterday, which adds much to its attractiveness. The ladies department is especially fine and occupies a large space upstairs.

THE MILLINERY OPENINGS.

THE DIFFERENT SHOW ROOMS THRONGED WITH LADIES.

A Fine Display at Geo. Ritchie & Co's —Misses Sinclair & Ostrom Coming to the Front—The Show Rooms of Mrs. S. Eustace, A. Dulmage and Miss Lockhart Attract Large Numbers of the Fair Sex.

To day was anything but an ideal day for millinery openings, but the chilly atmosphere and clouded sky did not deter the ladies of the city from turning out in large numbers. All day long the different millinery parlors were visited by large numbers of the fair sex, who admired to many things prepared for their inspection and adornment. It is only just to say that the styles shown equal anything parisian in the larger cities.

Geo. Ritchie & Co.

With the change of the seasons come the inevitable change of fashions, especially in what ladies have to wear. The magnificent spacious show rooms of Messrs. Geo. Ritchie & Co. were opened to the public this morning and attracted a great throng of admiring patrons to view the new styles for the fall and winter. Their display is unusually fine, embracing all the latest novelties produced by the Parisian artists and designers, who lead the world of fashion.

Miss Irwin, the chief manager, has just returned from Europe, where she secured, and over this season buying for the firm. She personally made the selections exhibited in this department, and her judgment is sufficient guarantee of having the correct things. Particular care has been taken by her to procure as the materials employed in the making up so as to perfectly tone one with the other, such as velvets with ribbons and these with the feathers, flowers and ornaments, &c. This is a very difficult thing to do, as may one may readily perceive. Ben he knows the almost infinite variety of shades which are produced.

It is possible to note only one or two features of the display for example the hats, toques and bonnets are nearly all larger than formerly. What are termed the picture hats have a striking effect; they are made chiefly in shapes similar to the Duchess of Devonshire and the Gainsborough. One very handsome one of these however, is a three corner shape, all black, composed of velvet, rich ribbon, Prince of Wales plumes and jet. There is scarcely any limit to the choice of shapes this season. In French and English felt hats there is a wonderful variety both in form and color and there is a greater latitude in the choice of colors than there has been for a long time, though certain ones are more prominent than others, such as brown of all shades, navy greens and blues. The Huzzar blue, or as the French name it the Mistral is very fashionable. Some of the Nicobar, the Mimosa effects. Shot and mirror velvets are used in the making up of hats and bonnets, and of course, solid velvets also. Ornaments, jet are in vogue than ever. The fancy trimming is a new feature; there is a quantity of elegant pieces employed into as crowns, fronts and bands in paspu jet steel and gilt. Ostrich tips and Prince of Wales plumes are used in abundance; wings and birds are also employed profusely. Some lovely effects are produced by the combination of fancy feathers with ostrich plumes mixed with jet or is case of color with irridescent ornaments.

In one part of the room is a particularly fine display of mourning bonnets and hats and of children's goods. The children's department is worth any one's while to visit. Gold millinery is hard to get pretty things to clothe their darlings, but they will be able to satisfy them selves.

In the mantle department the first thing which strikes the observer is the shortness of the jackets compared with what has been worn. The taste in these is toward tailor made. Some of these have fancy seams, which form a whole trimming except the large buttons. The skirts at the back of some are wide and flaring. Quite a number of handsome jackets are trimmed with velvet and braid to match. The fashion will be that jackets will largely prevail over capes for the winter. This is sensible; they are both more becoming and warmer than capes. A few very handsome velvet capes are shown, some trimmed with jet and others with fur. There are also shown some nobby things in ulsters and a quantity of pretty garments for children.

We need not refer to other departments in the house, they are filled with new goods. The dress materials are specially attractive, embracing the latest fabrics and designs, with trimmings to match. The carpet and house furnishing department deserves special mention, where are to be seen new designs in carpets, curtains, draperies, &c., and other useful things to decorate our homes.

Sinclair & Ostrom.

Upon entering this establishment the most casual observer is favorably impressed with the fact that although they are a comparatively new in the arena of mercantile life, still their combined experience of thirty-five years in serving the public in our city and vicinity has enabled them to place before their many customers a most complete stock in every department, meeting the requirements of the local trade.

Passing through the main store, where can be seen in every department the latest productions of both foreign and domestic manufacture, the millinery department is reached. This department is in charge of Miss Johnson who, with an able staff of experienced trimmers, has placed before the public, for their inspection, all the latest designs in Paris, London and New York styles. Several novelties are introduced in the season's millinery, with the result that the ladies' head wear is pronounced not only very stylish but beautifully becoming. Ribbons so largely used during the past season are again shown for autumn in the warm Parisian coloring and effects. They enter into the trimming of many of the imported hats and together with the mirror velvets promise to be very popular this season. Birds and wings are shown in great variety, the bronze ineric being an especial feature. Black and white hats and bonnets will be much worn. Many of the hats are extreme in size, toques being particularly large. In children's head wear this firm show a decidedly pretty range, all of which are designed by a trimmer, especially engaged for this department.

Some of the new shades introduced this season are peche, oriental, nicobar, punch, mustard, nutshell, and blue, being shades of violet, myrtle, yellow, pink, brown and lavender. On the second floor, in rooms 28 by 30 ft., recently fitted up for the purpose, are shown a large range of fall mantles all of which are of German manufacture, which fact is of itself a guarantee for a perfect fitting garment. On this floor is shown chenille and lace curtains, table covers, curtain poles and other house furnishings.

Special attention is given by this firm to the dress goods department and here is found a very attractive display of all the latest dress materials with new and pretty trimmings, as worn this season. Dress serges in smooth finish, Scotch tweeds in rough effects with mixed colorings, crepons in very rough makes, satin cloths and cheviots for suitings are among the new things shown this season. Miss Conway, so favorably known to the ladies of Belleville as an experienced modiste, is in charge of the dress and mantle making, thus assuring perfect satisfaction in the manufacture of all garments.

Mrs S. Eustace.

Mrs. Eustace's neat show room looked particularly bright to-day with its beautiful display of hats, bonnets, etc. She shows some very pretty pattern hats in white plush, black velvet and felt. In trimmings shot effects in ribbons of silk, velvet and felt are largely used in combination with jet. She shows some very neat silk beaver walking hats, which will be largely worn on the street. Her stock of mourning millinery is more complete than ever before and she makes a specialty of this class of goods. Children's head gear is shown in great profusion and exquisite styles. Besides a large stock of millinery Mrs. Eustace also carries all lines of infant and children's clothing wear at all prices. The window is a fair sample of what may be seen inside.

A. Dulmage.

Mr. Dulmage, with the assistance of clever milliners, has decked some very pretty effects in hats and bonnets for the fall season. The repeater was shown many pretty hats worked up, with broad brims, and a pretty bird as a finish. A hat of a peculiar green shade trimmed with ribbons and a pretty bird as a finish becoming head dress. These, with scores of other new and charming hats and bonnets, go to make up the display of millinery. Mr. Dulmage has a fine display of furs, manufactured and in the skins. Being a practical furrier of years of experience enables him to place before his numerous customers the very best goods at the lowest possible prices. Customers can select their skins and have their garments manufactured on the premises on short notice. His stock of manufactured goods includes ladies', gentlemen's and children's garments.

Mrs Lockhart.

Mrs. Lockhart's salesroom and parlors were a busy scene to-day. She has a handsomely dressed window and her display inside is equally good. The tables are prettily decorated with the latest millinery confections of bewildering beauty and nice finish both in shape and chromatic harmony. Velvet in all its combinations are the favorite colors here. Black is combined after the French fashion with many colors. Some particularly pretty turbans are being shown. Fur with white gloves, jacquominot flowers and blue shot velvet was a very dainty and pleasing thing. Another of a brown and pink combination with a pretty new effect, a pointed front, was very fetching. Another of brown and green velvet with capings was very pretty. The display of mourning goods is one of the finest ever seen in the city. One widow's bonnet is a most excellent bit of millinery art. The parlors are beautifully decorated and the handsome cases around the wall filled with displays of new goods, ribbons, etc. Mrs. Lockhart has recently returned from New York and other great centres of fashion and has both a beautiful and strictly stylish display.

A Square Meal.

Visitors to the fair will be tired and hungry after a round of sight-seeing and they will need stimulating before they leave for home. Nothing will do this better than a square meal. W. A. Taylor will serve hot meals at all hours under the grand stand for 25 cents. He will serve oysters from 8 to 10 o'clock each evening in the same place. He also has all kinds of soft drinks, confectionery and fruits for sale in a stall at the north end of the grand stand. 117d3t

Miss Hudgins' Recital.

Music, mirth and pathos went hand-in-hand at Miss Hudgins' recital at the B. B. C. hall last evening. It would be superfluous to say that everyone enjoyed the entertainment, for Miss Hudgins' reputation had preceded her, and she fully sustained it. Miss Hudgins is of decidedly prepossessing appearance, which in itself would cover a host of shortcomings, but happily this was not needed in her case. Her selections were varied, the audience going from grave to gay, and in all of these the beautiful elocutionist showed herself thoroughly at home. She has a pleasing voice and manner and beyond a slight tendency to occasionally drop into a sing-song style her reading is thoroughly enjoyable. Just before the programme closed Mr. Campbell played two solos on the piano with her accustomed good taste and skill, while Mr. Geo. Fax in his comic songs was unspeakably funny. Prof. Riggs orchestra added greatly to the enjoyment of the large and fashionable audience and altogether a most pleasant evening was spent.

Weak, Tired, Nervous

Women, who seem to be all worn out, will find in purified blood, made rich and healthy by Hood's Sarsaparilla, permanent relief and strength. The following is from a well known nurse:

"I have suffered for years with female complaints and kidney troubles and I have had a great deal of medical advice during that time, but have received little or no benefit. A friend advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began to use it, together with Hood's Pills. I have realized more benefit from these medicines than from anything else I have taken. From my personal experience I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be the most complete blood purifier." MRS. C. CROMPTON, 71 Cumberland St., Toronto, Ontario.

Out of Sorts—Symptoms, Headache, loss of appetite, furred tongue, and general indisposition. These symptoms, if neglected, develop into acute disease. It is a trite saying that an "ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and a little attention at this point may save months of sickness and large doctor's bills. For this complaint take from two to three of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills on going to bed, and one or two for three nights in succession, and a cure will be effected.

The Last King of Leinster.

By EDMUND DOWNEY.

[illegible] never get a chair again from above the ranks of an [illegible]

But [illegible] to take [illegible] Now can I trust you to [illegible] up as I am?"

"Aw! enough," says he. "Knot the sheets, and curtains together. Tie one end to the bedpost an throw the other end out of the windy to me, an you can slide down to the ground as comfortable as your middle through a dhraper's shop when there's a cheap sale on. In fact, in all cases of the kind, 'tis the regular way of gettin the better."

The prisoner heaved a sigh, an then her mind went back to the hot language of O'Rorke an the way he had thratted her in lockin her in her room, so she turned from the windy an did as King Mac told her, an in about five minutes she was landed safe alongside the king of Leinster

"Now, ye're a brave little woman!" says he, puttin her on the shoulder, "an I hope neither of us will ever regret this step."

"If we're goin to start for Ferns at all," says Devorgilla, "we'd better be off at wance, for maybe Tiernan would cut the throats iv us before we get home airly, an then 'tis fat'll be on the fire."

"Right you are, Gilly!" says the ould monarch. "Lain on me arm, an we'll be no time gettin to the avenue gate."

An so off they thrundered an raiched the junction in safety.

"Where to, sir?" axes the dhriver, who was a shtrange man an didn't know either the king or the princess.

"To the railway station," says ould Mac, "an stir your garron up, for we have to catch the night mail."

"D'you think 'tis a greyhound I keep between the shafts?" says the dhriver, who knew he could catch the thrain aisy enough, but wanted extha money for doin it.

"Faith I don't," says ould Mac, roarin at the man wid all the strength of his voice. "He looks more like a clothes-horse, but if I miss me thrain I'll whack the divil out of you!"

Begor, King Mac's roar nearly frightened the jarvey out of his seven rames, an all he said was, "'Tis all right, your honor; you'll catch your thrain right enough, even if it starts at the time ta ble hour."

"There's not much fear of that," says the king, "but don't reckon on its bein late—that's all." An then he turned to the princess, an lavorin his voice to a whis, er he said all the nice things he can bl think of to her an promised he'd buy a brand new crown for her an get her chrono painted an gilded by the first painther an gildhyers in Leinsther.

"But suppose," says she, speakin very low, the way the dhriver wouldn't overhear her, "that Tiernan doesn't get his discharge from me through the courts, how will things be then?"

"Sorra, for I'll be no man if he didn't," says the king. "Of coorse he's a cor- darlin. He'll be sent to the collor for a scrip his district gol- count of his foolishness in taxes off the sperits and he'll be only aiger to get back our of me."

"Maybe 'tis challenge you to a jowl Ar would?" says the princess anxiously.

"Divil a fear of him!" says the king. "He's a sensible study man, an he'll make up his mind 'twill be bether for him to have my goold in his pocket than my sword in its intrayther, for he knows I'm the deadliest swordsman in all Ireland. Be aisy in your mind, me girl," says he, puttin his arm round her waist. "Believe me, we're actin for the best in the business."

"I hope so," says she, "but I can't help feelin throubled in me conscience."

"We must all go through thrinl an thribulation," says the ould vagabone, "so that we may enather from our temptation cl'aner an wholesome, like a chimbley sweep after steppin out of a hot bath. There's no separatin twin sowls, Gilly," says he, usin the same words to the misfortunate woman that he'd used to at laiste 40 different girls on similar occasions before.

Anyhow he managed to aise Devorgilla's mind before the car pulled up at the railway station, an only three hours later she was landed safe alongside the king of Leinsther

H. M. S. ALERT SOLD

Sir George Nare's Old Vessel Disposed of.

A NEW KNOTTY SCHOOL QUESTION

Commission to Re Arrange Railroad Mail Subsidies Investigating the Alleged Fraudulent Rebate on Grain — Corn Wiggins' Storm Will Bring Snow

Ottawa, Sept. 19.—The staunch old craft, H.M.S. Alert, which in 1875-6, withstood the dangers of the Arctic Ocean, has been disposed of by the Canadian Government at auction, and the proceeds, some £500, have been forwarded to the Admiralty. After the return of Sir George Nares' expedition to the Arctics, the Alert lay idle at Portsmouth, and when the Canadian Government in 1884, asked for the loan of a vessel for the purpose of exploring Hudson Bay, the Alert was transferred to the care of the Dominion Government Neptune was utilized, but in 1885 and 1886, the Alert went up to our Northern waters. Two or three years after that the vessel was utilized in the lighthouse service of Canada, but she was found to be both slow and unwieldy, and for the last few years she has been tied up doing nothing. The Imperial Government did not want her any more, neither did the Dominion, and now she has been sold as stated.

An officer of the Customs Department is investigating the charge, which was made in the House last session, when the tariff was under discussion, that a rebate of 50 per cent. had been allowed on corn ground for fodder under the false pretext that it is being ground for human food, to which alone the rebate applies.

There has been a good deal of speculation as to the manner the second order in council on the Manitoba school question got into the opposite papers. It is now pretty broadly hinted that the copy emanated from sources near the Abercrombie Block. The fact is, the school question before the Government was, according to stenographic advices from the Northwest, that the German residents there will petition that the French assembly and Federal Government for a modification of the present school law so that the German language may be employed and taught in the schools.

Statistician Archie Johnson has received a special invitation to attend the convention of the Deep Waterways Association at Cleveland next week. President O. A. Howland, in his letter, says: "It is intended to make out of the proceedings of this convention a kind of text book upon the whole of the subjects connected with continental waterways' questions. You will observe," he adds, "that amongst other things there are subjects of special importance to Canada, as for instance, the control of the levels of the great lakes' system, which is a very burning question, made so not only by the impending diversion of the Chicago Canal, but by the low water which is now impeding navigation." Mr. Johnson is further invited to contribute an authoritative leading paper from Canada dealing with the cost, character and utility of the existing great lakes and St. Lawrence improvement. The object of the meeting is to demonstrate how much work, and at what cost, Canada has already done, compared with the United States, towards development of an international highway." Although the convention opens next Tuesday, and the foregoing subject only reached Mr. Johnson yesterday, he will nevertheless endeavor to forward such a paper in good time, having an excellent collection of material at hand for the purpose.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell arrived here this evening after an absence of two months in the Old Country. The premier is the picture of health and as active as a boy of 30. He will get down to work in his office to-morrow.

The Canadian electricians continued in convention to-day, when further interesting papers were read. It was decided to hold the next convention in Toronto in June next. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, A. B. Smith, Toronto; 1st Vice-President, C. B. Powell, Ottawa; 2nd Vice-President, L. H. MacFarlane, Montreal; Secretary-Treasurer, C. H. Mortimer, Toronto. Executive committee, Warren Y. Soper, Ottawa; George Black, Hamilton; E. Gray Dewhurst, Berlin; J. J. Wright, Toronto; John Harrington, Ottawa; A. Kammerer, Toronto; F. W. Badger, Queen's Wickens, Toronto; Carroll Montreal, and K. J. Chamberlain, Toronto.

Prof. Wiggins stated to-day that when he was reported yesterday as saying the storm would not visit this section he meant to imply that it would not touch here during the first days covered by the present storm, namely, 17th to 21st. The storm, he says, will come to Ottawa and will reach here on Saturday, 21st, when it will be highest on the Atlantic coast. He says it will be a windstorm and may be felt severely here. The storm, he says, is at present ranging on the British coast, on the coast of Labrador, and the people of Ottawa will therefore be prepared for something big on Saturday. Several shipowners of the Maritime Provinces have telegraphed to the Meteorological Bureaus at Toronto and Washington for information in regard to the storm.

The temperature, Wiggins says, is very low at present, and there will in all probability be a fall of snow in Northern Quebec and the Northwest Territories to-night.

Possibly the Government may appoint a commission to regulate the railway mail subsidies, as was done in 1884, when two judges and the then Speaker of the House of Commons were appointed. The cost of the commission as the C.P.R. is said to be pressing for a re-arrangement.

Last session a lively debate took place in the House over a brother of Hon. Mr. Mitchell who was a postmaster in a small town in Quebec, and who was going to lose the job on account of the Public Works Department buying another building for a postoffice in the town. It now turns out that the Postmaster-General has decided to leave the postoffice where it is, and therefore Mr. Lauzier's brother will retain his connection as postmaster with the department.

It is reported that Mr. Forget of Regina has been appointed Indian Commissioner in the Northwest Territories. This is the position vacated by Mr. Hayter Reed who is now Deputy Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs.

The Speaker of the Senate telegraphed the Clerk of the Senate yesterday to place John Dunne for the present in the position of housekeeper of the Red Chamber, vacated by the death of his brother Peter Dunne.

The name of Lieutenant Panet, son of the Deputy Minister of Militia, is mentioned in connection with the position of superintendent of the cartridge factory at quebec, which has become vacant through the death of Col. Prevost.

The awkward situation in which the resignation of the remaining 19 Christian Brothers has placed the schools is such that the Minister of Education is to be appealed to for assistance. A letter was forwarded by Hon. G. W. Ross, asking that Roman Catholic School Inspector White be sent down to help organize a new staff of lay teachers to replace the Brothers. The faction which is backing up the Brothers is desirous of seeing the Government placed in a body, as they say they will take action at once to disqualify two trustees, Philbert and Latour, so that they cannot vote the lay teachers down, acting for the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The contract for construction of a lighthouse at Cabot Head, Georgian Bay, has been awarded to John George, of Fort Elgin. Two foghorn machines and boilers have been sent up to this place. The Marine Department is advised that the new lighthouse at Double Top Rock, Georgian Bay, is just completed.

Milwaukee capitalists to-day communicated with the Interior Department asking for information in reference to a desirable location for iron smelting works in Canada.

H. J. Wickham of Toronto saw Mr. Baggart to-day on behalf of Mossom, Boyd & Co., who compiled with the terms of the contract for the construction of the Trent Canal the water in Little Bob Lake is being lowered to the detriment of their milling operations.

The Marine Department received advices to-day that the Government Steamer Landsdowne towed into Sydney harbor the schooner Pasphine with crew on board. The vessel is 57 tons register and has been a hard time in the Gulf, having lost her masts. She is owned by Colins & Co. of Jersey Channel Islands.

Mr. Costigan was busy at his department all day. He looks remarkably well after his holiday at New Brunswick. Mr. Ives also returned to the city after two months' rest in Europe. Before he left here Mr. Ives was a very sick man and has greatly benefited by his European trip.

TIED UP IN THE YARD

An Eight-Year-Old Boy a Prisoner for Days.

KEPT WITHOUT FOOD OR DRINK.

Poorly Clad and Exposed to the Hot Sun and Cold Rain, for Three Days and Probably Three Nights, the Neighbors Say, the Boy Was Tied Up Like a Dog.

New York, Sept. 18.—A remarkable story of cruelty was related in the Ewen-street, Brooklyn, Police Court yesterday by Mrs. Julia Mott, a Wilmarth mission worker, and Agent John Meyer of the Brooklyn Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The victim is an 8-year-old boy, and the perpetrator of the outrages on the little fellow is his stepmother. For three days and the greater part of three nights she kept him tied by the right foot and the waist to a grapevine in the rear yard of her house, giving him no food and nothing but a shirt to cover his shivering little body. The child's sufferings, as described by neighbors, were horrible. All night long he would moan and cry with fright, and on Thursday last, when a heavy thunderstorm passed over the city, his shrieks for help moved even the hardest hearted, and he was allowed to come into the house for several hours. When the storm had passed, however, according to the neighbors, he was at once more carried out into the yard and tied to the vine, despite the wet ground, the damp air and the cold wind.

The unfortunate child is literally starved, and has responded to Carrie Hayward. The police hold the child's father blameless in the matter, and say that he has long protested that the child being tied up, and the neighbors believe him.

Mrs. Bayard is Bayard's third wife, and is but second husband. The boy, Samuel, is Bayard's son by his second wife. Mrs. Bayard has three children by her first husband and two by her present husband. The second boy was born only last Monday night. The wife of this child was all that saved the woman from being arrested on Monday when Agent Meyer called at the house with a warrant for her.

No one knows what little Burrell did to make his stepmother punish him so severely on Wednesday morning she dragged him out into the yard, tied a piece of rope to his leg, passed it through a window sash and then fastened the other end securely to the grapevine, leaving the boy with only a pair of black rope. The first person to notice the child's predicament was Mrs. Mary Engleman, who lives next door to the Bayards. She heard him crying, and looking out of her window saw the little fellow lying on the ground. She frantically tried to get to free himself. Noticing Mrs. Bayard in another part of the yard, she called to her and asked what she had done to deserve such punishment. Mrs. Bayard replied that the boy was a bad boy." replied Mrs. Bayard, "and won't stay in the house. Not only that, but he steals the food out of the house and runs away with it. Now I mean to punish him good for it."

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Miller saw the boy, scantily clad, struggling to climb under the grapevine to get out of the rain. On Tuesday evening he was still there, and at 11 o'clock Mrs. Miller heard him crying piteously. She went out and spoke to him, and Mrs. Bayard came out and asked what she wanted. Mrs. Miller called through the fence and saw him still tied to the grapevine. On Wednesday the little fellow remained tied to the grapevine, and every time one of the Miller family went into the yard he would cry out for something to eat.

"There is no doubt in my mind," said Mrs. Miller yesterday, "but the boy has been tied down since Tuesday night, though, of course, he might have been taken in for a few hours and then brought out again. I could hear him crying it. I know that he was still tied there late Wednesday evening, and Thursday morning before he was still there. I questioned him through the fence, and he told me that he had not been untied since Tuesday morning, and that in all that time he had not had a bit of food except that which I and members of my family had passed through the fence. During the night of the thunder storm, and they were the poor little fellow out in almost all of it. It thundered for hours before the rain came, and the little fellow cried with fright. It was pitch dark, too, and very cold. The poor boy only had the very thinnest kind of clothing on. I told my wife that I was going to bring for some minutes and he had become drenched through that somebody came out and took him in. After the storm he was brought out and tied on again, but how long I cannot tell. I do not know. On Friday morning he was still there, however, and then I heard of Mrs Mott and went and told her all the facts of the matter and she came around and saw for herself."

Mrs. Mott was seen at her home, 166 Power-street, last night. "I went around to Mrs. Miller's house," she said, "and through the fence I saw the boy. The poor child was securely tied to the grapevine, and had but two feet of slack rope I never saw such a pitiable object. The little face was drawn and pinched, and the suffering that he must have passed through were written on every line. I talked to him through the hole and he told me the same story told to Mrs. Miller. I went around again on Saturday morning and saw the child still tied there, but Mrs. Miller could not say whether it had been out all night."

While Mrs. Mott was talking to the child on Saturday morning, Mrs. Bayard came out of the house and saw her. Immediately she untied the boy and took him in. Since then he has not been out in the yard at all.

The supposition is that Mrs. Butler, returning from making a call, and having forgotten the ladder, attempted to climb through a window.

TAKE THE BEST

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

Sold by Alex. Ray.

USE SURPRISE SOAP ON WASH DAY; AND EVERY DAY.

It isn't much trouble for a healthy man to be good humored. Jollity and exhuberant health are a proverbial combination. The hearty man who is always laughing doesn't have any trouble with his digestion. It has been said that laughter helps people healthy. The truth is that health makes people laugh.

There isn't any other thing so essential to health as regularity in the action of the bowels. Most all sickness starts with some derangement of the digestive functions. Good digestion means good, pure blood, and that means strength. Once let the bowels become clogged with refuse matter and the whole system is deranged. Impure, poisonous matter gets into the blood and plants the seeds for all sorts of sickness.

Whenever there is a stoppage of the intestinal action, help should be given immediately. Usually a mild, gentle laxative is all that is necessary. A violent, wrenching, griping cathartic is never needed. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most pleasant and successful remedy for occasional or chronic constipation, or costiveness. They are very sugar-coated anti-bilious granules that even the smallest child can easily take. They act in perfect accord with nature and produce no griping or other disagreeable feeling. They should be taken at the first indication of digestive trouble. They stop sour stomach, belching, "heart-burn," flatulence and sick headache. They cure constipation permanently. You can stop taking them after the bowels are thoroughly regulated. Their help lasts. You do not become a slave to their use as with other pills.

RISING TO SAVE A LIFE.—A Georgia newspaper gives an account of the heroism of John Fuller, a ten year old boy who rode a horse twelve miles to Macon for the purpose of calling a physician to attend his mother, who was believed to be dying with colic. The doctor could not be found, but a child suggested gave the lad a bottle of medicine and ordered him to hurry home. The brave lad rode home, delivered the medicine, and then fainted from nervous exhaustion. The medicine cured the sick mother, and the boy as well. It is only necessary to say that the precious medicine was Dr. Thos. Davis' Pain Killer, which never fails to cure all bowel complaints. Only 25 cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, SEPT. 19.

WHOLESALE BRIBERY CONFESSED.

When the Liberals of Kingston decided to protest the election of Dr. Smythe, they know perfectly well that flagrant corruption had prevailed on their side. Yet they posed as apostles of purity—as evangels of sweetness and light.

It was to expose their Pharisaism, and to lessen the power of the "barrel," in local elections, that Dr. Smythe decided to protest the subsequent "election" of Mr. Harty. That wads of bills were as thick as blackberries in that contest, that Mr. Harty's agents literally wallowed in corruption, was palpable on every side.

This corruption Mr. Harty and his friends had the hardihood to deny. Dr. Smythe proceeded to prove it.

Under the Dominion election law, if a candidate has 2,000 majority, one clearly-proved case of bribery will unseat him. Under Sir Oliver Mowat's Ontario law, bribery must be sufficiently extensive to produce in the minds of the judges the conviction that the result hinged upon it. In one case it was held by Judge Boyd that when there was a majority of 25, three cases of bribery were not sufficient to void the election. At this rate, how many cases of bribery must there have been to nullify a majority of 430?—Kingston News.

THE CANADIAN POST OFFICE.

The postal equipment of Canada will readily be seen to be a remarkable one when, along with it are considered the vast extent of the country and its rather small population. Compare it for a moment with that of the United States. Canada and the United States are of about the same size, but the United States have about thirteen times the population. In 1894 there were 69,895 post offices compared with 8,064 in Canada, or about eight times as many. The extent of postal routes there was 454,746 miles compared with 63,072 miles in Canada, or about seven times as many miles. The number of post offices and of miles of postal routes are thus disparatively few compared with the population, and it might be reasonably supposed that the postal revenue from this enormous population, would be large, and be enough or more than enough to meet the expenditure. It is large, but it is not enough. In 1894 the postal revenue in the United States was $75,080,000, or about $1.16 per head of the population, but the expenditure was $86,324,000, or about $1.30 per head. In Canada the postal revenue was about 74 cents per head and the expenditure about 88 cents per head. From all which it appears that though we have in Canada nearly double as many post offices, and nearly double as many miles of postal routes, in proportion to population, as they have in the United States, yet we conduct the whole business at a cost of 88 cents per head of our population, while their service costs the United States $1.30 per head of the population. This comparison would seem to indicate great economy in the Canadian management. In point of efficiency and frequency of deliveries at all small places, the Canadian service is said to be superior to that of our neighbors, very many small places receiving a daily mail in Canada, while similar places in the U. S. are getting a mail but twice or three times a week. Had we such a postal revenue per capita as they have in the U.S., the department would show a surplus every year; but while our postal revenue per head was 41 cents less than theirs, our deficit per head was even less than their ours being about 14 cents and theirs about 16 cents a head.

The management of our post office, so far as spending is concerned, thus compares very favorably with that of our neighbors; but in the per capita revenue we are far behind. Our population, taken as a whole, do not seem to use the post office to so great an extent as they do across the line. And yet in this particular Canada has made vast progress in recent years. In 1876, 1877 and 1878, the total numbers of letters posted in Canadian offices were respectively 41,000,000, 41,510,000; and 44,000,000; while in the years 1893, 1894 and 1895 the numbers were 102,840,000, 106,220,000 and 107,145,000. For the same three former years the number of postcards were 4,646,000, 5,140,000, 6,455,000; and for the same three latter years the numbers were 20,[illegible]

HENRY ZIVERS,
Prop. Renovo Co. Montreal.

There is certainly a great and rapid increase and its indications are altogether favorable to the growing intelligence and business activity of our people. Besides these letters not post [illegible] there has been a great increase in [illegible] papers and pamphlets posted from the offices [illegible] and also a corresponding increase in the number of letters [illegible] to the [illegible] post offices.

During the past year [illegible] post offices, with [illegible] new mail routes. The small increase of mail routes compared with the number of new offices suggests that a point has been reached when expenditures will not have to increase as much as formerly to give portion to increased efficiency and business. Considering the size and circumstances of the country, our postal service has been conducted at a comparatively small net annual charge, and so far at least as the service within Canada is concerned, this net charge is likely to grow less, rather than greater.

BELLEVILLE MARKETS.

INTELLIGENCER OFFICE,
Sept. 18, 1895.

There is an almost total absence of receipts of grain in this market, which we quote nominal at last week's prices. Oats are in fair demand at 25c to 26c. It will be remembered that during the boom in wheat, when one dollar could be had, we advised all having wheat for sale to clean out as we had no faith in the price in the face of the new crop. Had the spring crop been a failure in the great wheat centres it would have gone higher, but a thirty million crop in Manitoba and in the Western States had the natural effect of a decline in price until it is now 25c per bushel lower than the highest market price, and low enough to hold by any farmer who is foreclanded enough not to be compelled to sell. In Manitoba the price has been fixed at 4c where as 15c freight rate to Port Arthur rules. The visible supply in the United States and Canada is only a trifle over 58 million bushels against over 80 million bushels at this time last year. The price in Chicago has advanced a couple of cents during the past two days.

Pork is ruling low, but we are inclined to think that about the bottom price has been touched. Packers are paying 4c here and [illegible] being paid for small lots for home consumption. In Chicago pork is selling at $8.15 per brl., which would have flooded the Canadian market had it not been for the protective policy of the present Government, which some people affect to despise, as the lumbermen would have been able without a protective policy to have procured their supplies in Chicago, hence it looks ridiculous to enquire if such a policy does not favorably affect the farming community, as even with the protection it is hard to keep out the Chicago article as the farmers of Illinois are selling their corn at 10c per bush., hence they can produce pork very cheap. In fact corn is so cheap in Illinois that it is being used for fuel.

Hay is scarce and commands $14 to $15 per ton. Hides are lower all along the line, but have kept up their price very well, selling at 6½c here.

Cheese Markets.

Barrie, Sept. 17.—At the meeting of the Cheese Board here to-day 21 factories offered 1,152 boxes last half August and balance of season. Three buyers were present. Bidding was very slow. The market was dull and only 276 boxes were sold at 7¼c for two lots and 7½c for 60 boxes September; balance of board unsold, but will be sold after. This closes a very successful season.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 17.—At the meeting of the Cheese Board here this evening there were no cheese offered, as it had been nearly all contracted for during the week by Warrington at about 8c for the balance of the season. Hodgson Bros. also acquired two or more factories at about the same price. The buyers present were Messrs. Magrath, Bailey and Whitton.

QUINTE DISTRICT FAIR

CHILDREN'S DAY WAS A GRAND SUCCESS

Good Sports Provided for the Afternoon Besieged by the Youngsters—Other Entertaining Entertainment a Healthy Success—The Military Men Did Their Duty Well—The Morning of the Last a Grand Scene—Ing of War at the Conclusion

Yesterday was children's day at the fair, and it was the thousand children, which home about all day, it did not rain, but was the means of keeping many away who would have been present had the weather been more favorable. It was, however, a successful day and one was rewarded by many the children appeared to enjoy themselves. They were here there and all over.

The speeding at the ring was a great attraction, as the fence around the track was lined whilst the various events were taking place. Every move was watched with keen interest and nothing occurred to mar the proceedings.

During the afternoon the main building was crowded the greater portion of the time, making progress rather slow. With the sounds of pianos playing, the rattle of the scurry machine and the clatter of the youngsters, the scene was indeed a lively one. The Rain Say and the "Salada" tea companies dealt out their refreshing beverage to all who wished to quaff it, and not a few availed themselves of the offer. Prof. Riggs and his children at intervals enlivened the proceedings by giving a number of musical selections which were much appreciated. Every nook and corner of the fair was looked at by the children. The chief attraction for the ladies appeared to be the fancy work, which was closely scrutinized. The exhibit in indeed one which reflects great credit upon the exhibitors.

A large number of the yeoman of the surrounding country were also in attendance and the chief attraction to them was the live stock. The horses, sheep, swine and cattle stalls were visited and many were the complimentary remarks which were heard as to the exhibit, especially that of the swine, it requiring two buildings to hold them.

An exhibit which was overlooked by our representative yesterday was that of seeds and grain. This department was well filled with a fine display of grain and seeds, and especial mention might be made of field corn, which is shown quite extensively.

The judges in the various departments were kept busy during the afternoon in judging and when night had arrived considerable work in this direction had been accomplished.

AFTERNOON PROGRAMME

The afternoon programme was varied and of an interesting character. The first event called was the Butchers' Speeding Contest.

This was mile heats, best 3 in 5; open to trotters and pacers, 4 to enter and 3 to start; purse $30; first, $15; 2nd, $10; 3rd, $5.

There were three entries namely, Butcher Boy, ch.g., owned by Geo. Thomas; Little Fred, b.g., owned by John Snell, and Lucy B., owned by Wm. Clarke. Little Fred proved to be an easy winner of the race, taking the three heats with comparative ease. Butcher boy was second in the heats and Lucy B. was in each heat considerably in the rear. The following is the summary:

Little Fred, ch.g., John Snell	1	1	1
Butcher Boy, b.g., Geo. Thomas	2	2	2
Lucy B., bm., Wm. Clarke	3	3	3

Time—2.33, 2.33½, 2.34.

Running Race.

There were but two entries for this event, namely: Don Pedro, b.g., owned by W. Stewart, Toronto, and Fandago, c.g., owned by R. J. Hewitt, of Brighton. Both of these animals are thoroughbred and show remarkable speed. The track, however, yesterday was heavy and the time made is no criterion of the speed they are able to show. But two heats were run of a mile each and Fandago won both by small margins.

SUMMARY.

Fandago, c.g., R. J. Hewitt	1	1
Don Pedro, c.g., W. Stewart	2	2

Time—2.43, 2.41.

An exhibition trot was given by four prize stallions, four years old, who were driven once around the ring and all showed good speed. The owners were A. Morton, W. A. Chapman, H. H. Sutton and A. A. Hudgins.

Stallion Race.

There was a good race between Frank Smith, in can of H. Ashley and Prince Imperial, owned by A. A. Hudgins. The distance was two-thirds of a mile. Frank Smith proved the victor by a good margin and exhibited the speed, being a very free mover. Time, 1.50.

Fancy Riding.

T. McGowan gave an exhibition of fancy riding, which was much appreciated. He rode two thirds of a mile standing upon the backs of two horses side by side. At times the animals showed good sparte of speed, but the rider retained his position well. The horses were owned by Jas. Ketcheson, of Sidney.

Hitting and Driving.

The proceedings were brought to a close by an exciting exhibition of fast running by a team hitched to a bike and a running horse and rider. The team were Eclipse and Dog Pedro and the single horse Fandago. The latter was ridden by W. Stewart and the former driven by R. J. Hewitt. The single horse won by a small margin.

THE EVENING EXHIBITION.

Last evening's attractions at the fair proved a great drawing card. The main building and the grounds were thronged with city people, with a goodly sprinkling of our country cousins. They wandered about and viewed the many pretty exhibits in the palace, which was brilliantly illuminated, and strolled from grounds to the music of the band, and everyone said they had spent a most enjoyable evening.

Taking of the Fort.

Shortly after eight o'clock the 15th Battalion, 200 strong, in command of Major Ponton, and No. 1 company of the 49th Battalion, forty-six men, in command of Lieut. Watt, marched upon the grounds headed by the I.O.O.F. and military band. The splendid marching of our volunteers was favorably commented upon and it must have been indeed a proud moment for Major Ponton and his staff. The men were put through several battalion movements in front of the grand stand and they showed great advancement in their drill since Dominion Day at Picton, where they made such a splendid showing.

No. 1 Company of the 49th are a body of men that the city should feel proud of and their movements are like a company of regulars. They were detailed to defend the fort, which had been built of barrels at the south end of the grounds. The 15th forming the attacking party, and after considerable manoeuvring, which was witnessed with keen interest by the spectators, two companies in skirmishing order advanced within range of the ramparts and opened fire. The attack was quickly responded to by a volley from the fort and the attacking party were forced to retire up a theer hill. Very soon the attack was beaten back, the latter formed themselves in solid column and the fort was taken by storm. The spectators were by this time all on the tip toe of excitement and cheer after cheer rent the air as the victorious troops marched up to the grand stand and saluted the officers. The operations were all carried out in the most realistic manner and the attacking party, after the fort was taken, were allowed to parade in solid column and march past the grand stand, which they did, and in the evening participated in the torch light procession.

The spectators on the city side of the track were treated to a magnificent display of fireworks on the east end of the grounds. The display was opened by a number of rockets, which were followed by a number of set pieces, which were fired in quick succession. The display was brought to a close by the firing of a number of bombs, which created a brilliant spectacle.

Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the officers for the realistic manner in which they carried out the fight, and when the men marched past the grand stand shortly after they were warmly applauded.

When the men had been halted in front of the grand stand Major Ponton addressed them briefly. On behalf of the directors of the Bay of Quinte fair he thanked them for the splendid showing they had made and he said he knew the people of the city would also appreciate their efforts. The men, he said, had acted as real soldiers and he was well pleased with their behavior.

Mr. J. N. Doyle sang that very popular military song "Tommy Atkins," with band accompaniment, and the volunteers joined in the chorus. The song was well received and liberally applauded.

The Tug of War

Although it was then ten o'clock the spectators had not tired of the entertainment and nearly all of them remained to witness the tug of war between the different companies. The first contestants were eight men from each of No. 1 and No. 6 companies. When they were given the word it was seen that they were very evenly matched and for more than a minute neither team had won any perceptible advantage. Soon, however, the strength of No. 6 began to tell and their opponents were giving away inch by inch. It was soon seen that all was over with No. 1 and they slowly gave up the contest. Then came No. 2 and No. 5, which was easily won by the former. The pull between Nos. 3 and 4 was very for the latter, the big brawny men winning in about a minute. Then No. 6 and a team from No. 1 of the 49th pulled and after a hard struggle the boys in black won. They were then pitted against the sturdy team from No. 4 and such a contest has never been witnessed in the city. When the word "go" was given each team strained to good hard pulling and the hankerchief crossed and re-crossed the line with no perceptible advantage to either team. The comrades of the two teams stood by with encouraging words and cheered at every inch of ground gained by their team. The struggle lasted the full five minutes, when it was seen that No. 4 company were the winners by about ten inches. It was decided to leave the final pull between the pioneers' team and No. 1 over for a future occasion.

This concluded the evening's entertainment, and all went home well pleased with what they had seen.

CITIZENS' DAY.

To-day was citizens' day and was all that could be desired. The attendance this morning was very large, but shortly after noon people commenced to flock to the grounds and this afternoon they were swarmed. The I. O. O. F. band arrived upon the grounds this morning and enlivened the proceedings with their selections. The management thus far have every reason to be proud of the exhibition. Everything has worked harmoniously and the attendance has been good.

This evening should see a large crowd present. The display of fireworks will be grand. The soldiers will parade and the band will render a choice programme.

See the Fireworks To-night.

The grounds will again be illuminated this evening. The soldiers will parade as last evening to the grounds at 8 p.m. sharp, accompanied by the band. Prof. Hand will give the grandest display of fireworks ever given in eastern Ontario. This is the greatest feature of the evening exhibitions.

NOTES.

The Picton band was upon the grounds yesterday and their selections were much admired.

The judges completed their work this morning. In some classes the competition was exceedingly keen.

A little boy was slightly injured last evening whilst playing about the merry-go-round.

Three ladies were relieved of their pocket books yesterday afternoon. Three suspects were arrested on the grounds last night.

To-Morrow's Programme.

Friday, Sept. 20th, the last but best day of the fair. The following will furnish the music for the day. Every department will remain until the last hour with all the prize stock. Grand and grand parade of all the prize animals on the track at 1 o'clock. 1.30 p.m. sharp.—Heavy horse prize for stallions. Purse $50. Open to all stallions. KINGSTON PRESBYTERY.

Napanee's New Pastor Home Mission Work in the Back Country.

The ordinary stated meeting of the Presbytery of Kingston was held in St. Andrew's church, Kingston, on Tuesday afternoon and evening. The attendance was small. Rev. G. R. Lang, Moderator, presided, and Rev. W. T. Wilkins, clerk, was in his place. The reading of minutes, not only of last meeting, but of several special meetings, occupied considerable time. After some routine matters were disposed of, the call from Napanee of Mr. W. W. Peck was taken up. The call itself and accompanying papers were found to be in order, and it was supported by two commissioners from the congregation. It was reported to be hearty and unanimous. Mr. Peck signified his acceptance of it. It was agreed to have the services of ordination and induction on the evening of the 3rd of October, when Mr. McTavish, the new minister from Desoronto, will preach. Mr. Macgillivray will address the minister, and Mr. Mackie the people.

Rev. Mr. Maclean presented the report of the home missions committee, which included a lengthy report from Rev. Mr. Finley, superintendent of missions, who had spent forty days in examining the various stations. The report was a most important one and showed that Rev. Mr. Finley had worked perseveringly and hard. It was planned that it was hoped the [illegible] appointed to Bancroft, [illegible] Madoc, Marmora, Houseville, McKay, Hagerty, Vesta to [illegible] Shannonville, Tyendinaga, Shannon, Pine Hill, Landowne, Rev. The next regular meeting will be held in Belleville on the third Tuesday of December at 2 p.m., and in the evening. There will be a conference on "Church Life and Work."

A Square Meal.

Visitors to the fair will be tired and hungry after a day of sight-seeing and they will need stimulating before they settle for home. Nothing will do this better than a square meal. W. A. Taylor will serve hot meals at all hours under the grand stand for 25 cents. He will serve oysters from 10 to 12 each evening in the same place. He also has all kinds of soft drinks, confectionery and fruits for sale in a stall at the north end of the grand stand. 1173it

Opera House.

Hoop of Gold drew a good house last night and was played acceptably. It is a strong drama and it at Miss Secord found scope for the display of strong emotional talent whilst the comedy element as depicted by Lindley, Lochiner and Miss Nalind was good enough to change tears into smiles and occasional roars. The bill of fare to-night is Lewis Byron's play of The Inside Track. This is a first presentation here. It is one of the Simms' London school and its action varies from the banks of the Thames to London Bridge. A great fire scene in the rag and bone shop and other thrilling incidental. Mildred, the dancer, made a big hit last evening, her case, grace and execution are wonderful. Little Pearl to-night appears as a danseuse giving us her pleasing little way in imitation of Carmencita in skirt dance. The matinee on Saturday should draw well.

PICK-POCKETS AT WORK.

Five Young Men Suspected Nabbed by the Police

Yesterday afternoon, despite the vigilance of the police at the fair grounds, pick pockets got in their work and at least two women were minus their purses. Mrs. Farnhow, of Canifton, lost a purse containing about $8, and a lady from Madoc, whose name we could not ascertain, lost $3 and a return ticket.

A gentleman was standing near one of the ladies, when she accused a young man of stealing her purse and took particular note of the stranger's appearance. Last evening he pointed the accused out to Officer Hayes in the main building and he nailed the young man and his two friends. They gave their names as Jas. Bigelow, of Prescott, Chas. Baker and Fred McMillan, of Montreal. They said they were here on a pleasure trip, but that story didn't go and they were locked up.

It was ascertained that they had registered at the Anglo at one o'clock Tuesday morning, with two other young men, and Officers Hayes and Stoneberg set out to find the others. They were told at the Anglo that they had left for the station They went up and found the two young men there with their valises. They brought them down and locked them up. They gave their names as Frank Smith and John Joyce, of Toronto.

The five were brought before the Magistrate this morning and remanded till Saturday for trial. They had in their possession a list of all the fall fairs in Canada, and they are evidently working them for what they can make.

At the Anglo they registered as Chas. Baker and brother, Fred Allen and Chris Hart, Montreal; and Harry Seymour, Toronto. They did not settle their bills before they left. They will not have the opportunity of preying upon the crowd at the fair this afternoon or to-morrow.

A Question.

How can we raise more corn to the acre? Why, of course by using Putnam's Corn Extractor. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has given universal satisfaction, for it is sure, safe and painless. Like every article of real merit it has a host of imitators, and we would specially warn the public to guard against those dangerous substitutes offered for the genuine Putnam's Extractor. N. C. FAST ATLANTIC LINE.

Early Decision No Subsidy Is Looked For.

STEAMSHIP MEN ARE ANXIOUS.

The Experimental Cold Storage Shipments a Failure From Accident Unique Electrical Railway. Dr. Montague Mentioned as Mr. Augers' Successor.

Ottawa, Sept. 20.—In official circles it is fully expected that the decision of the Imperial Government in reference to a subsidy to a fast Atlantic service will be made known shortly. The Premier informed your correspondent to-day, that, according to the latest information which had reached him, the matter was in a fair way towards final disposition. The Inter-Departmental Committee appointed by the home Government to report on Mr. Huddart's scheme, has presented its report, and it is understood to be before the Secretary of the Colonies, whose decision is expected very shortly.

It is stated that while Mr. Ives was in England recently, he was approached officially some of the shipping companies with a view to their submitting a scheme for a 17-knot service, but until a decision is reached by the Imperial government in reference to Mr. Huddart's proposal, the Canadian government will hardly consider the advisability of reducing the speed of the proposed new service. A 20-knot steamship authorities the opinion prevails is a 17-knot ship, if it is to be established for an annual subsidy of about half a million dollars.

According to such advices received by Mr. Creelman, horticulturist of the Experimental Farm, the first shipment of Ontario raspberries to be exported in cold storage compartments has not been a success. The shipment abandoned as was the vessel selected for the trial shipment, and on the way over, the cold storage plant collapsed, with the result that the fruit was considerably damaged; with the exception of summer apples, which arrived in good condition. Full information in regard to the matter is expected by next week's mail. Mr. Craig is of opinion that the possibility of forwarding fruit in cold storage by way of Montreal depends on the lack of success attending the first shipment.

The 26th of October has been selected as the day for unveiling the monument, which has just been erected by the Dominion Government upon the battle field of Chateauguay. Hon. Mr. Dickey has been invited to preside over and has accepted the invitation. Gen. John I. Macdonell of London, Eng., and Lord Arundel are expected. They are lineal descendants of Col. George Macdonell, commandant of the British forces at the now famous day, when 400 British Canadians put to flight 2500 Yankees. Should parliament not be present, if their engagements will permit it is also proposed to invite all lineal descendants of the heroes to attend, and ask one of them to unveil the monument.

The Electrical Association concluded its business to-day when the remaining papers on the program were disposed of. Everybody is talking to-day about the success of last night's banquet of the Hotel Club, which has not been equalled in Canada. The decorations were of a most unique character. Hundreds of electric lights in colors were utilized. From the centre of the ceiling hung a beautiful cluster of lights, while four streamers of evergreen dotted with numerous lights, extended to each corner of the hall. Eighty lights hung from each of the streamers. Suspended also from the ceiling were six Japanese drop lights, which looked very pretty and were exhibited for the first time in Canada. In front of the orchestra gallery, with the word "Ottawa," the lettering being formed by 50 incandescent lights. At the opposite end of the hall the figures "1895" were formed of 53 lamps. On the south wall was a Union Jack, composed of rows of incandescent lights in red, white and blue. It took 264 lights to form the design, a sufficient number to illuminate every part of the hall had the electric light been extinguished. On the other side of the room, surrounded by flags, was Canada's emblem, the Maple Leaf, formed by 28 blue and red colored lights, and a large horseshoe in the centre of which 64 red and white lights formed the letters "C.E.A.," the initials of the Association. In the centre of the dining hall stood a revolving flower stand about 10 feet in height. It was illuminated by 40 lamps in different sizes and shades of color; also eight small electric lamps, and driven by a motor, decidedly being covered with the best the culinary art could produce. The menu contained a representation of an outside telegraph system, a mine, a dynamo, a large insulator, a miniature electric railway and electrical car, telephones, etc., the work of Chef Dupuy and the Russell House staff. Over the backs of the chairs occupied by the ladies were bowers of evergreens, surmounted by a red colored incandescent lamp, which one of the speakers of the evening wittily referred to as a "danger signal." There was electricity everywhere, even the waiters who carried the different meats carved with knives and forks charged with electricity which flashed as they clashed together. Even the menu card was not lacking of electrical dishes, for there were clear dynamo soup with dumpling units, street railway sauce, anchor ice charlotte, telephone dressing and electric eel sausage. The last dish on the menu card was "electrocution," but it was not served and consequently all who went to the banquet came home alive.

The question as to the manner in which the second order-in-council for the school question got into the public prints is still unsettled. Sir Oliver Mowat endeavors to shoulder the responsibility on the Dominion authorities by expressing surprise that the Dominion Government have made the order public before the Government of Manitoba had considered it. The matter was broached to the Premier by your correspondent to-day. Sir Mackenzie said he was equally as surprised as Mr. Greenway when he saw it in western papers that the document was made public. The Premier continued, "Upon my return to Ottawa I of course made enquiry and I find that a copy was certainly not given to the press by the Dominion Government, nor by any of its members. Nor do they know any more than I how this purported order came to be published."

"Then you admit its authenticity?" Sir Mackenzie was asked.

"That," replied the Premier, warily, "is a question which only the public will be able to answer for themselves when the official document itself is given out."

"Do you think," enquired the correspondent, "that the report in circulation to the effect that the copy was sent from Winnipeg to Mr. Laurier, is correct and that it came to be published in that way?"

"I have no opinion to offer on that suggestion," the Premier replied, "but I can scarcely believe it possible that any member of the Provincial Government would be the means of giving publicity to such a document as that considering the circumstances under which it is before them."

Dr. Montague will attend a picnic pose Caledonia on the 24th and visit the fall fair at Collingwood on the 26th. The Secretary of State has been simply deluged with applications to deliver addresses at different points. It is currently reported that Dr. Montague will be appointed Minister of Agriculture, the act of the removal of that department in the Cabinet now very acceptably last session.

Hamilton, Sept. 20.—It transpired that the young man who committed suicide at Fort Erie on Monday morning by cutting his throat at the Cottage Hotel, Fort Erie, on Tuesday night, was Victor Fessenden, the youngest son of Colonel E. J. Fessenden, rector of Ancaster and a young man well known in Hamilton. BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, SEPT. 20.

MARVELLOUS BUTTER-MAKING.

Of late the people have been taught to believe that bacteria and bacilli mean disease and death, but they are evidently laboring under a mistaken impression. Science has taught us that bacteria are everywhere—in the water, in the milk and nearly all the solid foods that find their way to the table. But all the bacteria are not dangerous.

It is now proposed to revolutionize the process of buttermaking by means of bacteria. Cream is to be treated with germs which will render it just right for the making of the best and sweetest butter at all times of the year. Butter made in January will have the sweet flavor of new mown hay that is found in the creamery product of June.

Major Henry E. Alvord, chief of the Dairy Division of the United States Department of Agriculture, is authority for the statement. He says that chemical analysis at the World's Fair of bottled milk from Uruguay resulted in the discovery of a bacillus which will ripen cream to an exquisite flavor, the ripening process being, in fact, the multiplication in the butter fats of myriads of microscopic vegetable organisms. Each of the organisms gives to the butter its own particular aroma and flavor.

Now, it is the bacillus to be used for ripening cream, but it will transform bad butter into good butter. All the butter which goes to the country grocery in exchange for sugar and coffee may by this new process be put upon the market as "pure creamery." Thus country butter, of all kinds, from the dairy to wagon grease, as it may be purchased and dumped into [illegible] It may be full of mould, mosses, and filth of all sorts when it reaches the factory. There it is to be boiled and clarified. Of course the butter crystals will be destroyed, and nothing but oil left, but that will make no difference. The mass is to be treated with the bacteria. That will give it the creamery flavor. Then the oil will be rechurned and better that would baffle an expert will be the result.

Science has been able to accomplish wonders in the past, but the revolutionizing of the butter-making business is likely to be one of the most wonderful of its achievements, and the bacteria, which have been abused, kicked, and buffeted on both sides of the Atlantic because of the misery they have brought to the human race, are to be the instrument of science in performing this wonder.

DEAR SIR,—[illegible] my wife's health.

HENRY ZIVERN,

HAS HE FOUND THE POLE?

Probability That Dr. Nansen Has Discovered Unknown Polar Land.

New York Sun of [illegible] from Sandefiord, Norway, to the effect that a vessel believed to be The Fram, carrying Dr. Nansen's expedition from Norway in search of the North Pole had been [illegible] in the ice-floe off Smith Sound on the west coast of Greenland there is no room for doubting that the daring explorer has at last succeeded in accomplishing the long-cherished object for which so many lives and ships have been sacrificed. [illegible] the eye of civilized man.

The theory on which Dr. Nansen planned his expedition and based his calculations was that the strong current which sweeps north from the new Siberian Islands would carry his boat, surrounded as it probably is by gigantic ice-floes, across the unknown track around the pole and down the east coast of Greenland. It has long been surmised that the current which flows steadily south along the east coast of Greenland, and following the land, turns west and north along the west coast, was the same that moved north from the new Siberian Islands, directly across the region around the pole. This belief was practically made a certainty by the evidence of a substantial kind. First, it was remarked that logs and even pebbles and stones which were indigenous to Siberia, were found in considerable quantities off the south west coast of Greenland. The natural conclusion was that the current had carried them across the Polar regions from Siberia and cast them upon the west shore of Greenland.

Put the most striking and conclusive evidence was furnished by the finding of a quantity of wreckage of the ill-fated Jeanette, including such unmistakable articles as a pair of tie-ures, on the same southwest coast of Greenland about three years after the vessel was wrecked near the new Siberian Islands. The wreck occurred on June 13, 1881, and during the succeeding three years the current carried remnants of the ship across the Polar area over 3000 miles to its final resting place on the Greenland coast.

Dr. Nansen's expedition sailed on June 24, 1893, from Christiania, and was last heard of when about to sail into the Kara Sea in August, 1893. The Kara Sea, which is north of the Ural mountains of Russia, is nearly half way from Norway to the New Siberian Islands, and was on the direct route which Dr. Nasen had intended to go, taking an easterly course until he reached the Islands and then turning north and being carried by the current across the Polar regions.

MANITOBA WHEAT JUMPS TO 48c.

The Dakota Price Is 40c—How the Sudden Rise Is Accounted for in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 19.—Wheat went up to 48 cents per bushel at several provincial points to-day, while just across the boundary in Dakota, the price is only 40 cents.

This has set people guessing as to the reasons. Some are unable to account for the difference, but those conversant with all the facts, are ready with an explanation.

It is pointed out that owing to various unfavorable conditions during the past season, there is not likely to be more than 10,000,000 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat in the province. This is mostly all required for grinding, and millers are anxious to get as much as possible before the snow flies as there is great damage from careless handling. At the present price of flour, millers can easily afford to pay as high as 60 cents per bushel, so there is no fear of their losing money by buying at present prices.

Dakota farmers a few miles away are only getting export values for their wheat, 40 cents [illegible] would gladly sell to [illegible] at a cent or [illegible] but as the Canadian millers get their elevators full of the best grade of wheat, prices are sure to drop to export value. Farmers realize this and are now selling freely.

SIR OLIVER MOWAT'S HEALTH.

Not Satisfactory, But Nothing Serious—Will Not Return This Year.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 20.—A Star cable from London says: With reference to Sir Oliver Mowat's ill-health, I learn that the Ontario Premier left London some time ago for the north of England, where it is believed he still is. At the time of leaving London he was indisposed and his health continued somewhat unsatisfactory. Some friends, however, state that nothing serious is the matter. Sir Oliver Mowat will remain in England until the end of the year.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 20.—Mr. C. N. Armstrong returned to New York from Scotland on the 7th instant, and after a flying visit to his home here, returned to New York, where he has since been engaged on matters concerning the Atlantic and Lake Superior Railway from Sault Ste. Marie to Paspebiac.

He says that owing to the false rumors set in circulation by enemies of the project the work was delayed but that he has succeeded in forming a powerful English and American syndicate to undertake the work.

In October an English engineer will arrive and make an examination of the proceed bridge from Montreal to Lacadie, and if his report is favorable work will at once be begun.

Montreal Labor Men Don't Want Keir Hardie.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 20.—At the meeting of the Central Trades and Labor Council here to-night, Mr. William Darlington, one of the extremist wing, asked as a question of privilege to be allowed to introduce a motion inviting Kier Hardie to speak here. Mr. Darlington said he was proud of Mr. Hardie because he refused to vote an address of congratulation to the royal family on the birth of Prince Edward of York. This remark was loudly cut up the wrong way and several delegates called Mr. Darlington down. The council on division refused to allow the motion to be introduced.

A large number of people are under the impression that the prices for seats for "Alone in London" were to be advanced. Upon inquiry from Mr. W. W. Power, the manager, he stated positively that there would be no advance in prices during Mr. Lindley's engagement. A crowded house is expected to-night and we would advise all those wishing to attend to go early and secure good seats. The prices will be the same as during the week, viz., 10c, 20c and 30 cts.

Priestley's black dress goods do not need praise. They have made their way. They are the standard all over the world. But Priestley's "Eudora" is new, and needs a word. It does not fray, does not get rusty, wears long, repels the dust, and has a greater width and weight than the Henrietta. Wrapped on "The Varnished Board," as all Priestley's goods are, and the name, Priestley, stamped on every five yards.

QUINTE DISTRICT FAIR

YESTERDAY'S ATTENDANCE WAS A RECORD BREAKER.

Over 3,000 People in Attendance During the Afternoon—Fine Exhibitions of Speed and Other Sport—A Display of Fireworks at Night—Prize Winners in the Horticultural Department—Notes of Interest.

Yesterday was without a doubt the best day of the fair. During the morning the attendance was somewhat limited, but soon after dinner the people commenced to assemble in large number. At last night it was estimated that nearly 3,000 persons were upon the grounds. In consequence the Directors were smiling countenances as the receipts totalled up to a good round sum. As a large number of the farmers of the surrounding community were present, the live stock was well scrutinized, and the general verdict was that the exhibit was a good one. All departments were open and were in their best. The live stock, carriage, harness, roadsters and saddle horses were exhibited in the ring and were much admired.

The centre of attraction was, however, the speeding in the ring. The crowd was an extensive one that the fence nearly the whole distance around the track was in it with people, whilst the grand stand was filled. The programme was a lengthy one, but the crowd were patient and remained until the close, which was about 6 o'clock. Some of the events were keenly contested, notably the 2.40 class, which required five heats to decide it. The running exhibitions by the thoroughbreds was also much enjoyed. The events were as follows

SPEEDING CLASS, 2.40—Open to trotters and pacers. Mile heats, best 3 in 5, 4 to enter and three to start. Purse $50. First $25, second $15, third $10.

There were five entries for this event, which proved to be rather lengthy, requiring the five heats to decide it. The entries were Picket Boy, owned by W. B. Weese; Jessie Stanton, owned by O. Sills; Island Maid, owned by E. Kinney; Mary Watson, owned by C. Cook, and Ormus, owned by T. H. Hamilton.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in getting the horses started in the various heats, owing to there being so many of them. In the first heat they scored five times before being sent off. The fight for first place was between Jessie Stanton and Picket Boy, the little mare finally capturing it by winning three firsts out of the five heats. The result by heats can be learned by the following summary:

SUMMARY.

Jessie Stanton	1	3	2	1 1
Picket Boy	1	1	3	4 3
Island Maid	3	4	4	3 4
Mary Watson	4	5	5	4 5
Ormus	5	6	6	dr

Time, 2.45, 2.44, 2.39, 2.44, 2.47½.

SPEEDING OR GREEN HORSES—Trot or pace, mile heats, best 3 in 5, 4 to enter and 3 to start. Purse $30, first $15, second $10, third $5.

There were four entries for this event, namely: Molly M., b.g., owned by T. H. McKee; Frank G., b.g., owned by W. W. Schriver; Nancy Mack, sr.m., owned by F. Millar and Genevieve, b.m., owned by G. J. McGuire. After the first heat Nancy Mack was withdrawn and the driver of Frank G. was warned by the judges for pulling up the horse and not allowing it to show its speed. In their estimation the same thing was reported in the second heat, and when the horses were called out for the third heat the judges requested him to allow another driver to be put behind the horse. This he refused to do. He was given the choice of allowing this to be done, or putting the horse back in the stable. He chose the latter course and drove off, apparently not in the best humor. The decision of the judges met with the approval of the majority of those present. The following was the result:

SUMMARY.

Molly M.	1	1	1
Frank G.	2	2	dr
Genevieve	3	4	2
Nancy Mack	4	3	dr

Time 2.44½, 2.44, 2.44½.

RUNNING RACE.

The running race between the thoroughbred horses Fandago and Don Pedro was an exciting one, the best heats of 4 of a mile were run and was captured in straight heats by Fandago. Time—1.21½, 1.24½.

HORSE AND FOOT RACE.

A race for 100 yards between Geo. Nolan, of Trenton, against the thoroughbred horse Fandago was an event which was well contested, but the horse was too speedy for the foot runner. The horse won by a good margin. Time—11 sec.

Thos. McGowan, known as Buffalo Jack, gave a good exhibition of riding standing up upon two horses, and also jumping off the animals whilst at full speed and remounting. He was loudly applauded for his performances.

The celebrated stallion Frank Smith, belonging to Harford Ashley, gave an exhibition of speed and showed up well. He is indeed a fast horse.

The final event was an exciting one, namely, Mr. Hewitt's thoroughbred team Fandago and Twister attached to a bike and Don Pedro and rider. It was for 4 of a mile, and was captured by the team, Don Pedro being close up. Time, 1.27½.

The judges who did their duty in an impartial manner were Col. Hendricks, W. Bonsby and W. B. Robinson.

The Baby Show

The baby show, for which Mr. Gough, the clothier, offered valuable prizes, took place about four o'clock yesterday afternoon and attracted a large number of ladies and several gentlemen. Mr. T. H. B. Purdy was the judge, and although there were only five ladies entered, he found it difficult to award the prizes, all the children being so plump and pretty. He, however, gave Mrs. (Officer) Morton's girl the first prize, and it was generally conceded that she deserved it. Mrs. M. W. Boyd's boy was awarded 2nd, Mrs. M. Walsh's 3rd and Mrs. S. Skinner's boy 4th and a diploma.

THE EVENING EXHIBITION.

The grounds were brilliantly illuminated last evening and a very large crowd of people flocked to the grounds to witness Prof. Hand's display of fireworks. The spectators began to arrive as early as 6:30, and by eight o'clock the main building and the grounds adjacent were crowded. Short ly after eight o'clock the 15th Battalion marched upon the grounds headed by their band and went through several battalion movements in front of the grand stand, which was packed with people.

The fireworks began about nine o'clock. The rockets, torpedoes, etc., were invisible to those in the stand owing to the fact that they were shot directly over it, but the set pieces were very pretty and gave general satisfaction.

After the pyrotecnic display, the crowd wandered about among the booths and through the main building, or took a ride on the merry-go-round till a late hour.

NOTES.

The attendance yesterday afternoon was a record breaker.

Mr. H. Ashley drove a colt yesterday in harness, which was only 35 months old.

The receipts yesterday for the afternoon and evening were such as to give encouragement to the Directors. They amount ed to over $1,000.

A horse attached to a buggy became frightful last night at the fire works and started to run away, but was fortunately captured before proceeding any feet.

A collision occurred yesterday afternoon near the main building between two buggies with the result that a wheel of one of the vehicles was wrecked.

It pays to attend to the police three women reported that they had been relieved of their purses. Mrs. Pearsall, of Picton, lost $2; Mr. Davy, Sterling, $1 and silver, and Mrs. Harty, Sidney, $3.

A number of boys yesterday gained admittance by jumping over the fence, and as their names were obtained they will answer to the charge before the Police Magistrate.

The judges yesterday in the ladies department came across a pair of men's woollen stockings which they refused to judge, as they had been worn.

Good Cloth the Main Thing.

The average man is not a freak, and out of mere vanity will not buy clothing that the average but is not taught to want to wear. But when the right thing is made to suit the individual, he feels the added pattern of the fact shows to advantage the radiant grace of manhood which is then the instinctive disclosure of origin. If you have an Oak Hall suit, it stands, if not—when the color of a suit is gone the wearing of a suit is practically at an end.

A Question.

How can we raise more corn to the acher? Why, of course by using Putnam's Corn Extractor. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has given universal satisfaction, for it is sure, safe and painless. Like every article of real merit it has a host of imitators, and we would specially warn the public against these dangerous substitutes offered for the genuine Putnam's Extractor. N. C. Catarrh in the Head

Is a dangerous disease because it is liable to result in loss of hearing or smell, or develop into consumption. Read the following:

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H. THE SUMMONS WAS SUDDEN.

Mr. H. Yerex Fatally Stricken With Apoplexy.

The Picton Gazette gives the following particulars of Mr. Reynard Yerex's sudden death, which was referred to by us in Wednesday's issue: The family of Mr. Reynard Yerex, who reside adjacent to the town, were terribly shocked on Wednesday morning to find Mr. Yerex had suddenly expired. He had been to Milford the day previous, returning apparently in his usual health, partaking of his supper and at the proper time retiring. Wednesday morning he arose as usual, partook of breakfast and was making preparations to leave with his brother John for the Belleville fair at 12 o'clock. After breakfast he went to the closet, and remaining there so long as to excite the curiosity of his wife, she shouted for him, but receiving no reply, went to the closet and found him dead. Apoplexy was the supposed cause of death. Deceased was aged 62 years, 1 month and a few days, and was held in the highest esteem by a large circle of friends and relatives.

A Belleville Boy.

Capt. Melanthon Simpson, of Hamilton, is in the city on a business trip, and is also enjoying revisiting the scenes of his childhood. Capt. Simpson was born in Belleville in 1826 and resided here until he was fifteen. He is now known as the most extensive ship builder in Ontario, having been the designer and constructor of nearly forty steamers or propellers and an equal number of schooners. Such steamers as the Penna, Francis Smith, Greyhound, Cumberland, Wanbono, Mazeppa, or Oswego Belle, and propellers Lake Michigan, Lake Erie and Asia, certify to his abilities, and the long life of many of them, to the honest materials used by him. Capt. Simpson is now with the Hamilton Bridge and Tool Works, which firm also contracts for building steamers. One of their steamers now on the slippers of Toronto, which will carry 2,000 passengers and cost $300,000. The construction of this steamer was superintended by Capt. Simpson. The Capt. has not lately visited Belleville since his boyhood, he retains a strong interest in his birth place and every evidence of its progress gives him pleasure.

Harry Lindley.

Harry Lindley and his company presented the "Minute Men," a beautiful comedy drama, before a large audience last night. The piece is new to theatre goers, it being its first production in this city, and was enthusiastically received, as was also Mr. Harry Lindley in the character of "Jim" the tramp, who furnished the comedy part. Little Ethel was the recipient of a beautiful bouquet after the play, and to-night the romantic melo drama "Alone in London" will be presented and a full house is assured Mr. Lindley, as the piece is one of the best in his repertoire, and is being well known among theatre goers having been presented here by Cora Tanner some 9 years ago to a packed house, and many of those will be present to-night. To-night there will positively be no advance in prices. Doors will be opened half an hour earlier. So we would advise all to go early and avoid the crush at the door.

No person should go from home without a bottle of Dr. J. D. This Cordial has gained for itself a wide spread reputation for relieving prompt relief from all summer complaints

I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, but as a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But the use using three bottles of the Vegetable Discovery the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Starting in using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

The Last King of Leinster.

By EDMUND DOWNEY.

The news soon reached Wamerford, and at once all the Council was much for Ross. Wood the outlook at their backs and Leinstermen behind them, they could hold out for a week or more. When they reached the outskirts of Rosslare they were challenged by a sentry. He was on night only in the month of April.

Strongbow thrived to argue with the man at first, offered to make a sergeant of him if he'd join the Norman troops, but the poor wasn't too fond of hard work, as he knew he'd be kept purty busy if he became a Norman sergeant. When Strongbow found out all he wanted from the man concerning the garrison at New Ross, he simply threw out from him an let fly his bow arrow, as the royal Irish constable went to glory was just swan goose.

Then Lord Pembroke rode back to King Dermot to tell him his plans.

"What's stoppin the proceedin, Richard?" roars the auld monarch of Leinster as he saw Strongbow ridin up in the darkness.

"Only a peeler," says Strongbow.

"Offer him a pinsion," roars the king, "an thry an get rid of him in that way."

"Oh, he's pinsioned nately," says Strongbow. An then he told auld King Mac how he'd thrated the man. "I'm afeard we must have a slaughther in watch in New Ross tonight, Mac, auld boy," says he.

"Murdher alive!" says the king in a terrified way. "hadn't you enough bloodshed in Waxford?"

"There's no use in half measures," says Strongbow. "If we don't polish off these men of Ross they'll be sendin word up by road to the Danes in Waterford, an that'ud upset our apple cart completely. In for a penny in for a pound, auld boy," says he. "Twill be all the same in a hundhred years!"

"Oh, have it your own way, Richard!" says the king in a heartbroken voice. "I don't know where this business will end at all. Sweet bad luck to you, Gilly O'Rorke!" he groans, buryin his face in his hands.

"That sounds like a bar of a comic song," laughs Strongbow, ridin off into the darkness.

CHAPTER VII.

The next mornin in Watherford two Danish lords, wan of 'em in the bacon thrade an wan in the butther business, strolled down the quay after breakfast to meet the Ross packet.

They went out on the floatin wharf where the boat eventually stopped an squatted down on a balk of timber that was lyin on the wharf. They sat there for about a quarther of an hour, smokin and chattin, backbitin their neighbors, of course, an never dhramain of the disaster that was comin to wan an all of 'em.

"That's like her," says wan of the lords, starin to his foot an gazin down the river. "I'm expectin a consignment of pigs. I suppose you're expectin some firkins?" says he, turnin to the other lord, his friend.

"I am," says the butther merchant, "Tell me, Tom," says he, "is there any thruth in the reports I hear about a Norman blagyard who's after massacrein the town of Waxford?"

"Oh, 'tis thrue enough," says the other lord. "There was no fair in Waxford last week, an the fair at New Ross yesterday was very poorly attended, for the people are in dhread that the ould king from over the seas, together wud ould King Dermot of Leinsther, may pounce down on 'em at any time."

"I wonder is the ould boy going to marry Princess O'Rorke?" says the butther lord.

"Divil a fear of him," says the bacon lord.

By this time the steamboat was right abreast of the wharf, an in her wake wor about half a dozen barges belongin to the Barrow Navigation company.

"I wondher what's the Ross boat towin?" axes the Danish butther merchant.

"Don't you see?" says the Danish bacon lord. "She's going to dhrag them barges, I expect, up to their wharf at the market house."

"But look at their impudence!" says the butther merchant—"keepin me waitin the best part of the mornin here for my firkins!"

"Maybe they'll land 'em for you up at the market house," says the bacon lord. "That'ud save your lordship the carriage of 'em."

The market house, you must know, is built about half way up the quay at Watherford, right out at the edge of the quay, an a most unsightly object it is too. The butther is all weighed there, an of course, as the bacon lord said, it would be very handy for his friend if he could save the bit of carriage on his firkins.

So up the quay the two Danish merchants started, an in a few minutes they were at the market house. They passed through it an out on the wharf outside it an bawled out through their fists, "Ross boat, ahoy!"

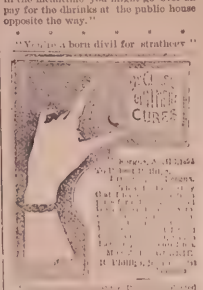

The answer came back, "Aye, aye!"

"You might put in here an discharge some of your cargo," shouts the butther lord. "I don't mind standin the crew the price of a dhrink if you land my firkins here, for I'm dhry."

"All right," was shouted back from the steamboat. "We'll come alongside presently an land all that's required, an in the meantime you might go over an pay for the drinks at the public house opposite the way."

* * * * * * *

"You're a born divil for strather," says the bacon lord, admirin.

"Oh, whisht, man!" says Strongbow, houldin the place in thrust for you I am, to save you inconveyniances. Of coorse it will be yours when you're the king of all Ireland, an where's the use of makin two bites at a cherry?"

"Richard," says King Dermot, shakin his head, "I think I misthrusted your joyning yerthership. 'Tis yourself that ought to be called Longbow, not your employer, King Henery, for you could give him points in pelshin a lie."

"Now, now," says Strongbow, wud a scowl an a chuckle, "don't you know that pe ple in our walk of life never tell flibs? We do be only negotiatin."

MIXED WHEAT AGAIN.

"Scourge" Wheat a Misnomer, Says Controller Wood.

TO BE SETTLED IN WINNIPEG.

Prof. Robertson's Advances in Prince Edward Island Cheese Major General Herbert's Valedictory to the Canadian Forces Christian Brothers Temporarily Retained.

Ottawa, Ont. Sept. 21. The attention of the Controller of Inland Revenue was directed by your correspondent to-day to the recently published interview with Mr. Watts, secretary of the Dominion Millers' Association on the vexed question of mixing of wheat. According to a statement which Mr. Wood made to your correspondent the facts of the case are simply as follows: The regulations as they now exist are, with the exception of an amendment in the wording of the classification, requiring that all Manitoba grades shall be composed wholly of wheat grown in Manitoba and the Northwest territories, exactly the same as they have been since 1888. One of the provisions of the Order-in-Council of the 4th of August, 1888 reads: "No grain which has been subjected to treatment by use of lime or sulphur shall be graded higher than No. 2." That provision and such of the misunderstanding now prevailing has arisen from the use of the term "scoured wheat," for scoured which is simply mechanically brushed, that is, freed from smut by brushing. A few bulbs of smut in a load of good wheat will, if broken while being elevated into any of the country elevators, contaminate a whole hundred bushels of grain with which they are brought into contact, and in that way degrade the whole. The quality of the grain so contaminated remains what it was before, a good sample of No. 1 hard, but when it reaches Fort William the inspector there rejects it and sends it on to Toronto, where it is also rejected." When cleaned by a purely mechanical process, it is practically as good as ever.

"In this grain," Mr. Wood reasonably argues, "there is no more dirt added on account of an accident in transit." The department has from the first been desirous of having the grades as well as it still suicidal to do so, but in aiming to do that it has been found that while going much further than that direction than Duluth (Canada's great competitor), and more exclusive in not satisfy the grain exchange of Montreal, which passed a resolution, urging the retention of the scoured brushed wheat, not only from Manitoba No. 1, but from all sound grades. In view of the great difference of opinion, even among millers and dealers, it was decided to amend the regulations for the present, only so far as it was necessary for jurisdiction of pieces to which the Board may be asked to meet in Winnipeg, and that the question of exclusion of brushed wheat should be fully considered by the Board, with a view that all interests should be fully heard before the amended and an order subsequently passed to give effect to these views.

General Herbert's valedictory to the Canadian forces will be published in the Canada Gazette Saturday. The general says that before relinquishing his command he desires to thank those who for a number of years past have given him loyal support and co-operation in his effort to render the forces an efficient and economical force for the defence of the empire. During this period Gen. Herbert has been encouraged by finding the Canada assume her share of the burden necessary to the maintenance inviolately of her Pacific coast and by exceptional efforts made by militia units allotted for the defence of halifax and Esquimalt, in order to fit themselves for the duties they would have performed in time of emergency. The officer commanding observed with pleasure a general awakening throughout the militia of a spirit of emulation for practical efficiency, together with a marked and valuable development in rifle shooting. He expresses appreciation of the excellent material in the rural militia, and commends the soldierly order and soldier-like behavior of the different camps of exercise. He extends his thanks to officers and men of the permanent force and urges them to continue to prove to the active militia a high standard of military efficiency. Gen. Herbert closes by conveying his best wishes to all and concluded with the hope that he will be remembered by them with feelings of esteem and respect, and that they will be will always bear towards those Canadian comrade- and fellow-subjects whom he has the honor to command.

Col. Gascoigne, the new Commandant of the Canadian militia, will arrive here on Monday week. Immediately on his arrival he will be gazetted Major-General, as the militia Act provides.

H. T. Fuller and A. P. Weston of Halifax, having passed required examination, their admission as cadets to Royal Military College has been approved.

A flat denial is given by Hon. Mr. Ouimet, acting Minister of Agriculture, to The Globe's story, made on the authority of Mr. Murphy, at a meeting of the Brockville cheese Board a few days ago, that Dairy Commissioner Robertson had obtained an advance of $40,000 on Prince Edward Island cheese, "which had a peculiar flavor, and which was simply another name for stink." The facts of the case are simply that on the recommendation of the Minister of Agriculture in 1894 Parliament passed a vote of $38,000 to enable the Dairy Commissioner to promote the dairying interests by advances for making cheese and butter within the provinces, the proceeds of sales or products from such advances to be refunded to the credit of the consolidated revenue fund. This vote has been regularly voted every session since, with the exception of last session, when it was increased to $40,000. With this vote the Dairy Commissioner, with the consent and concurrence of the Minister of Agriculture, commenced a series of dairy schools, having for their object to stimulate and promote the dairy interests in Canada. The result was in almost phenomenal success. These object lessons were commenced in Ontario to promote better butter making. Prof. Robertson at first met some objections, but they were soon overcome, and soon as farmers saw the practical results obtained the scheme spread like wildfire. Therefore upon the Commissioner moved further east. He is this year operating in the Maritime Provinces and Prince Edward Island. This will probably be the last year of his operations on the Island, for the reason that as the movement is well started it will run itself hereafter, as in Ontario. In fact, what the Dairy Commissioner does is to provide skilled instructors and such advances to farmers for milk they supply in those parts of the Dominion where he operates. The cheese is manufactured by most approved appliances and then the Dairy Commissioner completes the transaction of selling by putting the product on the market. It has been understood and agreed from the beginning, that Prof. Robertson should make his vote over and over again, with the single requirement that the whole sum be not exceeded. The credit of the year ever-lenient at the end of the fiscal year. At the present time there is now placed at $42,000, and made in Prince Edward Island, under the control of the Dairy Commissioner in Montreal, and for which he has made advances for cheese factories. It is not difficult to sell this cheese at present ruling prices. He therefore, does not propose this action to the Department, and in order to keep fifth and meet demands of patrons for cheese now in the island has been pressing forward the manufacture of dairy products. Already an advance from a bank of $10,000 on this $42,000 worth of cheese it seems to be probable that if he can only sell his cheese and receive the money, he might also possibly sell the cheese on consignment on a letter market later on. At any rate that is his discretion, under the responsibility to the Minister of Agriculture. As to the quality of the cheese, the authority of the Canadian Committee on Agriculture, it commands half a cent a pound above Ontario cheese.

The trade returns for the past two months indicate a gratifying increase in the trade of the country. Exports are valued at $28,876,199, as against $27,556,419, or an increase of two millions and a quarter. The duty collected for the same period shows an increase of $318,600. Imports for the two months manifest a falling off of exactly two millions.

The following militia changes will appear in The Canada Gazette:

Governor-General's Body Guard—To be 2nd lieutenant provisionally, Frederick C. Denison, to complete establishment.

2nd Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles—To be lieutenant, 2nd Lieutenant Lester L. Palmer, vice Burnham, promoted.

10 Battalion, Royal Grenadiers—To be lieutenants, 2nd Lieutenants Alexis F. C. Martin, Henry B. Smith and Harold C. Meyers, Samuel P. Sloane, Jas. T. Craig, James C. Mason and George H. Ince.

That part of general order 18, dated the 11th May, appointing Lieut. William R. Pringle to resign his commission is amended by addition of following words after said appointment "and to retain rank of lieutenant on retirement."

Prince of Wales' battalion, Highlanders—Provisional 2nd Lieutenant John V. Rimsaith retires. To be 2nd lieutenant provisionally, Norman W. Cosby.

No. 4, "Hamilton Field Battery," to be second lieutenants, provisionally, George S. Proctor, vice Duncan, promoted.

It is understood that Hon. Mr. Dickey has placed an order through the High Commissioner for 1000 rifles of the Lee-Enfield pattern, the same arm as those which the British regulars are now equipped with. Jan. 900 Lee-Metford carbines for the cavalry.

The school Board met last night. Inspector Hall presided in the absence of the Superintendent. Reader Thiller Superintendent's letter withdrawing the Christian Brothers from the Grades well as first a motion was presented to accept the Brothers' resignation, but some more timid trustees objected and an amendment was adopted favoring further consideration of the matter. Election and retention of the services of the Brothers until the end of the year, when the whole matter can be settled. Hon. G. W. Charles Monro, C.E., engineer-in-chief of the Soulanges canal, has been appointed the Canadian Government's representative to the Deep Waterways Convention at Cleveland next week.

William Wainwright, of the Grand Trunk, and C. Shaughnessy, of the C.P.R., were here to-day.

Rumors have been noised to-night about his storm prophecy for Saturday, said: I predicted this storm solely for benevolent purposes and for the public property, but the press want the storm before it is due. The real cause of my prediction is 19 years of study and I say that I feared a tidal wave on the west coast of South America and the east coast of North America. The cause for this is the greatest planetary conjunction of the age.

The total amount of Inland Revenue accrued last month was $651,382, an increase of five Canada assume her share of the burden necessary to the maintenance inviolately of her Pacific coast and by exceptional efforts made by militia units allotted for the defence of halifax and Esquimalt, in order to fit themselves for the duties they would have performed in time of emergency. Heart Disturbance

There is more heart disturbance now than ever. Present day modes of living, hurry, excitement, worry, promote it. You needn't have heart trouble, because you can keep from having it.

Scott's Sarsaparilla

Palpitation or fluttering of the heart, smothering spells at night, swelling of the feet and ankles, shortness of breath, pain in the left side, fainting spells, mean that the heart is oppressed—circulation is out of order.

DELAY IS DANGEROUS

Note the papers daily chronicling the demise of some one by neglect of these warnings' result, heart failure. Scott's Sarsaparilla cures heart disturbance by equalizing the circulation, restoring nerve power, supplying pure blood and relieving the heart of its burden.

BOOK REVIEWS.

While the discussion concerning the relative merits of the divers poets of Canada is being conducted without any prospect of a present termination, it is pleasing to note the fact that the third edition of the poems of John Imrie, of Toronto, the Burns of Canada, is finding its way into the homes of the readers of Canadian poesy.

As next year will be the anniversary of Scotland's dearest singer, it seems fitting that the poems of the last, representative of the singers, who have cherished the memory of the land beyond the sea, should be at this conjuncture widely circulated. Those who have left the land of the heather forever behind will linger long on the pleasant memories recalled by "Sons of Scotland," one of the most charming of the songs in the book; and many a patriotic heart which has almost ceased to beat with patriotism will be aroused, and throb with restless enthusiasm on reading the stirring lines which have often been read, and will as often be read again in rhyme on the old story, ever new, of "Bruce and Bannockburn."

The Canadian patriotic song, which is sung as often by Scotch Canadians as is the Maple Leaf by those Canadians whose remouldred ancestry took its origin in our Dominion, "Canada," with its stirring music is found in this interesting volume. We quote as a sample of the poet's songs the following, and surely the least we can say of it is that it equals any poetry yet produced in Canada, and possesses the indestimable merit of endurance which is found in the poems of Lampman, Campbell, Scott, Roberts, McLachlan, Sangster and Carman.

WHERE DOTH BEAUTY DWELL?

Look for the first faint streaks of morn
That gild the eastern sky,
Another day in beauty born;
As mounts the sun on high;
Thating the tops of highest towers
With crimson and with gold,
Melting the dew-drops from the flowers
That peacefully unfold:
There doth "the beautiful" abide
In calm security,
The new-born flock'd like a bride—
Of virgin purity!

Look for the eyes that beam with love,
Or flash with delight
To meet thy gaze—like stars above—
Brightest in thy dark night;
Dispelling every thought of sin
From out thy heart's great deep,
Chasing the darkness from within,
Should'st thou seek sleep;
There doth "the beautiful" abide
In full maturity
And there may thy fond heart reside
Through all futurity!

This book is published by Imrie & Graham, of Toronto, who are now placing, as we said, the third edition on the market.

THE LOST KEYSTONE, a novelette, by Dr. L. A. Banks, by Funk & Wagnalls Co., of Toronto, is a collection of new and original arguments against the continuance of licensing liquor stores to carry on the dangerous traffic in which they are engaged. It is a master work, and we observe that it is rapidly being circulated among those who by reason of the dulness of current literature on this subject have avoided prior productions. We anticipate for it a more permanent endurance than has marked the existence of the literature on the subject with which it deals.

Did You Ever Think

That you cannot be well unless you have pure, rich blood? If you are weak, tired, languid and all run down, it is because your blood is impoverished and lacks vitality. These troubles may be removed by Hood's Sarsaparilla because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure, rich blood. It is, in truth the great blood purifier.

HOOD'S PILLS cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

A letter was received here to-day from Dr. Kaiser, of Oshawa, in which he says that "while it seems to popularize this most intellectual game that we the players of Oshawa, would like to invite the players of your city to a friendly game by correspondence." A FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION.

HOW IT CURED MRS. SOMERVILLE, OF BRANTFORD.

HER CASE HAD BAFFLED TEN YEARS OF TREATMENT—THE TROUBLE BROUGHT ON BY AN ATTACK OF TYPHOID FEVER—SHE IS AGAIN ENJOYING GOOD HEALTH.

From the Brantford Nationalist.

That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a favorite medicine in Brantford and vicinity will be readily borne out by the local druggists; and that much substance has been allowed to by the use of these wonderful healer, is amply shown by the number of strong statements in favor of Pink Pills from time to time, and yet the number of cases published is small in comparison with the total number that have found benefit from the use of this great blood builder. It is true that Pink Pills are used in many cases to tone up the system, enrich the blood and stimulate the nerves when no serious illness exists; but it is equally true that in many cases in which they have been used, other medicines have failed, and the result achieved by Pink Pills is very truly to be characterized as marvellous. The editor of the Canadian Nationalist came across just such a case recently. It is that of Mrs. Somerville, a well-known and highly respected resident of this city. Mrs. Somerville does not seek notoriety, but is willing that a statement of what Pink Pills have done for her shall be made public in the hope that some other sufferer may be benefitted thereby. "My illness at first," said Mrs. Somerville, "was a serious attack of typhoid fever. Although I recovered from the fever it left its effects that have caused me many years of misery. Indeed so far said that my blood had become impregnated with poison and that it would take a long time to eradicate it. The trouble seemed to have its chief seat in my limbs, which caused me a great deal of pain. For about ten years I continued doctoring, not continually, but at times, and I tried many remedies without permanent results. This went on until the end of '93, when I became so much crippled up that I despaired of getting relief. I had read much of the remarkable cures through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and became interested in them. One day I asked my physician if I might try them. He gave his permission and I began the treatment. By the time the third box was finished I found myself very much improved—in fact, the pains had entirely left me and I was growing healthier and stronger. I continued using the pills until I had taken six boxes more, when I felt that I was entirely cured, and was enjoying better health than I had done for years. I am satisfied that to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I owe my recovery, and have implicit confidence in their curative power, and shall continue to recommend them to other sufferers."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine, but are a long tried prescription acting upon the blood and nerves. They are of great value as a tonic during recovery from acute diseases, such as fevers, etc., building up the blood and system, preventing the often tedious after effects of such troubles. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Refuse all imitations and substitutes.

A Farewell Ball.

Mr. Geo. Worrell [illegible] been a well-known and enthusiastic worker in Orange and True Blue circles for the last eleven years, will leave shortly for Philadelphia, where he will take a course of instruction in theology preparatory to entering the mission field in Japan. His numerous friends have been showering marks of their appreciation of his services and of his worth as a man upon him during the last few days. Among others who have given expression to their feeling are the Loyal Lady True Blues, who presented him with an address and a accompanying purse. The members of Emmanuel church Sunday school, which was organized by Mr. Worrell himself, together with representatives of various city fraternal societies, will hold a rally in the West end Y.M.C.A. hall on Tuesday evening next, when a formal farewell will be taken of Mr. Worrell. Among the speakers will be ex-Mayor Clarke. Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald, Grand Master Loyal True Blues, will preside.—Mail and Empire, 21st inst.

CLOSING DAY OF THE FAIR

THE ATTENDANCE ABOVE THAT OF PREVIOUS "LAST DAYS."

Parade of Prize Winning Stock Races and Special Events President Ponton Expresses His Pleasure at the Success of the Fair—Closing Scenes More Prize List Notes.

Yesterday was the closing day of the Bay of Quinte District Exhibition and the attendance was far in excess of previous "last days." The programme of events for the afternoon fully repaid the spectators for their attendance, the racing being especially good.

At 1:30 the prize animals paraded in the ring and they were much admired, especially the cattle.

THE RACES.

The first race called was the Hotel Keepers' Prize for Stallions. Purse $50. Open to all stallions; mile heats, best 3 in 5; 4 to enter and 3 to start; first, $25.; 2nd, $15.; 3rd, $10.

There were three starters, viz., Pants, c.s., owned by Dr. Sutton; Advancer, c.s., owned by A. G. Hudgins; Symlad, b. s., owned by W. Chapman. Advancer won the race in straight heats with ease, distancing the other two horses in the third heat. Time, 2:44¼, 2:51½ and 2:39¼.

The next event was an exhibition of speed—free for all trotters and pacers; mile heat, best 3 in 5, 4 to enter and 3 to start; purse $75; first, $40; 2nd, $20; 3rd, $15.

There were also three starters for this event, and it was thought that Madoc Boy had a cinch on the race, but Beethoven won in straight heats and established a new track record—2:34¼. The horses and their owners were: Madoc Boy, b.g., S. Simmons; Demand, b.g., S. H Thacka bury; Beethoven, b.g., A. A. Hudgins.

The first heat was paced by Beethoven in 2:33 flat, Madoc Boy close up and Demand barely saving his distance. The second was a repetition of the first as far as the position of the horses went, but Beethoven went the mile in the fastest time ever made over the track—2:31½, and Demand was distanced. The third heat was done in 2:32½. The time made by Beethoven, considering the hard surface of the track, which is but a third of a mile, was very fast. It was the general opinion that Madoc Boy could have beaten Beethoven had an experienced driver been up behind him, but his owner, R. Simmons, who piloted the little bay, is a heavy man and too great a handicap for short turns.

A running race, mile heats, between R. Howitt's two thoroughbreds, Fandago and Eclipse, was won in straight heats by the latter in 2:09 and 2:02½.

A frolic dog "Tramp," owned by little Jack Gowan, of Deseronto, trotted two heats against Mr. McGinnis' pony Knickerbocker, of Deseronto, and won both heats.

R. Howitt's running horses, Fandago and Eclipse, hitched to a buggy, also ran an exhibition race against Don Pedro under saddle and won by half a length.

This concluded the programme of sports and virtually closed the fair. The exhibitors were then at liberty to remove their exhibits and before dark most of them were off the grounds.

At the conclusion of the performance Mr. W. N. Ponton, President of the Association, made a few remarks. He said he was pleased with the attendance and thanked all who had labored for the success of the fair. He was certain that it would now be a permanent exhibition. With a united effort the fair could be made a grand success. To the Directors were due much praise for the enthusiastic manner in which they had interested into the fair and done much to make it the success it had been. He would mention especially Manager J. M. Hurley and John Johnston. At the close of the remarks cheers were given for the President and the Directors.

NOTES.

The Deseronto Band wish to express their thanks to the Directors for the courteous treatment they received at their hands. They say they were never used better, even in Toronto.

A horse, belonging to Mr. Jas. Wallace, attached to a phaeton, became frightened on the grounds but evening and ran away. It ran for some distance before being captured. The phaeton was somewhat damaged.

The total amount taken in at the gates during the four days was $1,702. The grand stand netted over $100.

The Ambulance,

Which should have been completed by this time, is about ready, so that next week, at the furthest, it will be placed in position for calls.

The public deserve great credit for so liberally seconding the ladies' every effort in making the hospital perfect in every detail. The money is all provided for the ambulance, but an ambulance cart is required in which to transfer sufferers from the ambulance to a cot, the cost of which is only $90, but as a relief to suffering its value is very great. Miss Gordon is naturally anxious to thus complete the ambulance with its natural attachments and would be pleased to receive any sum, no matter how small, for this purpose. If you can spare a ten send it to her, or if you can only spare five send it. Dollar bills or silver will be acceptable. Send as much as you can spare and the sum will soon be forthcoming.

We sell clothing upon honor and when you're told a thing at Oak Hall It's so. Seeing's believing, so come and see.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS.

Mutton Breeds of Sheep. A Good Way to Preserve Eggs.

The mutton breeds of sheep grow to full maturity with such rapidity as almost surprise those who have never seen them. Such breeds as the Oxford Downs, Shropshire and Hampshire Downs will gain from twelve ounces to a pound a day the first year if forced by high feeding. It has been demonstrated by actual tests that lambs can be made to attain 100 pounds live weight when 100 days old, and individual rams fed for the purpose of gaining as much as possible have reached 370 pounds when one year old. A ram was exhibited at the Centennial Exposition that weighed 625 pounds.

Potato tops take a large share of potash from the soil, and the tops should, therefore, be added to the manure heap. Anything that the stock will not eat will do good service as manure. When material is added to the manure heap it is best when being saved for some purpose the succeeding year, and will feed the soil, thus enabling it to increase its yield when the next harvest arrives.

The late rains will make weeds grow whether there are regular crops or not, and the cultivator may have to be used. There is no work that pays better in the fall than to complete the destruction of weeds, as it saves labor next season.

If the old strawberry beds are so full of weeds that they cannot be plowed out cut them down, as it will do no harm to mow the strawberries with the weeds. In the winter the rows may be covered with straw, leaves or dried weeds, and burned, which will not injure the strawberry plants, and leave the rows clean as well as destroying weed seeds that may be on the surface of the ground. All old beds should be burned over in winter.

It is not always advisable to adopt the systems pursued by a neighbor, as there is a wide difference in soils, and farms are not alike. The independent farmer who aims to branch out into something better, cannot wait. He must lead, and thus learn by practical experience the methods best for his farm. Small plots for experimental purposes should be used every year as a portion of the routine work on every farm, and they will thus save time and labor.

The best way to preserve eggs is to use no solutions or packing material, but place them on racks, or in open-slatted boxes, and turn them half over three times a week, keeping them in a cool place, and using eggs only from hens not with males.

Cattle being short, there is an opportunity to make up the deficit in meat by raising more hogs. It is also reported that the number of hogs this year is not up to the average. As there will be a large supply of corn this season the hog should fill an important place on the farm next year.

The lawn may receive some attention for its renewal now. Mow it and scratch it over with a sharp rake. Then sow a mixture of one pound blue grass, three pounds white clover and one pound timothy seed on one-fourth of an acre. It is best to use plenty of seed rather than too little. Sow the seed before the middle of September, and the rains will carry it down, as well as allow sufficient time for the young grass to make headway before winter.

Keep a careful lookout for the bugs which infest melons and squash, and destroy them, which is not difficult if the vines are looked over once a day early in the morning. It may be well that potato beetle should not be spared because the crop is safe.

Potatoes are of excellent quality this year, and good crops have been made. The expense of growing potatoes has been largely reduced by improvements in planting and harvesting machinery adopted to potatoes.

The cow pea is grown on every farm in the South. When a piece of land becomes unserviceable it is broadcasted to cow peas, which are then plowed under when the seed pods are forming. They thrive well and ripen their seed in New Jersey, and will, no doubt, do equally as well in Pennsylvania. However, as they can be plowed under at any stage of growth they are never out of place. They will grow on all kinds of land, from the poorest to the most fertile soils.

Weeds require closer watching now than at any other time, as they are producing seed. If one is seen anywhere pull it out—never let the seed mature. The mower can do good service in fields, but the hoe should be used to clean out the fence corners.

Cement and board floors are excellent, but they may serve as harboring places for rats. An excellent plan is to first excavate the place where the floor is to be and place half-inch wire netting underneath, fastening the sides also, and then return the earth, which will keep rats out.

The dairy farmer finds that the intensive system of culture which he must follow enables him to improve the fertility of the soil so that he can raise better crops and get better returns from the lands than he could before. This means a double profit all around.

Here is a new wrinkle in feeding sheep. The whole corn crop is run through a threshing machine or shredder, tearing stalks, husks and leaves into fine feed with the grain intermingled or sifted out as wished, as with other grain. A flock thus fed left timothy hay untouched for it, which shows them to be wise sheep, and mixed with clover hay the sheep did remarkably well.

The bulky foods which can be grown successfully upon the farm have no superior as feed for the dairy—corn cats, clover hay and plenty of silage. Results from the bought concentrated foods cannot equal the results which do these more easily digested foods "Forcing" a cow does injury to her digestive organs, and is decidedly not profitable in the long run.

CHINESE EXCITED.

ANTI-CHRISTIAN RIOTS AT THE BOTTOM OF THE LATE RIOTS

Circulated Through the Empire—Missionaries are Supposed to Use Chinese Eyes in the Manufacture of Silver.

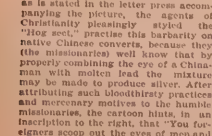

The recent massacres of missionaries in China were caused in great measure by various cartoons printed for the purpose of stirring up feeling against the Christians. In the part of China where these atrocities took place, there has for years been a growing notion that the presence of Christians was highly detrimental to the welfare of the native population, that the missionaries preached a doctrine which was heretical and blasphemous and that they practised all manner of cruelties. In an accompanying illustration a missionary will be observed engaged in the interesting surgical operation of removing a Chinaman's eye. The operation is not a strictly surgical one, for it is not supposed to result in any benefit to the victim. In fact, as is stated in the letter press accompanying the picture, the agents of Christianity pleasingly styled the "Hog sect," practise this barbarity on native Chinese converts, because they (the missionaries) well know that by properly combining the eye of a Chinaman with molten lead the mixture may be made to produce silver. After attributing such bloodthirsty practices and mercenary motives to the humble missionaries, the cartoon hints, in an inscription to the right, that "You foreigners scoop out the eyes of men, and men will scoop out your eyes."

Another cartoon bears the title "The Destiny of the Devils and the Burning of the Books." The "devils" are in "foreigners," usually referred to by the Chinese by a word which the missionaries have interpreted to mean "foreign devils," the picture hardly requires any explanation, and, as far as its perfect lucidity is concerned, may be termed a model of cartoon construction. It will be seen on the left-hand side of the picture that those who are intent on the destruction experiencing the disagreeable odor-ding from the consumig volumes [illegible] very cleverly conveyed this idea by the simple expedient of making those persons hold their noses at the same time imparting to their countenances an expression which may be interpreted to signify disgust or nausea. This is the effect which, it is suggested, the Scriptures distributed or circulated by the missionaries have on the natives.

In still another picture two of the foreign devils are represented in the act of attempting to introduce the doctrine of Christianity among the disciples of Confucius. The allegory developed by the artist shows the doctrine of Christianity as a hog, which is being borne by two foreign devils to the door of Confucius. This worthy will have nothing of it.

These cartoons have been selected from a book which, it is said, was the property of the murdered missionary, Mr. Stewart. Very few of the remaining cartoons are of a sort that could be reproduced by a newspaper in a civilized country. Mr. Stewart's book is an exact copy of much of the Chinese incendiary literature which is published at Hunan. Boats are loaded at Hunan with handbills, posters, placards and pamphlets, and (it is suspected by the more intelligent of the Government) are disseminated from there throughout the Chinese empire. The Chinese title of the book containing the cartoons was "The Chinese Picture Gallery," and its circulation was sedulously pushed forward by means of private subscriptions, the object being not to make any money by the sale of copies, but simply to stir up inflammatory sentiment against the missionaries. It can be readily understood that such pamphlets are far more effective than pamphlets or printed documents which, to a large part of the people, would be unintelligible. The cartoon is admirably calculated to convey in a second an idea which it would require minutes to explain in letter press. And its advantage is still more striking among a people who are largely illiterate.

The hostile feeling of the Chinese of the Yangtze valley can hardly be appreciated by us who are so far from the scene. Perhaps we gain a faint notion of it upon the occurrence of massacres such as those which took place last month. The ignorance of the nations has afforded a fertile field for the planting of all sorts of the most ridiculous and outrageous delusions. Many of the Chinese inhabitants of this district charge the Christians with all the abominations which, curiously enough, were charged against the early church at Rome—child murder, mutilation, uncleanness and other deeds of darkness. It is said that those who publish and circulate the cartoons are men of refinement and cultivation. The artists are selected with great care.

WITH A CLUB.

The Dying Person is Despatched—Horrible Burial Custom in Thibet.

In Ching-che-Li, one of the most northern districts of Thibet, a burial custom exists which writers on such subjects say is the most repulsive manner of disposing of the dead that is known [illegible] the dying person is never pulled [illegible] pose away naturally, but is dispatched with a "sacred" club, kept for that purpose, as soon as he or she is unnoticed as being beyond all hopes of recovery. The corpse is immediately stripped and painted red in the case of males, yellow if a female, and the head drawn down between the knees and firmly bound in that position.

Next the corpse is carried to a corner of the room where it is allowed to remain until the first night of the new moon, no odds if that date should be the second or even the day of death. As soon as the new moon is seen in the west the corpse is removed from the corner with much ceremony and suspended in a cowhide bag from one of the rafters, or from a "corpse hook" in the ceiling. After hanging thus suspended for seven days and nights the remains are taken down and sent to the "corpse-cutter," a sort of Governmental "undertaker." This important individual ties the body to a post and removes the decaying flesh, which is fed to the countless swarms of wolves and wild dogs which infest that portion of the Orient.

After the flesh has all been carefully removed the bones are macerated in lime water and then pounded into a jelly in a mortar specially kept for that purpose. This horrid mass is then mixed with bits of cheese, meat, grain, flour and vegetables and fed to the dogs, hogs and vultures. In case the subject has lived past a certain limit (this standard varies among different tribes) the skull is not consigned to the bone mortar, but is carefully dried and worked up into sacred buttons and charm disks for rosaries. Finger and wrist bones, as well as teeth and nails, may also be preserved in certain cases, in which event they are invariably made into necklaces, armlets and anklets and worn by sorrowing friends or relatives.

A Bride From Chinn.

Wing Fat, a well-know member of the Chinese colony, was married at 5 o'clock Sunday morning to Miss Mow Sing Yu, niece of Li Boy Hung, President of one of the Chinese Six Companies. Last night the bride and groom entertained their friends at dinner at the Hank Fee Low Restaurant on Dupont street. Boome 200 Chinese and between 30 and 40 ladies and gentlemen were present.

The bride is a demure little Chinese woman, just 18 years of age. She is but a recent arrival in San Francisco, having come from her Oriental home for the purpose of marrying Mr. Fat, who is the foreman for Louis Meyer, Stein & Co., and is worth over $100,000.

There were but few at the wedding Sunday morning, and the peculiar Chinese ceremony was performed in one of the temples of the Six Companies.

When the bridal couple arrived at the restaurant last night there was a great display of colored lights and a perfect fusilade of bombs and firecrackers. The banquet room was decorated in bridal colors and shone with the light of many Chinese lanterns. The white guests were seated at a different table from the Chinese, and at the table where the latter were seated the groom presided with his bride.

Mrs. Fat had on a light green silk costume trimmed with gold brocade and many precious stones. The groom was arrayed in a handsome silk suit suitable to his rank and fortune.

The menu was most elaborate, and there was nothing to mar the festivities of the evening in the least. The white guests enjoyed the affair as much as any who were present, and the groom was fully equal to the occasion, both in the dignity of his bearing and the manner in which he welcomed his guests in true Oriental style. —San Francisco Examiner.

Alexander III's Fears.

Perhaps it is a little late in the day for reminiscences of the late Emperor of Russia, Alexander III., but it is believed that this one has never been in print before, and it will illustrate how constantly he was haunted by the fear of his life, and, besides, it is true

An artist had been commissioned to paint the Emperor's portrait a few years before his death, and had been installed for the purpose in the palace at which His Majesty was then staying. One day the sitting was somewhat more prolonged than usual, the day was rather warm, and the Emperor became tired and almost fell asleep. Suddenly the artist raised his brush to the level of his eye at arm's length to measure with the handle some proportions of the sitter's figure The Emperor was sufficient'y awake to observe the movement, but not sufficiently to comprehend its meaning. He sprang to his feet and laid his hand upon his sword. Then he saw that the artist's weapon was nothing more dangerous than a paint brush, and, merely saying that he was to tired to sit longer, withdrew from the room.

The next day the artist was informed by a court official that the Emperor did not desire to continue the sitting. Accordingly the portrait was never finished.—New York Times.

The Queen and the Spinning Wheel.

Queen Victoria, it is well known, is able to spin, and various articles have been exhibited for which her Majesty prepared the flax. Now, it seems that this eminently womanly accomplishment, one of the oldest in the world, has commended itself to the Princess of Wales and her daughters. A spinning class is to be started at Sandringham and the Duchess of York is to be among the royal pupils.

A BRAHMIN TRAVELLER.

How He Was Saved While a Brother of the Plotters Perished.

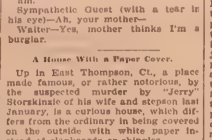

A Brahmin while traveling between Chittur and Nemara was belated in the road, and asked for shelter for the night at a house where he was received by two Nair women. He entrusted to the elder sister a thousand rupees for safe keeping. This roused her cupidity and induced her to propose to her younger sister to make way with their unsuspecting guest and pocket the money. The latter, however, stoutly refused to take part in the crime. Later in the night the husband of the elder woman arrived on the scene, when he readily fell in with the proposal of his wife.

In the meanwhile the younger woman, determined to avert the murder, roused her unsuspecting guest, who was sleeping in a veranda, warned him of his danger and locked him up in a cullum attached to the house. The brother of the two women returned toward midnight, and fatigued with his journey, seeing the house shut, quietly lay down and slept on the mat vacated by the Brahmin.

Soon after the would-be murderers, utterly unconscious of the change made in the occupant of the mat, settled the sleeper with one blow of the pounder and buried the corpse in the dark without knowing of their fatal mistake, and effacing all the traces of the blood that was split, retired to their guilty repose.

In the morning the Brahmin was released by his fair rescuer. And words cannot describe the surprise and horror that overcome the murderers when their supposed victim appeared before them and demanded the money. Dumb with horror they restored it to the Brahmin, who gave information to the police of his intended murder. While police inquiry was in progress it transpired that the brother of these women [illegible] and the matter is under investigation. To conclude the interest of the narrative, we have only to add that three sanctions have impressed the Brahmin with a due sense of the extent of the danger he had escaped, and the magnitude of the service rendered to him by his rescuer. He, therefore, in de her a present of the thousand rupees which was the original incentive to the crime on the part of the murderers.—Cochin Argus

A House With a Paper Cover.

Up in East Thompson, Ct., a place made famous, or rather notorious, by the suspected murder by "Jerry" Storzkinaie of his wife and stepson last January, is a curious house, which differs from the ordinary in being covered on the outside with white paper instead of clapboards or shingles.

The building is, aside from its peculiarity, of a type seen anywhere. It stands on a road crossing the New England railroad just beyond the depot, and on the left side of the track going away from Providence. It is of two stories, without gable or projection of any kind, and is occupied by tenements on both upper and lower floors. The state of the shingles, which are black with the rains and sun we of several winters, shows that the house has been built for a considerable number of years.

It never had any wooden covering outside of the sheating nailed on by the carpenters, and is, for all that, a warm house. This sheating was for the most part of boards roughly matched, although here and there cracks can be seen where the edges of the boards have failed to meet and paper has been bu'ged in. Over these boards the paper, which looks like the ordinary newspaper, was pasted so tightly that all the storms of years have served to do more than wrinkle it in some places, while under the eaves it is commencing to peel.

Several layers of paper were put on, giving the house a curious appearance on the outside, but effectually keeping out the wind and cold, newspapers being, as is well-known, excellent for warmth. From a distance, the house looks as if painted a light gray, the paper having become weather beaten On a nearer approach the wrinkles in the paper show clearly the nature of the covering. The idea is a novel one but the owner can, after all, truthfully say that he has a wooden covering on his house, for newspaper is made of wood pulp.—Providence Journal.

Trouble From Lack of Thought.

"You would be surprised at the frequent unnecessary accounts of missing persons that we are compelled to register," said Detective Allmendinger. "If a woman misses her child for a few minutes, without taking the trouble to look around the neighborhood for it she rushes up here to me and registers the case. We no sooner have it telegraphed throughout the city than she returns and says the little one was in a neighbor's house, or makes some similar statement. They little realize the trouble we are put to, for we have to send word throughout the city that the lost one is found."—Philadelphia Call.

The $2 bill was missing; that was one sure thing. Mr. Hankinson had given it to Mrs. Hankinson to pay the iceman, Mrs. Hankinson had laid it on the mantel. Now it was gone. Two plumbers had been in through the room early in the afternoon. Later the men from the storage warehouse had called for the Hankinson silverware are the Hankinsons departed for the country.

These, besides the usual members of the family, were all who had been in the room.

"Perhaps," Mrs. Hankinson mildly observed, "as the window was open, it was blown out."

Mr. Hankinson snorted.

"Most likely it was blown in!" he said.

Then the cook came forward.

"I seen the plumbers took it!" she said; "they were here first. The storage min couldn't hev tuk it fer they wor here last, an' I saw it after they wor gone."

AFRICAN CANNIBALS

HIDEOUS SCENES WITNESSED BY FATHER DUBENDORF.

Story of a Raid by Semi-Civilized Natives Upon a Trading Station Six Prisoners Slain and Divided Among the Tribe.

Father J Dubendorf, Superior of a Roman Catholic mission at Onitsha, on the Niger, 150 miles above its mouth, tells in a late issue of Le Congrès, a terrible tale of cannibalism and of mingled civilization and barbarism among the negroes near the mouth of the river. Father Dubendorf journeyed down the river by canoe some months ago along with Nathaniel, a negro boy of Brass, educated and Christianized at the mission. The Father and his companion were entertained at a Zenobian trading post six or eight hours from the native city of Brass, and there the King of Brass had a pirogue waiting, with the request that the had be sent to visit his people.

Brass is on one of the mouths of the Niger, not far from the sea. On another of the mouths is the rival city of Akassa, the seat of the British Royal Niger Company, a trading concern, which, according to the Father, has driven out of the region by severe actions three other companies, two French and one English, and has earned, by alleged brutality, the hatred of the natives. Father Dubendorf reached the region when this feeling was at its most intense point, and the natives were ripe for revenge.

When the request of the King that Nathaniel be sent to Brass reached the Father he determined to accompany the boy, lest the latter be detained in captivity by the King, and in time relapse into barbarism. The journey was successfully accomplished and the Father found Brass a considerable town of palm-leaf-thatched huts. Some had great platforms to catch the rain water, because the water of the river at that point is peculiarly unwholesome. The King clad in a silk robe, a cravat of like material, and a felt hat, re ived the Father most graciously, offering him lodging, and invited him to share the royal table. The King, who, the missionary takes pains to tell, was once a pupil of a Protestant mission, was now an old man of venerable mien, but abundant strength and activity. Near the King's great house was a house built on a European pattern, and covered with zinc. It was comfortably furnished with European chairs and tables, and had a coal oil lamp. There were glasses and mural decorations. The King's supper was in elegantly-served style, in the European style, and the Father, knowing that earlier kings of Brass had been notable barbarians, could hardly believe his eyes.

Early the next morning the Father called on the King, but learned that he was too busy to be seen. Waiting an hour, he was admitted to see him as he came forth from a council with the chiefs, naked save for an ornate breech cloth, painted with white rings under his eyes, a sword in his hand, and a knife in his belt. The benevolent old King of the night before was transformed into a figure of frightful aspect. Sixty canoe [illegible] were drawn up along the [illegible] and the King was walking back and forth delivering fierce orders. At last the sound of a cannon he hastily gave the Father his hand, bade him live as if the house in which he lodged was his own, assured him that orders had been given for his comfortable entertainment, and went off, leaving the priest to understand that the expedition about to start was to make war upon a neighboring tribe. The Father saw the King pause before an assemblage of idols near the river bank, sprinkle his warriors with a liquid, and join in the war dance.

Nearly all the men of Brass went on the expedition. An old chief was left behind in charge of the village, and the women were forbidden in the absence of their lords to enter the houses. No sooner were the warriors gone than the women fell to quarreling among themselves over the possession of various household utensils. They walled over the departure of their sons to the battle, and prophesied their return with wounds or their deaths in the fight. The quarreling kept up until after nightfall, and then the women crept to bed wherever they could find shelter outside the houses.

The first returning canoe reached Brass at six o'clock next morning, and a quantity of booty was carried into the King's house. Then it was that the Father first learned that the attack had been made upon the headquarters of the Royal Niger Company, Father Dubendorf represents that the English would have been destroyed but for a French naval officer, Lieut. Dalgues, accidentally at the headquarters, whose courage and address delayed the attack and gave some of the whites time to escape.

A young negro of the returned party leaped upon a cannon just after it had been fired, and displayed the company's flag in token of triumph. Other canoes rapidly arrived, bringing much booty, and many of the warriors wore white breech clouts, in token of enemies slain. By noon nearly all the canoes but the King's had returned. He and some of his warriors had stopped at an island some miles from Brass, and taken shore six captive Kroumen negroes of the slave coast who had been employed at the company's agency, and had come to hate the people of Brass. These six men were beheaded on the island, and some hours later the King, with a dozen white-clothed warriors, arrived in his canoe, and the six corpses in another. Other captives, still alive, were also brought home.

Then began a scene of savage rejoicing and cannibalism. The bodies were cut in pieces, the children being stationed round that they might be inured to the sight, and whole limbs were carried off to be cooked and eaten. One young negro, who, the Father declares, had been educated at a Protestant mission, taking in one hand the sabre of Mr. Flint, general agent of the Royal Niger Company, and in the other a limb of one of the victims, danced in savage joy about the company's flag, with a crowd of onlookers applauding.

The division of the plunder followed, accompanied with quarrels and [illegible] of savage frenzy. The madness of gin and palm brandy was added to that of slaughter, and the scene was so hideous that the Father refuses to describe it. He notes that several parts of a human body were brought to him and he was courteously asked to take his choice. His refusal was evidently not understood.

Later, in looking from his window, the father saw a roast thigh taken to the King's house, and mentally resolved to be careful at his next meal. The supper, at which the King was not present, was served in the European style and with European dishes, save for a large roast which the priest recognized and sent away. His mind was now made up to get away from Brass as soon as possible with the boy Nathaniel. The King was not to be seen, so the priest sent word of his wishes. The King answered that the boy must remain at Brass.

"Then I remain too," was the fa- [illegible] King, [illegible] Nathaniel. The latter [illegible] to go, and declared that if the King made him a servant, he would do what he was [illegible] the King [illegible] good.

The father and Nathaniel, neither being guarded, concerted an escape The village was sound asleep early in the evening, and the two visitors also pretended to go to bed between half-past nine and ten they stole to the river. Here they found a recently fixed upon in a reconnoissance early in the evening, and made off They paddled until exhausted, and then the boy fell asleep. At four in the morning they heard a large pirogue pass their lifeless craft. They had lost their way during the night, but, conjecturing that this pirogue was laden with merchandise bound for one of the white settlements, they followed it cautiously, and after some hours reached the European factory where they had already been entertained.—New York Sun

The Dead Soldier of Japan.

I saw in Yokohama on Sunday last another of those wonderful funeral processions which serve to keep alive and nurture the warrior spirit of this land. A poor sergeant named Sato Ryoachiura, who died of cholera down in Formosa, was the subject of it. demonstration, and had he been a royal Prince stricken upon the battle field his funeral could not have had greater honor paid them. To the Kioboyama Temple Cemetery there was a vast procession of people with banners, flowers and emblems and symbols of every description. Two enormous bla k oxen dragged a cart, on which reposed an enormous tombstone. The principal were from first to last of the highest Japanese order. The man's life had been sacrificed for the country and that was enough. Soldiers and citizens united in honoring his memory, and the lotus flowers and floral ornaments as the family can afford to offer. In front is a "hibachi," upon which burning incense sticks are continually laid. If the wife has had any of the cuts off her hair, which is a sign that she will never marry again. Every morning at the time at which she has children, will gather them about her at this altar, and offer prayers for the memory of the dead. After a period, during which she has prayed daily to offer his prayers, the tablet is placed in a shrine belonging to the family and the usual priestly prayers are regularly offered.

Nowhere in the world is so much reverence and respect shown for the dead and the memory thereof as in Japan. It amounts to something closely resembling idolatry, but it is none the less touching and sublime. The impression left upon the mind by a growing son of a deceased soldier by the ceremonious honors paid his memory may well be imagined.—John A. Lalande in New York Tribune.

A Story of Madagascar.

The most cheerful liver in the world lives in Madagascar. The latest story that comes from there tells of how the King of the Lotolies, one of the local tribes which is not busy fighting the French.

This king, the story goes, devised some time ago a human harp. He had been visiting the place of punishment in his village and, watching the contrivances for torturing his captives, he was struck by the tonal difference of their groans. And so he ordered his court and royal carpenter to construct scores of stocks in which he placed eight captives whose howls of pain when the soles of their feet were struck by a rod were so carefully arranged that they made a perfect octave.

This seemed such a success that he had a second frame constructed for the feet of eight more wretches whose average groans pitched a full octave higher. The harp was complete. Then it he proposed to play melodies and started in to practice the national air.

His project was to regulate the length of the note by the violence of the blow. At first the scheme did not succeed at all, for the reason that the executioner used to hand his axe alone, howled loudly each time and with little difference in force. At last he arranged it, however, so that the groans became proportioned to the blows.

But the instrument never got quite in tune. Incessant was the cry of one or the minutest note, for there would not sound at all at the right time. The heathen king had to give it up. The discords were painful for his musical ear, for although he tried fresh acts of prisoners the human notes would never work just right.

A FEW TELEGRAMS.

Dan Belden, editor of "The Real Record," etc., etc., was sitting in his den writing. Mrs. Seldon did not, as a rule, disturb him at his work. He was surprised, therefore, when she burst the door open, sat down stormily, and said:

"Dan, I could cry!"

There was an open telegram in her hand. She threw it onto his writing table. He read:

"In town for one day. Coming to lunch with you. Jack, Garrick Club."

"And that awful man is coming," said Mrs. Seldon, "we can't have him and Jack together. Jack would never forgive us."

"You must wire Jack not to come, that's all. It's damnable, but it can't be helped."

"Dan—when he's only here for one single day—and we haven't seen him for a year!"

"Well, you can't put Travers off at the eleventh hour without any sort of reason."

"Can't I ask him to come to-morrow instead of to-day?"

"Not without some reason."

"Oh, Dan, do think of something clever. Couldn't I wire, and say, I'll write a wire and show it you."

Mrs. Seldon sat down with a frown of intense concentration.

"I shan't save coppers over this," she said, and wrote:

"Alas, cruelly disappointed. Must postpone the pleasure of seeing you; pressante with violent cold; will write."

She read it out.

"Now, what could offend him in that? Doesn't it sound as true as true?"

"I am not very fond of avoidable lying, you know," said Dan, gently earnest; "but do as you like."

He was a peculiarly truthful man. He took up his pen rather wearily, and he added:

"You must wire Jack it's all right, then."

"Must I?"

"It would be more hearty."

"Very well, then. I'll be ever so quick, and then leave my poor boy in peace again."

Having scribbled and sent off the two wires, she went out to dress very quietly for Jack's critical eye. At a quarter to two Mrs. Seldon was in the Jacobean room. At two minutes to two Seldon came down, rubbing his sons fragrant hands and smiling anticipatorily. At five minutes to two the front door bell rang, and the servant announced Mr. Travers. Mr. Seldon turned a light lemon color and shot one fateful glance at his wife. Then he shrugged his shoulders in answer to his wife's appeal, and sank into a deathly gloom. Jack was hearty, happy and intolerable, as usual.

Mrs. Seldon, having grasped her husband's condition, became hysterically talkative and rather familiar. Seldon had time to whisper to his wife, which "This is delightful! See [illegible] deserves done!"

"That's all, and I'm done for with Travers—utterly!"

"Don't say I got suddenly better—a wonderful doctor."

"Both impossible. He's more than 1 years old."

"Then I must get that wire out of his house before he leaves this. You must go in a cab, and—"

Jack was announced. Travers had not yet reappeared. In a few hurried sentences Mrs. Seldon apologized for Travers and explained the situation. She had the mixed joy of seeing Jack appreciate it to the dregs.

The extra place at the table had been laid in a moment. The introduction was accomplished, and they all went in to lunch—the parties to it with light hearts and good appetites, the other two stricken. Seldon felt that only the coward's part remained for him, and he was painfully difficult to him. His only course was to take a cab immediately after lunch, drive to Travers's house, which was luckily not too far, and get hold of the wire by any means which should suggest themselves to his imagination. At the end of the lunch Travers embarked on a long story which everyone knew, and sipped his toffee with intense enjoyment. Seldon remarked he had received a very important wire in the morning, and was obliged to rush out. He hoped to be back before dinner, and the gentleman of leaving. Seldon walked slowly to the door, even paused to throw his cigar away in the hall as soon as the door was closed behind him, rushed wildly into the hall, grasped the hall stick, and was like a madman.

On the doorway he narrowly escaped telling Traver's man, who had arrived at that moment with a telegram in his hand.

"That for Mr. Travers?" asked Seldon, with enforced calm.

"Yes, sir. I should have brought it before, only—"

"All right, Baker." (A sudden inspiration shone on Belden's face.) "I'm afraid you have had your trouble for nothing. This wire was a little joke of mine—and they failed as it happens. I wanted your master to get it before he left for my house."

He slipped two half crowns into the man's palm.

"Good morning, Baker."

Belden let himself into the hall gain noiselessly, and found Travers still burning in the hall grate. He crumpled the telegram savagely and threw it into a core of red-hot coals.

"Confound the thing."

Then he slipped up stairs. He would have to allow sufficient time to elapse before he reappeared in the dining-room. He had said that he would not be long. When he got downstairs he found the men still in the dining-room smoking and talking. Mrs. Seldon had gone to the drawing-room. He joined them and tried to make up by animal conversation for his previous absence. He was succeeding, too, when Travers suddenly threw out his immense gold watch and remarked: "Very [illegible] and coming time we had [illegible] a pause, add d—

"I ought to have been [illegible] ground with a wife that I've been expecting since it this morning—an invitation wire—very cordial."

Seldon saw millions of beautiful stars. He was glad his wife had been [illegible] the previous abstraction. [illegible] was succeeding, too, when Travers suddenly threw out his immense gold watch and remarks: "Very [illegible] and coming time we had [illegible] a pause, add d—

"I ought to have been [illegible] ground with a wife that I've been expecting since it this morning—an invitation wire—very cordial."

Seldon saw millions of beautiful stars. He was glad his wife had been [illegible] that awful sacrifice and told what was that? Something was left in hands to him on a silver salver. It was marked "On Her Majesty's service."

He said lightly to Jack (very [illegible] was in the middle of a jigger story) and then tore the envelope with cold fingers. An intimation from the post-office to say that the name of Travers was not know at the Garrick Club, and that the telegram had not been delivered, in her haste Mrs. Seldon had put Jack's name on the telegram intended for Travers, and probably vice versa.

Jack had finished with his nigger story, and a pause was happening.

Bad news, I'm afraid," said one of the men—he never knew which. But he made a supreme effort to say:

"Oh, nothing very bad, thanks. Er—I must see to it. No use to put off everything. I'll be back in a moment—must send an answer, you know," and left the room.

"Oh, no answer after all," he said outside the room, to the waiting servant, and whom she was gone he thrust the paper into his pocket, sank on a tall chair, and held his head in both hands.

His mind was dead beat. He got up and went into the drawing-room on tiptoe. He felt absolutely prime.

"Madge," he said to his wife, "I give this thing up—right up, do you understand? I've done my best."

"But you said it was all right. Oh, Dan, how ill you look! There's nothing new, is there?"

He gave a devilish laugh.

"Oh, no, nothing new. He said, mockingly, "nothing at all. This just come," pulling the crumpled paper from his pocket, "and that I've burned somebody else's letter to Travers, and he says he's expecting a particularly important one. Oh, heaven."

"Don't say anything about this other telegram."

"It will all come out. There will be inquiries."

"No. Dan! Will it mean prison and things? Give me time and I'll get another lie ready."

"Pine! You haven't any, and how many more lies, in the name of goodness, are we to tell to-day?"

"Oh, my darling, only one more. Wait, wait!"

She paced the room. The servant came in with a card bearing the name of Mr. Munro Kirk.

A gentleman," said the girl, "who wished particularly to see Mr. Travers. She had left him in the hall, not knowing.

"Take the card and the message to Mr. Travers at once," said Mrs. Seldon, with decision, and as soon as they were alone again, "Dan, this will give us time to consider. Send this man in the library. You go and bring Jack in here. He may help me to an idea. Come back with him, for pity's sake, and suggest things. Oh, what a hideous day!"

Seldon did as he was told. The name of Mr. Munro Kirk was familiar to him, but his brain was too confused to place it. When he returned with Jack he sat down into the fire, and half hearing the wild suggestions of his wife, and the heartless amusement of his friend.

Then Travers came in with his usual radiance. The chap from whom he had been expecting the wire had traced him here on receiving no reply to is telegram. (Mr. and Mrs. Seldon exchanged looks of mute agony.) The matter was now ended now; quite satisfactorily. Might he have the pleasure of introducing his friend, Mr. Munro Kirk?

"Pleasure, of course." It was Mrs. Seldon who spoke collectively, with that loyalty to appearances which belongs to woman throughout her tragedies.

Mr. Kirk wore an air of engaging frankness and large, light trousers.

"You must forgive me tracking down your guests, Mr. Seldon," he said at once, and with a full twang, "but the fact is I'm not really to blame." (Mr. and Mrs. Seldon blanched.) "I wrote a dispatch asking him to see me at his office in a business style, and when as Mr. Travers was here, so I took the liberty of [illegible] to come be-[illegible] room, so scarce that [illegible] "Addressed [illegible] Travers will find me awaiting him on his return," said Jack, with a Mephistophelian smile at Mrs. Seldon.

"Well, I don't know," said Mr. Kirk, "if it had come there, it would have been brought on here, you see."

Just then he was interrupted by the entrance of the servant with another missive on Her Majesty's Service." She handed it to Seldon. "For Mrs. Seldon," he said, feebly.

Mrs. Seldon walked gracefully to the window with a "May I?" and read it with her back to the others. Of course it was from the neighboring postoffice again, and regarded the second misdirected telegram. "The last of them, I trust and pray," she said said to herself, and out aloud: "My dressmaker; I must let her know you, Mr. Kirk; you were saying—"

"You were saying that your wire would not have been sent," prompted Jack; "have you found its explanation?"

Mr. and Mrs. Seldon breathed heavily. There was a momentary pause, which lasted—for them—precisely half an hour.

"Then Mr. Kirk went on:

"Well! I fancy the explanation is of the simple domestic order. It seems there was a serious—er—say unpleasantness between my landlady and the young person who was supposed to wait on me, and she left this morning in a huff, and apparently carried off the my poor cable to go to Jericho in the recess. That's the only possible explanation. However, as this little conundrum has proved me the pleasure—"

"Will some one open the window?" said Mrs. Seldon, very gently. Any one who wants a great blow, is a physical shock, and she was not robust.

* * * * * * *

Seldon has developed a feverish friendship for Mr. Munro Kirk. After a ridiculous fad about telegrams. His wife has to open any that come, and she never sends any. If he can help it, he keeps a boy to take messages.

HUGH RICHWOODS FALL.

"Don't light the lamp; I can always talk better in the firelight."

The red fire from the burning logs in the state cast patches a flight here and there, but fitful as the illumination was, it was quite enough for the sensitive, hidden fancies of his brain better than he could have done in the clear, cold light of day, even to his chosen friend.

"If I bore you just throw a club at me," he continued with a sort of embarrassment quite new to him, recalling himself on the broad window sill.

His companion, stretched on the low couch, listened at first with a quiet attentiveness, but, as the figure in the window went on steadily in his softly modulated tones, the listener raised his head a bit, and before he had finished was sitting upright, surprise and astonishment written in unfeigned truth on his face.

"Well, what do you think of it?"

"You've struck a good thing, Botsford," said the speaker, unconsciously his hand down upon his friend's knee with [illegible] emphasis.

"You're the luckiest fog living."

"Pon my word, your quicker than lightning to catch ideas, here you are with your plot all planned, while I am still wool gathering."

"I think myself the idea is sort of heat," replied the other.

"If I had a very fine flow of language, old man, I should feel pretty certain of success, as it is it will be a pearl in a tinsel setting."

"I've read somewhere a fellow's work should always have a second reading, so I shall put it aside a week or two before sending it in."

After the story-teller had retired, the other sat with his hands clasped about his knees, gazing with brooding eyes into the fire.

After a while he reached for his pen and made a few desultory scratches on his pad, but the most passed, and he flung his pen to the floor.

Over his face fell a shadow which drew his brows into a scowl, and his lips tightly together.

Why should such a idea come to him?

"Little Bobs" getting ahead of me! He would not, indeed, for in the unexcused drawers. It was mailed to Hugh Richwood's European address, Hartford Times.

Figged Peaches.

It isn't every housewife and every recipe book that knows all of them, but that doesn't make them any less delicious. They are known to the initiated as "figged peaches," and now is the appointed time for "figging" them. Their manufacture requires no particular culinary skill or knowledge. All that is required is that August fruit and August sunshine, although in the event of rain, the kitchen fire can be turned to account. The peaches, which must be thoroughly ripe, should be pared, halved and stoned. They should be put in a preserving kettle, sprinkled plentifully with sugar and with just enough water to cover them, sh old stew gently quite tender, but not a bit mashed or separated. Only enough peaches to cover the bottom of the kettle should be stewed at a time. When the stewing process is completed the peaches should be set in large dishes and turned out to dry in the sun. Shielded by netting to keep away the sweet-toothed insects that swarm at this time, they remain in the sun until thoroughly dried, not only all their juice absorbed, but until they are hard and firm. At least one day they must be turned, and always put under shelter at night. When finally "figged," they may be packed away with sugar in jars ready for winter service.—New York Evening Sun.

Poe's Greatest Vice.

John R. Thompson, editor of the Southern Literary Messenger, says that Poe was not what is called a rake, but we might not say so worse—an irregular one, who at intervals was seized with a violent and irresistible desire for stimulants, and in whom this craving amounted to a species of madness. A single drink at such times would have the effect of a spree. One sip was enough to kindle the appetite burned itself out. A month of total abstinence would be followed by a week of terrible dissipation; then he would return to his desk without much sign of his previous excesses, save a certain pallor in his face and a more than usually nervous manner. Those who knew him on a spree, His face, says Mr. Thompson, was always colorless, his nerves steady and his attire neat. Regarding Poe's habit of drinking that drink was Poe's only form of dissipation, but it did not, as is usually the case, bring with it a total collapse of mind. Poe's taste in everything else was refined, that he "never used a word which could not have been spoken with propriety in the presence of ladies, and had the strong at dislike for every sort of slang, written or spoken." He seldom indulged in [illegible] quite different, at least so far [illegible] taken in certain places [illegible] day. Indeed it is pleasing to recall instances of his personal friend and companion even though he will be a [illegible] to take [illegible] the [illegible] of allowance.—[illegible]ation.

ELECTRICITY IN AGRICULTURE.

The New Agent Used by a Danish Farmer in Connection With Threshing.

The application of electric power to the tilling of the soil has already been made the subject of several articles in these pages. A still further move in the same direction is chronicled herewith: A Danish farmer has made a successful experiment in the use of electric power for threshing. He has substituted for the old-fashioned threshing machine drawn by horses. Three pairs of horses have worked the machine with but the slowest per minute, the horses being changed four times per diem. The power transmitted in this way is, owing to the nature of the motive power, of a very inferior considerable loss of time to the workmen employed. By the use of an electric motor power is given, the threshing mill this disadvantage is removed. The power is transmitted evenly, stoppages are avoided, the threshing is more rapidly driven, the current for the current is conducted through cables of suitable length to any given point in or outside the barn where the threshing mill is situated, and where the threshing mill is placed several hundred yards from the working power the electricity can be profitably conducted on as serviceable for the threshing mill. At the farm where the experiment has been tried, the force is generated by a 16-horse power oil (petroleum) engine, and in order to protect the electromotor from dust it is encased in a wooden chamber. The distance between the oil engine and the threshing mill is about 140 yards. A speed of 1,000 turns of the mill per minute can be obtained, and it is clearly demonstrated that the threshing proceeds with very much greater ease and greater regularity. It is especially worthy of notice that the speed does not vary, even when the mill is very full. If the threshing mill is moved, as it must be, the electromotor must also be moved. It is therefore placed upon a sort of sledge, which can be kept in position by a block of wood at each side. Another advantage in the use of electricity in the transmission of working power may be mentioned, viz., that the electric current can, without extra expense ,produce two lamps in the barn and the machine house.

Novel Invention by Which Two Cyclists May Ride Abreast.

Bicycle manufacturers seem inclined to introduce some sort of a machine that will take the place of the tried and tried now in use. The majority appear to favor a wheel on which two riders can ride side by side.

Another wheels of this character have been manufactured, but they have not caught on.

The Iron Age prints a circular prepared by a Boston fire insurance company and calling attention to a danger which, the company says, has been developed in the principal losses to disclosing in the fatal principal losses to which it has been subjected in machine and metal works, to-wit, the risk of the use of oil in the cups of the wide areas of roofs and boundries, steel works and the like. It is explained that the danger does not consist in any great liability of fire originating in these roofs or upon the extensive surfaces of wood. The four fires which have caused heavy losses have all originated in some other part of the works, from which they have extended to the roofs or other extensive wooden surfaces, and have there exerted their destructive influences.

TAKING THE ELECTRICITY FROM THE AIR.

Something new on the bicycle may not is what is called the Companion, a bicycle, as shown in the accompanying cut. It seats two persons, being of the ordinary type of safety with two wheels. At a glance the construction of the wheel would lead to the inference that this bicycle would upset with two people, but, on the contrary, one person can ride it, and, on account of its lightness and admirable outline, it is becoming very popular.—New York Sun.

Good Poultry and Its Cure.

The farmers of the whole country are awake to the fact that there is profit in the production of poultry and eggs. The full-blooded fowl is king the place of the inbred mongrel, and there is no stock on the farm that can give greater satisfaction or quicker returns. Every farmer should build a good hen house and see that his hens have room at large than his horses and cows. They will pay around as quickly to warm and feed. Never allow anything to frighten them. Their house being their home they will go to it and you can always control them.

Have a park. Hens will lay just as well when parked provided they have proper food, grit, etc., and you do not lose the eggs or need to feel uncertain as to their quality. There is pleasure and profit in breeding all pure stock, but if I were starting anew, I would commence with the Black Minorca or Brown Leghorn. They are light feathered, busy and hi-spy, and you can be sure of a good profit on your labor while the flesh is sweet and fine. They are not subject to disease of any kind and are very handsome.

ELECTRICITY FOR VEGETATION.

Showing the Method of Utilizing the Current in the Atmosphere.

Experiments have been made in Russia with a novel method of using electricity latent in the air for the purposes of rational agriculture. "The apparatus is rather simple" it is called the "Geomagnetizer," in plain English the carrier of the earth's electricity. It consists of a very high mast upon the upper end of which is placed a cage, wires are fastened to a porcelain insulator, the wires are intended to attract electricity, which is carried into the ground by means of an insulated wire connecting the top with a network of wires stretched in the ground at a depth of from one to two feet. Through the wires of the net the electricity is divided pretty evenly through-

AN OLD HERO.

"I—I—oh, dear! I don't want to go to Henley at all," sobbed Maud Withington, miserably.

"Come, come, old sis, you'll like it when you're there. You'll see him punting, you know," answered Mitford, in a consoling tone.

"But I don't want to see him punting. I never want to see him under any circumstances again. It—it only makes it harder to bear, now that—that—everything is over between us."

"I am sorry for you, Maud, dear," exclaimed Mabel, placing her arm around her sister's waist and trying to kiss away some of the tears which were coursing down her cheeks. "But you must try to take a more cheerful view. Perhaps papa will relent."

"Papa will never relent. He can't relent. You—you know as well as I do that—that—his circumstances make that impossible. Besides, I'm—I'm—engaged to—to—Old Scratch. That is why papa insists on my going to-day, because Old Scratch is coming. I—I—hate Old Scratch, and I wish I was dead!" finished up Maud, with energy.

"I am sure," said Mabel with confidence, "that Mr. Scratch is a gentleman, and that if he were to learn the state of your feelings he would immediately release you from your engagement. Don't you think so yourself?"

"Yes-yes, I think he would. But—but—I can't tell him. I—I—promised papa; and—and I'm in honor bound to keep the secret. Besides, if—if I were to tell him, and we were to break off the engagement, papa would—would—at once bring down one of his horrid stock exchange friends—somebody much worse than Old Scratch—and insist upon my accepting him. It's cruel—it's a shame—to be placed in this position. I—I wish I was the ugliest and most unattractive girl in the three kingdoms."

Plain Mabel sighed. She would have been delighted to relieve Maud of her burden of good looks and such a readjustment been possible. Perhaps, after all, she did not think it any great hardship to be engaged to Old Scratch—a jolly, well-preserved gentleman, who was not yet past the prime of life, and had enough to live comfortably on his fortune. It was not as though he were a man of objectionable or unmanly characteristics, or even of vices. He was a kindly, courteous, considerate gentleman, against whom nobody could find a word to say. If people did find fault with him at all it was for being Quixotically generous and absurdly confiding. That, apparently, was the worst that could be raked up to his discredit.

The nickname "Old Scratch," which had stuck to him ever since his young manhood, had risen in retrospect to a repute as a sculler. For four successive years he was amateur champion of the Thames at those handicaps for which he was entered he was always placed in the scratch mark. He [illegible] and mentor to young aspirants who always took the veteran's [illegible] with attentive ears. He [illegible] the more looked up to by them on account of his modest, but withal genial, disposition. And it is doubtful whether the Leander, or, for the matter of that, any boat club on the Thames contained a better known or more popular member than Old Scratch.

Maud's engagement to this amiable gentleman came about in the following way:

Her father, a stockbroker in a large way of business, about a year previously had met with a run of unlucky speculations, which crippled him considerably. Instead of giving up his large house and his expensive way of living, he embarked on some highly risky financial operations with the object of bringing off a coup. The usual result followed. He landed himself in worse difficulties. On the one hand his pecuniary position became that—although his name and credit were still publicly unimpeached—he stood on the verge of ruin and disgrace.

About this time a wealthy stock jobber of his acquaintance—Fladsby by name—began to evince a partiality for Withrington's younger daughter, Maud. The girl had already given her affections to Charlie Milligan, the famous Cambridge oarsman, and whose career had already made him a public character. He was a handsome, manly young fellow, 23 years of age, and unfortunately the possessor of only a diminutive income. While things went well with him Withrington had permitted the little affair between these two young persons to continue; but when he became hard hit and it was a matter of serious moment to him to introduce money into his family, he at once put a stopper on Charlie Milligan's visits.

Maud protested with tears. Her father took her into his study and talked to her. He confided to her his precise position for an instant (it was suited his purpose), painted in harrowing colors the consequences of her refusal to comply with his wishes, and that was to encourage Fladsby—and finally appealed to her better feelings, as his child, to save his own gray hairs and his family name from irretrievable disgrace.

Fladsby was a gilded vulgarian, a pompous, consequential buck, rising 50 but aping the dress and manners of 30. She hated his sensual face and his affected airs. His coarse and fulsome compliments disgusted her, and his attempted love-making he simply moved her to loathing. What might have occurred had matters been allowed to reached a critical point, it is impossible to say. Before Fladsby had actually proposed for Maud's hand another arbiter turned up. He was a man whose acquaintance Withrington made one day at the club, and whom, having found that he was a rich man, he took care to cultivate by asking him to his house.

This man, whose name was Spilshank, had not been at Withrington's half a dozen times before his admiration for Maud grew apparent to him. In every way an improvement on Fladsby—from the father's standpoint—because he was richer by far, and was a better subject for prospective bleeding; from the daughter's because he was a refined, kind-hearted, considerate gentleman. The upshot of it was that Fladsby—to his huge chagrin—received a peremptory congé, and Maud, in her thankfulness to escape from that atrocious monster, made less difficulty than her father expected about accepting Spilshank's offer.

Withrington was greatly annoyed when Old Scratch announced his intention of taking them all down to Henley to see the race for the diamond sculls.

"Wouldn't he prefer to go on one of the other days?" suggested the stock broker.

"Oh, no," said Spilshank. Not the same thing at all. He especially wanted to see the famous Charlie Milligan—the man who held the same position in aquatics now as he himself had done some twenty-five years ago. Therefore if it was all the same to Mr. Withrington, he would much prefer to make the excursion on that particular day.

It was not until the race for the diamond sculls drew near that the poor girl's lethargic [illegible] brightened up. Maud will not easily forget that race. How eagerly she waited for the shells to come in sight! How her heart jumped when they appeared round the bend; how it thrilled when she heard rapping and cheering and the loud shouts of "Milligan—Milligan!" They came abreast, the two competitors, Milligan was leading by a length. His manly frame looked superb in white, costume. How beautifully and finely his every action recalled. The other man, a Cantab, was now in distress. Milligan went as fresh as paint. He simply had the race in hand. But he spurted just for the finish, and passed the winning post three lengths in front.

"Well sculled—well sculled, indeed, Charles Milligan!" thundered a hearty voice at her elbow, and Maud clutched hands began to clap with a noise resembling the report of a pistol.

Maud started round, like one awakening from a blissful dream. There stood Old Scratch. He was watching her face. So deeply absorbed had her eyes had suddenly grown so bright, and why her cheeks were flushed, and her face was so strained and eager.

"His form was grand, was it not?" exclaimed Old Scratch, with enthusiasm. "I could see that you admired it, my dear. I am glad that you appreciate form. After all, there's nothing like it, is there? Once upon a time, before you were born, my dear," added Old Scrat h, in a wistful tone, "I could scull like that myself. But age tells on a man, doesn't it, Maud? And sooner or later the youngsters are bound to win."

Next morning, shortly after breakfast, Maud was summoned from the girls' dressing room by her father to an interview in his study. She went down stairs with a beating heart, expecting to be severely reproved for her conduct at Henley yesterday. But she was agreeably mistaken, for he did not allude to the matter at all. He did, however, appear to be slightly annoyed, although he found no fault, merely saying, with a rather cold intonation, "Maud, Mr. Spilshank has called to see you privately. He is in the drawing-room now. You had better go to him at once."

"Yes, papa," said the girl, turning upon him a look half frightened, half imploring, of her large black eyes.

Her father's face was more of stone than of flesh. He turned away and busied himself with some letters. Maud opened her lips as if about to speak. But no words came, and without further attempt to unbosom herself, she left her father's presence and went to the drawing-room.

Old Scratch stood on the hearth rug awaiting her.

"Sit down, my dear," he said to her, wheeling forward an armchair. "I have a little something to say to you which will take time."

"It is a little something," said Old Scratch at length, smiling gravely. "Once upon a time, my dear, there lived a fine young fellow, and a pretty, charming young lady, who took a mutual fancy to each other, but the young man had no money, and the young lady's father, being in [illegible] business, had [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

A DAY WITH STEPHEN

REV DR TALMAGE PRESENTS FIVE LIVING PICTURES

Stephen Going Into Heaven Stephen Looking at Christ—Stephen Stoned—Stephen in His Dying Hour Stephen Asleep—A Picturesque Sermon

New York Sept. 15.—In his sermon today Rev. Dr. Talmage has taken a theme as picturesque as it is spiritually inspiring. The text of his discourse into "Five Pictures." It is recorded in Acts vii., 55-60. The text selected was, "Behold, I see the heavens opened." Acts vii., 56.

Stephen had been preaching a powerful sermon, and the people could not stand it. They crashed to him as men sometimes would like to do in this day. If they dared with some pulpit preacher of righteousness—kill him. The only way to silence this man was to knock the breath out of him. So they rushed Stephen out of the gates of the city, and with curse and whoop and bellow they brought him to the cliff, as was the custom when they wanted to take away the life by stoning. Having brought him to the edge of the cliff, they pushed him off. After he had fallen they came and looked down, and seeing that he was not yet dead they began to drop stones upon him, stone after stone. Amid this horrible rain of missiles Stephen clambers up on his knees and folds his hands while the blood drips from his ten ples, and then, looking up, he makes two prayers, one for himself and one for his murderers. "Lord Jesus receive my spirit," that was for himself. "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge," that was for his murderers. Then, from pain and loss of blood he swooned away and fell asleep.

I want to show you to-day five pictures—Stephen gazing into heaven, Stephen looking at Christ, Stephen stoned, Stephen in his dying prayer, Stephen asleep.

First look at Stephen gazing into heaven. Before you take a leap you want to know where you are going to land. Before you climb a ladder you want to know to what point the ladder reaches. And it was was right that Stephen, within a few moments of heaven, should be gazing into it. We would all do well to be found in that same posture. There is enough in heaven to keep us gazing. A man of large wealth may have statuary in the hall, and painting in the sitting room and works of art in all parts of the house, but he has the chief pictures in the art gallery, and there he hangs after hour you walk with catalogue and glass and ever increasing admiration. Well, heaven is the gallery where God has gathered the chief treasures of his realm. The whole universe is his palace. In this lower room where we stop there are many adornments, but the celestial floor of amethyst, and on the winding cloud stairs are stretched out canvases on which cunningly are wrought purple and saffron and gold. But heaven is the gallery in which the chief glories are gathered. There are the brightest robes. There are the richest crowns. There are the highest exhilarations. St. John says of it, "The kings of the earth shall bring their honor and glory into it." And I see the procession forming, and in the line come all empires, and the stars spring up into an arch for the hosts to march under. They keep step to the sound of earthquake and the pitch of the avalanche from the mountains, and the flag they bear is the flame of a consuming world, and all heaven is thrilled with harp and trumpets and myriad voiced acclamation of angelic dominions to welcome 'em in, and the kings of the earth, casting their honors at the footstool, shout, "Worthy the Lamb that was slain to receive honor and glory and blessing!" If the like Stephen, looking upon heaven, he looked many friends there.

There is not a man here so isolated in life but there is some one in heaven with whom he once shook hands. As a man gets older the number of his celestial acquaintances very rapidly multiplies. We have not had one glimpse of them since the night we kissed them goodby and they went away but still we stand gazing at heaven. As when some of our friends go across the sea we stand on the dock or on the steam tug and watch them, and after awhile the hulk of the vessel disappears, and then there is only a patch of sail on the sky, and soon that is gone, and they are all out of sight, and yet we stand looking in the same direction, so when our friends go away from us into the future world we keep looking down through the Narrows and Sandy Hook, and gazing and though we expected that they would come out and stand on some cloud and give us one glimpse of their blissful and transfigured faces.

While you long to join their companionship, and the years and the days go with such tedium that they break your heart, and the vipers of pain and sorrow and bereavement keep knawing at your vitals you will stand, like Stephen, gazing into heaven. You wonder if they have changed since you saw them last. You wonder if they would recognize your face, now changed has it been with trouble. You wonder if, amid the myriad delights they have, they care as much for you as they used to when they gave you a helping hand and put their shoulders under your burdens. You wonder if they look any older, and sometimes in the evening tide, when the house is all quiet, you wonder if you should call them by their first name if they would not answer, and perhaps sometimes you do make the experiment, and when no one but God and yourself are there you distinctly call their names and listen and sit gazing into heaven.

Pass on now and see Stephen looking upon Christ. My text says he saw the Son of Man at the right hand of God Just how he looks in heaven, we cannot say. The painters of the different ages have tried to imagine the features of Christ and put them upon canvas, but we will have to wait until with our own eyes we see him and with our own ears we can hear him. And yet there is a way of seeing him and hearing him now. I have to tell you that unless you see and hear Christ on earth, you will never see and hear him in heaven.

Look! There he is! Behold the Lamb of God! Can you not see him? Then pray to God to take the scales off your eyes. Look that way—try to look that way. His face comes down to us this day, some about it, the blindest, to the darkest soul, saying, "Look unto me, all ye ends of the earth and be ye saved, for I am God and there is none else." Proclamation of universal emancipation for all slaves! Tell me, ye who know most of the world's history, what other king ever looked the abandoned and the outcast in the face and said, "Come and sit beside him? Oh, wonderful in station! You can take it to-day and look at the head of your family and say: "Father, I thank thee for your revelation of thyself in the Bible, for your gospel religion." A Christian man, you wonder that you are not more like that in heart? I hope to spend some time doing the same thing. I must see him. I must look upon that face once cloud ed with my sin, but now radiant with my pardon. I want to touch that hand that kissed it off my cheeks. I want to feel the voice that pronounced forgiveness. Behold him, the lily of the valley, the bright and morning star, the rose of Sharon, the chief among ten thousand, the one altogether lovely. Behold him across the gulf of death, on his throne of light, on his throne of love. What a moment it will be when we stand face to face with Stephen through the valley of the city. Down with him and the precipices. Let every man come up and drop a stone upon his head. But there are those who did not touch Stephen—they killed themselves. Every stone rebounded upon them. What these murderers are trampled by the armies of all good men Stephen lives in the admiration of all Christendom. Stephen stoned, but Stephen alive. So all good men must be persecuted. All who will live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution." It is no eulogy of a man that everybody likes him. Stephen had a host of enemies, but he had more friends. They stoned him, but they killed themselves. Every stone rebounded upon them. While

SEPARATE SCHOOLS.

o Receive State Aid in Britain.

THIS IS A CONSERVATIVE PLANK

An Enquete Established With the Irish Catholic Bishops to Secure To Anti-Parnellite Votes For the Sectarian School Proposals—Liberals Regard the Matter as Serious.

London, Sept. 21.—There is no longer any uncertainty regarding one all-important point of the Government's legislative program. In entering office free from positive pledges the Conservatives had an advantage of the Liberals, who were pledged to numerous fads, besides legitimate reforms.

The suspicion that the strong Conservative majority would enforce restrictive measures was only a supposition. Now, it is confirmed by correspondence, which has passed between Lord Cranbourne, the eldest son and his cousin, the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury. This correspondence clearly indicates the decision of the Government in favor of measures looking to sectarian education. Mr. Balfour, referring to what he called voluntary schools, or denominational schools, writes:

"I am extremely anxious that something effectual shall be done to relieve the intolerable strain to which these schools are subjected. This is the general wish of the party and of the Government.

Ostensibly the correspondence of Lord Cranbourne brought to the public the notice of Mr. Balfour the resolution of the church parliamentary party to interpose a motion affirming that many parents were in favor of sectarian educational measures. Really the correspondence follows the lines which were expected to result from the Conservative triumph.

A tacit arrangement has been made with the English Catholics, while during the recent elections, and this has been followed by confidential communications between the Irish Catholic bishops. Under the last understanding, the Government engages to secure the votes of 70 anti-Parnellites for its proposals in regard to denominational education. This would naturally be followed by a complete rupture of the alliance between the Liberal and the Irish Nationalists. The rage of the Liberals over the prospective capture of the National funds for sectarian purposes may be extreme, but meanwhile it is impotent.

The Liberal party has not had time as yet to consult on this matter. The Speaker, however, is expected to return from men claiming to represent the party and adds that the crisis is very serious, but that it is not fear for the ultimate result.

There is much uneasiness at the Foreign Office in regard to the Russo-Japanese situation. Japan persists in occupying Liao-Tung until the Chinese indemnity of £30,000,000 sterling shall have been fully guaranteed and the part to be paid over promptly has been deposited. The new Russo-French loan is intended to clear up the whole matter, as the guarantee rests merely the whole of the first Russo-French guaranteed loan, or £16,000,000 remains in the Bank of England.

Russia insists that China shall use the loan to pay the indemnity for the evacuation of Liao-Tung, while the Chinese negotiators want to appropriate the loan for the purposes of the Peking Government.

The American Cup continues to be the topic of discussion. The Pall Mall Gazette alludes to the offer of a firm of London shipowners (Lipton) for a race between Defender and Valkyrie outside of American waters as ridiculous, and the Queen privately ignored the offer as having dubious features and likely to come to nothing.

In regard to the course followed by Lord Dunraven, The Saturday Review says: "Opinion in America seems divided as to whether Lord Dunraven acted rightly, or wrongly, in throwing up the third race. We do not think the American cousins that English opinion at once condemned Lord Dunraven. In his private capacity Lord Dunraven could sail or refuse to sail without hurting anything more important than his own reputation as a true sportsman and a man trained in the offices of general courtesy.

But Lord Dunraven, acting as the representative of the Royal Yacht Squadron, was in a sense, the representative of England. He has no business to show temper and protest against conditions which were known to exist when he issued the challenge. It is not the temper of Englishmen in a tight strait to behave like the spoiled darling of a foolishly indulgent mother or Dutch uncle. He ought to be courteous, resolute, to do one's best, and to take a beating like a man.

The Review adds: "The knack of perseverance has enabled other peers of less ability to pass him in the political race. He is affable; he begins a thing and drops it.

The mystery of the disappearance of Mrs. Langtry's jewels has not yet been cleared up. The noted solicitor, Sir George Lewis, who has charge of Mrs. Langtry's case, affirms the truth of the story, although Mrs. Langtry is uncertain as to the exact value of the missing jewels, first placing it at £70,000, and then at £90,000. The man who presented to the bank the order calling for the delivery of the jewels gave the name of George Watts, but he is not known. The forgery of Mrs. Langtry's signature is an absolute fac simile. The paper is the same as that used by her. The writing, etc., ribed the box in which the jewels were kept.

The International Fire Congress, to be held at Amsterdam on Sept 27 and 28, is attracting considerable attention in England and on the Continent. The Congress is expected to lead to many valuable practical results in the improvement of appliances and organization.

One of the London papers, commenting on the coming meeting, says: "The subject of international assistance in the case of great obstinate fires, deserves consideration. Fires will not easily forget London's offer on a memorable occasion to send over a force of firemen and engines to the rescue. But the most interesting contribution to the Congress should be that sent by the United States, which easily holds the palm for fire service."

NOT A WIN FOR LONDON A.C.

N.Y.A.C. Athletes Capture Eleven Straight Heats.

New York, Sept 23. Never in the annals of athletics was such a decisive beating administered in an event of so much importance and to such an aggregation of champions, as that given by the N.Y.A.C. to the team of the London Athletic Club in the dual international games at Manhattan Field Saturday.

Fully 12,000 people were present today at the games.

From the time that Charley Kilpatrick won for half mile during the moment that Connie broke the tape, a winner in the three mile run, the 11th and last event of the day, the interest never flagged, and the applause never waned. Of the 11 events on the program, only three were looked upon in the light of certainties for the Americans, viz.: the high jump and standing broad jump. The half mile run was regarded as pretty good thing for the home club but by no means a certainty, while the other events were considered to be very open that the Mercury would not venture all the 11 of the feet was certainly not even betted at.

The following are the summaries of the contests:

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—When stumps were drawn for the start in the second day's play of the international cricket match, the Englishmen had scored 154 runs for their first innings and the Philadelphians had made their second essay at the bat for 138, which, with the 224 they scored in their first, gave them a total of 372, a lead that the Englishmen will need 217 in their second innings to overcome.

TO WED THE DUKE.

Duke of Marlborough and Miss Vanderbilt to Marry.

CONFIRMATION OF THE RUMOR.

First Met in London Eighteen Months Ago and the Engagement Was Concluded at Newport—The Wedding to Take Place This Fall.

New York, Sept. 21.—Miss Consuela Vanderbilt, the daughter of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, will, before the end of the year, become the Duchess of Marlborough.

The engagement was quietly announced by the families to the friends of the parties yesterday. It was confined beyond any question last evening. It will be performed in accordance with the ritual of the Protestant Episcopal Church, conforming with that of the Church of England. Bishop Potter will probably officiate, and the services, it is thought, will be in open church.

The Duke of Marlborough cabled the news yesterday morning to the members of his family and intimate friends in England and the Continent. Included among those to whom the information was conveyed was the Prince of Wales, who is godfather to the Duke. It is expected that several of the intimate friends of the Duke will cross the Atlantic to be present at the wedding.

The acquaintance between the Duke and Miss Vanderbilt was formed in London about six months ago. During the last two London seasons and in Paris last spring they met frequently in society, and the friendship thus formed led to the understanding of Mrs. and Miss Vanderbilt at Blenheim early this present summer.

All doubt as to what impelled the Duke's visit to this country is dispatted by the announcement of his engagement. Soon after his arrival he became the guest of Mrs. Vanderbilt at Marble House, in Newport. There he remained for some weeks, and was constant in his attention to Miss Consuelo. On a recent visit of Mr. William K. Vanderbilt to Newport on his steam yacht Valsen the announcement of Marlborough went to a luncheon on the Valiant on Mr. Vanderbilt's invitation. The tenderness of the occasion, and the hospitality, and the fact that for the Consuelo Mrs. Vanderbilt permitted the display of affection and walk alone with the Duke, made his visit the more marked.

Charles Richard John Spencer Churchill, the ninth Duke of Marlborough, who, in choosing for his wife an American girl, is following the fashion set by his father and his uncle, the late Lord Randolph Churchill, will be 21 years old on November 13 next. He attained his majority four days after his father, the late Duke, died.

The young Duke is a strong contrast in appearance to his dark, cast-iron of the Churchills, although he bears a family resemblance to the portraits of the first Duke, who was the greatest general of his age. He inclines more to the Hamiltons, his mother having been Lady Alberta Hamilton, daughter of the Duke of Abercorn. He is still alive. Like his father, he is somewhat above the average size and slender, with a sallow complexion, a high forehead, aquiline nose and dark brown hair.

He went to Cambridge, where he soon showed that he had reached his proper sphere by flooring the boldest examiners of whom Trinity College could boast. He speedily became a member of the Pitt, the Athenaeum, the True Blue, the Cambridge and other organizations of the students. He played polo and cricket, the latter with great judgment and a graceful style. His rooms became noted as showing his excellent taste, and he was well known to the Bond-street dealers in the antiques. He is a bold horseman as well, and sails all fleets; he was an excellent student, history being his favorite study, while for mathematics he exhibited a great dislike.

After the year of mourning, consequent on his father's death, the young Duke of Marlborough will be [illegible] nated, by a grand fete in historical Blenheim Palace, in which he had passed almost all his life, and which he took his seat in the House of Lords and began to take an active part in politics. But he found some time to devote to literature, and in January of last year he made his début as a writer with an article on "Blenheim and its Memories," which was published in The Pall Mall Magazine.

It was in this palace, about a year and a half ago, that he entertained the Prince of Wales and a number of guests at his mistress. Named Consuelo, after the Duchess of Manchester, who was Miss Yznaga, and an intimate friend of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, the young Duke has since been devoted to literature, and in January of last year he made his début as a writer with an article on "Blenheim and its Memories," which was published in The Pall Mall Magazine.

Now about 18 years old, she is strikingly tall, a dark brunette, with black hair and eyes, and very rich coloring. Her face is regular, and she is decidedly Japonnie in type. She is very slight of figure, graceful as well, and undoubtedly be a very handsome woman. She has unusual sweetness and charm of manner, and those who know her intimates these few say that this sweetness of manner and disposition make her very attractive, and they are devoted to her.

She is one of the most thoughtful of hostesses, and at all of the entertainments at Marble House, in Newport, this season, at which the American guests were present, all of the foreign guests were constantly remarked. It was generally agreed that thoroughly simple, sweet and unspoiled girl, and if she can only [illegible] with its heavy responsibilities, the same characteristics of grace and tenderness which she now possesses she will surely be a notable woman in her day.

She dresses very simple generally in white, of crepon or muslin, and her only ornament is usually a red rose or carnation in her black hair. At the recent Marble House ball she wore a fillet of red carnations, which was wonderfully becoming to her. She has been educated at the hands of a private governess, who is still a member of the family. She is well read, and while not possessing any particular accomplishment, is said to be unusually cultivated.

GOSSIP FROM OTTAWA

Canada to Send a Fishery Exhibit to Brit.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 23.—Mr. James Huddart, managing owner of the Australian Steamship Line and proprietor of the Atlantic fast mail service, is very sanguine of assistance being rendered to the project by the Imperial Government. Writing to an Ottawa friend Mr. Huddart says:

"We are very hopeful and we think we have ground for hope that Mr. Chamberlain will recommend the Cabinet to grant the £5,000 asked for as assistance to our great project. If we get the practical recognition of the Imperial Government I think we shall be able to do the rest. It is a great work and it grows upon me. I should like to be able to complete it.

The City of London has some interesting pictures this year through the opening of the North Sea canal, by which vessels dealing to pass from the German ocean to the Baltic or vice versa are saved a detour of several hundred miles by way of the North of Scotland. The citizens of Kiel are now contemplating another great gathering at their city on the Baltic, this time for the International naval exhibition. The object is to secure a complete picture of the present standing of navigation together with an historical review of the development and the present state of building and all industrial branches connected with it. The exhibition will last from May until September next. In close relation to the question of general navigation, that of the fisheries, and it has been decided to combine with the naval exhibition, an international fishery exhibition. Canada's fishery display at the World's Fair attracted attention from many distinguished foreigners and so impressed the fishery experts of Germany who visited Ottawa that a Dominion Invitation has been sent to the Dominion to furnish an exhibit to the fishery exhibition at Kiel. The matter has not yet been formally considered, but there is one evident fact in the case question which commends itself to the officials of the Fisheries Department. Commissioner Prince has stated that the sturgeon fishery in Canada is assuming a much more important role than possible the Dominion might build up quite an export trade in sturgeon with Germany. The only drawback would be to be remembered, also, namely, that Canada has no adequate exhibit at the Imperial Institute of the fishery resources, and it is suggested that in the event of an exhibit being sent to the Kiel Exposition, at the close it could be transferred to the Imperial Institute for some weeks, and was constant in his attention to Miss Consuelo. On a recent visit of Mr. William K. Vanderbilt to Newport on his steam yacht Valsen the announcement of Marlborough went to a luncheon on the Valiant on Mr. Vanderbilt's invitation. NEEDLES IN HIS EYES.

Diabolical Self-Torture By Train Robber Curtis.

WOULD GIVE SIGHT FOR LIBERTY.

Procuring Two saddlers Needles He Bent Liberately Thrust Them Into His Eyes, Believing That Blindness Would Ensure His Becoming Free.

Auburn, N.Y., Sept. 23.—Ever since Oliver Curtin Perry, the train robber, returned from Mattewan to a closely guarded cell in Auburn Prison, he has been in a morose mood varied by frequent outbreaks of violence.

The most desperate act he has ever attempted was committed Tuesday. He procured a short stick, through which he thrust two saddler's needles, leaving some distance apart as his eyes and then, holding this peculiar instrument of torture in his hands he repeatedly prodded his eyes with the sharp points. A keeper heard the commotion in Perry's cell and he promptly put a stop to the horrible self-punishment. Prison physician Sawyer attempted to make an examination of the bleeding, lacerated eyes, but Perry was obstinate and would not submit. He begged to go to the hospital, but was answered to one of the isolated cells. He was put under the influence of chloroform when it was discovered that the needle had not yet reached the sight of either eye. It is feared that will probably be blindness of one or both eyes. Perry believed if he put out both of his eyes and became blind the Governor would have pity upon him and pardon him, thereby ensuring his sentence. He says that if blind he would be unable to commit any more crime. The prison officials say more than ever of the opinion that Perry is insane, and it is probable that he will again be sent to the Matt-wan Asylum

FIVE KILLED BY A LANDSLIDE

A House at St. Luce, Que., Carried Away—Three Children Escape. But One Goes Insane.

Three of the children, who heard the noise, escaped by jumping through the windows, one of whom has become insane by the fright.

The five dead bodies have been dug out. The river is completely blocked and other land slides and an inundation are feared.

Six Chicago Brothers Drowned.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Five boys and a young man perished in the lake Sunday afternoon while picnicking relief from the heat on shore. They went out on the lake off Lawrence-avenue pier. Lawrence, in a boat. When 200 feet from shore all of them took off their clothes and jumped into the water. A big wave came rolling shoreward while they were swimming around the boat and swept them under.

Three Men Burned to Death

Pittsburg, Sept. 23.—Three men burned to death in the fearful record of a fire Saturday in the paint works of W. R. Frold. The buildings are believed to be the result of explosions of barrels of oil, which caught the men unawares.

The trouble with us nowadays is, that we do not lead balanced lives. We have gone to the extent of our society's requirements possible in this way. It is really a wonder that women are as healthy as they are. Very few women get any outdoor exercise. Very many get too little exercise at all. Modes of dressing interfere with the proper muscular action, and with the circulation of the blood. All the hygienic laws are broken. It is little wonder that nine women in ten complain of ailments. It is little wonder that nine women in ten are troubled with some derangement or irregularity in the action of the organs distinctly feminine. Neglect and wrong living will show themselves first in the most delicate organs of the whole body. With such weakness and sickness as prevalent, it is to be expected that the bearing of children would be fraught with dread and danger. It should not be so, of course. Nature never meant it to be so. The performance of the highest function of which a woman is capable should not be accompanied by pain. A perfectly natural living will show that it would not be so. As lives are lived, something else must be done. A remedy must be found. For over thirty years, Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N.Y. During that time he has treated thousands of women. He has found in his "Favorite Prescription" a remedy which fulfils perfectly the needs of the female system. It strengthens the whole body and when taken during gestation, shortens the period of labor and makes childbirth well nigh painless. It also promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment for the child.

GRIT CORRUPTION AT KINGSTON.

Commenting upon the unseating of the Ontario Minister of Public Works at Kingston on the confession of bribery by agents, the Mail and Empire forcibly remarks that the Ontario law on the subject of bribery at elections contains this clause: "163 - To prevent the expense and trouble of many elections where unnecessary and useless; in case of a corrupt practice or practices being committed by an agent without the knowledge and consent of the candidate, if the corrupt practice or practices was or were of such trifling nature or was or were of such trifling extent that the result cannot have been affected, or reasonably supposed to have been affected, by such practice or practices, either alone or in connection with other illegal practices at the election, such corrupt practice or practices shall not avoid the election." The effect of the clause is different in different cases. Where the majority is small a trifling amount of corruption may have influenced the result. Where the majority is large the amount of corruption necessary to affect an election, and to render it void, must be extensive.

Now, Mr. Harty's majority was very large—432. It follows, then, that if there was sufficient corruption in the election of January to call that election into question, and to render the vacation of the seat necessary, corruption must have extensively prevailed. The cases were not a few, nor was the corruption small. There must have been numerous cases, and the character of the bribery must have been overwhelming. Mr. Harty admitting this, otherwise he would not have confessed judgment. No doubt the acceptance of the plea of guilty in this instance was a wise procedure. It accomplished all that the petitioner sought, and outside of that the court was not forced to go. But, all the same, it is a question whether the public requirements, from a moral point of view, are satisfied. Somebody provided the money; a number of agents, good moral Reformers, no doubt, enemies of bribery and corruption in the open, but skilful operators on the quiet, soiled the hands of the electors with bribe. Whence came all the money? Who furnished it? Who were the persons who received it and used it in the debasement and demoralization of the people? The law does not require the courts to discover these important particulars. In that respect surely it is wanting. It should enable the public to know who were the designers of the assault upon the integrity and virtue of the electorate and who were their instruments. This information is necessary, not alone for the punishment of the corrupt men, but for the prevention of the repetition of their offence. Section 163 of the Election Act declares that an election shall be void if the successful candidate employs as an agent a person who has been guilty of corrupt practices within eight years previous to such engagement. What guarantee have we, unless the actual bribers are named, that Mr. Harty will not employ once more the agents who were so zealous last January? How can this taint of corruption be eliminated from our political contests so long as the corruptionists can avoid the consequences protective of the electorate, of the bringing home to them of the proof of their crimes? The admission of extensive bribery in Mr. Harty's case will shock those of us who have accepted, without reservation, and as an indication of their principles, the proclamations from the housetops of electoral honesty and purity which the Liberals are so continuously making. But they will be no surprise to anybody who has closely observed either local or Federal politics. The local arena has never been oppressively clean. From the day when money, sent from Toronto, was passed out to Lennox voters from under the bedclothes by a mysterious stranger until the present moment, no election has been lost if corruption could possibly win it. The last general election is understood to have been very costly. Yet, with all that was spent, the Ministers were, in public, determined to have the Legislature pure, so far, at least, as those who did not see eye to eye with them were concerned. They pursued a Patron member in the courts because he held a commission to issue marriage licenses, under which commission he had never acted. In Federal politics the corruption evil has grown rapidly. It reached its highest point in 1891, when contemporaneously with Sir Richard Cartwright's outcry of bribery and Mr. Laurier's demand for a purity the necessity of Tupper was accepted by the ministry which had to prosecute a corrupt campaign.

The situation, in view of the Kingston affair, is getting more serious. There is no reform; no indication of repentance. If the electors are demoralized at a by-election when the life of the party does not depend upon the result, what will not be done by the peculiar men Mr. Laurier has behind him in a great Federal contest?

The Globe, in its issue of the 19th, attempts to break the force of its contemporary's exposure of Grit corruption by the following ingenious excuse:

> The fact of the matter is that the case resolved itself largely into a question of expense. If the case were gone on with there was every prospect that [illegible] the election, and probably to have declared Mr. Harty would have to pay the costs. Two hundred witnesses were to be examined, eminent counsel were engaged on both sides, with the certainty that a bill of between $3,000 and $4,000 would be incurred. This being the case it became a question whether it would not be best to accept an upset of the election and trust to a fresh appeal to the constituency. The petitioners, after an exhaustive examination of Mr. Harty, were convinced that no personal charge would be leaving him responsible to the seat again. His friends feel sure of his success if he [illegible] and under the circumstances it was only an example of the most obvious good policy not to [illegible] to win the seat in a contest rather than by the doubtful and costly processes of the court.

The absurdity of the Grit organ's pretences apparent to any one who gives the subject a moment's [illegible]. The Globe's excuse is self-evidently a lame one, and the fact that it has had recourse to it is more than mere has become proverbial. It involves, in fact, the admission that a vast amount of corruption would have been proven. If this were not the case, Mr. Harty would certainly have fought the case to an issue, instead of throwing up the sponge and paying the costs.

KEEP IT CLEAN

Belleville's chief business street is now—to the credit, be it said of Street Surveyor Hulme and the aldermen who stood by him in the Council—one of the finest highways on the continent. Nothing in the line of a macadamized roadway that has fallen under our observation compares with it, except the great bicycle path from Prospect Park, in Brooklyn, to Coney Island. But Front street is in a disgraceful condition, owing to the great quantity of waste paper and other refuse from the stores which litter its surface, thereby destroying its beauty and rendering the drive dangerous to all who take it behind skittish horses. We trust that the merchants and storekeepers will hereafter do their part in the matter and that the police will restrain others from throwing waste paper upon the street. "A word to the wise."

Weak and Nervous

Describes the condition of thousands of people at this season. They have no appetite, cannot sleep, and complain of the prostrating effect of warm weather. This condition may be remedied by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which creates an appetite and tones up all the organs. It gives good health by making the blood pure.

THE EARLY APPLE.

The Ordinary Season of Apples Can be Prolonged if Three Rules are Observed.

There are at least three things to be observed in trying to prolong the ordinary season of apples, if we would be successful. First, careful handling in picking; second, picking at the proper time, and third, storing in a cool place. J. J. Thomas says that "Mankind consists of two grand divisions, the careless and the careful. Each individual may be classed [illegible] under these two great heads by observing how he picks or gathers fruit." Much of the difficulty in keeping apples arises from careless handling of the fruit while it is being picked. This is especially true of early fall apples, as they are generally picked before the temperature of the air is sufficiently lowered to arrest decay, which [illegible] more lately when the apple is bruised.

My observation leads me to believe that farmers do not exercise the same caution in handling fall apples that they do in the case of winter varieties. Many seem to have an idea that they will not keep long anyway, and so they are thrown into the wagon and hurried off to town as soon as [illegible]. I have seen the Fameuse or Snow brought into market this fall in such a damaged condition that it was impossible to keep them but a few days, when they should keep until the holidays, even in our warm climate. On the other hand, I have seen the Golden Sweet, a summer variety, in exhibition in November. These were kept in an ordinary cellar, but they had not been bruised by careless handling. The best keeping apple we have will remain in good condition but a short time after they have been bruised. Then the degree of maturity at the time of picking will have much to do with keeping qualities. An apple should be mature but not ripe when it is picked if it is to be kept for any considerable time. The process of ripening is only the first stages of decay, and if this is allowed to continue before picking until the apple is ripe, that is, until it becomes mellow, this breaking down process has proceeded so far that it is very difficult to arrest. As soon, therefore, as the stem will separate readily from its union with the branch, the apple is sufficiently mature to keep well.

In this case of early apples, however, there is another element which enters into the problem, viz., the flavor. Fall apples picked very early do not, as a rule, possess that richness of flavor which is developed during the last days of ripening, so that for home use, where the best is none too good, this becomes a very important element, and one that can be preserved only by keeping the fruit in a cool place where the temperature does not reach much above 50 degrees. This brings up the question of cold storage for the farmer and fruit grower which may be continued in a future article.

The Ingenious Way in Which Water May be Provided for Fowls.

This simple and really excellent device deserves the attention of every man that has fowls on his place. It is customary to place open earthen [illegible] with water for fowls to stand in while they drink. This and [illegible] are objectionable on account of filth.

Instead of that primitive arrangement, suppose you try the one here illustrated. Secure the [illegible] and fasten in a suitable manner a champagne bottle filled with water and turned upside down. Let the neck of the bottle come within, say, half an inch of touching the bottom of an earthenware platter, or better still, let it reach halfway from the rim of the platter to the bottom.

Of course, some of the water will run out of the bottle, which is what you desire, but when the surface of the water reaches the [illegible] of the bottle [illegible] of the surface of the water [illegible] from the bottle [illegible] and [illegible] the bottle [illegible] the water [illegible] the bottle [illegible] the water [illegible] the bottle [illegible] the water

MANITOBA SCHOOL CASE.

Principal Grant Condemns The Provincial Government's Conduct—They Ought to Have Accepted the Compromise Which the Roman Catholics Offered.

In his latest contribution to the Globe from Manitoba on the school question, Principal Grant of Queen's University writes as follows:

After the final judgment of the Privy Council was announced, the trustees of the Roman Catholic Winnipeg schools appointed Messrs. Prendergast and Rawlf to interview the Public School Board, with the view of coming to a reasonable compromise. The board received them in a friendly spirit, and referred them to the Government, as it alone could sanction any concessions. The two delegates asked that their schools should be allowed to go on as they were for a year, as a test; that time might thus be given for their teachers to become certificated, and get a gradual change of text-books, and also that a special hour should be set apart for religious instruction. Now, as has been pointed out, these concessions are allowed in rural districts, where generally Protestant and Roman Catholic children have to attend the same school. Much more surely should they be allowed in Winnipeg, where there is room for both classes of schools, and no such necessity is incumbent on the children. Had the Government shown any disposition to listen to these overtures, even as a basis for negotiations, it was proposed to summon a meeting of the Roman Catholic ratepayers of the city and obtain their consent. But they declare that the door was shut in their faces. They were also told that the Advisory Board prescribed the text-books, and that the Government had only to administer the law, and had not the power to make any change.

CATHOLIC OVERTURES.

Archbishop Langevin was absent in the country, and I was, therefore, unable to see him. I called on the Attorney-General, the acting Minister of Education, after seeing his letter to Mr. Rawlf, and after visiting the rural schools, to discuss this and other points with him, notably the necessity of getting teachers qualified to give instructions in both French and English, but he had left for Brandon, and I can now ask for explanations only through the Globe. Probably both gentlemen would say that the present is a time of war, and that while under fire concessions would only give aid and comfort to the enemy, and would not be accepted as a final settlement. But there is surely a more excellent way, especially for a strong Government. Had the Winnipeg schools come in, the backbone of the opposition to the new system would have been broken. As it is, the Roman Catholics of the city are suffering, as they are not suffering in any city of the Maritime Provinces, or of Ontario or Quebec. One feels his sympathy for them quickened immeasurably when he learns that overtures for a compromise came from them, a compromise which the spirit of even-handed justice should have induced the Government to have accepted, and that instead of the overtures being entertained, the deputation were curtly told that they were suffering no grievance, and that their duty was to comply with the law.

HARD CONDITIONS.

War is a terrible evil, civil war is the worst form of it, and the worst civil war is that in which a church is arrayed against the State. Everyone then suffers in his most sacred relations, although because there is no open bloodshed, people at a distance are apt to assume that no one is badly hurt. The present condition admittedly presses hard on all who stay outside of the new system. From 1890 to 1894 there was a measure of alleviation in the rural districts. It was the intention of the Government in 1890 that schools which did not come in should receive no public money from any of the three sources from which support is drawn :—the Government grant, the municipal monthly allowance and the special district tax. But either because of ambiguity in the law or because no means had been provided of officially informing the municipalities, which schools were within and which outside of the law, or for both reasons, the usual levy continued to be made for all schools actually in operation, and consequently those which remained out lost only the Government grant. But in 1894 words were added to the law which made it quite explicit, and now all sources of supply but voluntary gifts are dried up. The last turn screw given to the screw. The tax is levied on the majority of the ratepayers, entirely for the benefit of neighbors who they think have betrayed the good cause. This is bad for the majority, and it is probably worse for the minority. When men live in opposition to their church they are not happy. A Protestant dog out here fed badly, because he distinguishes between the church and religion. It is difficult for a Roman Catholic to make that distinction.

But there is a serious side to the situation. The people are being induced by the Government to betray what they believe to be the cause of religion. That can be done only to their serious loss, and whatever injures the man injures the citizen. Work of that kind, too, is certainly not the duty of the State. Some men yield to the temptations which are offered. It may be said that these are, thereby, simply delivered from superstition. But the wheat goes with the tares. Their whole spiritual natures are injured. Stronger or more sensitive men do not yield, and they are angered at the injustice to themselves, the loss to their children, and their fear lest by neighbors and compatriots. They are little comforted on being assured by newspapers in Protestant districts, and by people who live thousands of miles away, that they have no grievance.

"The tond beneath the harrow knows
Precisely where each tooth point goes.
The butterfly upon the road
Preaches contentment to that toad.

Enough has been said to show that if this vexed question were only detached from political it could be settled by such comparative ease. I am well aware that this "if" cannot be realized. The question has been political from the beginning, and will be political to the end. But it ought not to be beyond the resources even of politicians, who are obliged—as long as the party system prevails—to think first of their party and secondly of their country.

[Dr. Grant's concluding remark must be taken as referring to the Ont Government of Manitoba, and the first opposition to Dominion affairs, as certainly the Conservative party have no political end to attain by seeking to redress the grievance of the minority in Manitoba.—ED. INTELLIGENCER.

MRS. CLAPPER'S TRIBULATIONS.

She Claims her Daughter Martha is the Victim of a Mock Marriage.

Mrs. Bridget Clapper and one of her daughters waited patiently outside the police court room this morning, while the Magistrate ground a small grist of cases. Her face bore plainly the imprint of dire trouble and her every motion bespoke mental suffering. When a reporter inquired what the nature of her misfortune had been she refused to be interviewed, avowing that the pens of the city had slighted her of late.

When the Magistrate had a few minutes to spare Mrs. Clapper and her daughter were ushered into his presence and she unfolded a tale of man's unfaithfulness. It was not of her own husband that she would complain, but of the supposed husband of her daughter Martha. She gave those present to understand that Martha had been living with Edward Bolyea at the Carrying Place for some time under the presumption that they were married, but it now appears that Martha has been made the victim of a "mock marriage." Mrs. Clapper produced the marriage lines in evidence of the hoax and they read somewhat as follows:

Sept. the 18,
Matermony 1895
Martha Clapper -16
Edward Bolyea -27
Joined hands for life
Luke Smith.

Bolyea skipped lately and Mrs. Clapper wants revenge. Bolyea has a wife in this city and it will likely be interesting for him when he returns.

Harvest Thanksgiving.

The services at Bridge st. yesterday were special ones and were enjoyed by large congregations. The theme of the day was thanksgiving for the bounties of God's providence during the year, and was fitly expressed in one of the many hymns of the day :

"Come, ye thankful people, come,
Raise the song of harvest home;
All is safely gathered in,
Ere the winter storms begin.
God our maker doth provide
For our wants to be supplied;
Come to God's own temple, come,
Raise the song of harvest home."

The Pastor, the Rev. E. N. Baker, was the preacher both morning and evening. His morning subject was "thanksgiving, during which he enumerated some of the many personal blessings enjoyed by that congregation. In the evening he found under the title of "Our heritage" abundant cause for national thanksgiving.

The choir has had several additions to it lately, and every member being present the music—which harmonized with the thought of the day—was of a high order. In the morning Miss Miller, of Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, contributed a vocal solo. Possessing a rich contralto voice and fine enunciation her singing was appreciated. The Sunday School also had its harvest thanksgiving in the afternoon, which fittingly came in with the lesson of the day.

Bloecker St. Church.

The Rev. J. Anderson occupied the pulpit at both services yesterday. In the morning his subject was from Matthew, 6-9, "Our Father which art in Heaven." He impressed on the minds of all that by saying "Our Father" we are not only brothers to a few but to all nations and classes, and that we should not go into the world seeking to win the soul of only some particular class, but brothers from all stations of life. In the evening he spoke from Acts 12-23, "And immediately the Angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not God the glory; and he was eaten of by worms and gave up the ghost." The regular prayer meeting of the E. L. of C. E. was held immediately after this service. Mr. Lousley, of Albert College, kindly rendered a solo. Hall 7, 11-17, giving an excellent address by which all were benefitted and encouraged to press forward in the great work of "looking up" and "lifting up" for for Christ.

If the fare on the Bay of Quinte Railway from Tweed to Kingston was $1.50 instead of $1.85, Kingston would be greatly benefitted. Obituary.

MRS. A. W. CARSCALLEN.

After a long illness, which she bore with Christian resignation, Marcia Pringle, wife of A. W. Carscallen, M.P. for North Hastings, passed away to her better land on Saturday night, at her home in Marmora. Deceased, who was in the fortieth year of her age, was a lady of amiable disposition and was widely esteemed. She was taken all two years ago with pulmonary trouble and all that loving kindness could do to lessen her sufferings and restore her health was done. Last spring her devoted husband and daughter accompanied the sufferer to Pasadena, California, in the hope that the genial climate of that famous resort would restore her health ; but the trip was without avail, and she returned about the 1st of July to her home, where she had since remained constantly sinking. Mrs. Carscallen was married to her now sorrowing husband, who with one son and one daughter survive her, about twenty years ago. If the sympathy of the entire community can do aught to assuage their deep grief, it is theirs.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at Marmora, from her late residence to St. Paul's church, thence to the cemetery

BABY NEARLY DIED

Sir,—My baby was very bad with summer complaint, and I thought he would die until I tried Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. With the first dose I noticed a change for the better, and now he is cured, and fat and healthy. MRS. A. NORMANDIN, London, Ont. d&w2w Ideas are oftimes shy of the close fatmines of words.—Tupper.

Out of Sorts.—Symptoms, Headache, loss of appetite, furred tongue, and general indisposition. These symptoms, if neglected, develop into acute disease. It is a trite saying that an "ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and a little attention at this point may save months of sickness and large doctor's bills. To this complaint take from two to three of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills on going to bed, and one or two for three nights in succession, and a cure will be effected.

First and foremost amongst external curatives of pain is Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Nor is it less esteemed as a remedy for coughs, colds, sufferings, sores, burns, etc. It is economic as well as an inexpensive article, since the results produced by it necessitate the use only of a small quantity.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith' Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was badly in dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using three bottles of the Vegetable Discovery the billiousness is entirely gone, and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

NO CHILLS THERE.

Their Ailment Required a Milder Remedy than Quinine.

The Colonel suggested that I take some Quinine. I positively refused. He was far from and to drug myself in such a manner. I had a chill, I said the reason and he would not be subject to chills any more. I told him I would not take Quinine as a tonic. He insisted, and I finally consented to take five grains. I went to bed and had a chill. I told him I would not take any more

SIR ADOLPHE ON NEXT ELECTION.

"We Should Fight Within an Inch of Our Lives"—The New Supreme Court Justice.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 21.—It will be a splendid opportunity to clear the political air at the next election, and we should fight within an inch of our life in that contest," Judge Taschereau uttered today by Sir A. J. Caron on to your correspondent. The Postmaster-General left for New York this evening and will return in time for the Cabinet Council on Friday, when it is generally believed that Mr. L. Girouard, M.P., for Jacques Cartier will be called to the Supreme Court bench in place of Mr. Justice Fournier, resigned.

"When will you have a new colleague to replace Hon. Mr. Angers?" Sir Adolphe was asked.

"I cannot say, but I do not see why it should not be filled up in the appointment."

"The country is safe, is it not?" and here the fighting Minister gave an expression to the important words heading the dispatch.

"Two of the directors of the great South Sea Manila pulp mill passed through the city to-day and they report that the new Canadian canal is securing the business or quite as much as it can accommodate. The steamers with their consorts, the barges, find a great deal easier to pass through the splendid Canadian locks than the old United States canal. This means, among other things, an increased value of 600 daily sales of Canadian coal, produced to the vessels passing through the new canal. In fact, the Algoma steamer sent out to prepared for so great a demand and supplies are being brought from older districts. Canada will have a great deal to answer for if she does not secure the bulk of the Northwest trade. The Canadian Pacific Railway is also building a dry dock, into which vessels drawing 18 feet can enter and have room will be made to turn around automatically. The water will enter from Lake Superior on the high level and empty itself into the lower level of Lake Huron, a gate at each end of the canal will be provided.

There is more than a little interest here in the question of appointing a Judge of the Superior Court, which, according to an unwritten law belongs to the English Protestant element. The latter, however, fail to agree upon a nominee and as is frequently the case the French Canadian may get the place. It is understood that the judgeship in question has been offered in turn to Mr. Harry Abbott, Q.C., son of the late Sir John Abbott, and to Mr. George B. Baker, M.P., for Missisquoi, and rumor has it that both have declined the honor. Mr. Baker wants to be made Senator for the Bedford division and Mr. Abbott can make a good deal more in his law office than the salary of a Superior Court judge.

Canadian Pacific Agent Retires

Montreal, Que., Sept. 24.—Agent McNicol of the Canadian Pacific arrived home to-day from the Northwest. He says that the prospects for a large crop are better this year than ever before. Further he says the threshing of the grain produced considerable more than the Manitoba Government estimate. In one case a farmer raised no less than 38 bushels to an acre, and the average yield was phenomenal, many instances of 35, 36 and 40 bushels of No. 1 hard were reported. At Carberry, where the Jewish colony is located, the farmers are quite elated over their crops, being much pleased and astonished at the result.

Rev Canon Pulton Pocock and Chaplain of St. Vincent De Paul Penitentiary, fell dead this afternoon as he was preparing to leave for Montreal H.M.S. Canada left port at an early hour this morning.

The Premier in Toronto

Toronto, Sept. 24.—The Government car "Cumberland" arrived yesterday morning at 2 o'clock attached to the regular C.P.R. train from the east with Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Hon. John F. Wood as passengers. They proceeded at once to the Queen's, where the Premier spent the day without registering. He was elected Grand Master of Orangemen in Sir Frank Smith, and the object of his visit is said to have been for the purpose of talking over the political situation and probably the Manitoba school question. Sir Mackenzie is the Premier left for Ottawa by the evening train.

Sir Mackenzie will participate in the unveiling ceremonies at Morrisburg to-morrow afternoon, going from there to Lindsay on the following day, where a reception headed by Col. Sam Hughes will be given him.

Five Counterfeiters Arrested

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—The plans of a dangerous gang of counterfeiters was nipped to-day by the discernment by the arrest here of Abraham Jacobs, Max Freedman, Moses Mendelson, Jacob Friedberg and Joseph Silberman. The men arrested here were the leaders of a gang which numbered about 30. The other members of the gang are being located. The arrest of the members was brought about by information furnished by David Friedrich of Landisville, N.J. Three weeks ago the men approached him and offered to set up their plant for manufacturing the counterfeit. Friedrich communicated with the United States district attorney in this city and upon his advice pretended to accept the plans of the gang. He did this with the result of arrest of the above five.

The early part of the day will be taken up by the adoption of rules, appointment of committees and the selection of a place of C. O'Brien, President of the New York Stock Commission, and ex-Commissioner of Navigation, said he thought the convention would favor the Lake Champlain and Mohawk routes, which would give the great lakes two outlets—one at New York, the other at Montreal. D. Ruckefeller of New York will be elected president for the next year. The Chamber of Commerce will give a formal reception Thursday night.

A FIREBUG CAUGHT.

Clever Capture Made By Hamilton Police.

TOOK THE INCENDIARY RED-HANDED

Insured Two Parcels For $300, Then Saturated Them and the Floor With Oil—An Inch of Candle Was Lighted and the Room Locked.

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 24.—By a clever piece of work on the part of the local detective department a professional firebug was captured before the Police Station last night. He was captured about 6.30 at the Stuart-street station with a ticket for Toronto in his inside pocket.

The prisoner is an Englishman about 50 years of age, fair, with a swagger air about his personage, and he gives his name as R. Stroudsburg.

On Sept. 5 he arrived in the city and registered at the St. Nicholas Hotel. Two days later two packages supposed to contain American periodicals arrived from Buffalo and were left by the office of the Confederation Life Insurance Company and from Seneca Jones, the agent, had $200 insurance placed on the parcels. Then the young man engaged from George Smith, one of the proprietors of the hotel, a room at 25 1-2 King William-street, and on Sept. 9 the parcels were removed to the room.

The stranger was heard to remark to a fellow-boarder something about him the building by saturating the pa... with coal oil and placing a candle on the floor. He then went out and locked the doors, detectives then entered the room and put out the candle. Inspector Egan and Mahon, Detectives Campbell and Reid were reconnoitering outside. Lester went to the Royal Hotel and Reid told the clerk to put the keys of the room in the safe. He boarded a street car. Detectives Doyle and Bleakley preceded him to the station and the latter followed him, where he was arrested.

Lester complained to the police this afternoon that he had lost $50 in the Augusta-street resort a few days ago.

DIED FROM CANCER'S TOUCH.

Contracted the Disease From a Woman Patient.

New York, Sept. 23.—Dr. Edward W. Burnette died at his home, No. 122 West Thirty-Fourth street, 5 p.m. yesterday of cancer. Eight months ago a woman called at his office to be treated for an irritation of the tongue which had been growing greater for some time. The doctor applied some nitrate of silver to the irritation with the tip of his finger. Later in the day he was shaving himself and the razor slipped and scratched his left finger. Unfortunately, keeping it down in the bottom of an old well, was twenty-five feet below the surface of Mr. Dessaint's farm house.

It was 5 o'clock Monday when persons passing through the Dessaint yard heard cries for help from the ground. Investigating child was found in the well, and the rescue was effected. When he was rescued it was found that the baby was positively unhurt.

BABY IN THE WELL.

Calmly Slept While the Town Was Wild Thirty-Foot Shaft.

Boston, Sept. 24.—While all night Saturday and all Sunday morning a posse of officers searched Roxbury for little 3-year-old Willis Dewett, who was missed from his home in Rockville-street at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the unconscious cause of the alarm lay peacefully sleeping down in the bottom of an old dry well, nearly forty feet below the surface of Mr. Dessaint's farm house.

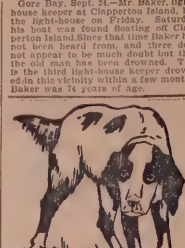

It was 5 o'clock Monday when persons passing through the Dessaint yard heard cries for help from the ground. Investigating child was found in the well, and the rescue was effected. When he was rescued it was found that the baby was positively unhurt.

President Faure to Attend the Czar's Carnival.

Berlin, Sept. 24.—With reference to the report that President Faure had decided to visit St. Petersburg next spring, and had arranged with the Russian Foreign Minister for a grand demonstration of the United French, Russian and Danish fleets at Copenhagen, the Paris correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger telegraphs that President Faure will be escorted on a Great Fleet squadron to Copenhagen, whence, after visiting the King and Queen of Denmark, he will proceed to St. Petersburg and thence to Moscow to attend the ceremonies of the coronation of Czar Nicholas II. During his stay in Russia President Faure will be lodged in the Imperial Palaces. He will return by sea, visiting en route the Swedish and Dutch sovereigns. The same special says that M. Hanotaux, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs and Prince Lobanoff, the Russian Foreign Minister who is now visiting France, have agreed regarding Armenian and Far Asian affairs. France, it is said, will support Russia's inevitable attempts to oust the Japanese from Corea in return for which Russia will aid France in her attempt to dislodge the British from Egypt.

Lighthouse Keeper Drowned.

Gore Bay, Sept. 24.—Mr. Baker, lighthouse keeper at Clapperton Island, left the lighthouse on Friday last Saturday his boat was found floating off Clapperton Island. Since that time he has not been heard from, and there does not appear to be much doubt but that the old man has been drowned. He is the third light-house keeper drowned in this vicinity within a few months Baker was 74 years of age.

One's physical feelings, like the faithful setter, search and point out plainly the fact of disease or health.

If a man is not feeling well and vigorous —if he is losing flesh and vitality, if he is listless, nervous, sleepless, he certainly is not well. The down hill road from health to sickness is smooth and declines rapidly.

At the first intimation of disease, the wise man takes a pure, simple vegetable tonic. It puts his digestion into good active order and that puts the rest of his body in order. The medicine that will do this is a medicine that is good to take in any trouble of the blood, the digestion, or the respiration, no matter how serious it may have become.

The medicine to take is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a remarkable remedy. It cures diseases in a perfectly natural way, without the use of strong drugs. It cures by helping Nature. It has a peculiar tonic effect on the lining membranes of the stomach and bowels. By putting these membranes into healthy condition, stimulating the secretion of the various digestive juices and furnishing to the blood the proper nutritive properties, it carries out over the whole body and drives disease-germs before it into the usual excretory channels. It builds up firm muscular flesh, makes the skin and the eyes bright.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been found wonderfully efficacious in the treatment of skin diseases—eczema, tetter, erysipelas, salt-rheum—from common pimples or blotches to the worst case of scrofula.

Scott's Sarsaparilla

IS A MOTHER'S REMEDY regulating and strengthening the maternal functions. It purifies the female system of ulcerative weaknesses and debilitating humors. It expels the first symptoms of hereditary humors in children and youths that may owe their origin to past generations. It searches out and renders the system free from disease-breeding germs.

"THE KIND THAT CURES."

There are not many forms of disease upon which Scott's Sarsaparilla does not act favorably, because pure blood carries to the diseased parts renewing and building up properties. This medicine makes pure blood which builds up where disease has torn down, and carries away the impurities upon which it feeds.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, SEPT. 24.

THAT KINGSTON CORRUPTION CASE.

Like John Madiver, of "come-along-John" notoriety, in London, twenty years ago, our Ontario Minister of Public Works started in to "put down bribery and corruption," and also, like Madiver, he used "plenty of money" to do it with. Here is what the judges reported with regard to the case:

"(1) That, owing to the admission of the counsel for the respondent hereafter referred to, no evidence was given as to the commission of any specific corrupt practice by any named person, and no corrupt practice was proved to have been committed by or with the knowledge and consent of either of the candidates at the said election.

"(2) That there is reason to believe that corrupt practices on behalf of the respondent have extensively prevailed at the said election.

"(3) And we further specially report that upon the opening of the case at the trial it appeared that the respondent had obtained a majority at the said election of 432 votes, and it was then admitted by counsel for the respondent that corrupt practices had been committed on behalf of the respondent, which were not of such trifling nature or of such trifling extent that the result of the said election could reasonably be supposed not to have been affected thereby, from which admission we inferred, and then in presence of counsel aforesaid adjudged and determined, that such corrupt practices were of so extensive a character as necessarily to avoid the said election, notwithstanding the large majority of votes obtained by the respondent, and notwithstanding the provisions of section 193 of the election act.

"(4) That particulars of the corrupt practices delivered in the cause confained 193 charges of alleged corrupt practices by the respondent and his agents.

"(5) Following the precedent of the Dufferin election case (Hodgins' Election Cases, p. 549, 11 Journal Legislative Assembly 1880, p. 7), we consider that the election having been admitted to be void, we were not by law required to prolong the trial or to put the petitioner to further expense (the costs which can be awarded against the respondent, being by law limited to $3000, or to enter upon an inquiry merely for the purpose of ascertaining who had been actually guilty of the corrupt practices charged in the petition and [illegible] thereto.

"(6) We do not, however, think it necessary to enter upon any matter [illegible] to the extensive nature of the corrupt practices which appear to have been committed in the said electoral district at the said election, and with regard to the limited powers of inquiry conferred upon the Judges at the trial of an election petition, which, pursuant to section 50 of the controverted elections act, ought, in our judgment, to be submitted to the Legislative Assembly."

And the pharisaical Globe will, a week or two hence, when it hopes that this exposo of Grit corruption has been forgotten, proclaim that its party are not as the wicked Tories are. What a pity that the particulars were not gone into and a complete exposure made of the rascality perpetrated by the "party of purity" in Kingston. As the News forcibly urges, the ghastly facts of the case should be thoroughly exposed. A plain duty lies before the Provincial Legislature. The people of Kingston, and the people of Ontario "want to know," and they "want to know" badly. A few questions must be answered. Where did the money come from? Who raised it? Who were the custodians of it? Who disbursed it? What was the character of the men who were bribed? A few strokes of forked lightning at those points would do much to clear the political atmosphere.

Will be at Hotel Quinte, Wednesday Oct. 2nd.

TORONTO'S FAIR IS OVER

The great attraction in Toronto during the fair have been the windows of the Dorenwend's Co., Ltd., where our most fashionable styles of Hair Goods were viewed by thousands of people, and the business [illegible] by the firm was remarkable. [illegible] Dorenwend, manager of the Company, has this year made a great effort to show nothing but the very choicest goods and will sell them at a very reasonable figure; he tells us that the new styles have such runs that in order to keep up to the demand the firm had to double its staff. A great deal of long hair to arrange the Chignon so much in vogue in London and Paris is worn also for the front. The styles of parted bangs are in great demand. The firm manufactures a style called the Bellena bang front of wavy curly hair with invisible parting, the Grena bang, Victoria coil for lock and many new and fine goods are of featherweight, fashion, still strong and durable. Then gentlemen's toupees are selling very fast, every bald gentleman should have one. The leading people everywhere are now wearing them. As this is Prof. Dorenwend's last visit to Belleville this year all should take this opportunity. Remember Hotel Quinte, Wednesday, Oct. 2nd.

That Tired Feeling

Is a common complaint and it is a danger ous symptom. It means that the system is debilitated because of impure blood, and in this condition it is especially liable to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for this condition, and also for that weakness which prevails at the change of season, climate or life.

A SHORT COUNCIL MEETING

THE FRICTION IN THE PUBLIC WORKS COMMITTEE TOUCHED UPON.

Several Important Communications Read —A Firm Wants Exemption From Taxation—A Long List of Enquiries—Ald. Clarke Moves for a Better Water Service in Two Localities and More Fire Protection—Ald. Lauderneberger Gives Notice of a By-Law Regulating Street Excavations.

A regular meeting of the City Council was held last evening, with the following members present: Mayor Walmsley, Ald. Walker, Doyle, Jas. Gordon, W. H. Gordon, Hay, Yeomans, Grills, Clarke, Marshall, Hart, Green, Wills, Potts, Mackie, Bogart, Lauderneberger and Starling.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The following communications were read:

From Dr. Tracy, urging that Bridge st. sewer be flushed to put it in a sanitary condition.

An application from C. H. Lewis, south William st., asking permission to run his drain into Bird's creek.

A report on George st. sewer from the Street Surveyor, with the final estimate on the work.

From W. W. Chown, asking exemption from taxation for the next fifteen years, agreeing to employ not less than thirty hands during that year and to spend annually from $12,000 to $15,000 in wages, &c.

A petition from a number of residents of the north end, asking that a sewer be built on that street on the local improvement system.

From Michael Wright, asking the Council to look into his claim for insurance in the municipal insurance held by the city on its employes owing to an injury received by him some time ago.

From W. J. Diamond, Secretary of the Board of Education, asking that the Council at once issue debentures for the building of the proposed school in Bleecker Ward.

A number of accounts were presented, after which the reports of the various committees were read.

The special committee appointed to look into the consolidation of the by-laws, recommended that the matter be left in the hands of a committee of not less than three nor more than five members of the Council.

The above were referred to their respective committees.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole on Reports, Ald. Mackie in the chair.

The various accounts recommended by the different committees were passed without discussion.

The report of the Special Committee on the consolidation of the by-laws was referred to the Executive Committee for the purpose of having a committee appointed for the work.

Ald. Jas. Gordon said the Public Works Committee knew nothing about one-third the accounts that were covered by it. The chairman did not seem to think it worth while to let the rest of the committee know what was being done.

Ald. Green refuted the statement made by the previous speaker. He characterized the attack as mean and contemptible. He said the first work the committee had this year was the inspection of the streets and the members agreed upon a day inconvenient to him. Their report was discussed and he approved of it. He was unfortunately kept from attending two of the meetings of his committee, but he approved of the work the committee did. There had been no friction till the improvement of Front St. came up. The Council gave the committee $12,000 for the year, but $6,000 of that was spent on Front St., a necessary work. It had been stated that Ald. Green, Ald. Yeomans and Street Surveyor Huhn were running the city. He said at the last meeting of the committee, before vacation, it was unanimously agreed that the work left over should be done, during recess, by the Street Surveyor.

Ald. Walker denied the statement.

Ald. Green, continuing, said he wanted this matter sifted to the bottom.

Ald. Jas. Gordon said he found fault with the amount spent on Front St.—$4,000—without the approval of the Public Works Committee. He had questioned Ald. Green regarding several pieces of work, but Ald. Green said he know nothing about them.

Ald. Green said that out of the $12,000 appropriated for Public Works $6,000 was spent on Front st., $3,500 for lumber and nails, leaving only $3,500 for labor. Ald. Jas. Gordon had seen all the pay sheets, and what more could he want?

Ald. Yeomans said Ald. Green had never consulted with him as to any of the work done during the year. He regretted the difference that had arisen. Ald. Jas. Gordon was wrong in some of his statements. The $4,000 for Front st. was passed by the joint committees of the Public Works and Executive. Other matters he was not cognizant of, but he hoped that the committee would work harmoniously and keep within their appropriation, of which there was $1,000 left.

Ald. Potts wanted to speak, but Ald. Wills moved a point of order, and the chairman sustained him.

The Street Surveyor's final estimate on George st. sewer was referred to the Executive Committee, with power to pay the account, if correct.

The communication from W. W. Chown re exemption from taxation was referred to the Industrial Committee.

The Committee of the Whole rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

INQUIRIES.

Ald. Clarke asked for what length of time the electric lights should be kept burning.

Ald. Hart—From darkness to daylight in the morning.

Ald. Clarke—By whose authority was the light removed from the lower part of Murney Ward to the fair grounds.

No answer.

Ald. W. H. Gordon—Why has the numbering of the streets not been completed?

Ald. Wills said the firm of Stoddard & Heath had dissolved, but he assured the Council that the work would soon be completed.

Ald. Hay wanted to know whose duty it was to inspect the meat tables on the market. He understood they were in a very dirty condition.

The Mayor said the duty was apparently delegated to no one.

Ald. Wills asked if there was a by-law forbidding the placing of paper on Front st. and if so is it being enforced?

The Mayor—There is a by law, but he did not think it was being strictly enforced.

Ald. Potts asked whose duty it was to repair walks broken by the telephone company.

The Mayor—The Street Surveyor has charge of the streets.

Ald. Clarke drew the Street Surveyor's attention to the fact that the street was blocked up by the extension of the water works in Coleman Ward.

Ald. Doyle asked if the granolithic pavement would go into the next year's work.

Ald. Yeomans said it would first have to go before the Court of Revision.

Ald. Walker asked the Street Surveyor if Front st. was complete between Bridge and Campbell st.

The Street Surveyor—"It is."

Ald. Clarke ordered a hydrant placed on the corner of Moira and Murney sts., and he gave notice of a motion that the hydrant be placed there for the use of the city area in that locality and also that one be placed on the corner of Ridley and North Front st.

Ald. Clarke also gave notice of a motion that the water works main be extended from the corner of Gobles and Evans sts. along Evans st. to St. Charles st. and thence along St. Charles st. to Olive st., and a fire hydrant be placed on the corner of St Charles and Olive sts.

Ald. Lauderneberg gave notice of a by law regulating the manner in which excavations shall be made by private parties or contractors on the streets of the city.

The Council adjourned.

Something For Every body

Anything that combines style with comfort is sure to be popular, and this is true of Fibre Chamois. It gives the necessary stylish stiffness to ladies' sleeves and skirts and when used in underskirts, jackets, capes or cutting suits provides as well an absolutely wind proof warmth. For children's wraps it is admirable because its unremovable nature keeps them in shape, while its light weight prevents the garment from being a burden though splendid warmth is provided. In men's clothing it takes the place of canvas or hair cloth, giving body and stiffness at the same time that it makes the coat or vest so warm that you can brave the elements and defy the fiercest winds in perfect comfort.

THEIR LABORS RESUMED.

The Educational Work Recommenced in the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb.

Once more the spacious building and grounds of the Ontario Institution for the deaf are bright and alive with scholars old and new. Although the school opened but last Wednesday, the Principal yesterday morning was ready with the classification of pupils and the work can now be said to be fully and seriously begun. While the Institute has already been carrying on its mission of benovolence and light and advancement for a quarter of a century, the reopening of its doors, after each vacation, is ever an event hailed with joy and thankfulness by those who have a heart with which to feel and to hope. What is man with intellect untutored? What indeed is a poor child deaf from birth, with soul imprisoned and mind and conscience dormant, till his shackles are broken? To the great task of relieving this portion of our fellowbeings the Institution is devoted, and what it has already achieved is warrant for its worth. With many more than ever, if possible, Mr. Mathison called on all teachers, officers, pupils—to remember what they were there for. Duty was the rule and that from the superintendent down; order was Heaven's first law. How thankful the children should be for the ample provision made by the Province for them, and how their response should be shown in doing everything to profit thereby. The teachers and officers also spoke a few kindly words.

There are now present 265 pupils, with still a few more to come. The new ones—some of whom are little tots not more than seven years old—were the only bright and cheerful and already seem quite at home. We cannot but wish the management a hearty God speed.

Bitten by a Dog.

For some time a dun colored bull dog, owned by F. Andrews, Water st., has stationed himself at the market and at the post office, where he attacked other dogs which attempted to enter those buildings. This morning, Mrs. Geo. Walton was followed to the market by her black spaniel. The bull dog was in waiting and attacked the spaniel. Mrs. Walton interfered to protect her little dog and the bull dog bit her badly on the wrist. Andrews' dog is a public nuisance and ought to be destroyed. In fact, bull dogs, and all dogs of that class, ought to be prohibited from running at large.

The Babcock & Wilcox Company apparently do not suffer greatly from lack of trade. They report business as excellent, their orders for June alone exceeding 2,000 H.P. All the boilers built by the Babcock & Wilcox Company are the latest shape are of all wrought construction, having a capacity for 200 lbs. working pressure.—Canadian Trade Review.

Have You Thought of It?

For four thousand years or more the world groaned, suffered, and fumed about sore corns, for there was no positive, sure, no certain and painless cure until Dr. Scott Putman gave to the world his great Corn Extractor. Our Inland Seas.

A decision of some interest to Canadian marine men has just been rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States. In a case of a man injured for an offence committed on the high seas, the defendant questioned the jurisdiction of the court on the ground that the lake on which the offence was committed was not the "high seas." The court held that the great lakes and the rivers connecting them were "high seas," as they were waters over which no particular state had jurisdiction

JOINED FOR LIFE.

The Nuptials of Mr. M. Manley and Miss N. Fitzpatrick Colebrated This Morning.

A large number of persons were present at St. Michael's church at 10 o'clock this morning to witness the marriage of Mr. Michael Manley to Miss Nellie Fitzpatrick, daughter of the late Patrick Fitzpatrick of this city. The ceremony was performed by Monsignor Farrelly. The bride was attired in a handsome gray travelling suit, and was assisted by her sister, Miss Violet. Mr. J. J. Dolan did the honors of groomsman. After the marriage ceromony nuptial mass was celebrated. The happy couple left on the noon train for Montreal and New York and other points of interest. After visiting these places they will return to the city and reside.

With their numerous friends we join in congratulating them and wishing them every happiness.

A pleasure to wear for its own stylish appearance. Cravenette offers the advantage of defying rain and dust. It is waterproof, but porous, defies the elements, but is nothing at all like the old waterproof, being light, elastic, and has a distinguishable from any other dress goods. In Navy, Myrtle, Brown, Grey, Castor and Black. Makes up into costumes, cloaks, wraps. Cravenette is a money saver, while nothing whatever is sacrificed in style. The ideal spring or summer dress.

A New Style of Locomotive.

The G. T. R. has lately been trying a new style of locomotive fitted with patented devices, the most important of which are two cylinders 19 and the other 29 inches, and so arranged that the steam is used in the larger one after it has done its work in the smaller. When tested the engine drew 43 loaded cars from Brockville to Montreal, with a consumption of four and a half tons of coal. An ordinary engine hauling half that number of cars the same distance uses five tons of coal.

The Weather.

A most agreeable decline in temperature has taken place since yesterday. The mercury fell during the night to 40; at 8 a.m. it stood at 51; and at noon it marked 70, which was 16 degrees below yesterday's maximum.

PROBABILITIES.

Winds mostly westerly and southwesterly; fair and cooler.

No person should go from home without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial in their possession, as change of water, cooling drinks, etc., frequently brings on summer complaint, and there is nothing like being ready with a sure remedy at hand, which oftimes saves great suffering, and frequently valuable lives. This Cordial has gained for itself a wide spread reputation for affording prompt relief from all summer complaints

Mr. F. W. Bronton, of this city, last evening received a telegram announcing the death of Mr. Wm. Barnum, a yeoman residing near Queensboro, in Elzevir township. It appears that deceased died suddenly whilst loading grain in a field, but the cause could not be ascertained. A Novel Weed Killer.

Weeds along the railroad tracks are now killed by the electric weed killer. It consists of a car carrying a dynamo which sends a heavy current into a sort of rake of fine wires dragging among the weeds on each side of the track. The weeds are electrocuted down to their smallest rootlets. It is now proposed to introduce the system in farming.

A Mystery of the Lakes.

Another mystery to be added to the many unsolved mysteries of the great lakes is that, while Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence have fallen to a lower level than any yet recorded, and are still falling, Lake Huron and the St. Clair have been rising for weeks and now stand at a level six inches above their level on Dominion Day last, and sixteen and a half inches above low water mark.

Ideas are oftimes shy of the close fur allure of enemia.—Tupper.

Out of Sorts.—Symptoms, Headache, loss of appetite, furred tongue, and general indisposition. These symptoms, if neglected, develop into acute disease. It is a trite saying that an "ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and a little attention at this point may save months of sickness and large doctor's bills. For this complaint take from two to three of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills on going to bed, and one or two for three nights in succession, and a cure will be effected.

Grocers and salmon are poison to us, and the origin of hysterics. You are right in thinking that this disease is in the imagination.—Mme. de Sevigné.

First and foremost among the external curatives of pain is Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Nor is it less esteemed as a remedy for coughs, colds, croup, burns, bunions, etc., it is second to none. So well as an inexpensive antiseptic and healing remedy, should every household be supplied with a bottle of this unequalled remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and other medicine with very little effect. But since using three bottles of the Vegetable Discovery the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. This is by far the best health restorer I know."

A HANDFUL OF LACONICS.

[illegible]

A pretty woman with nothing but her features to recommend her usually attracts men. But she seldom holds them.

It is almost [illegible] to get a husband. [illegible] is [illegible] possessed by others is what we are incapable of ourselves.

It is a habit with some people when they wish their own virtues to look the whitest always to use the faults of others as a background.

The lover, women complain, does not always survive in the husband. But is it not equally true that the sweetheart does not always survive in the wife?

The most difficult woman to understand is she who deals out spiritual food in a frivolous channel. You never know which you have swallowed. And the doctor, like the dose, remains an enigma.

The friendship which begins with a passionate fervor is rarely one of long standing. It burns out too soon. True and lasting friendships generally begin with moderate likings and grow with time.—Edouard Y. Bok in The Ladies' Home Journal.

The Charm of Grouse-Shooting.

What, then, is the charm of grouse shooting over dogs on a mountain or moor where there is plenty of work? There is, first, the charm of watching the working of the dogs, the intelligence, the interest in the sport which makes skilled canine co-operation a fascinating to a lover of animals, as every sportsman must be. Then there is the pleasure of using one's knowledge of the habits of birds of the grounds they will frequent, deep heather or bracken cover in the hot middle of the August day, short heather, on which they feed, in the early morning or in the evening; of using one's knowledge of the moor in order that the ground may be so worked as to force the birds from all directions into strong holding cover, where they will be likely to lie well; the pleasure, in short, of using the strong-up experience that makes up what may, perhaps, be called moorcraft.

Then there is the walking which soon gets into hard condition the man who shoots over dogs and perseveres resolutely when, for the first two or three days, he suffers the awakening effects of the sedentary life of the towns. It is only by the sportsman who does the necessary hard walking that the exhilarating effects of the mountain air are felt in full. This exhilaration has been compared to that of champagne but it is more like the new sense of the mere joy of living that comes from a plunge in the sea after a long hot day. When man comes out light, active, vigorous, and feeling as though by some magic the tireless activity or youth has been regained. The result of a few days' hard mountain walking after grouse is felt not only in lungs renewed and limbs made hard and vigorous, but in a brightened and healthy attitude of the mind toward life which makes it possible to draw into the inmost being the joy of the breeze-earth and is an invigoration to the mental and moral as to the physical nature. The charm of the mountain is always there, but the marksman who keeps to the butts has not gained, at the price of hard exercise, the state of body and mind in which to feel it. The keenness of the eye to see, the freshness and strength of the nerves to receive and enjoy, can be got only from active exercise, made possible by the excitement of sport which stimulates a man to exert himself, as he never do without it.—Saturday Review.

Deserters From Ships.

Jack Tar has an irresistible longing for the shore at times; and gratifies it if he can, even at the price of desertion. On a dark night, when the good ship to which he belongs is anchored in some port, he climbs into the chains and slips out into the waves, determined to risk drowning for a few gulls of fire-water. The guard sometimes give chase—but too late and the culprits get away. Then they have a carouse, at the end of which they are put in chains and spend a few days between decks, lying on cold, hard floor. At the New York Navy Yard the other night two suspicious splashes were heard on the out-bound side of the New York, recently returned from the Kiel festivities. A boat was lowered and sent in pursuit of the escaping men, one of whom would have been drowned if an officer had not resolved his life to save him. Desertions are fortunately becoming more rare of late, but there are always some adventurous ones, who will have shore liberty without asking for it, and who apparently cannot be deterred by the terrors of the regulations.—Once a Week.

Counteracts Snake Bites.

The latest application of the serum therapy is in the use of the blood serum of animals that have been immunized against snake bites. Dr. Thomas R. Fraser of Edinburgh publishes a note in the British Medical Journal of June 15 on this subject. Taking the venom of the cobra of India and of the rattlesnake (Crotalus horridus) of America, he injected them in gradually increasing doses into rabbits, cats and kittens until they were able to withstand injections of ten, twenty, or even fifty times the ordinary fatal doses. Having made certain that these animals were positively immune against the poisons, he took the blood serum and used it in protective inoculations upon other animals. He established that a dog, a rabbit, or a cat, he calls it "anti-venene," of animals protected against large lethal doses of venom is sufficient to prevent the lethal doses of the venom of the most poisonous of serpents from producing death. The application of this method to man has not yet been made, but Dr. Fraser looks forward to it being utilized in India, where the annual deaths from snakebites amount to 20,000.—Medical Record.

The report of the Portuguese census of 1890 has only lately been published. It shows that the population of the little kingdom then numbered 5,049,729, and discloses the almost incredible fact that over four of those five millions in civilized Europe are unable either to read or write; only 979,185 can read and write, and 110,607 more can read a little. An effort may be made to establish 1,300 new primary schools within the next year and a half.

The Berliner Ingenieur lately contained the following American item: "The great American inventor, Edison, is also a great smoker. When people thought he sometimes smokes twenty strong cigars in a day. His father and grandfather likewise were great smokers; the latter nevertheless lived to be 103 years old, and he not only smoked but also chewed tobacco."

THE CURE FOR DIARRHŒA.

DEAR SIRS,—I was suffering very much from Diarrhœa and could not get anything to relieve me. I was told one of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and a few doses completely cured me. [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] d&w2w Melita, Man.

VALUABLE TO KNOW.

Consumption may be more easily prevented than cured. The irritating and harrassing cough will be greatly relieved by the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam that cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all pulmonary troubles. d&w2w

When there is no hope there can be no endeavor.—Johnson.

In his VEGETABLE PILLS, Dr. Parmelee has given to the world the fruits of long scientific research in the whole realm of medical science, combined with new and valuable discoveries never before known to man. For Delicate and Debilitated Constitutions Parmelee's Pills act like a charm. Taken in small doses, the effect is both a tonic and a stimulant, mildly exciting the secretions of the body, giving tone and vigor.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow neglected cold, how differently would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily would we seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? It is not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, pneumonia, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. Is it worse than madness to neglect a cold, and is it folly not to have some good remedy available for its frequent complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Hickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several good, old time herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

There is no oblique way in reproof which takes off the sharpness of it.—Pope

The pangs endured by the early Christian martyrs were no doubt exceeding, but not so prolonged or scarcely more dreadful than those experienced by the sufferers from inflammatory rheumatism—a disease which is easily cured at the outset with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil—a sovereign remedy for pain, a reliable curative of kidney, liver and other complaints, and a medicine of the purest as well as the most salutary kind.

Sure Cure for Asthma.

P. Schiffman, St. Paul, Minn., will mail a trial package of "Schiffman's Asthma Cure," free to any sufferer. He carries his faith by giving it away. Never fails to give instant relief in worst cases. Send and cures where all other fail. Name this paper and send address for a free trial package

PEACHES

Canned peaches are a luxury that most people are afraid they will have to do without this year, owing to their advanced price. If you will avail yourselves of the opportunity we offer for to-morrow you may have nice peaches at a reasonably low price. To-morrow morning we will receive a limited number of boxes of California Peaches, which we will sell at $1.50 per box. Everything considered, this is a bargain, and for this season. You pay from $1.65 to $1.85 per basket for Canadian. Townlands this year and what's the result? You will find one third of them spotted, and besides most of them are very small. There is considerably more in a Box of Californias than in a basket of Canadian. Townlands, and you can almost always depend upon every one of the former being a perfect peach, each one being wrapped in paper, which insures them against bruising.

These California's can be kept with perfect safety until Monday or Tuesday for doing up. Remember TO MORROW, Saturday, is the bargain day for these.

VACANT PORTFOLIO.

May be Given to Sir Hector Langevin.

CURRENT GOSSIP IN OTTAWA.

The Governor-General to Be in Ottawa During the Cabinet Meeting Discussing the New Appointments. Mr. Lowe a Supposed Sop Cranmath.

Ottawa Oct. 21 More than ordinary interest attaches to the meeting of the Cabinet which will be held shortly to consider the filling of two or three vacant seats in the Ministry. That the business to be transacted is important may be gauged by the fact that during previous sessions it has been a special trip to Ottawa in order to be readily available for consultation. Among the matter which will likely be determined upon are the filling of the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Desjardins, date of meeting of Parliament and the appointment of several judicial and other officials.

With regard to the Portfolio of Agriculture public opinion still points to Dr. Montague as successor to Mr. Angers. Relative to the new Cabinet Minister there is considerable uncertainty. It is well known, however, that Sir Hector Langevin would not be unwilling to again assume charge of a department, while Mr. Joncas would promptly vacate his present lucrative editorial chair in order to become guardian of the Great Seal of the Dominion. Ghosard of Jacques Cartier would have had a portfolio long ago had he been inclined to take it. He is said to be tired, however, of politics and as stated by your correspondent is generally looked upon as Judge Fournier's successor on the Supreme Court bench. Should he accept the appointment he will without doubt be Chief Justice of Canada before many years are over. The Hon. Mr. Dansereau, Three Rivers, speaks of him to-night. He came up on Monday last week in the private car of Mr. D. Ghosard, and has been so long spoken of in connection with the Supreme Court that his elevation is only in the ordinary course of events. The bench of the highest tribunal in the Dominion will be strengthened by his presence, as he is one of the most eminent men in his profession, and as a member of the bar, by elevation will leave a void which it will not be easy to fill."

Another subject which the Government will consider this week is the proposed retirement of Mr. Lowe, Deputy Minister of Agriculture. There is no gainsaying the fact that the summary manner with which it was attempted to consummate the deal with Mr. Lowe's case has created a feeling of unrest in the civil service. That the said unfortunate matter will be the supernaunte Mr. Lowe should come in for his share of a newspaper dispatch from Winnipeg is considered by many as hardly treating an old and valued public servant fairly. Mr. Lowe's place in the service is that if an officer can be retired in such a peremptory way without the matter being even mooted to him, other official heads may fall into the basket with equal celerity.

One of the reasons which probably has to do with Lord Aberdeen's flying trip to the Capital next week is the approaching visit of Hall Caine, the well-known author. In connection with this visit, Hagarty and Hall Caine cannot be regarded in the light of a plenipotentiary, being simply a private invitation of a friend. But for those he will, of course, receive a hearty greeting from the Governor-General and Ministers.

The inspection of electric light meters, which took place last week is making rapid progress. In those cities where inspectors have been appointed. In Ottawa the average number inspected per month is 200 otherwise and Montreal an about on a par with the Ottawa meters in use. Belleville, three or four thousand Toronto shows much smaller figures than the Mackenzie Bowell left at 1 o'clock to-day to the Capital Atlantic Express way for Chrysler's farm, where he will deliver an address to-morrow on the occasion of the unveiling of a monument to commemorate the engagement which took place there in 1813.

Mr. Hall, Hagarty Deputy Minister of Inland Revenue, has gone to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, in the Lower Province, to have an interview with Mr. Lemieux, in reference to his case. He carries a letter of introduction from T. D. Craig M.P.

She Had Jilted Two Lovers on the Wedding Day, But the Third Won.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 24.—A runaway bride from two lovers on her wedding day was brought back to this city last night. Miss Bullogh tried to run away from her home on Wednesday morning, but was caught at the depot. She had jilted two lovers on the day after a wedding dress, disappointed two days, and was ordered and bought and had been engaged.

Her father had invited a number of friends and had left her room half an hour before and had returned to find her gone. She had planned the wedding off in a day or two, previously, as rumored.

Yesterday it was announced that she was to marry Andrew Z. Gibson, a prosperous young farmer. The time set was 2 o'clock and the guests watched her arrive at the church. The groom was there also and she wanted to say her prayers at once. The bridal party went into the house and the bride and the bridesmaid went into a room to prepare for the ceremony. This thought was the time when they heard a cry downstairs and the bridesmaid ran out. The bride had stepped upon the porch and was being led off to the ground by the bridesmaid.

Fortunately for her scheme, her lover was looking for the carriage and saw her. With her flowing and gauzy dress and she was carried back into the house. She was put in a room and given a glass of water that they threw on her spoiled her wedding dress. She said she could not be married in this condition, but her parents insisted on the silk dress, put on the best face and the wedding left. The bride and bolt an hour later she was Mrs. Andrew Gibson.

UNIQUE SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

Forty Thousand Demanded For the Ruin of a Playground

Duluth, Sept. 21.—A ruined playground is the basis of a damage suit for $40,000 now on in the district court. The plaintiff is Peter Lund and Amathilda Olson and the defendant is the contracting firm of Fredin & Wilson who grubbed the ground over the Olson home in the east end. The Olsons allege that the land adjoining their home was a splendid playground for their children, that it was a good place to stretch a clothes line, and that on it was a fine well of water. All this has been wrecked, so they claim, by the defendant firm. It is also alleged that the dirt left around by the contractors has ruined the Olson home and rendered it unfit to live in. The health of the children has been damaged, the complainant states, by reason of their now having no place to play.

MR. GILBERT PARKER.

GILBERT PARKER.

No resident of Belleville needs to be told that our young fellow-townsman, Gilbert Parker, has by sheer force of his natural ability, won a high position amongst the authors of fiction in competition with the world.

THE INTELLIGENCER is, therefore, pleased to announce that it has secured the exclusive right to publish in Belleville the latest production of Mr. Parker's fluent pen, which will be commenced in our issue of Saturday next and continued daily until the conclusion has been reached.

"THE TRANSLATION OF A SAVAGE,"

This admirable story of wild life in Canada cannot be procured in any other form than in the INTELLIGENCER. Buy it and read our brilliant townsman's latest and best.

Our 85 Suit.

This seems a small amount for a good suit. It is a small amount, and yet the best tailor now offering a suit at this price, that any other store would flash a big ticket on at $7. While we do not claim it to be a fine suit, we can say with all truthfulness that it is all wool, double breasted and will wear well. For a low price, what more do you want?

Correspondence.

Whilst correspondents will be accorded space for the expression of their ideas on topics of public interest, it must be in all cases understood that the views so expressed are simply those of the correspondents themselves.

To the Editor of the INTELLIGENCER.

SIR,—Will you kindly insert in your valuable paper the following inquiry: What is meant by the proper observance of the Lord's Day?

Perhaps some one will be kind enough to give some light on the subject. Does it mean a day of feasting and parties, for late dinners on Sunday evening, thus depriving servants of attending church on time and often too late to get there at all. Will the heads of the family can just leave their seats at the table and in a short time take their seats in their pews at church, the servant has to take her own meal, wash up the dishes for the whole family and hurry off to church, to find the service half over and the people looking over their shoulders to see who that is coming in church so late again. This is done by people who do not practice what they preach. If they would have their Sunday evening meal a little earlier it would be a great advantage to the servant and she could get to church as early as the rest of the family.

Your respectful subscriber,

JOHN WONNACOTT.

Autumn Straw Hat Association.

The Autumn Straw Hat Association has just been formed. It was organized by mortals who believe that it is perfectly proper proper to wear straw hats after "the bell has rung" on September 14, provided the temperature is justifiable. There is no true reason why the man should first cease his brains under a felt hat when the mercury is trying to crawl out of the tube, no matter whether it be August or September. There have been some wonderful climatic changes during the past few years in the north land. Summer has seemed loath to give way to autumn. Vacation days have ended, but the school children find themselves steving over their studies, while only those who are reading of the arctic regions can cool their imaginations. Jack Frost has been coming late and stay ing so long that spring has to see her uncle and borrow ear muffs. There are some places where straw hats and linen suits would be reasonable for Christmas presents. So long as the September sun is reminiscent of the heated sultry dog days, straw hats are the sensible sort of head gear to wear.

NORTH HASTINGS EXHIBITION

THE ANNUAL FAIR AT STIRLING A BIG SUCCESS.

The Weather Keen Competitions in Most of the Classes Splendid Exhibits of Horses and Cattle. An Excellent Set of Prizes Some of the Prize Fat Stock Exhibits in The Prize List.

The annual fair of the North Hastings Agricultural Society, held at Stirling village, on Thursday and Friday, was a big success. The weather in point of exhibits it excelled its predecessors. The attendance was not as large as last year, but the management had no reason to complain. The weather in no did his work well and the result was that all who came went away well pleased with what they saw.

The competition in some of the classes, especially in the horses and cattle, was keen and the judges had their hands full to decide the worthy awards. The show of horses was far better than the exhibit at our own fair. The heavy draught class were handsome animals, and the teams under fifteen and a half hands, of which there were seven, were all first class drivers and stylish beasts. The cattle were as good as those shown in this city, and quite as numerous.

The society has an able list of officers, and they work harmoniously together for one common cause—the advancement of their fair. The President and Secretary are perhaps two of the hardest working men on the list. The former, Mr. Thos. H. McKee, was here, there and everywhere attending to the wants of the exhibitors and directing affairs generally. Mr. Wilmot Vandervoort, the genial and obliging Secretary, while being kept busy all day long, always had time to salute his many friends in his kindliest way. The INTELLIGENCER wishes to express its gratitude to Mr. Vandervoort for courtesies extended to its representative. Following are the list of officers.

President, Thos. H. McKee; 1st Vice-President, John H. Reid; 2nd Vice-President, John M. Ashley; Secretary, Wilmot Vandervoort; Treasurer, Peter Fargey. Auditors, Jas. Haggerty, W. S. Martin.

Directors—Wm. Stewart, jr., Wilmot Vandervoort, Jas. Haggerty, G. L. Scott, Robert Good, William Edwards, W. H. Bird, Jas. A. Stewart, Murney Coulter.

The principal exhibitors in horses were F. W. Taylor, John H. Reid, M. Coulter, Jas. McComb, B. White, Wm. Hawkins, I. Mitchell, J. and W. Heath, A. D. Forster, M. Sullivan, G. A. Bolton, C. and J. Kingston, T. McKee, J. A. Stewart, R. Rogers, W. Stillman and T. Reid.

In cattle the principal exhibitors were Thos. Walker, jr., Edmund Caverly, Gerunan Bailey, John Seely, E. W. Brooks, D. H. Ketcheson, W. H. Phillips, R. N. Bird, A. Hume, G. A. Bolton, F. W. Taylor, Jas. A. Stewart, Peter Fargey and H. B. Chisholm.

In sheep those who showed fine stock were W. Stillman, R. J. Garbutt, M. Sullivan, Jas. McMurter, J. Bailey, E. W. Brooks, D. H. Ketcheson and W. H. Phillips.

In swine there was some splendid stock. The principal exhibitors were E. Caverly, A. Terrill, J. A. Stewart, R. J. Garbutt, A. Hume, T. Sine and Wm. Clazie.

Jesse Carr, who took twenty-five prizes at the Belleville fair on his poultry, swept the board at Stirling. His record are the finest collection shown at any of the fairs this year.

In Advanced Years

The strength and pure blood necessary to resist the effects of cold seasons are given by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I have for the last 25 years of my life been complaining of a weakness of the lungs and colds in the head, especially in the winter. Last fall I was again attacked. Reading of Hood's Sarsaparilla I was led to try it. I am now taking the fifth bottle with good results. I can positively say that I have not spent a winter as free from coughs or pains and difficult breathing spells for the last 25 years as was last winter. I can lie down and sleep all night without any annoyance from cough or pain in the lungs or asthmatic difficulty." E. M. CHAMBERS, J. P., Cornhill, N. B.

YACHTING.

Mr. Charles D. Rose's challenge for the America's Cup has been officially confirmed by the Royal Victoria Yacht Club and by himself.

Another unsuccessful attempt was made yesterday to sail a race for the international trophy for half raters. The U.S. craft Ethelwynn was first away, but the British representative Spruce IV had a long lead when she had to retire, owing to a lack of wind. The big steamer Richard Peck, which greatly interfered with Vasilly in the first race by going along under her lee and sucking her down to leeward, and also crossed the course in front of her, once more showed the brutality of her captain by crossing between the contestants. Hardly had the Peck got out of the way when a big three-masted schooner, the Belle Helvig, of Boston, Captain Fisher, sailing before the wind, made it necessary for Spruce to double on her tack. Before coming about the Britisher was about three quarters of a mile ahead, but this action put her back fully a quarter of a mile. Ethelwynn began to pick up at this time, and was constantly nearing Spruce when the time limit had expired, and the race was declared off until to-morrow.

HORSE AND TRACK.

At the breeders' meeting at Hamilton yesterday, two records were made, pacing and half mile heats. Locust beat Prince Brino. Best time 1:22. 2.22 trot—Dick Mitchell 1, Senator 2, Hero McDonald 3, Bonnie Bell 4. Best time 2:19½. 2:15 trot or pace—Proctor 1, Gertie B 2, Belmont Chief 3, American Lad 4. Best time 2:20½.

BASE BALL.

Providence won on the sixth game of the Stuart Reid Cup series, and of the Irogy. The score was nine runs to 6.

Keenan of Wilkesbarre won 30 out of the 40 games that he played last season, and holds the Eastern League record.

Burkett of Cleveland, the leading batter of the league, is the smallest man on the ever won that distinction. His average is .418, 18 points less than that of Duffy's last year.

President Freedman of New York says that he is going to trade Rusie off. He thinks Puller, the New York shortstop, is worth a barrel of Coonays and Shannons. He didn't think much of either McAuley or Pitchers Rudderham or Callahan.

Karl's Clover Root will purify your blood clear your complexion, regulate your bowels and make your head clear as a bell. 25c, 50c, and $1. Sold by Alex. Hay.

A Caution! A Warning!

If on this morning your nose in the morning turns red, flakes off, or becomes colored with blood, especially on one side, lose no time in applying a remedy. Catarrh of the worst kind has become seated, the walls are sore and full of small ulcers, and if not soon cured will be fatal to every grade of catarrh. "A stitch in time saves nine." Use Chase's Catarrh Cure.

On Behalf of the Institute.

A large and enthusiastic gathering of ladies, to consider the building of an entertainment for the benefit of the Mechanics' Institute, was held yesterday afternoon in the Institute Hall. It was decided to hold an entertainment similar to that which was given last year, in the drill shed on or about the 20th of October. The ladies are earnest in behalf of the project and will carry it to a successful issue.

—A four year old boy, who will not tell his name or even where he lived, had his leg taken off by a Grand Trunk railway train near Dixon, Ont., yesterday morning. He was taken to the hospital at Berlin, and never shed a tear nor complained of the pain he must have suffered. No one knows who he is, and his identity cannot be established.

Stationary Engineers in Convention at the Capital Printers Busy Preparing for the Exhibited Lucky Cesion Ottawa Labor Men Petition for Sunday Cars.

Ottawa, Sept 26—Prof Saunders has received from Mr Mackay, superintendent of the branch experimental farm at Indian Head the following particulars regarding the crops on that farm, of which the threshing has just been completed:

Red Fyfe wheat—One small field gave 45 bushels and 30 pounds per acre. Another large field yielded 42 bushels per acre.

Stanley wheat—One of the new hybrids produced on the Central Farm yielded 39 bushels per acre.

Eighteen varieties of barley have also been threshed, the lowest yield being 31 bushels, 29 pounds per acre, the highest 60 bushels per acre. None of the barley have been threshed, but the crops are very heavy.

Beauford Greathead, of Hampshire, England, who is walking from Vancouver to Montreal, reached here today Mr. Greathead started from Vancouver in March, and has made the trip in slow stages. He has done the whole trip on foot, and nearly walked, partly for the fun of the thing and partly to see the country, with a view to lecturing on Canada on his return to the Old Country. He is the latest of other cross-continent walkers who have passed through here he has no fact in connection with his walk. But as in other cases of the kind he has undertook to make the trip without money. He says he has succeeded, as he did not pay a cent for board or clothes. He will stay in Ottawa a week and then go on to Montreal, where he will spend a month preparing his notes of the trip.

At the last meeting of the Trades and Labor Council the question of Sunday cars was discussed and a motion carried to have a petition be presented to the City Council at their first meeting after the civic elections in January next, asking that the people be submitted to the people to vote as to whether they are in favor of Sunday cars or not. An information had been made that the vote in favor of Sunday cars was a small one and did not represent the feelings of workingmen generally. The Journal interviewed the heads of various labor unions in the city on the point and a majority were emphatically in favor of Sunday cars.

The annual convention of the Canadian Association of Stationary Engineers opened here to-day. Delegates are present from Toronto, Montreal, Kingston, Berlin, Wiarton, Kincardine, Windsor, Guelph, London, Brockville, Peterboro and other points. The officers are; J. J. York, president, Montreal; W. J. Hargreave, vice president Toronto; Duncan Robertson, treasurer, Hamilton, and James Dewis, secretary, Kingston. Mayor Borbridge extended a civic welcome to delegates, to which President York fittingly replied. Thomas Wensley, president of Weal Branch, extended the greeting of Ottawa engineers. In the afternoon the delegates visited the Exhibition and to-night the business session commenced.

A press despatch from Winnipeg stating that the Manitoba Legislature would be dissolved shortly created much comment in the city. Later advices say the Provincial Ministers deny that they will be an election this year, but that the impression prevails that an appeal will be made to the province early in 1896. The inference from this statement is that there is no likelihood of the Provincial Government receding from its position on the school question.

A valuable agricultural atlas of the Dominion, showing the boundary lines of constituencies upon which the last census of the Dominion was based, has just been issued by the Queen's printer besides over 200 maps of constituencies the work contains a handy digest of the by returns, and will be of great service to political students.

Sir Julian Pauncefote is expected here next week to confer with Lord Aberdeen and Ministers with a view to the appointment of a commission to assess the amount of damages in which Canadian sealers are entitled under the Behring Sea award. The United States Government admit that British Columbia sealers should receive compensation, but as Congress declined to vote the money at its last session, it was agreed upon by the two Governments the amount must now be determined by arbitration.

Ward 1 Board of Education met in Bethune's office last night to appoint the trustee to fill the vacancy in that institution, for the next two years. Fifty-five acres of wheat averaged 19 bushels 20 acres of barley 25 to the acre, and 20 acres of oats 60 bushels. Peas, Indian corn and other crops under cultivation give bushels of grain above been produced in the district of Manitoba in South-West Assiniboia and the same may be said of the rest of the province.

Lord Aberdeen in an interview to-day said that all that the storm prevented him from seeing of Ontario was a fifty mile drive. He says that very reports come in from Atlantic coast as well as from Manitoba and the Northwest of a bountiful harvest. On one of the great stone in the Rideau Canal Customs Officer at Smiths Falls noticed a man trying to smuggle a bottle of whiskey into the country. He followed him to the Canadian side and found the bottle in the man's pocket. He was fined $50 and costs.

A fall of snow is reported from the Northwest territories and in Assiniboia and Alberta to the depth of from one to two feet in the Western districts. In the Edmonton district fell to 32 in Edmonton and Battleford the place about 30 degrees in the shade on the morning of the 20th and 32 degrees in the evening.

The Chicago Irishmen Declare They Are in the Right to Map Until the Dog Floats Above a Free and Independent Irish Senate.

Chicago Sept 26. When the Irish Convention assembled yesterday Secretary Sutton read the letter issued by order and directed to members from the Executive Committee. The report of the committee on credentials consisted of the following extracts of correspondence:

In response to delegates' No notice of the number of delegates or proxies to be represented was submitted. Despite the fact that Pittsburg received nine votes, Minneapolis and St. Louis seven, and Pennsylvania [illegible] added to the list of legates. In an interview with Pennsylvania men supported the admission but the convention, by the overwhelming majority, refused to admit the report of the committee, a delegate in the body of the hall shouting, "They are trouble some men; we don't want them." After this the report was adopted.

The report of the committee on permanent organization continued the temporary organization and it was adopted. An amendment to add O'Donovan Rossa to the list of vice presidents was received to coldly that he declined to allow it to be voted on.

In opening the chair as permanent presiding officer, ex-Congressman Flaherty made a fiery speech.

"We are the friends of every enemy of England," he said, "and the enemy of every friend of England, and we want to drive it home and put it where the mast until the teeth of the lying Whigs are loosened from their pockets and the dirty lying mouths. The cause of Ireland is the kept harlot of the spoils of the British Empire. Some of the men seem to be afraid we may complicate this country with England. Suppose we do. Are the English dare to fire the first shot. Let the American Government and the British Government understand that we are in the fight to stay. That we are enlisted not for one or two or three years, but for the war. We will enlist our young Irishmen in regular battalions. We want to be ready when the time comes. What can do we care for English sentiment? We don't want their sentiment. That he was suddenly to offend the French sentiment, but we do want to offend most seriously our British friends. We mustn't go to the death knell or Whiggery in Irish politics; we sound the keynote of the absolute independence of the land that gave us birth; we are here to renew the work that Wolf Tone started in France 100 years ago. We went out to England the same measure that England, in her turn, will do to us. We will use our efforts, means, and, if necessary, [illegible] for the accomplishment of Irish Independence. Scott's Sarsaparilla

ACUTE Inflammatory Rheumatism is produced by an excess of uric acid in the blood. Paralysis is nearly a dead circulation produced by impure and imperfect blood. So-called neuralgia of the thigh is sciatic rheumatism; scrofulitic rheumatism is hereditary; syphilitic results from syphilis; gout is caused by high living; sluggish circulation affects the heart.

"THE KIND THAT CURES"

Thus the whole line of rheumatic diseases owe their being to an affected circulation of impure blood. No person can suffer a rheumatic pain that has a free and equal circulation of pure blood, and this so counts for Scott's Sarsaparilla curing the supposed incurable cases. It eradicates all rheumatic poisons and acids from the blood and equalizes the circulation.

MINISTERS AND PUBLIC WORKS.

Liberal newspapers and politicians are in the habit of charging members of the ministry with "bribing" and "corrupting" the electorate by the promise of public works, remarks the Montreal Gazette. What Mr. Laurier would be in office we do not know, for he has never been at the head of a government, but as leader of the Opposition, on his recent tour in the West, he showed a very promising willingness to see opportunities for the advantageous expenditure of public money. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, in the tour he has just finished, was more uncompromising; he is not, and never will be the art of saying smooth things, and has not Mr. Laurier's silver tongued oratory to delight an expecting audience with an ear-tickling arrangement of pleasant words. The Premier's "yes" and "no" are those of the plain spoken Englishman; he does not know how to cloud his meaning in a mist of rhetoric. His outspokenness has given offence in Manitoba, which is not a whit behind the older provinces in the boldness of its demand upon the Dominion treasury. In reply to a deputation which impressed upon him the importance of improving the navigation of the Red river, the Premier said in the course of his tour they had travelled six weeks and met numerous deputations and Indian pow-wows; but, Indians or white men, they never found any who did not begin with something they wanted and end with something they demanded. The question brought up was not new to the Government or its members. He did not know how far it was correct to say that promises had been made or what those promises were; but he had laid it [illegible] in his private affairs and in [illegible] capacity, as a member of Parliament and a member of the Government, never to make promises he was not sure he could carry out. The Government over which he presided, and to which he had had the honor to belong for the last seventeen years, had developed the resources of the country as far as the revenues would justify; he did not say that all had been done that he would have liked to see done. Only in the last session of Parliament it had been agreed not to involve the country in any greater debt than was absolutely necessary, while the revenues were falling off.

This was uncommonly straight, and the expectant people of Winnipeg did not like it. They took especial offence at being, as they say, compared to Indian chiefs who want an increase of their pay. Premier Bowell seems to have been in a funny humor that day, and surely he may be allowed to have his little joke like any other man. No doubt the Winnipeg deputation could have stood the joke if it had been seasoned with the promise of a subsidy; but to be made the subject of Sir Mackenzie's badinage and meet with a blank refusal to their demand upon the Treasury was more than they could stand. Yet one does not see how they would have been a bit better off if, instead of the Premier's straight refusal, they had been fed upon the wind of Mr. Laurier's circumlocutions. Now, at any rate, they know where they are without any "if's" or modifying clauses. Sir Mackenzie has told them that the state of the Treasury will not permit the spending of money on the improvement of the Red river. This may be unpleasant news for the people of Winnipeg, but it will not be unwelcome to the rest of the Dominion. This is a good time to keep a tight hand on the purse strings, and in doing so the Premier and Mr. Foster will be supported by public feeling throughout the Dominion though there will, of course, be local dissatisfaction among the people who cannot get what they want.

The Hamilton Spectator also devotes an article to the subject, in the course of which it remarks: "For our part we think the Premier is to be commended for his candor and frankness of speech. A man who refuses to make a promise which he knows he cannot fulfil must gain the respect even of those whom he may disappoint, while the [illegible] matters his promises like [illegible] gain a present advantage, and straightway forget them, cannot hold long the confidence even of his friends.

"As between the sharp Mr. Laurier and the blunt Sir Mackenzie on the plane of gentleman [illegible]

The place is only [illegible] from Belleville and [illegible] to [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] appearance. The [illegible] building was used for the exhibition and was well filled. Upon the ground floor was to be seen a large display of [illegible] roots, vegetables, dairy products and canned goods. The upper portion was used exclusively for the display of fine arts, etc., and it was remarked by many to have been the best ever seen at that fair. The walls were adorned with paintings in oil and water colors and also crayon drawings. The principal exhibitors were Miss Grace Daly, Mrs. N. S. Mordon, Mrs. F. P. Mendell and J. L. Foster. In fine arts the chief exhibitors were Mrs. N. S. Mordon, Mrs. F. P. Mendell, Miss Stella Barber, Miss Grace Daly and Mrs. M. Coulter. The entries in some classes were so numerous and the competition so keen that the judges found their duties no light task.

The large enclosure where the horses, cattle, sheep, swine and other exhibits were shown was also well filled up. The display of horses and cattle was an exceptionally large one and in both classes some fine animals were shown.

The principal exhibitors in cattle were J. C. Hanley, H. K. Denyes, Dr. Faulkner, J. Parks, G. W. Collins and F. Hicks. Mr. Hanley showed 15 head of fine Durham cattle and also some grade cattle. Jersey animals were quite numerous and some of the animals were fine.

There were a large number of sheep shown by R. J. Garbutt, J. C. Hanley, A. Brown and A. Terrill.

In swine Berkshire, Suffolk and Yorkshires were shown by Wm. Clazie, R. J. Garbutt, J. M. Hurley and A. Terrill.

In horses there were a number of entries in all the classes and the judges were kept busy until late in the afternoon.

Messrs. J. Carre, A. Brown and J. J. Ross exhibited some fine fowls of various varieties.

EXHIBITION OF SPEED.

The centre of attraction during the afternoon was the speeding in the ring. There were but two events, but these furnished some good sport.

STALLION RACE.

The first event was the stallion race. There were but two starters, namely, Dennis, owned by G. B. Foster and Symbol, owned by W. A. Chapman. Symbol proved an easy winner in the two heats which were trott [illegible].

FREE FOR ALL.

For this event there were four entries, namely, John Latta's Little Maud, W. Schryver's Frank G., W. Chapman's Jessie Stanton and A. Gerow's Picket Boy. The latter horse proved to be an easy winner, Frank G. second and Jessie Stanton third. Little Maud was withdrawn after the first heat. The following is the summary:

Picket Boy	1 1 1
Frank G.	2 2 3
Jessie Stanton	3 4 2
Little Maud	4 dr.

The judges were John Johnston, G. [illegible] and H. Tennant.

After the completion of the speeding events the crowd, which was large, commenced to depart and at six o'clock the place was nearly deserted. The officers of the society are contemplating all over ready to impart information to those in need of it. The following are the officers: President, A. Herrity; 1st Vice-President, Wm. Clazie; 2nd Vice-President, Chas. Long; Secretary, P. R. Palmer; Treasurer, Chas. Hudson.

Directors—Geo. Caldwell, Chas. Long, A. M. Farlane, J. L. Newton, H. A. Fairman, Holt. McGuire, Samuel Good, James Phillips, P. R. Daly.

Notes.

A collision occurred between two horses driven by L. Terwilleger and J. Latta. Both vehicles were somewhat damaged.

Geo. Hall's rig was run into by another party and he was thrown out, but fortunately escaped injury. Some spokes were broken out of his buggy.

A stand should be erected for the judges, who were compelled to sit upon the fence in order to watch the speeding events.

Messrs. Corbett & Prindle, J. Finegan and H. Fowell, of this city, exhibited a number of fine carriages. The Walker Co. also showed agricultural implements.

Mr. W. B. Northrup, M. P. for East Hastings, was unable to be present, as he was compelled to attend court at Bancroft.

The fair was in every particular a success and a credit to the Association.

In the carriage horse class for lady driving team of horses there were four entries, and the competition was close, that one of the judges added a subscription to the prizes and gave each lady a 1st prize of $2 each.

Mr. H. Ashley gave an exhibition of pacing by the celebrated stallion Frank Smith, which was much enjoyed by the spectators.

No fakirs were allowed upon the grounds.

A large number were present from the city.

The ladies have been busy for some time preparing the fancy work offered for sale, and their efforts were crowned with success. During the afternoon a large amount of fancy work was disposed of. In the evening a very successful concert was held. A double male quartette rendered two choruses most acceptably, the first, "Softly Falls the Moonlight," being particularly good. Mr. J. N. Doyle sang "The Holy City" and another solo. Miss Taylor gave two recitations at each appearance she had to respond to an encore. Miss Anderson, Miss Ferguson and Frank Ferguson also gave recitations. Harry Milne sang two solos in good voice. Prof. Canfield and Mr. Bilton also sang solos and Mr. Canfield and Mr. Doyle rendered a duet. There was a large audience present and all enjoyed the entertainment. During an intermission refreshments were served. The proceeds amounted to about $75.

AN INGENIOUS BURGLAR.

He Attempts to Chloroform Two Servant Girls—Frightened Away.

Between eleven and twelve o'clock last night what looks like a cleverly arranged burglary was frustrated. W. A. Huffman's restaurant was entered from the rear door by a tall, slim man, who proceeded up stairs to the servants' room on the second floor. The story told by the girls is that one of them felt a smothering sensation which partially awakened her. She threw up one hnd and in doing so it came in contact with a man's arm. She at once called to the other young lady in the room and someone in the room and she jumped up and tried to light the lamp. Failing to find a match she awakened Mr. and Mrs. Huffman, who slept in an adjourning room. At this the intruder ran down stairs.

When Mr. and Mrs. Huffman entered the girls' room they smelled a strong odor of chloroform and the man was evidently endeavoring to put them under the influence of the drug when they awoke. What the man's intentions were it is impossible to tell, but if he had succeeded he could have ransacked the place at his own sweet will. The police could find no trace of the midnight visitor when they arrived.

Marshall-Smith Wedding.

At Hamilton, on the 24th inst., the Rev. Sanford E. Marshall, B.A., B.D., of St. Catharines, and formerly a professor in Albert College, was united in marriage to Miss Alice A. Smith, Mus. Bac., second daughter of J. H. Smith, P. S. Inspector, Wentworth. The ceremony took place in the Hannah st. Methodist church and was performed by Rev. John Kay, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. G. W. Kerby, B. A., of St. Catharines, and Rev. Edon E. Marshall, B.A., brother of the groom. The bride wore a handsome reception gown with a white picture hat and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. As the party left the church, leaning upon the arm of her father, the organ peal d forth the bridal chorus from Lohengrin. The bridesmaids were Miss Louise and Miss Annie, sisters of the bride, and the groom was supported by Rev. F. W. Hollinrake, B. A., of Hamilton. Mr. Lyman Marshall, brother of the groom, and the Messrs. Herbert, Elmer and Percy Smith, cousins of the bride, acted as ushers. The church was beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers by the Epworth League of Christian Endeavor Society. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal party and guests left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, and were entertained at the home of the bride's parents, Rose Terrace. Mr and Mrs. Marshall left on the nine o'clock train, bearing with them hearty congratulations of their friends. They were the recipients of numerous beautiful presents, among which was an upright piano from the bride's parents and an easy chair from her co-workers in the Epworth League of Christian Endeavor. During the day telegrams and letters of congratulations were received from friends at a distance who were unable to be present.

WORLD'S FAIR AT COE HILL

THE WOLLASTON AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S THIRTEENTH EXHIBITION.

Better in Many Respects Than Former Years—Two Large Excursions Trains Take In Large Crowds of People—Visitors From Long Distances—Dancing and Other Amusements Play No Part in the Entertainment—Stock and Vegetables Good.

The Coe Hill fair has come to be an annual event of great importance to the township of Wollaston, and you will hear more talk about it throughout the county than you would of the great Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893. Coe Hill fair in the world's fair of the north, for it always draws large numbers from the C. O. R. as well as all the residents of the township surrounding.

Yesterday was the day and the weather was ideal, for either an exhibition or a fair. A train of eight or nine coaches pulled out from Trenton at 6.30 in the morning, carrying nearly one hundred people from the town, this city and the county round about. At Frankford half a hundred more got on board, and at every stop the load kept increasing till standing room was at a premium. At Marmora a party of young people boarded the train bent on having a good time and letting the other excursionists know they were there. The ladies and gentlemen exchanged head gear and wraps and paraded up and down the train, one young man in particular making himself quite ludicrous by wearing a young lady's coon skhanter. Their procession was augmented every moment by a rural swain attracted by the pretty face or seductive smile of one of Marmora's fair daughters. Several Belleville lawyers, bound for court at Bancroft, got on at Eldorado and other points, and went as far as Rathbun. When the train pulled into Coe Hill station there was a large crowd from the rural district gathered to see the sights.

The first order upon leaving the train was a hustle for something to eat, and those who did not have a basket, and there were many, climbed the sandy hill to Charlie Steenburg's boarding house and dining pavilion, or went on further to dine with the Methodists. We dined at Charlie Steenburg's and the man on the door told a truthful story when he shouted "Square meal for twenty-five cents!" Of course there was potatoes and meat, pickles, etc., but the staple article on the table seemed to be pie. Some ate nothing but pie, and the genial host seemed well pleased when they did The slaughter lasted for over two hours and Charlie was richer by several dollars and his patrons were all satisfied. Those who had baskets squatted down anywhere and everywhere, on the station platform, inside the station, on lumber piles, on waggon tongues and in the wood. There was one thing that everybody got and that was sand; they got it in their butter, in their bread, in their tea and in their eyes.

After dinner everybody wanted to see the place and they waded through more sand to see it. There are no sidewalks in Coe Hill and you can either walk the fence or wade through the shifting sands. On the way up we encountered a tent by the wayside, where a man was taking tintypes for a quarter each, and many a half carned dollar went into his treasury. It was a temptation that the rural swain with his best girl could not overcome. The photographer was prepared with all kinds of a large stock of lenses, and it was a [illegible] fact, for he had some hard tussles with some of the faces who wanted their "pictur tuk."

Another interesting sight was a fiddler in a red flannel shirt and faded Alsatian suit mounted on a pile of lumber, while two sets of men and women "promenaded," "crossed over," "circled," "balanced all" and "swung" to the tune of the "Irish Washerwoman," "Money Musk" and other favorite tunes. A woman of forty or fifty has a partner a boy of twelve and many other couples were also unevenly matched, and they danced to their hearts' delight, all oblivious of the crowd of onlookers, or the interest they were creating. They danced, too, on a rough plank platform partly exposed to the glare of the burning sun, and the faster the perspiration ran down their faces the faster they danced.

We started out to write about the fair, but we have wandered away by the many novel scenes present to us. The fair has been held annually for thirteen years and has passed through many vicissitudes, owing to the lack of funds and sparsely settled country surrounding the village, but the officers and directors have persevered and the show has long since passed the experimental stage. The exhibition is held in the town hall and the grounds surrounding, but both are too small for the rapidly growing number of exhibits. In the building were shown roots, grain, garden produce, domestic manufactures and fancy work, and judging by the exhibits the northern townships had fair to soon become dangerous rivals of the southern townships in all the departments. There was a large show of stock, and amongst it were many good animals. There were a number of one-draft teams and some very good single drivers.

The officers of the society are all men who take a great interest in the fair and labor for its success. The society has now over seventy-five members and the number is increasing annually. Following are the officers of the society:

H. L. Warden, Pres.; Geo. Pattison, Vice. Pres.; F. V. Gunter, Sec'y.; Alex. Watts, Treas.; D. Y. Gunter and Geo. Pattison, Auditors. Directors—Alex. Watt, David Peacock, Chas. Payne, Steven Blackburn, Wm. Nugent, John Gilroy and D. Y. Gunter.

The competition was keen in every class, owing to the large number of exhibitors. Following is a list of the principal exhibitors: David Peacock, John H. Gilroy, Andrew Bird, Marion Gilroy, Henry Foster, Joseph Blackburn, D. Y. Gunter, R. H. Wallington, Alex. Pettitt, W. H. Gunter, John Blackburn, Henry Blackburn, G. W. Gilroy, John Short, Steven Blackburn, Alex. Maitland, Colin McGregor, Edwin Blackburn, John Henderson, Jas. Wilson, H. T. Miller, T. B. Watt, Geo. H. Campbell, Paris Heard, Geo. Hennessy, Thos. Pattison, David Nicholson, Alex. Thomson, John Wagar, Jas. Henderson, C. W. Gunter, Wm. Bristol, Wm. Nugent, Thos. Nugent, Alex. Watt, Lawrence Hurst, D. W. Rollins, H. L. Warden, F. V. Gunter, Wm. Neal, David Laveridge, Chas. Payne, Wm. Elliott, H. Bearmont and Christopher Jones.

The first train pulled out from the station with a good load on board at two o'clock, but the bulk of the crowd remained for the last train, which left about four o'clock. The latter train was crowded and was compelled to run quite slow over the rough road. No accident happened to mar the day's pleasure, which speaks well for the officials in charge of the large trains.

While Coe Hill fair may be called the "World's Fair," it is said there are several other township fairs in the north equally as good, notably Ormsby and Maynooth.

THE SCOLLIE MURDER.

Robert and Bessie Gray to be Tried at Peterborough For the Murder of Robt. Scollie.

PETERBOROUGH, Sept. 26.—(Special)—At the Assizes here this morning the Grand Jury brought in a true bill against Robert and Bessie Gray, charged with the murder of Robert Scollie. The case of the young couple will come on before the jury is empanelled. R. C. Clute, Q. C., is Crown prosecutor while the prisoners are defended by W. A. Stratton.

Will be at Hotel Quinte, Wednesday Oct. 2nd.

TORONTO'S FAIR IS OVER.

The great attraction in Toronto during the fair have been the windows of the Dorenwend's Co., Ltd., whose men and fashionable styles of Hair Goods were admired by thousands of people, and the business done by the firm was remarkable. Prof. Dorenwend, manager of the Company, has this year made a great effort to show nothing but the very choicest goods and still sell them at a very reasonable figure; he tells us that the new styles have struck home that in order to keep up to the demand the firm had to double its stock. A great deal of long hair to arrange the Chignon so much in vogue in London and Paris is worn also for the front. The styles of parted bangs are in great demand. The firm manufactures a style called the Lolhan bang front of wavy curly hair with invisible parting, the Grena bang, Victoria coil forelock and many new and fine goods made of featherweight foundation, still shades and dumbbie. Their gentlemen's toupees are selling very fast, every bald gentleman should have one. The leading people everywhere are now wearing them. As this is Prof. Dorenwend's last visit to Belleville this year all should take this opportunity. Remember Hotel Quinte, Wednesday, Oct. 2nd.

Have You Thought of It?

For four thousand years or more the world groaned, suffered, and fumed about its corns, for there was no positive relief—no certain and painless cure until Dr. Scott Putnam gave to the world his great Corn Extractor. If there's anything now it is a result of carelessness, for the remedy is at hand. Try Putnam's Corn Extractor, it is sure, painless, and prompt. Beware of substitutes.

Whenever the body has been weakened by disease, it should be built up by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this!

YACHTING.

"Vitax" writes to the Globe from Boston:—Americans boast by a slight hypothesis, that the Herreshoff 30-rater Niagara has shown her heels to all of the English boats, including Dunraven's Audrey. What of it? The English boats have likewise shown their heels to the Niagara about 20 times, and Dunraven's improved 1894 boat Audrey, has beaten Niagara (America's best) in about one-half of their races. Inyoni, an 1891 English boat, beat Niagara in her first race and again in about every race for the season finished so far ahead of the 1895 Yankee wonders Niagara and Isolde, that they could hardly have "seen her heels."

HORSE AND TRACK.

Dubuque, Iowa, Sept. 25.—Six thousand persons witnessed the three-cornered match race between John R. Gentry, Joe Patchen and Fidol this afternoon. Gentry won three heats easily, equaling his mark of 2.03¾, and placed to his credit the fastest heat of the year, and the fastest third heat ever paced or trotted in a race. Fidol was the favorite with the spectators, but the other horses outclassed him. Patchen finished so easily in the first two heats that Curry was cautioned by the judges. In the final heat he finished on Gentry's wheel under the whip. Summary:

John R. Gentry	1 1 1
Joe Patchen	2 2 2
Fidol	3 3 3

Time, 2.05¾, 2.03, 2.03¾.

A note did not break the world's trotting record on the Stanford track at Spring field yesterday. Try as he would the famous horse could not lower 2.03¾. The high wind which prevailed all day shut off all hope of a broken record.

THE WHEEL.

Colourg, Sept. 25.—A relay road race took place to-day between Campbellford and Cobourg bicycle clubs. The two teams were evenly matched at the half-way point. Arden, of Campbellford, rode from Grafton to Cobourg, eight miles in 21 minutes; Laird, of Cobourg, rode from Grafton to Cobourg in 24½ minutes; Lutey, of Cobourg, made the eight miles between Cobourg to Colborne in 27 minutes. Returning he rode from Colborne to Cobourg, sixteen miles, in 50 minutes. The race will likely be called off and run again next week. The distance from Cobourg to Campbellford is 30 miles. The prizes were won by the winners in 5 hours and 3 minutes. The riders were—Campbellford—F. Smith, Geo. Hopkins, J. Bellamy, Jos. Reynolds, W. Neill, J. Archer, F. W. Gaudrie. For Cobourg—H. A Grand Trunk Man Married.

Wesley Pringle, a popular employee at the Grand Trunk shops, was married last evening to Miss Lily Goodsell, only daughter of Mr. E. Goodsell, College Hill. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. W. Comfort, in Bed or Out.

A warm, wholesome and economical bed quilt may be made with Fibre Chamois. One thickness of it properly covered will make a lighter and warmer quilt than if wadding was used, and will prove far more sanitary, because, though a great warmth producer, Fibre Chamois is perfectly porous in its nature and light in weight. These same qualities are the ones which make it so ideal for use in men's, women's and children's clothing. A coat or wrap lined with it will never admit the least breath of wind or raw, cold air, and so is invaluable in increasing the comfort of those whose daily duties keep them much out of doors.

Battalion Notes.

First and foremost amongst external curatives of disease is Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was badly with Dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and before I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had formerly used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using three bottles of the Vegetable Discovery the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 50 years old, and after using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

HE HAD TRIED IT.

The Scheme Was Unusual—In Other But Unprofitable to Leader.

A lean, cadaverous man, with a sad face entered a certain fifth avenue saloon the other night and found the bartender alone. "I have called here," he began.

"Nothing for you!" brusquely interrupted the bartender.

"But there may be, sir. Please hear me out. I have a proposition to make you. You want custom—I want beer."

"I don't want anything of the kind."

You want it! You must, sir. I am full of beer. I drink it and go out doors. Standing in front of your door I begin to groan and moan and yell. Six or eight pedestrians halt to find out what the trouble is. I yell some more and fall down and squirm and kick and have a fit. In ten minutes I draw a crowd of one hundred. Distribute in front of a saloon and what is the result—the inevitable result—the cash result to that saloon."

The bartender shook his head.

"Sir," continued the man, "you are a man of business. You can see 400 per cent profit a mile away. You press that button and I do the rest. For one glass of beer I guarantee you at least twenty customers."

"It wouldn't work," said the bartender as he turned away.

"But why? Nothing could make thirst—thirst demands lager—lager is found only in saloons."

A fellow had that very trick for me last night."

"And fifty customers rushed in here and asked for beer?"

"No, sir. About sixty rushed in here for ice-water and whisky and brandy for the old bilk lying in a fit, and I was seventy cents out of pocket before the police rushed him off. If you are thirsty you'd better go down to the river and get a drink."

I met a right smart-looking young man in front of the Astor House, and he says to me, says he, "Sir, I would like to borrow $100, for which I will pay 50 per cent. interest." "But," says I, "I don't know yer, and how am I to tell that you will pay the interest?" "If you doubt me, sir," says he, "I will pay you the 50 per cent. in advance." Well, that looked safe enough, and I gave him two $50 notes, and he paid me one of them back for the interest right on the spot. I'm to meet him at the Astor House every year and get the interest. I tell you what, Becky, it makes me mad to think what I've lost all these years.—Puck.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow neglected cold, how differently would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? It is not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. Is it worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy readily available for frequent complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Hale's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, each one of which has a wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It produces a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

THE FACTS OF THE CASE.

Mr. Laurier having declared that the issue in the Manitoba school case was a question of fact, the Globe commissioned that able non-partizan educationist, the Rev. Dr. G. M. Grant, Principal of Queen's University, to visit the "seat of war" and report upon the facts as he found them, after an examination of the schools and into the working of the school law against which the Roman Catholics have fought so determinedly.

Dr. Grant has discharged the duty which was thus imposed upon him, and the result is as clearly and concisely stated by the Mail and Empire in a summary of the Principal's reports to the Globe, that we herewith reproduce our contemporary's article in its entirety, its value as a contribution to the history of this important question being our excuse for devoting so much space to the subject:

Principal Grant has just returned from Manitoba, where he has made a personal investigation into the school question. The opinions he has formed as a result of his enquiries he has made known through a series of letters addressed to our contemporary the Globe. When the Principal went West he was received by the Litherals with open arms. The Tribune, one of the party papers, welcomed him as a distinguished educationist, which he is, and added that his contribution to the literature of the subject would be of especial value to those of us in the East who honestly desire reliable information guiding us to a proper conclusion. After the first letter had appeared, the party attitude towards the Principal changed perceptibly. It was then represented that he was not quite so distinguished an educationist as had previously been supposed. On the contrary, he was a person of very doubtful judgment, and there was something suspicious about his visit. The latter letters have not served to restore Dr. Grant in the favor of the persons who gave him the original welcome. Mr. Joseph Martin has indeed become so very much annoyed at them that he has come out publicly to announce that the Principal has "completely botched" the whole matter. A lawyer was employed to write [illegible] and he smacks, sweet reader, of "ink and brick dust," and [illegible] to the others are unanimous in saying that we take the report of Dr. Grant [illegible] the result of Dr. Grant's enquiries. In the first place the Principal deals with the conditions prevailing in Manitoba prior to the passage of the Act of 1890. The school system of that period was Separate, but, he says, there was no religious quarrels. That there were defects is acknowledged. Still "there is no need to turn down a house in order to take a rambling." The insufficient inspection, the employment of ill-qualified and non-certificated teachers, the unfair distribution of the school taxes levied on corporations, and other defects, could have been remedied, and any movement looking to remedy these would soon, or did, have been sustained by the common sense of the people. "It seems to me that the Provincial Government of Manitoba in 1890 made a great mistake in summarily abolishing in [illegible] [illegible] they have been a war [illegible] to the people on that question." [illegible] to interest with the utmost consideration. They believe that the war would end if it was not supported from without; but on this point I venture to disagree with them. It will end only when they make concessions which to the mass of the people interested seem reasonable and the sooner these are made the better. The law, it will be remembered, was designed to improve the condition of the people educationally. Dr. Grant, however, maintains that this is not the result in practice. He declares that the schools formerly separate are poorer than they were, because, deprived of the school grant, they have been starved. One feature of the question which is often lifted is that in which the Mennonites are concerned. The Mennonites resemble the Roman Catholics in that they cannot conform to every detail of the present school law. It is said that if the scruples of Roman Catholics were to be considered those of the Mennonites must be considered also, and in the end the Public school system would be destroyed. But Dr. Grant says the Government is doing all it can on one of the law to conform the system to the views of the Mennonites. It pays half the salary of a Mennonite Normal school teacher, it gives the provincial grant to Mennonite schools in respect of which a municipal tax is not collected, and it [illegible] permits the instruction in the [illegible] though it [illegible] form [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

WHAT IT WAS HE SAID.

The Exact Text of Mr. Laurier's Orange Utterance.

(La Patrie, September 1, 1895.)

At Chicoutimi the Hon. Mr. Laurier held a great meeting and had a marked success.

Seeing that the Conservative journals have published fantastic accounts of the discourse pronounced, we give here the exact text of the declaration of the Hon. Mr. Laurier:

"I know that I shall be called upon to fulfil this engagement, because the Government itself cannot settle the question. How can you expect that men who are sworn to suppress Catholic influence will re-establish the Catholic schools, which are the source of that influence? Thank God, there is not an Orangeman among us, the Liberals. The day when the people confide to me the direction of the affairs of the country, I shall have but to appeal to the Christian sentiments of my party to render justice to those to whom justice is due."

M'CALLUM PICKED UP.

Landed at Buenos Ayres by the Stalwart.

When the Scotch sailor, Robert McCallum, was in St. John last spring with the 19-foot boat in which he proposed to cross the Atlantic he was dead set on suggestions that he was undertaking a foolish venture, and that he would probably pay the penalty with his life. "I can die only once," was his reply, and nothing can prevent me from making the voyage. It will be remembered that McCallum had his boat built at Steilturne, N. S., that he brought it here, and that took it to New York to prepare for his long journey. He started from New York on June 13, and as he had not been heard from for sixty days it was supposed he was lost.

Now news comes that he has been rescued by the ship Stalwart and landed at Buenos Ayres. He was starving and crazy when picked by the ship, and was taken on board with his little boat.—St. John Globe.

A Work of Art.

"Events" which cast their shadows before, is the title of a little booklet setting forth the work to be carried on during the fall and winter months by the local Young Men's Christian Association. The work was done entirely by this office, and is a model of neatness and good taste. The cover consists of the finest cover paper with the title "Events" embossed thereon. The contents consist of a dissertation on the different lines of work under their separate departments, as the spiritual, educational, physical and social departments of our young men would seem to necessitate. As befitting in an organization of this kind, the spiritual occupies a prominent place, special mention being made of the young men's meetings on Sunday afternoon, which have become a feature of the Sunday services in the city. Special singers and speakers are promised as a bid for the attendance of the young men. Bible study will occupy a portion of the year's work proportionate to its importance in the life of youth.

It is announced that the educational work is to be pushed to the front this year, realizing the saying that "brawn will never weigh so much as brain." The class in Mechanical Engineering is worth the attendance of every mechanic in the city. The good work done last year is to be continued and Mr. G. A. Couldery of the G. T. R. will again take charge. The course is to be uniform with that undertaken by the now celebrated Pratt Institute, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Telegraphy will also be taught those desiring instruction. A course of lectures in Canadian History and Chemistry of ten lectures each will create much interest in the studies. The former subject will occupy each Friday evening, beginning with Oct. 11, until Christmas, and after the New Year the course in Chemistry will be introduced. This plan is to be commended, as it brings the mind to a focal point on one subject rather than the distraction of pursuing two subjects at the same time. Other items of interest cannot be mentioned here, but the prospectus is well worth the attention of every resident of our city.

Sociality is to be made an attraction of no mean measure, and the list of receptions contemplated is intended to cover all the young men in the city. Mention is made of the parlor and the piano so kindly donated by the Ladies' Auxiliary.

The Physical Department is of course the most important with all young manhood, and the directorate, recognizing this fact, have been led to entirely remodel their bath room and baths and to put a new apparatus in the gymnasium, which they hope will be ready for the opening of classes next week. A change has been made in the hours to enable business men to avail themselves the opportunity for class instruction. The business classes meets Wednesday at five o'clock, commencing October 3rd.

The announcement of the Boys' Work and the Ladies' Auxiliary concludes a most interesting programme of work. One of the pages gives a list of the Association buildings in Canada, numbering twenty in all, from Halifax to Vancouver. A manifest error is noted in the statement of the number of Associations in North America, where the local Association ticket is honored, as the number given is behind in the total number of Associations in the world, it should have read fifteen hundred. Another page headed "One of the Four Hundred" is an admirable plea to the young men to join the Association, and it seems that any who do not do so stop short of their privilege, as the three dollar fee is reduced to a weekly expenditure means but six cents, a merely nominal sum. It is hoped that a large number of young men will appreciate the interest shown in them by the citizens of Belleville, and accept the invitation so fervently put at the bottom of this appeal, "We Want You."

Keyes, who has been Lord Dunraven's representative in this country, that Lord Dunraven had contributed to the Valkyrie in America, on the possibility of a race or a series of races with the Defender, for some of the opponents which had been offered since the last race, and a trial boat for the Distant Shore which came out to prepare for [illegible]

Mr. Keyes further [illegible] case Valkyrie [illegible] speed of Distant Shore, and should demonstrate her superiority, the cup would not be kept but would be returned. He was not at liberty to say whether Lord Dunraven would be induced to accept [illegible] challenger in the place of the new [illegible] These reasons answered for the majority of the yachtsmen.

But those who have been in New York and have seen more or less of Lord Dunraven, know that they were not the real cause of the chance. It is known that Lord Dunraven still believes that Valkyrie is faster than Defender, and that with a clear course, he thinks he could win in the kind of weather which prevailed on the last two days of this year's race. He wants to race against Defender again for the America's Cup, and probably will be accommodated.

It would be impossible for the New York Yacht Club to race against Valkyrie for the cup until the race with Distant Shore has been decided, as Mr. Hose, of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, has a prior right under the terms of the deed of gift; but there is no reason why Valkyrie should not sail for the cup after Distant Shore has been disposed of, and this is what has been decided upon, as far as can be done without the sanction of the Royal Yacht Squadron and New York Yacht Club.

Feeling in England.

The desire in the mother country to win back the America's cup has been greatly intensified by the Valkyrie affair. Mr. Herbert Moir wrote the Yacht Racing World offering to contribute £500 towards the building of a yacht to win back the cup and has been inundated with offers to subscribe sums ranging from fifty to one thousand pounds until at the present moment he has been promised over thirty thousand pounds for the purpose of challenging for the cup. Mr. Moir's idea is to build a boat on lines similar to those of the Britannia, but with a larger sail-spread.

Spray.

The English challenger Spruce IV, decisively defeated the U. S. defender of the half rater trophy Etheiwynn, in their third race yesterday. The wind blew at from 12 to 15 knots and Etheiwyn retired at the end of six miles, when nearly 9 minutes behind, having been beaten on all points of sailing. Her owner showed rank cowardice, saying he would not risk his precious life in so small a boat in such a blow. He will not again sail in his own boat, his place being taken by a paid hand. Spruce covered the course of 12 miles in 2h. 37m. 42s. If Spruce wins to-day's race the cup will go to England.

THE WHEEL.

The Kingston Whig says:—The members of the Kingston bicycle club have under consideration the holding of a series of road races between this city and Belleville. It is the present intention to offer a trophy cup donated by George McGowan, for a perpetual "bone of contention," on much the same lines as the celebrated yachting cup now held by the New York yacht club. One or any number of races could be run off in a season, the winner of the one or of the majority to hold the trophy for one year. The scheme finds favor with local wheelmen and it is to be hoped it will be brought to an issue. Little or no expense would be attached to these races, which would prove interesting events.

HORSE AND TRACK.

The race for the Jockey Club Stakes of 10,000 sovereigns at Newmarket yesterday was won by J. E. Hould's worth's Lavengo, Lord Rosebery's Ladas and Sir Visto ran [illegible]

[illegible] Hamilton yesterday were 2.30 class, Conn B. 1, Dibi G. 2, Bunga, Sister Ethelel. There were no starters in the seven heats and all of the first four were heat winners. Winner's best time 2.24¼. The 2.21 trot or pace was won by Paynork, Dick Mitchell 2, Bellwood 3, and Mat L. 4, spotters, four heats. Best time 2.19¾.

BASE BALL.

Jennings, the Baltimore short-stop, in 16 consecutive games accepted 90 chances without an error.

Pitcher Payne, the left-handed twirler, who acquitted himself so well for Toronto during the latter part of the season, has become a member of the Brooklyn National League team, along with Harper of the Rochesters. Both men were recommended by Manager Chapman.

National League games yesterday: Pittsburg 14, Philadelphia 1; Cincinnati 12, Chicago 1; Pittsburg 11, St. Louis 1.

ANGLING.

Maskinonge will shortly leave their summer resorts and spend their leisure time on the waters. Everything seems to begin to fall in a state to get in the swim the one Hemphasis.

MISCELLANEOUS.

C. S. Robertson, the weight thrower of the English athletic team, has returned to the old country.

A London cable says: At Wimbledon today, in an amateur walking match, Chapman averaged covered two mile in 17 minutes and 7 seconds, thus making a new amateur record for that distance.

"HANK" HAPP AND BARB.

Their Wordy War Over the Former's Reckless Jockeying.

Apropos of Captain Hank Happ, the national rookie of rambling of the best men in the world, a Montreal gentleman, who was one of the record cup racers before Lord Dunraven's challenge, has been visiting here in Brooklyn, who is on familiar terms with Captain Hart, of the Vigilant. The Captain after reciting to his Brooklyn friend how the Defender crowded the Vigilant out of her rightful position on a couple of the first two legs of the home-coming race, the said: "I was so annoyed with the Defender's actions that I sent a message to Captain Hall that if our last trial test between ourselves I would not be seen within a mile of the course. I would not be a party to such tactics and outlaw and go on record as having been a party to such work and helped. Oh, you are only a professional, Barr, because you lost the race and the Vigilant was not selected." "Oh! I am not," said Barr, "and if you continue to practice your tricks when you are racing with the Britisher, he will not send it, but will simply run you down as you deserve." Captain Hart continued to laugh derisively, but the result was as Captain Barr said it would be. Hank continued to crowd and jostle with the result of getting his competitors into trouble, one without doubt costing a large percentage of the unpleasantness which led to the final fiasco."

CANADA'S GLORIOUS HISTORY.

Patriotic Utterances of the Premier on the Battle Field at Chrysler's Farm.

At the dedication of the monument to the patriots who fell at Chrysler's Farm, Sir Mackenzie Bowell spoke as follows: He said his presence was altogether unexpected on his part, having just returned from an extended tour through the North-West Territories. He had accepted the invitation to be present with no ordinary degree of pleasure. More than 50 years ago his association with the old County of Dundas commenced. He visited the county for what all would agree was a most suitable move, to get a wife. (Laughter and applause.) In that object he succeeded, and never had cause to regret it. Among those before him he saw those whom it had been his pleasure to call aunt and uncle for half a century. The fact that they were still about and well spoke well for the salubrity of the climate. Often had he heard his mother-in-law tell of the battle of Chrysler's farm, and she did so with a warmth that only patriotism could evoke. He had always held in veneration the memory of those who fell for Canada, whose ancestors fought to save their country and British institutions. So elaborately had his colleague, Mr. Haggart, entered into the details of the war that it was unnecessary for him to dwell upon the subject. It had been stated by some that Canadians had no history. With that he had no sympathy whatever. Not only had Canadians the history of the Dominion to glory in, but they inherited the history of the British empire. When a man left the Mother Country to come here, he was only changing one part of the Empire to come to another. "I am none the less a Canadian," said Sir Mackenzie, "because I happened to be born in Prince Edward county. I am an Englishman because I happened to be born in Canada. Young Canadians, let your boast always be of the glories of the Empire to which you belong, and then you will have a glorious history, for though you are Canadians the British Empire is your country. (Cheers.) Its triumphs are as much your glory as the triumphs of the humblest man in the remotest dependency of the empire. It is not with any ill feeling to one another that we celebrate this battle, but that we may preserve the memory of the deeds of our ancestors, for I am of the opinion that the man who does not look with pride upon those who have gone before him is a very poor specimen. I feel revolted sometimes and can truly say that Canadians have need to be proud, for there are few countries on the face of the earth where a man can have as happy a home and enjoy as great freedom as in the Dominion in which we live. Cheers. I hesitate not to say that there is no necessity for Canadians to submit to any tyranny on the part of their rulers. At all times the Government is subject to the approval or disapprobation of the people. In this connection all of us, irrespective of our these little party differences that divide them, take part. The Liberal can join with the Conservative and the Conservative with the Liberal in showing loans to any foreign country the spirit of patriotism. I feel confident that the country will greater prosperity and greater happiness in the future than in the past. (Loud cheers.)

GROUARD NOW JUDGE

Appointed at the First Recess Meeting of the Cabinet.

THIS THE ONLY BUSINESS DONE,

Scotch Distillers Pronounce Canadian Barley Best For Whisky Making — Others Ask a Session of the Court of Arbitration at Victoria.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—The Cabinet was in session for two hours yesterday, all the Ministers being present with the exception of Donald Ferguson of Prince Edward Island. More than ordinary interest is attached to to-day's meeting of the Cabinet in view of the fact that it was the first gathering of all the Ministers since Parliament prorogued, the usual large accumulation of departmental matters was disposed of, but that the question of sealing Parliament could not be considered. Your correspondent was the first to mention the name of Grouard, M.P., for Jacques Cartier, as the prospective judge on the Supreme Court to succeed Judge Gwynne and although the Cabinet to-day made the appointment. The new judge will take his seat on the bench on Tuesday next. Another meeting of the Cabinet will be held Saturday, Sir Frank Smith remaining over to attend it.

Representations were received by the Government from the agents of the province of British Columbia, asking that the arbitrators who are to be appointed under the Paris award to assess the damages to which sealers are entitled on account of the fishing Sea seizures should sit at Victoria in November or December, when the entire sealing fleet will be there and can be more readily available. At the suggestion of the Government the sealers were prepared with data in the Dominion Except $425,000 in full settlement of their claims, but inasmuch as Congress declined the approval of the sealers' demands, by Secretary Gresham with the British Government the matter reverted to its former position. Accordingly the sealers are now pressing for the full amount of the claim, amounting to $750,000 for the five years preceding the coming into force of the modus vivendi.

The Canada Gazette of Saturday will contain the text of the Seal Fisheries (North Pacific) Act, 1895. In re-matting it to the Governor-General, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain says: "In framing this act Her Majesty's Government endeavored, as far as possible, to meet the objections urged by your Ministers to the act of 1894, which were specially communicated in the draft bill which accompanied the minute of Council of 21st of February. You will observe that the provisions in force for the present under an Order-in-Council of 1894, issued under the act of 1894, have, by the Order in Council, embodying the necessary changes, been continued in force, and copies will be forwarded to you as soon as it has been passed.

At the conference of the consolidation and revision of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act of last year, an interesting problem has arisen in the application, the Ministerial decision in regard to which is of importance to shipping men, while at the same time the question is done away with, so it does not appear, as to the Canadian harbors, even under the Canadian Act. The Imperial enactment is plain enough, but it is not so very clear that such fees may not be imposed under the Canadian statute.

Col. White, deputy Postmaster-General, mentioned some interesting facts to your correspondent in connection with mail subsidies paid in the Pacific. "People," he remarked, "make a great ado about the expense of carrying mails across the Atlantic and seem to think that a subsidy of half a million dollars is an unwarranted tax on the Treasury. Now as long ago as 1867 the province of Canada paid for a mail subvention of $170,000 a year; in 1872 the payment was $238,000 and before Confederation the Government contributed $39,500 for a mail service between Liverpool and Halifax. If then, 30 years ago, the province of Canada could afford to pay the subsidies above mentioned, the Dominion should at present not consider half a million dollars an exorbitant sum for an immensely increased mail service."

The Deputy Postmaster-General went on to say that the Government are really controlled the trans-Atlantic mail route at the present very limited degree. For instance, he said, it was generally speaking, the sender of a letter who had specified a particular route by which it should be transported. A letter mailed in Toronto and addressed to London, marked "via New York," must have to be sent that way; while in regard to other routes the choice lay with the sender in the same way. Apart from this, the general rule of the department forward letters to Montreal in preference to Portland, and Halifax aggregate $19,263,960 in this week's failing, out of about 1 per cent. from last week. The number sent, as compared with the like week one year ago, but an increase of 16 per cent as compared with the like period in 1893. There are 1535 mercantile failures reported during the past nine months, 86 fewer than in the like portion of last year. The number of deeds of assignment and liabilities of failing traders in the Dominion is even more marked, 27 per cent., and is well distributed throughout the more thickly-settled provinces.

MRS. GRAY ACQUITTED

The Crown's Case Completely Collapses.

JUDGE AND JURY ACQUIESCE.

The Case Taken From the Jury by Chancellor Boyd, Who Expresses the Conviction That No Crime Has Been Committed—The Result Greeted With Loud Applause.

Peterboro, Sept. 27.—The trial of Neelie Gray for the murder of David Scollie came to an abrupt termination here this morning. The case for the prosecution has proved completely, and after three witnesses had been heard in behalf of the defence, Chancellor Boyd ordered the case to be closed, and directed the jury to record a verdict of not guilty.

When the court rose last evening several witnesses yet remained to be recalled for the crown, but when this morning's session opened Mr. Clute practically announced the abandonment of the prosecution. He arose and stated to His Lordship that he would offer no further testimony. "Do you purpose calling any witnesses?" was His Lordship's significant question to Mr. Stratton, counsel for defence. "I have a few, whose testimony I would like the court and jury to hear," replied Mr. Stratton.

With the testimony of William Leahy a near neighbor of the Grays, the defence opened their case. Leahy swore to having seen the body of Scollie when it was taken from the ruins. The neck and shoulders bore every appearance of having been in a severe fire. The neck was burned to a taper, the bones protruding at from the body. He saw no blood on the clothing, though there were a few drops came away from the neck when the body was removed.

Annie Gray, the 13-year-old daughter of the prisoner, a slight little thing, testified to the fire, characteristic features of her mother, gave her evidence in a manner that was remarkable from one so young and placed in so painful a position. She had seen Scollie in the house when she retired the night of the fire. She and her mother Neelie slept in a bedroom downstairs in which there was two beds. Her mother and two brothers occupied the other bed. They were two stoves in the house, one in the kitchen and another in the room where they slept. On the morning of the fire the witness said she was awakened by her mother. She awakened her mother, who rose, lit the lamp and started toward the door. The mother tried to open the door leading to the hall, but the flames drove her back. The mother got the ax from behind the bowels and broke the window and they all scrambled out as quickly as they could. The witness and her brother were almost naked until they could put on some of the clothing the mother threw out of the window to them. When they got dressed they went over to McGregor's. The witness said that Scollie was in the habit of reading after he had gone to bed.

A long cross-examination by Mr. Clute failed to shake the testimony of the witness in any particular. "Because Mr. Burnham was a rich man and we did not like to go there with no dresses on," was the reason the witness gave for not going to Mr. Burnham's and going to McGregor's to give the alarm.

Tommie Gray, the chubby-faced 11-year-old brother followed. He said that on the night of the fire he and his mother went to bed. He was awakened by the chorus and when they came in Scollie had gone to bed. His testimony as to the order of events on the morning of the fire was substantially the same as that given by his sister. He also corroborated the witness said after he and his mother came into the house they had a drink of tea, made some shavings and went to bed.

In answer to Mr. Clute, he said the only fire that was in the kitchen stove when they went to bed was in the kitchen stove. The little fellow gave his evidence in a manner to impress all those who heard him with its truthfulness.

When he stepped from the witness box Mr. Stratton called for the next witness, when His Lordship interposed and said he did not think the case should go any further, unless the jury's mind wanted to have some further evidence. The jurymen shook their heads, and one of their number rose from his seat and expressed the opinion that enough had already been said. "The case was very weak at the close of the Crown's testimony," said the Chancellor, "and whatever suspicious circumstances were produced have not been set at rest by the evidence of these children. They told the story in a straightforward manner, and I am sure everyone believed them. If you do believe them there certainly was no murder."

In reply to a question from His Lordship, Mr. Clute said he did not desire to say anything to the jury as he was entirely at the discretion of the court. Addressing again to the jury His Lordship explained to them that Mr. Clute was there only to see justice done, and that the case had to be conducted in a judicial way. The death of Scollie was peculiar, and certainly should have been investigated. He continued: "Many rumors and threats made by the prisoner and her husband were very foolish, very wicked, but do not convict them of crime. It seems highly improbable that he would have left the house unarmed and leave no signs of a struggle, no blood. It was not a very, little man, but vigorous. Mrs. Gray was there all alone, within two months of confinement, and it is incredible that she could have committed the deed."

When His Lordship directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty, the court-room was immediately filled with a deafening applause, which neither the efforts of the police or Constables attempt to quell. Mrs. Gray was moved to tears by the announcement of her acquittal. There is still a charge of murder against Gray, and a charge of arson against both prisoners, but these will in all probability be dropped.

Half a dozen citizens were knocked down by the electric fluid, but no fatalities are reported.

MOULDY BUT ENOUGH TRUE.

On His Second Re-Appearance Sargent Demanded His Wife.

Vanceburgh, Ky., Sept. 27.—William Sargent and Susie Simpler were married a few years ago and a few months afterwards the young couple took their departure for the west. Two years later word was received that he was dead.

The supposed widow married and a few days afterwards Sargent returned. He acquiesced gracefully in the arrangement to pay a visit to Owen Evans, a younger sister of Rosa, and soon married her. A few weeks later Sargent left again for parts unknown. After two years' absence he was reported some months ago to have been killed in the Cuban war. Thereupon Mary, regarding herself free, married Charles Simpler, by whom she recently bore a child.

This morning Sargent returned again but he had enough of the Enoch Arden business. He demanded Mary. She was willing to go with Simpler, but soon Simpler left for Ohio, leaving Sargent in full possession.

COAL GOES UP.

Advanced Fifty Cents a Ton at the Mines in Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—The anthracite coal situation seems to be rapidly working out into the same muddle that the coal presidents failed to accomplish after numerous conferences and fierce mutual cutting of prices is being brought about by the increased demand for coal since the recent restriction of production caused by the prolonged drought. Following the advice in their own interest, on last Monday last by some of the larger anthracite companies another advance was made to-day in Pennsylvania, Delaware and Hudson, Jersey Central, Lehigh Valley, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and other companies. The new prices went into effect at once. The present quotations are but temporary and may be still further advanced a week or two. The aggregate advance of from 45 to 75 cents per ton over the prices of Monday last goes into effect to-day over the price invogue prior to that time.

The site at Carleton has been accorded to the company by the Government, and a large plant is now being established at Tracadie on the north shore. Tracadie has accepted the invitation and other colonies are expected to do likewise.

PALMER RUN DOWN.

Hamilton Absconding Cashier Caught at Jordan.

WAS HEADING FOR THE STATES

He Had Walked the 36 Miles and Disguised Himself by Shaving His Moustache and Cropping His Hair—$1500 Found in His Pockets.

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 28.—W. B. Palmer, the cashier of the Bank of Commerce, who absconded on Wednesday afternoon was cleverly captured yesterday by Detective Reid at Jordan and brought back to the city to-night. He is now securely behind the bars at No. 3 Police Station, and will appear at Saturday morning's police Court to answer the serious charge hanging over him.

The defaulting cashier took rather a peculiar method of getting out, for he footed it to Jordan.

When he left the bank he made for the Mountain and through fields and across sidewalks he journeyed east-ward in his wild flight for safety, until the bank officials were driving to the different stations to discover what train he had taken.

En route he had his moustache cut off and his hair cropped to his scalp and this was almost the only disguise to make him unrecognizable to his friends. He looked as Mr. W. H. B. Lorber than a bank cashier.

When Detective Reid walked to and arrested the defaulter $1500 in bills and all his pockets was made and about handed over to the representative of the bank. Besides the money taken it is thought that a large deficiency will be discovered. Palmer was heading for the States.

$30 OFFER MADE TO BE CHEAPENED.

The Report That Declined the G.T.R. General Managership Denied—No Successor Named Yet.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—The press despatches from Chicago saying that Mr. Callaway had been offered and declined the general managership of the Grand Trunk Railway is an invention pure and simple. Mr. J. Sargent, the present popular general manager, is still on deck and will probably remain there for some time to come. In conversation with a high official to-day the opinion was expressed that it was quite uncertain whether any send important changes in the management of the road in London would take place ,but if so, such changes would not certainly come about before the Sarnia Riven Tunnel had had time to reach London and to go over the whole question of management with his fellow directors.

The first Provincial Council of Bishops was entered upon to-day by the arrival of the Suffragan Bishops in the city. Their lordships reached St. Hyacinthe shortly after noon, and Bishop Lauri of Valleyfield preached a sermon, after which Bishop Moreau of St. Hyacinthe, Bishop Lauri of Valleyfield, Larocque of Sherbrooke, Decelles, coadjutator to the Bishop of St. Hyacinthe and the Montreal Abbott of Oka, accompanied by the Vicar-General and Canon Marin of the Archbishop's palace, entered the city and proceeded to the Cathedral, where their lordships were met by four canons and escorted through the Cathedral to the parlor of the Archbishop's palace, where the visitors paid their respects to His Grace, of Montreal. This concluded the ceremonies for the day, and to-morrow the theologians of the Council will be appointed.

RUIN AND MISERY

WHAT WILL BECOME OF THE YOUNG MEN OF THE DAY?

Cigarette smoking is one of the evils which is fast increasing among the young men of the period. It is an age of nervousness, nervous excitement, nervous weakness and debility is the growing malady of the day. Minds are over-burdened by the pressure of useful life follow business worry; intemperance, sexual excesses or abuses over exercise the already enfeebled nerves and result in exhausting diseases or drains upon the nervous system.

It's a drag and a handicap to every young man to be a sufferer from nervous debility or weakness, low spirits, irritable temper, impaired memory, loss of will-power, and the thousand and one derangements of mind and body that result from pernicious habits often contracted through ignorance of nature's laws. The wreck of constitutions, weakened vitality and manly power, following such habits would be a sorry ending to life in this splendid age of learning and labor. It will fast become an age of unsettled brains and shattered nerves unless our young men know themselves.

To reach, re-claim and restore such unfortunates to health and happiness, is the aim of the publishers of a book of useful knowledge, on the nature, symptoms and curability, by home-treatment, of such diseases. This book will be sent post-paid on receipt of thirty-one (31) cents in stamps, to pay postage and duty only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, No 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, SEPT. 28.

A PERTINENT PARALLEL

A certain number of Protestant residents within the school municipality of St. Grégoire le Thaumaturge are at present suffering under a grievance, says the Montreal Gazette. The school district in question was created out of portions of the city of Montreal and the adjoining municipalities of St. Jean Baptiste, Côte St. Louis, Hochelaga and Côte Visitation, and in the case of all these municipalities the Protestant ratepayers had been paying their school taxes for the support of the Protestant dissentient schools maintained in them, or had been paying their school taxes to the Protestant Board of School Commissioners of the city of Montreal. Some three years after the erection of the school district of St. Grégoire le Thaumaturge, the Catholic Board of School Commissioners demanded of the Protestant ratepayers the payment of their school taxes to the Catholic board, and upon refusing so to do suits were instituted against the Protestants for the recovery of the taxes. The Protestant ratepayers have, therefore, petitioned the proper authorities that "in order to protect the rights of the dissentients, viz., the Protestant ratepayers of the said newly erected school municipality of St. Gregoire le Thaumaturge, and to prevent litigation, the said municipality of St. Gregoire le Thaumaturge should, as provided by law, be considered as having been constituted as a school municipality for the purposes of the religious majority only, in order that the minority in such school municipality may continue to pay their school taxes in aid of the dissentient Protestant schools, as they have done heretofore, which schools the Protestant children living in the said municipality attend, or to which the said Protestant ratepayers have previously paid their school taxes."

Now, unless the request of the minority is acceded to, and they are allowed to pay their taxes towards the support of the schools their children attend, a gross injustice will be perpetrated, which no language seems too strong to adequately condemn. Yet, we may ask, wherein, in principle and morality, does the case of the Protestant minority of St. Gregoire le Thaumaturge differ from that of the Roman Catholic minority of Manitoba? If it is wrong to tax Protestants for the support of Roman Catholic schools, is it not equally wrong to tax Catholics for the support of schools as objectionable to them? One of the principal grounds of grievance of the Manitoba minority against the school law of that province is, to quote the language of the Judicial committee of the Privy council, that while the Catholic inhabitants remain liable to local assessment for school purposes, the proceeds of that assessment are no longer destined to any extent for the support of Catholic schools, but afford the means of maintaining schools which they regard as no more suitable for the education of Catholic children than if they were distinctively Protestant in their character. Surely a wrong in the province of Quebec does not become a right in the province of Manitoba. The case of the Protestants of the school district of St. Gregoire le Thaumaturge serves admirably to bring home a sense of the injustice under which the Manitoba minority are laboring.

EDITORIAL BREVITIES.

"Thank God, there is not an Orangeman amongst us, the Liberals!"—Wilfred Laurier.

Mr. Laurier is about to make another tour of Ontario. The people will have some questions to ask him as to his position with regard to the Manitoba school trouble. He cannot be allowed to palter any longer with the subject, giving one class to understand that he favors Separate schools and another class to believe that he is against interference with Manitoba.

Mr. Laurier's defenders make some curious statements regarding him. One of them, for instance, remarks the Mail and Empire, declares that on the school question he has "from first to last, and everywhere, adhered to one line of remark, deviating neither to the right hand nor to the left." According he may be expected to exclaim in Ontario: "Thank God, we have no Orangemen among us, the Liberals!"

Although the Americans have succeeded in keeping the America Cup, says a contemporary, yet it is by no means the case that they have proved successful in contests with other British yachts. Thus, the English cutter Clara, which came out the same year as the Genesta, proved so successful that she practically killed the racing in her class. Her successes were not confined to one season, but lasted for four or five. A few years later the forty footer Minerva was sent out from England and for many seasons she also defeated all comers and even to-day is a good specimen of her class-mates. The late Mr. Burgess, who designed the Puritan, built and designed fourteen yachts with the express purpose of lowering the colors of the Minerva, but without success. A few seasons later the forty rater cutter Oona of Mah was imported and was proportionately as successful. Last year the Vigilant, which had successfully defended the cup against Valkyrie II., when taken to England met repeated defeats at the hands of the Britannia. To which let us add that in 1881 the outclassed Scotch cutter Madge was sent to New York and beat every Yankee craft that [illegible]

Among the pioneers of North Hastings few men were better known or more respected than Morgan Doyle, who at the ripe age of 75 years, passed through the valley of death last Sunday.

Deceased was a native of County Wicklow, Ireland, and emigrated to Toronto, Canada, early in the fifties, and finally settled near Umfraville about 40 years ago. THE LADY LEFT HOSPITAL AND DOCTORS.

She Uses Paine's Celery Compound and is Cured.

Another wonderful, almost miraculous, cure to report. As usual, the afflicted one is saved by the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

Mrs. Annie Saunders, the cured lady, lives in Bracondale, a pleasant suburb of Toronto. Her sufferings from a trouble common to many women, were terrible, and the wonder is that she now lives. To her, medical and hospital treatment [illegible] of no avail. As a [illegible]ssure, the doctors deemed an operation imperatively necessary.

Mrs. Saunders would not sanction the proposed operation; she decided to try a medicine that had cured thousands; she had faith in its wondrous powers to make her a new woman. Paine's Celery Compound was her chosen agent; she used it, and thanks Providence for the happy change effected. She writes as follows regarding her cure:

"It is with much pleasure that I testify to the value of your wonderful Paine's Celery Compound. I was a great sufferer from severe attacks of neuralgia in the left ovary. At times the attacks were so acute that I thought I would lose my reason.

"Several doctors treated me, and I was a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton. I obtained no relief from medical treatment. The doctors said unless I had the ovary taken away I could not be cured.

"Instead of submitting to the operation, I used Paine's Celery Compound, and I am thankful your valuable medicine cured me. I feel like a new woman, and I would like all sufferers to know just what this great medicine has done for me."

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP FAIR

A SUCCESSFUL TWO-DAY SHOW HELD AT FRANKFORD.

Finest Potatoes Ever Shown in the County — Large Exhibits of Stock -The Other Departments Well Filled Some Good Speeding Contests on the Track -Notes

Thursday and Friday, Sept. 20th and 22th, were the days set for the Sidney Township fair at Frankford and the management were favored with splendid weather. The attendance on the first day was not large, but those who were present were treated to some good racing.

Sidney fair has always been well-managed and its success is due largely to the indefatigable labors of Dr. Simmons, the genial Secretary. The other officers of the Society, especially Mr. A. B. Mallory, the President, are courteous and obliging to exhibitors and visitors. The exhibits this year were equal if not larger than in previous years. In the department of roots, vegetables and farm produce the exhibits were the best we have seen this year. Such a display of potatoes was never seen in this county before, and a question if any fair in the Dominion could show larger ones. In the home manufactures and ladies' departments many pretty and useful articles of excellent workmanship were shown.

There was a large exhibit of stock, especially in sheep. Following are some of the exhibitors in stock and poultry

R. O. Morrow, of Hilton, showed some good coops of poultry, a number of fine Holstein grade cattle, two pens of Cotswold sheep and a pair of Tamworth pigs.

Mr. Terrill, of Woollor, had without doubt the best herd of Ayrshire cattle on the ground, besides some sheep and swine.

A. B. Mallory showed some splendid thoroughbred Holstein cattle.

J. Anderson had a pen of Southdown sheep.

L. W. Bate & Son showed Poland China swine and Southdown sheep.

W. H. Phillips exhibited two pens of fine Shropshire sheep and a number of Jersey cattle.

J. W. Brooks and E. W. Brooks showed a number of good Southdown sheep, and the latter had on exhibition his herd of Jerseys.

R. J. Garbutt as usual had a fine collection of Leicester sheep and Poland China and Berkshire swine.

J. Dalmas and M. Sullivan both showed pens of Cotswold sheep.

J. Terry exhibited a herd of Ayrshire and grade cattle.

R. Armstrong showed a herd of Ayrshire and Holstein grade cattle.

F. W. Taylor's herd of Ayrshires were among the best on the grounds and his Clydesdale horses were first prize winners.

Thos. Walker, jr., had a fine herd of Ayrshires and grade cattle.

H. B. Chisholm's Ayrshires were much admired and his grades were far ahead of other exhibits in this class.

Geo. L. Ketcheson had some extra good Poland China, Chester White and Berkshire swine besides a pen of Shropshire sheep.

In horses the exhibitors were so numerous that it was almost impossible to get the names of all of them.

Sine's Lady Kate won the first two heats then she run a dead heat with C. E. Macaulay's Spectator, and then won the fourth and fifth heats. It being too dark to finish the race it was run off Friday afternoon and was won by Lady Kate by a short length. Summary:

There were only two entries for lady equestrians and Miss Jessie Johnson won first and Miss Dolly Chisholm second.

NOTES.

The other entries were Willie Cassidy, by Hollo Harry. Holt. Perry, Lena Pearl Vandervoort and Fred Hunter, all a fine healthy lot of babies.

S. L. Mayhew's stallion Prince Egan and Harford Alley's Frank Purdy gave an exhibition of speed. Both animals were greatly admired.

Jas. Struble, while driving around the track with three children in his buggy, collided with W. Howe's horse. The buggy was upset and somewhat damaged, but none of the occupants were hurt. Mr. Howe's horse got off with a couple of slight cuts.

The attendance yesterday was very large and the Society will come out with flying colors.

A commendable feature of the fair was the absence of fakirs and games of chance.

SOUTH AMERICAN KIDNEY CURE NOT ONLY RELIEVES KIDNEY DISEASES IMMEDIATELY, BUT IT ALSO HEALS AND REMOVES THE TROUBLE.

Those dragging pains in the loins that are a constant accompaniment of Kidney trouble are most distressing, but they are only the forerunner of more acute pains, and will be followed by others of a different nature if not applied. No medicine acts on the kidneys with such speediness as South American Kidney Cure. It gives relief in the most distressing cases in a few hours. But it does not stop here. It is a great healer, and its continuous use for a short time completely banishes the disease. It is a cure for kidney trouble, and one that is sure, it never fails here. Sold by Yeomans & Co.

THE CUP.

Second National Shooting at Art Reids.

Hendon, Sept. 23.—In the shooting for the Cup over the Hendon course to-day, the match was decided in favor of Capt. Bartlett of Dunsmore, after a tie with Lewis was prevented by the latter's not making as good scores on a second shoot. Capt. Bartlett of Dunsmore made a score of 10 and Lewis of Hendon made a score of 9. Both men were tied with 24 each in the regular shoot. The second shoot was at 25 birds each. Bartlett killed 23 and Lewis 22. The latter is considered the best shot in the world. The cup is valued at $500. Capt. Bartlett of Dunsmore is the holder of the cup, having won it last year. The scores in detail were as follows: Harvey McMurchy, Fulton 21, 20—41. Simon Gibson, Hendon 21, 20—41. Jacob Hollis, Hendon, 21, 20—41. Dr. Hollis, Dayton, O., 20, 20—40. Redwing, Ralph Worthington Cleveland, 19, 20—39. Capt. Bartlett, Dunsmore, Buffalo, 23, 24—47. Lewis, Hendon, Buffalo, 24, 24—48. The total number of birds shot for in the three days was 325 to each contestant.

YACHTING.

In the fourth international race between the half-raters at New York yesterday the defender Pilgrim won by 1m 10s. Mr. Brand, the English challenger, protested on the ground that Ridgiwan had not given way to Spruce IV when the yachts were lapped, and the rules gave Spruce the right of way. The decision was to be given this morning.

FOOTBALL.

The Napanee football team visited here yesterday and defeated the Mutes by 3 goals to 1. The game was a spirited one and was won on the merits, the visitors being on excellent players. The Mutes, who are short four of their last year's team, have had no practice, but the Napanee men would have been a good match for them under the most favorable circumstances.

Nervous Prostration

It is now a well established fact in medical science that nervousness is due to impure blood. Therefore the true way to cure nervousness is by purifying and enriching the blood. The great blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this letter:

"For the last two years I have been a great sufferer from nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. I was weak in my limbs and had smothered sensations, dizziness. My physician advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did, and I am happy to say that I am now strong and well. I am using Hood's Sarsaparilla and would not be without it. I recommend it to all who are suffering with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart." Mrs. DAYTON, 58 Alice St., Toronto, Ontario.

The Annual Meeting—Important Business Transacted.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union took place yesterday afternoon in their new hall over Minaker's store. After devotional exercises reports were given by the Secretary, Treasurer and heads of departments of work. The new officers chosen were as follows: Mrs. Curts, President; Miss Holden, Cor. Sec.; Mrs. Kitchen, Rec. Sec., and Mrs. Flint, Treasurer The following annual report was then read

Another year is drawing to a close and the time has come to take a retrospect of the W. C. T. U. work.

Two drunkards were sent under the auspices of our Union to Dr. Edwards' Gold Cure in Ottawa, some of the members contributing to the fund. The results were very satisfactory.

Seven prizes were awarded to pupils in our Public Schools who attained the highest standing in Scientific Temperance. A growing interest is noticeable in this important study. The press correspondent has kept the daily papers supplied with interesting temperance items.

A petition was sent to the City Council requesting the curfew bell to be rung at 9 p.m.

Clothing and money have been sent by the Union to assist in keeping a poor girl in a Reform School.

Literature has been distributed as usual throughout the city and the anti-tobacco Gem monthly at the various schools. A nice parcel of literature, two scrapbooks and comfort bags were sent to a lumber camp, the men having expressed themselves pleased with what they received.

A needy case ... from helped by members buying apron.

Impure literature was ... by members and sent to head-quarters as requested.

A lecture on Hygiene was delivered at the City Mission by Miss Gordon, of the Hospital, under the auspices of the W.C.T.U.

One parlor meeting held; an interesting programme of addresses and music was carried out.

Over 1,500 leaflets, papers, etc., or about 1000 pages of temperance literature were distributed at the county fair, and our tent and refresh ... ts came in for a good share of patronage; after paying ex penses will have a balance in the treasury.

The gaol has been visited every Sunday, with one exception, and service held with the female prisoners. Clothing has been supplied to those who need it, and a comfortable situation found for one poor penitent. The committee feel safe in saying that nine out of ten were there because of indulgence in strong drink and that at least would be willing to stay where they could be kept from temptation. This is a strong argument for prohibition.

A Word to Drummers.

The commercial traveller naturally dreads the cold weather, as it is then he has to go driving to and from country stations where the raw, damp winds seem to penetrate his whole body. Pitcher's Balsam is a simple and economical remedy for all this discomfort which not only travellers but motormen, conductors and other outdoor workers may use with profit. It is a perfect protection from wind and cold, as the breeze blowing past merely goes through it, and yet it will add no weight to a coat or vest. It gives the necessary feeling of softness, thus taking the place of canvas or haircloth, and at the same time furnishes this splendid warmth

CHAPTER I.

It appeared that Armour had made the great mistake of his life when people came to know only and that to have done it when one had known him possessed of a kind of malfeasance and cynicism almost pardonable, but to do it when they proved him merely weak and foolish. But the fact is he was like they at the time than was imagined and he could have answered to more malice and cynicism than were credited to him. To those who knew the world it is not singular that of the two Armour was thought to have made the mistake and had the misfortune of that people would of their pity and their censure upon him alone. Apparently they did not see that the woman was to be pitied. He had married her, and she was only an Indian girl from Fort Charles of the Hudson's Bay company, with a little honest white blood in her veins. Nobody, not even her own people, felt that she had any thing at stake or was in danger of her happiness or was other than a person who had ludicrously come to bear the name of Mrs. Francis Armour. If any one had said in justification that she loved the man, the answer would have been that plenty of Indian women had loved white men, but had not married them, and yet the population of half breeds went on increasing.

Frank Armour had been a popular man in London. His club might be found in the vicinity of Pall Mall, his father's name was high and honored in the army list, one of his brothers had served with Wolseley in Africa, and himself, having no profession, but with a taste for business and investment, had gone to Canada with some such intention as Lord Selkirk's in the early part of the century. He owned large shares in the Hudson's Bay company, and when he traveled through the north west country prospecting he was received most hospitably.

Of an inquiring and gregarious turn of mind, he went as much among the half breeds—or metis, as they are called—and Indians as among the officers of the Hudson's Bay company and the white settlers. He had ever been credited with having a philosophical turn, and this was accompanied by a certain strain of impulsiveness or daring. He had been accustomed all his life to make up his mind quickly, and because he was well enough off to bear the consequences of momentary rashness in commercial investments he was not counted among the transgressors. He had his own fortune. He was not drawn upon a common purse. It was a different matter when he trafficked rashly in the family name, so far as to marry the daughter of Eye-of-the-Moon, the Indian chief.

He was tolerably happy when he went to the Hudson bay country, for Miss Julia Sherwood was his promised wife, and she, if poor, was notably beautiful, and of good family. His people had not looked quite kindly on this engagement. They had indeed tried in many ways to prevent it, partly because of Miss Sherwood's poverty, and also because they knew Lady Agnes Martling (to end the long cared for him and was most happily endowed with wealth and good looks also. When he left for Canada, they were inwardly glad (they imagined that something might occur to end the engagement)—all except Richard, the wisecrack of the family, the bookman, the drone, who preferred living at Greyhope, their Hertfordshire home, the year through to spending half the time in Cavendish square. Richard was very fond of Frank, admiring him immensely for his buxom strength and clever nose and a little, perhaps, for the very rashness which had brought him such havoc at last.

Richard was not, as Frank used to say, "perfectly sound on his pins"—that is, he was slightly lame—but he was right at heart. He was an immense reader, but made little use of what he read. He had an abundant humor and remembered every anecdote he ever heard. He was kind to the poor, talked much, talked to himself as he walked and was known by the humble sort as "a centric." But he had a wise head, and his forsaw danger to Frank's happiness when he went away. While others had gossiped and maneuvered and worried idly, he had watched things. He saw that Frank was dear to Julia in proportion to the distance between her and young Lord Hablwell, whose father had done something remarkable in gun or torpedoes and was rewarded with a forbidding and an uncommonly large fortune. He also saw that after Frank left the distance between Lord Hablwell and Julia became distinctly less. They were both staying at Greyhope. Julia Sherwood was a remarkably clever girl. Though he felt it his duty to speak to her for his brother—a difficult and dell pate matter—he thought it would come better from his mother.

But when he took action it was too late. Miss Sherwood naively declared that she had not known her own heart and that she did not care for Frank any more. She was a little and was soothed by motherly Mrs. Armour, who was inwardly glad, though she knew the matter would cause Frank pain, and Lord General Armour could not help showing slight satisfaction, though he was innocent of any deliberate scheme to separate the two. Straightforward Mrs.

POMPADOUR JIM SAID TO BE A VICTIM OF CONSUMPTION

The Champion Boxer Not in Good Health and Likely to Become a Victim of Consumption—He Kept Himself Well Under Cover in Toronto, But His Looks Were Against Him.

Within the past two weeks the two greatest pugilists of the present era have visited the city of Minneapolis, who is looking for championship honors, was sized up at Hanlon's Point on Labor Day as a man in perfect physical form and likely to fight the battle of his life October 31 at Dallas, Texas. And on Wednesday Champion Corbett appeared in baseball garb. His muscles were all under cover, and while his general appearance showed him to be of massive proportions, many were amazed at the sallow look in his face, and detected a falling away in his size. Thus they will no doubt wonder when they read this letter from Philadelphia:

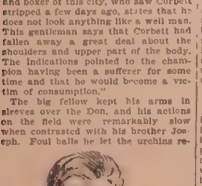

"Friends of Pugilist James J. Corbett in this city are alarmed over a story circulated that the champion boxer is not in good health, and that there is danger of his not being in good condition when he faces Fitzsimmons next month. They know that the Australian will get himself into the best possible condition, and that Corbett will have to be at his best to hope to defeat him. A well-known athlete and boxer of this city, who saw Corbett stripped a few days ago, states that he does not look anything like a well man. This gentleman says that Corbett has fallen away a great deal about the shoulders and upper part of the body. The indications pointed to the champion having been in the same condition time and that he would become a victim of consumption."

The big fellow kept his arms in sleeves over the Don, and his actions on the field were remarkably slow when contrasted with his brother Joseph. Foul balls he let the urchins return, and his fast gait was a gentle trot. Although invited to the private concert given by show exhibitors in St. George's Hall the same night, he did not accept, and hurried away right after the game. With Joe Corbett he registered at the Rosin House. They were dressed in their gray uniforms and drove together in a hack to and from the baseball game. Their stay in Toronto was thus only a few hours.

Last week Corbett announced that he would commence active training on Tuesday. This was one of a series of notices that were sent out, each one delaying the date upon which the champion would begin his work. The day came, but Jim did not show up at his quarters, and left for an ostensible week's jaunt through Canada.

Every pugilist of any note whatever calls on John P. Scholes on visiting Toronto, with a single exception, and that is Corbett. Asked his opinion about the champion, Mr. Scholes said he always believed Corbett would never meet Fitzsimmons. He had learned good authority that Corbett was ordered to keep out of the ring as long as possible, owing to ill health.

Is it possible that Gentleman Jim is physically in a deplorable condition? And if so can he conceal it elsewhere as he succeeded in doing while in Toronto?—Toronto Weekly.

Hair in Wedding Dresses.

In pulling to pieces her wedding dress with a view to the reconstruction of the same, a bride recently found in certain parts of the hem of the skirt small locks and tufts of hair, varying greatly in color, and evidently coming from different heads. Inquiry was made of a dressmaker, who has a very extensive business. "Why," she replied laughingly, "almost every dressmaker knows the reason of this, and I have no doubt that thousands of wedding dresses are turned out every year with quite a collection of bits of hair in them, for all the unmarried girls and women in establishments like mine believe that to sew a lock of hair in a wedding garment will bring a prosperous husband within the next twelve months, and I have known, in a big place of business, as many as thirty or forty separate small tufts or separate hairs have been sewn into one wedding garment.

This is especially the case with the richer and more costly dresses, and as most brides of the wealthier classes keep their wedding dresses intact for many years the finding of the hairs presents quite a mystery when an old wedding dress is unpicked. To show that the custom is an old one, I have heard of wedding dresses fifty years old having these hairs found in them. In some establishments the placing of the hairs is forbidden. I am sure I don't know why, but the rule is always evaded, and the girls generally have fine fun in concealing hairs about it case."—Boston Post.

LINCOLN AS A LOVER.

How He and His Sweetheart "Made Up."

A writer in the Chicago Times-Herald says: C. C. Brown of Springfield tells the following story, which he has every reason to believe is absolutely true. "Some time in the autumn of 1840, after Lincoln and Mary Todd had been "keeping company," and after it was understood they were engaged, some trouble arose between them, and they became estranged. Each was anxious for a reconciliation, yet neither would make the initial advance. Indeed, Miss Todd felt herself so much aggrieved that she had once or twice repulsed Mr. Lincoln's overtures.

"John J. Hardin of Jacksonville, made a party, and a number of Springfield people were invited. Among them was Mary Todd. Lincoln did not accompany them. After dinner all the young men brought around saddle horses and took the young women out for a gallop to the players' ground in [illegible] Most of the [illegible] prepared to ride, before it was discovered that Miss Todd had no mount.

"Deeply chagrined, but in perfect control, she disclaimed having had any intention of going with them, and, rallying her woman tact, speeded them gayly.

"Then she sat down on the porch in no very pleasant mood, and Hardin and his wife left her alone. While they sat there Lincoln arrived, entirely without a suspicion of his coming so far as she was concerned. And it was there their differences were arranged, and when the party returned, they thought they understood why Mary Todd had refused to go riding with them.

"In the following November Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd were married.

Kissing is Assault.

"Kissing a person contrary to his or her inclination is an assault and battery," said Judge Carter of Chicago. The statement was caused by the decision of an Indiana judiciary, which decided that kissing was an assault. The case was first brought up in a Packerton, Ind., justice court, which found a man named Schaffer guilty of kissing Mrs. Charles Brown. Schaffer's defense was that Mrs. Brown was willing, as shown from the fact she forgot to speak to her husband in regard to the matter until August, although the kiss was inflicted in March. The justice decided that Schaffer was guilty of assault and fined him. Schaffer appealed to the Circuit Court, and the jury, without leaving the box, decided that kissing was no assault, and in any event, Mrs. Brown should have complained earlier.

Chicago judges were a unit in deciding kissing, without the consent of the second party, constituted an assault, although in the Indiana case it clearly appeared the defendant was willing, because, if Mrs. Brown did not actually consent, she did not decidedly object, or she would have reported the affair without delay.

"Kissing is an assault," repeated Judge Carter, "under our statutes, although I do not remember a case of this kind ever coming up in an Illinois court. But the statute plainly says that an assault 'includes every touching, however trifling, in any angry, rude or revengeful manner.' Now, then, kissing a woman against her will is certainly rude, and therefore is an assault within the meaning of the statute."—Chicago Tribune.

Dangerous Guides in Paris.

In the neighborhood of the Opera and the Louvre any person speaking English is bound to be accosted by some individuals who offers his services as a guide. There may be honorable exceptions, but the less that the average visitor has to do with these gentry the better. Here is a case in point. A Swiss subject was arrested yesterday for robbery conducted upon an ingenious plan. He spoke English and German fluently, and his happy hunting grounds were the eastern and northern railway stations. If any new arrival in town displayed the least hesitancy in his movements the guide and interpreter took him in hand, and when his proffered services were accepted he would conduct his prey to some hotel. He was profuse in his advice on the fare and on the value of money about with you; leave it at the hotel." The [illegible] was often taken, and tourists were induced to carry about with them very little money. In the course of the day the guide, on [illegible] managed to expounding on [illegible] to remove [illegible] from the right hand [illegible] and [illegible] sand miles further to work in another section of the road. Besides several baggage cars, etc., there were three classes of carriages. There were no first-class cars, and the two seconds were borrowed from elsewhere, and so old, bad and overcrowded were they that the many of the other unfortunates with second-class tickets, I preferred to ride third. These thirds were the best I have ever seen, newly-built expressly for this line, and capable at night of being turned into sleepers with three tiers of beds, thus insuring each of them only one, even if it was only a board. The five fourth-class cars were like freight cars, plus a few windows, and were provided with benches filled with men, women and children, a sturdy, cheerful crowd, not at all miserable in appearance, bound for the broad vacant lands to the east. Emigration to Siberia has increased very fast in the last few years. For a long time it was unwisely discouraged by the government, which made futile efforts to check or limit it. This policy has not been abandoned, and last year well over a hundred thousand colonists crossed the Urals, a majority of them by the north of Tiumen and thence by steamer to Tomsk. There are various causes for this movement, such as exhaustion of the soil or growth of population till the lands of Mir or communes are overcrowded; but perhaps the chief one is the restless, wandering spirit so characteristic of the Russian peasant. The extension of railways must stimulate this emigration, which will soon assume dimensions equaled only, if at all, by that of the Scandinavians to the United States.

Such of the stations as were finished were satisfactory brick buildings, with granite watertowers near by, and each with its mango garden, and each the night was the same. Knowing that the wait would be a long one, the passengers roamed out for air, exercise and refreshments.

Three times a day we came to a buffet with very tolerable food, and more than ample leisure was allowed for a meal, while at every stopping place there was a great samovar filled with boiling water from which any one could fill his pocket flask gratis. A little way on, kept at this respectful distance by the orders of the gendarme who paced the platform, stood a crowd of peasants with wild strawberries or fish and vegetables or bunches of flowers for sale, and from them the emigrants seemed to get most of their food, which they eked out with much tea. The town or village that the station represented was rarely more than in sight, and in no case very close. Instead there stood nondescript vehicles to carry any possible visitor to it. Among the loafers about were good-natured Kirghis, men of a marked Mongolian type and clad in sheepskins with the wool inside. They are largely still in a pastoral state, and own much of the land in this region, to the discontent of the more pushing Western intruder.

There are but two towns of any importance along the route, Kurgan and Petropavlovsk, each with some 10,000 or 15,000 inhabitants. The villages through a prairie broken by occasional patches of woods or moors, and then a salt lake. The soil seemed to be a layer of black earth over sand. It can be fearfully cold here in winter, and must often be equally hot and dusty in summer, but, thanks to cloudy weather and occasional showers we at least had nothing to complain of in this respect. Thus for two days and nights we jogged along until, on the third morning we saw before us, rolling northward, the great river Irtysh, partly spanned by a half-finished railway bridge. By us were some wooden barracks for a temporary station, and in the distance four or five miles off, the roofs and domes of the capital of this region, the city of Omsk.

MODERN SIBERIA.

The Passengers, the Restaurants, the Stations and the Country Described—Seen From the Car Windows.

The great Siberian railway, properly speaking, begins at Cheliabinsk, nearly 1,400 miles beyond Moscow. This preliminary journey can be made in three days and four nights, on the whole not uncomfortably, at the exceedingly cheap rate of about 37 1-2 rubles, or some $20, for first-class ticket. The fare all the way from St. Petersburg is proportionately even cheaper, as the Russian Government is for a few months ago introduced the system of a rapidly decreasing rate of mileage for long distances. The train is only moderately interesting. The country passed through is flat and seems fertile and prosperous. The crowds at the stations are the usual picturesque, red-shirted muhiks, with a sprinkling of the original native inhabitants as one gets to the eastward. The Volga is crossed on an iron bridge, 1,484 meters long a few hours before the train reaches Samara. What one sees of the passage through the Urals is decidedly pretty, but to a foreigner hardly more, though the Russian, accustomed to the rolling plains, is moved, to much enthusiasm by mountains and valleys less striking than one can find, for instance in New Hampshire.

Cheliabinsk is beyond the mountains, and already in Asia, but not in Siberia, as it lies in the Government of Orenburg. The population, which is somewhere between 15,000 and 25,000, is rapidly increasing, thanks to the railway, and is likely to continue to do so, as from here a branch line is being built to the Perm-Tiumen road, which crosses the Urals further north.

The station, in true Russian fashion, is a good mile and a half from the city, and about it a suburb is quickly growing up. The place itself is in some ways not unlike some of our own Western ones of the same size, with its unfinished buildings and general air of untidy newness; but there is less bustle, and the color is different for, instead of our prevailing white, most of the houses are painted and weather stained, giving a generally dark effect. Very different, too, is the population, with its soldiers and officials in uniform, its peasants (for the lower classes in Russian towns still are peasants, long-bearded, red-shirted), its Tartars and Kirghis, the latter of whom are apt to live in the surrounding country, from which they come in to market. The streets are broad and shadeless, with the low houses, often of logs, straggling along loosely on either side; and carriages for hire abound, as the distances are considerable and the Russians are not fond of walking. Besides the churches most of the chief buildings are public ones, such as official residences, police, post offices of the railway, etc. The shops are small, but apparently not ill supplied. Here and there one may see the omnipresent bicycle.

The trans-Siberian itself is finished and open from Cheliabinsk to Omsk, a distance of 741 versts, or about 500 miles. It takes nearl 48 hours to traverse this, not so much on account of the easy slowness of the train as because at one or more stations it stops for less than 20 minutes, while an hour or more is not infrequent.

Our train was a fairly long one and consisted mainly of the special car for the [illegible] and [illegible] engineers, [illegible] and [illegible] section of the road. Besides several baggage cars, etc., there were three classes of carriages. There were no first-class cars, and the two seconds were borrowed from elsewhere, and so old, bad and overcrowded were they that the many of the other unfortunates with second-class tickets, I preferred to ride third. These thirds were the best I have ever seen, newly-built expressly for this line, and capable at night of being turned into sleepers with three tiers of beds, thus insuring each of them only one, even if it was only a board. The five fourth-class cars were like freight cars, plus a few windows, and were provided with benches filled with men, women and children, a sturdy, cheerful crowd, not at all miserable in appearance, bound for the broad vacant lands to the east. Emigration to Siberia has increased very fast in the last few years. For a long time it was unwisely discouraged by the government, which made futile efforts to check or limit it. This policy has not been abandoned, and last year well over a hundred thousand colonists crossed the Urals, a majority of them by the north of Tiumen and thence by steamer to Tomsk. There are various causes for this movement, such as exhaustion of the soil or growth of population till the lands of Mir or communes are overcrowded; but perhaps the chief one is the restless, wandering spirit so characteristic of the Russian peasant. The extension of railways must stimulate this emigration, which will soon assume dimensions equaled only, if at all, by that of the Scandinavians to the United States.

Such of the stations as were finished were satisfactory brick buildings, with granite watertowers near by, and each with its mango garden, and each the night was the same. Knowing that the wait would be a long one, the passengers roamed out for air, exercise and refreshments.

Three times a day we came to a buffet with very tolerable food, and more than ample leisure was allowed for a meal, while at every stopping place there was a great samovar filled with boiling water from which any one could fill his pocket flask gratis. A little way on, kept at this respectful distance by the orders of the gendarme who paced the platform, stood a crowd of peasants with wild strawberries or fish and vegetables or bunches of flowers for sale, and from them the emigrants seemed to get most of their food, which they eked out with much tea. The town or village that the station represented was rarely more than in sight, and in no case very close. Instead there stood nondescript vehicles to carry any possible visitor to it. Among the loafers about were good-natured Kirghis, men of a marked Mongolian type and clad in sheepskins with the wool inside. They are largely still in a pastoral state, and own much

HE LIKED SODY WATER.

With "Sassyparilla" It Just Made Him Feel Like a Yearling Calf.

I was going into a confectioner's on Fourteenth street to get a glass of soda water when a man who stood looking at the door beckoned me aside and said:

"Look here, stranger, I want you to do me a favor, and it won't cost you a cent to oblieg me."

"Well, what is it?"

"I don't know nothin' 'bout New York. I'm half dead for a drink of soda water, but I'm kinder scut to go in and ask for it. They hev it here, don't they?"

"Of course."

"And with sassyparilla syrup?"

"Yes."

"And you ask fur it same as in a small town?"

"Just the same. Come in and have a glass with me."

He was a little backward at first, but when he had emptied his glass his confidence returned, and he queried of me:

"Hev another glass?"

"No, thank you."

"I guess I will. I'll take sassyparilly again. She seems to git right down to the spot. Durn my hide, but I've walked around New York fur two days and dasn't ask fur sody water! Ah! but that's the stuff! Say you know I feel jest like whoopin'?"

"But I wouldn't whoop. You seem to be fond of soda water?"

"I jest dote on it when she's sassyparilly. Sunthin' in sassyparilly which makes me feel like a yearlin' calf. Hev another glass?"

"No, thanks."

"I guess I will. That's the best sassyparilly I ever tasted in all my born days. Needn't be quite so much froth on top, but I kin overlook it. Ah-um! That beats hard cider outer sight. Reckon I wanter yell jest once. I'm so gauldurned happy that I can't skassly hold myself!"

"But don't yell."

"I won't if I kin help it. That's three glasses, but I guess I'll take one more. I've bin a-dyin' fur sassyparilly ever since I left home. Hev a glass with me?"

"Thanks, but I've had plenty."

"Then here she goes! Yum! Yum! She cheers but don't inebriate. Here them toes crack. She my ears begin to work! Say mister, I've got to holler or bust!"

I tried to stop him, but was too late. He stood up and uttered a yell which jumped the girl at the fountain a foot high and brought the proprietor on a run to demand:

"Now, then, what's all this about?"

"Your sassyparilly has made me too blamed happy to live," replied the old man as he knocked two glasses to the floor and tried to hug the confectioner.

"You must go out—go right out!"

"I'll do it, but you can't take the happiness away from me! Gimme another glass!"

"No, sir—no, sir—out you go!"

"I'll go, but whoop—whoop-ee!"

I got him out and walked him down to Sixth avenue and chided him for being so enthusiastic.

"Gaul-durn my buttons, but I can't help it!" he replied. "Talk about cider and beer and lemonade, but they ain't in it with sassyparilly. She cheers, but—whoop-ee! Good-by, old man—good-by. You are white, you are, and if I don't make this old town howl afore night then my name ain't Abraham Scott, and I don't hanker arter sassyparilly with wings on it!"—Detroit Free Press.

Illustrated Summer Wearing Apparel.

"Duck Suits!"

A Cheeky Little Lamb.

The Rev. Dr. Meredith, a well-known clergyman, tries to cultivate friendly relations with the younger members of his flock. In a recent talk to his Sunday school he urged the children to speak to him whenever they met.

The next day a dirty faced urchin, smoking a cigarette and having a generally disreputable appearance, accosted him in the street with:

"Hullo, Doctor!"

The clergyman stopped and cordially inquired:

"And who are you, sir?"

"I'm one of your little lambs," replied the boy, affably. "Fine day."

And, tilting his hat on his head, he swaggered off, leaving the worthy divine speechless with amazement.—Pearson's Weekly.

Mrs. Hashleigh—Yes, he thought if he sat about and praised things it wasn't necessary to pay board.—Ere Mercenary.

NO MORE ASHES FOR HIM.

Preferred an Occupation to Which Less Suspicion was Attached.

There was an old colored man pushing a wheelbarrow along Brush street the other afternoon when a woman opened a chamber window and called to him:

"Hey, you! Do you want a job?"

"What sort of a job, mum?" he asked as he stood at the gate.

"Carrying ashes out of the cellar."

"Werry sorry, mum, but I couldn't do dat job. I used to be in the ashes business, but I'se done quit it. If I was whitewashing or beatin' a carpet I'd be right on hand, but I doan' touch ashes no mo'."

"What's the matter with ashes?"

"Heaps de matuh, mum. Last job I worked on I found three knives, five forks, seben spoons, two towels, an' a dollar in cash in de ash heap, an' what yo' dun s'pose de jedge gimme me fo'?"

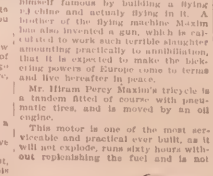

MOTOR TANDEM TRICYCLE.

Useful for Pleasure Riding, for Hunter and Lawmaker.

One of the very latest inventions is a motor tricycle, designed by Mr. Hiram Percy Maxim, son of Mr. Hiram S. Maxim, the gentleman who has made himself famous by building a flying machine and actually flying in it. A brother of the flying machine Maxim has also invented a gun, which is calculated to work terrible slaughter amounting practically to annihilation, that it is expected to make the bicycling powers of Europe come to terms and live hereafter in peace.

Mr. Hiram Percy Maxim's tricycle is a tandem fitted of course with pneumatic tires, and is moved by an oil engine.

This motor is one of the most serviceable and practical ever built, as it will not explode, runs sixty hours without replenishing the fuel and is not so hot as to cause inconvenience. It is able to provide about one and one-half horse power, which is very considerable. Those who have pedalled a tricycle will appreciate this statement. A tricycle with even one horse power so move it along ought to go very far and very fast.

The motor is mounted just forward of the forward saddle. The speed-governing valve is within easy reach of the occupant of the rear saddle. The oil in the motor is not always kept burning, but is put out when not needed by an electrical contrivance, which serves also to ignite it again at the gentleman's pleasure. A valuable economy of fuel is thus possible when coasting or resting.

Mr. Maxim has been engaged for some time in perfecting his tricycle at Hartford, Conn. The other day he took a trial spin, which satisfied him that the machine was a complete success.

In Mr. Maxim's opinion, the results demonstrate that a motor tricycle can be built that will not weigh over 100 pounds. He says such a machine will be useful not only for pleasure riding but for doctors and pacemakers.

Plimsoll's Mark.

The next time you get near one of the big ocean greyhounds, or, in fact, any of the passenger craft, says the New York Mail and Express, look along her side, just above the water line, and about the center you will see a peculiar mark. Most seamen think that it might have been made by an inebriated cobra. This is known as "Plimsoll's mark." Load a ship so this is below water, and if she is one you can collect no insurance. It is the danger mark. It is an outcome of marine insurance, and the regulation does undoubtedly saved many million dollars' worth of property and many lives. Weighted below it a vessel is loggy and unbuoyant. In fair weather and fine ride the waves easily, and would be likely to founder. The Plimsoll mark is simply a line scored on the hull of it. An Underground City.

Jules Verne thought he was writing of an altogether new and unique thing when he told his famous story of the Underground City in Tartary, but truth proves to be stranger than fiction, as the Russians have discovered a big underground city in Bokhara near the Bokharian town of Karkl. Exploration of some big caves revealed the fact that they led to a city in the dark built thousands of years ago, according to the [illegible] inscriptions and designs upon the gold and silver money unearthed from among the ruins, the existence of the two states back some two centuries before the birth of Christ. The underground Bokharan city is about two miles long, and is composed of an enormous labyrinth of corridors, streets and squares, surrounded by houses and other buildings, two or three stories high, and about how even turkes ago this city, so carefully concealed in the bowels of the earth, provided an entire population with a refuge from the incursions of the nomadic savages and robbers.—Buffalo Enquirer.

A Forest of Microbes.

Cheese, the supposed-to-be edible milk curd of commerce, is the best soil in the world for microbes to germinate, and on its surface flourish millions upon millions of infinitesimal parasitic plant growth. A microscopic examination of a single gram of fresh cheese, such as is usually sold at the grocer's proves that it contained not less than 80,000 separate and distinct specimens of bacteria. After seven days this same section of cheese was examined and found to contain 80,000 separate and individual bacteria. Prof. De Kahn says that a cheese properly sliced and exposed will within a week be inundated with a bacterial growth containing more separate specimens than there are trees upon the whole of the earth's surface.

His Great Sermon.

"Now, as announced," began the good man, "I shall proceed to give thirteen reasons why riding the bicycle has a tendency to send the soul as straight to perdition as a bee goeth to a buckwheat patch."

(Profound silence.)

"And now, thirteenthly, the wheel has a tendency to divert interest in the preached word; to lure to distant and frivolous paths; to drag the earnest soul to the outside world. If this is not the will and pleasure of my brother or sister deny it? I challenge ye to controvert this unwelcome truth. I pause for a reply from the congregation."

There was no reply! There was no congregation! It was off on its wheels!

STRICKEN WITH A PARTIAL PARALYSIS

This Was the Case with Miss Minnie Stevens, of London, Ont.

The Parents Had Lost Hope of Her Recovery, But Even After Her Arm, Side and Leg Had Become Powerless South American Nervine Effected a Cure—To-day This Young Lady, Daughter of F. A. Stevens, of the Stevens Manufacturing Company, Enjoys Perfect Health.

MISS MINNIE STEVENS, London, Ont.

Men and women in the exercise of physical or mental power can usually go a certain length, but a step beyond this proves too severe a test. It is the same in the field of medicine. If the case is not a trying one some simple remedy will cure, but it is when a medicine proves effective in an aggravated and extraordinary case that its real power is tested. South American Nervine has made some wonderful cures in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, debility and nervous prostration, but to name other troubles. When nervousness, however, takes hold of the system to that extent that it becomes paralyzed and the limbs lose their natural power, then it is that the greatest and her friends may indeed commence to lose hears. Miss Minnie Stevens, a fair daughter of London, Ont., had undergone this trying experience. She had been troubled with nervousness. The trouble grew and after a time assumed such shape that she could not walk or even hold anything in her hand. This is undoubtedly the worst form of nervousness and [illegible] the old and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

It rest[illegible] a little way to the Ac[illegible] that distance I hate the

And yet not strange, for it has grown to be
The home of those of whom I am fond
They make it seem familiar and most dear.
As journeying friends bring distant countries near.

So close it lies that when my sight is best
I think I see the gleaming strand
I know I feel that those who've gone from here
Come near enough to touch my hand.

I often think, but for our veiled eyes
We should find Heaven right round us lie

I cannot make it seem a day to dread
When from this dear earth I shall journey out
To that still desert country of the dead,
And join the lost ones so long dreamed about
I love this world, yet shall I love to go
And meet the friends who wait for me
I know

And so for me there is no sting in death,
And so the grave has lost its victory,
It is but crossing with a bated breath
And white, set face, a little strip of sea,
To find the loved ones waiting on the shore.
More beautiful, more precious than before.

ONLY A BOUNDARY RIDER.

He was only a station hand. Where he came from, or why he came there, of course nobody knew—that is common enough in Australia, and perhaps commonest of all on a back country run in Queensland. To look at him, indeed, he had something to recommend him—tall, straight, active and manly looking—there's not a hand on the station who could ride a horse better than Jim. Jim what? You might have been disposed to ask—but that was just what nobody knew or cared much to know. Jim was plenty, when Jim was only a boundary rider on the Mulla-Nulla Run.

It was as Jim that he had joined and was entered on the overseer's book and as Jim he had come to the front for at least a twelve month without anybody ever asking whether he owned another name or not. Mulla-Nulla Run is known in Australia as Queensland. It is rather a large one, and carries more stock for its size than most runs in the district—when Jim was there perhaps more than there will be were depastured in its broad valleys and on its grassy downs, and there were about twenty-five hands besides the overseer to look after them. The owner, Mr. Leslie of Mulla-Nulla, lived there when he was at home, being a member of the Parliament and a leading politician, he was a good deal away in Brisbane with his family.

It was a good place to live, too. The house—long low and substantial—was built half way up the slope between the creek and the wooded ranges, and faced the west and from the veranda you looked out as far as the eye could see over the open plains, toward the rolling sun. Here and there miles of grassy plain, with here and there a shallow bottom where the pale Mimosa swayed—here the Mulga's foliage and soft lilac flowers over the bed of the little winter stream that remained green so long through the fiery heat of the long, bright summer months. Miles upon miles green as emerald after the rains—yellow as gold with the summer heat was past—but in months of mid-brown as it looked through the long hot months from December to April.

More than Jim had cast at the house—being to-day on the limit of the hill he could see all round—and grunting contentedly through his cold pipe—he could see the [illegible] windows [illegible] with the [illegible] glass glimpses [illegible] the [illegible] terrace cloth [illegible] the [illegible] the great [illegible] and purple [illegible] Jim [illegible] beside the place to his heart's content, but from a distance—only to be thought Mr. Leslie and his family with his hands—his fellowmen didn't extend past his family.

Yet Jim met the girls every now and then, as they rode out with their father or brother, and more than once it had been his luck to see them near at hand—once, indeed, that in his own mind he had settled which was the elder of the two. It hadn't taken him long to decide which was the prettier, and there could hardly be two opinions that he was right, for Margaret Leslie was a strikingly handsome girl. Yet, strange to say, it was another face that came back with extraordinary frequency to Jim, on his long, solitary rides—other eyes than those of the belle of Brisbane that seemed upon him in the still hours of the night in his lonely hut on the outlying boundary.

It would be rash to say what and how much a girl could find of what concerns herself. Perhaps it was not in Jim's mind alone that a face—only a face—started with hangers-on, either spoken or written, appeared and reappeared at unbidden moments—who can say. There was something after all, uncommon about Jim. As he and his horse Firefly with the ease of a centaur, and doffed his broad-brimmed cabbage tree hat to the passing girls—something engaging in the frank, manly look of respectful admiration which he would be papa-in-law.

She's the flower of my family, she is—and I'm [illegible] to say it.

Whence?

I do not know, I seem a child at play,
Before the viewless mystery of life,
And know not it is there, except at times
There comes to me a sense unnamable;
The veil seems just a little drawn; I mean—

An awful glimpse that shakes my inmost soul.

It may be but a look, a word, a face,
A strain of music, or a laugh, a song,
And all the world goes fading into dream.
I seem to feel all this has been before,
A something of unutterable age,
An old as life is now, as old as death,
That gazes through my eyes upon the world.

And brings a sense of loneliness, a gleam
Of fearful knowledge, then it fades away.
It was more frequent in my early years,
Before I clogged my soul with flesh and sin;
But even yet it comes to me at times;

And once—I know not what the cause —it came,
And in the frenzy burst from out my lips
The one involuntary cry, "I know."
And then it left me, helpless as a child;
The dream died from me; and I went my way
Into the world of toil and commonplace.

HE HAD PITY.

Jabez Wilson, whose 53 years of life had been passed in single blessedness, had little in common with the rest of the world

His faults were many and his virtues few. His two redeeming points call them virtues if you will—were generosity verging on weakness in individual cases and a love for music

Late one light he wended out of St. James' Hall, buttoned his coat up round his neck, dived his hands into his pockets and started for making Europe vibrate with the splendor of his voice.

One night, as he crouched over the fire in the dos house he frequented, reading the paper, a short paragraph at the foot of a column caught his eye at once.

"Early yesterday morning the body of a woman was found in the grand canal at Venice. She is said to be the wife of Sig Luigi, the well-known singer, with whom she is supposed to have led a wretched life. There are no marks of violence on the body, and the authorities have passed a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane."

Jabez Wilson's forecast had been realized only too fully, and the brokenhearted man cried like a child.

A week later he stood outside the doss house with exactly a penny in his pocket.

He stood wondering what he should do, when his musical instincts, which had been crushed and lain dormant for so long, arose within him. He hurried along the street, entered a shop and purchased a tin whistle with his one remaining copper.

An hour later as he walked slowly along the middle of the road, his threadbare coat buttoned up around his neck, an old battered hat pressed tightly down over the struggling gray hair that blew in the cold wind, and his dry lips pressed against the whistle, he was playing "Home, Sweet Home" that was all he knew.

In front of a resplendent hotel he stood and played, with one foot on the pavement. A tall, black-bearded gentleman suddenly, a foreigner, wrapped in a priceless fur coat, came down the steps of the hotel, in company with a beautiful woman, in the full glare of the lamps.

Instinctively the instrument fell from the lips of the player, as he muttered half aloud:

"Luigi!"

The Italian peered into the pale, pinched, upturned face.

"So you have come to this, sh!" he asked in a whisper, lest his companion should hear, at the same time drawing half a crown from his pocket, "my unfortunate friend."

He turned abruptly, half ashamed, when the woman by his side told him to come away from the beggar.

"Come, dear Mirand." Then as she took his arm and he handed her in a brougham, "I have pity for these poor musicians."—Pearson's Weekly.

Feeding Stock at Pasture.

When the pastures begin to fail in autumn, the thrifty condition of the stock will likewise fail unless they are given additional rations. For this purpose green corn fodder is excellent, as it is reaching its fullest development while the pasture is decreasing. The green fodder may be fed in the barnyard or hauled to the pasture. Any good soiling crop, as millet, velvetcorn, Hungarian grass, sorghum, cow peas or late oats with peas, will answer the same purpose. When a mat of these are obtainable, the drying passage should be supplemented by small feeds of grain, such as a mixture of chopped corn, oats and rye, or chopped corn with wheat bran and middlings, fed in troughs, and better if either slightly moistened or freshly soaked. On dry grass, it is very necessary that stock should have an ample and continuous supply of pure drinking water, as more is required for the digestion of the drier food material. Stock will glean much food by a run in the stubble fields after harvest, and colts will do a great deal of nutritious weeds. Winter rye, if sown early, makes excellent fall pasture, and the early winter wheat fields will be benefited by feeding all the growth which the frost would kill grazed off while the ground is not muddy. Such roots as turnips, mangels and sugar beets also supply the succulent food needed to supplement falling or parch-stricken pastures

Deserters From Ships.

Jack Tar has an irresistible longing for the shore at times and gratifies it if he can, even at the price of desertion. On a dark night, when the good ship to which he belongs is anchored in a home port, he climbs into the chains and slips down into the waves, determined to risk drowning for a few gills of fire-water. The guard some times give the alarm too late and the culprits get away and have a long carouse, at the end of which they are put in chains and spend a few days between decks, lying on a cold, hard floor. At the New York Navy Yard the other night two suspicious characters were heard on the old-fashioned pier of the New York, recently returned from the Kiel festivities. A boat was lowered and sent in pursuit of the escaping men, one of whom would have been drowned if an officer had not rescued him to save him. Desertions are fortunately becoming more uncommon, but there are always one or two adventurous ones who will have shore liberty without asking for it, and who apparently cannot be deterred by the number of the regulations.—Once a Week.

The most difficult woman to understand is she who deals out spiritual food in a frivolous capacity. You never know which you have swallowed. And the doctor, like the dose, remains an enigma.

"You love her now—she is everything to you. Time may be, I trust, when you may be led to make odious comparisons between her simplicity and the winning faces of beautiful women."

"My kind benefactor, that is impossible. I shall always love Maggie as much as I do now."

Jabez Wilson sighed. It was a sad blow to his vanity and to his peace of mind.

"Think it over, lad," he began. "When the first pangs of grief at parting are passed, you will forget about your lowly girl in the whirlwind of your fame, and she will soon put you from her. Come to me to-morrow and let me know what you intend doing."

The next day Mr. Wilson received a visit from Maggie. She came in tears to beg his consent, his heart was touched at the sight of a woman in sorrow, and, reviling himself for a cold-blooded manner, he told her, in an outburst of generosity, to go and marry Luigi as many times as she liked.

After a twelvemonth spent in Italy Luigi became perfect. His first appearance in public was made as described, and, as he retreated behind the curtain that night, old Jabez Wilson called to pass his hand—and it did him that his dream was at last realized.

Jabez Wilson walked out of his solicitor's office penniless. The bank of which he was principal shareholder had failed, and this, in conjunction with a few minor disasters, had robbed him of every penny he possessed.

He had never in his life done a stroke of work, and was not even capable of a clerical position.

The impossible he had accomplished were given up; the club was never again to see him or hear what had become of him. The fine old wines in his cellar fetched sufficient to pay his long standing rent, with a surplus for a few weeks—that was all.

Jabez Wilson's forecast he drew a penny every day to search the papers for news of Luigi's success. He could not bring himself to write to him and so let light be everything. It was pleasant enough to know that the man whom he had dragged from obscurity, whom he had taught by making Europe vibrate with the splendor of his voice.

One night, as he crouched over the fire in the doss house he frequented, reading the paper, a short paragraph at the foot of a column caught his eye at once.

"Early yesterday morning the body of a woman was found in the grand canal at Venice. She is said to be the wife of Sig Luigi, the well-known singer, with whom she is supposed to have led a wretched life. There are no marks of violence on the body, and the authorities have passed a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane."

Jabez Wilson's forecast had been realized only too fully, and the broken-hearted man cried like a child.

A week later he stood outside the doss house with exactly a penny in his pocket.

He stood wondering what he should do, when his musical instincts, which had been crushed and lain dormant for so long, arose within him. He hurried along the street, entered a shop and purchased a tin whistle with his one remaining copper.

An hour later as he walked slowly along the middle of the road, his threadbare coat buttoned up around his neck, an old battered hat pressed tightly down over the struggling gray hair that blew in the cold wind, and his dry lips pressed against the whistle, he was playing "Home, Sweet Home" that was all he knew.

In front of a resplendent hotel he stood and played, with one foot on the pavement. A tall, black-bearded gentleman suddenly, a foreigner, wrapped in a priceless fur coat, came down the steps of the hotel, in company with a beautiful woman, in the full glare of the lamps.

Instinctively the instrument fell from the lips of the player, as he muttered half aloud:

"Luigi!"

The Italian peered into the pale, pinched, upturned face.

"So you have come to this, sh!" he asked in a whisper, lest his companion should hear, at the same time drawing half a crown from his pocket, "my unfortunate friend."

He turned abruptly, half ashamed, when the woman by his side told him to come away from the beggar.

"Come, dear Mirand." Then as she took his arm and he handed her in a brougham, "I have pity for these poor musicians."—Pearson's Weekly.

Feeding Stock at Pasture.

When the pastures begin to fail in autumn, the thrifty condition of the stock will likewise fail unless they are given additional rations. For this purpose green corn fodder is excellent, as it is reaching its fullest development while the pasture is decreasing. The green fodder may be fed in the barnyard or hauled to the pasture. Any good soiling crop, as millet, velvetcorn, Hungarian grass, sorghum, cow peas or late oats with peas, will answer the same purpose. When a mat of these are obtainable, the drying passage should be supplemented by small feeds of grain, such as a mixture of chopped corn, oats and rye, or chopped corn with wheat bran and middlings, fed in troughs, and better if either slightly moistened or freshly soaked. On dry grass, it is very necessary that stock should have an ample and continuous supply of pure drinking water, as more is required for the digestion of the drier food material. Stock will glean much food by a run in the stubble fields after harvest, and colts will do a great deal of nutritious weeds. Winter rye, if sown early, makes excellent fall pasture, and the early winter wheat fields will be benefited by feeding all the growth which the frost would kill grazed off while the ground is not muddy. Such roots as turnips, mangels and sugar beets also supply the succulent food needed to supplement falling or parch-stricken pastures

Deserters From Ships.

Jack Tar has an irresistible longing for the shore at times and gratifies it if he can, even at the price of desertion. On a dark night, when the good ship to which he belongs is anchored in a home port, he climbs into the chains and slips down into the waves, determined to risk drowning for a few gills of fire-water. The guard some times give the alarm too late and the culprits get away and have a long carouse, at the end of which they are put in chains and spend a few days between decks, lying on a cold, hard floor. At the New York Navy Yard the other night two suspicious characters were heard on the old-fashioned pier of the New York, recently returned from the Kiel festivities. A boat was lowered and sent in pursuit of the escaping men, one of whom would have been drowned if an officer had not rescued him to save him. Desertions are fortunately becoming more uncommon, but there are always one or two adventurous ones who will have shore liberty without asking for it, and who apparently cannot be deterred by the number of the regulations.—Once a Week.

AS HARD AS CEMENT.

ATTEMPT TO CUT INTO A MUMMY OF THE PTOLOMAIC PERIOD

So Far Only the Bones of One Elbow Had Been Exposed—It Is Quite Evident That the Embalmers of 2,000 Years Ago Knew What They Were About.

When the Rev. Dr. John F. Goucher of the Woman's College in Baltimore was in Egypt last winter he purchased a number of mummies and antiquities. Among the most valued of these are two mummies that Dr. Goucher secured in Cairo at the Boulak Museum, which is in charge of Brysch Bey, who has manifested great interest in American institutions of learning. When he learned that Goucher was in search of Egyptian antiquities he helped him materially in securing a lot of valuable relics that are now all stored in the Woman's College. It has been Dr. Goucher's intention for some time to make an original examination of the mummies, but his single attempt was not a pronounced success. Both of the mummies are bodies of women. The latter is the two or three Ptolomaic period, or, in other words, the woman lived in Egypt about 2,000 years ago. The other is apparently that of a $77, and from the elaborate decoration of the outer case, it is presumed that she was of royal blood, says Dr. Goucher. There is no inscription on the outside to the period of her life, but from the manner in which the outside wrappings are placed, it is very evident that the mummy is of the 21st dynasty. Dr. Goucher was very fortunate in procuring this mummy, as all of a like character are carefully preserved by the National Museum. Brysch Bey, however, succeeded in getting this valuable trophy for the Doctor.

It was the larger mummy that Dr. Goucher attempted to open and examine. It was in the wooden case. It held the mummy when it was taken from the catacombs, and down the centre of it ran an inscription from the "Book of the Dead," that clearly indicated that the mummy was of the Ptolomaic period.

When the mummy proper was lifted from the case it did not fall out, like a large sack covered with pitch. Dr. Goucher went to work on the outside covering with a pair of shears. But he found that his task was a harder one than he had contracted for. The pitch layer was finally pierced, and then a couple of newspaper men, one armed with a pair of tin-cutting shears and the other with a screw-driver and hammer, assisted the Doctor in tearing away the next covering. This covering was of linen, and if the bands of cotton bandages were the work of twenty centuries, it would have come off in rolls. Most of the upper covering consisted of pads of linen that were placed in various positions to fill out the shape to the body, which is an evidence that the Egyptians were as vain about the beauty of contour in death as their American sisters are in life. After these pads were removed more wrapping were reached. These were wound with great uniformity, and at one place they covered the breast like a pair of suspenders cross in the back. Under this were broad strips of linen running longitudinally. All this was removed with comparative ease. Finally a layer of pitch was reached that looked as if the embalmer had poured a great quantity of it on the body before commencing the process of winding it up with linen. The substance was as hard as cement, and after working diligently on it for a half-hour, the Doctor and his assistants managed to expose the left elbow and also to remove enough of the deposit to show the contour of the right hand. Further progress proved the impossibility. The bone of the elbow glistened white, in comparison with the deposit that covered it. Whether it was the use of natron, it had become hardened and was broken off with the pitch. Around the neck were a great number of linen bandages, and although Dr. Goucher cut away a great portion, he only succeeded in showing the contour of the head. Neither bone nor skin were reached. The examination of the mummies will be indefinitely postponed.

The Passing of Vacation Time.

Vacation flies—the gladdest time in all the merry year—
The teacher now's the happiest girl in all this jolly land;
She's back from mountain, sea, or farm, and thankful doth appear
To drink the sweet's of nature's cup by the light of Sirius's strand
Ah! patient lass, whose daily task it is to guide the youth
To fill his frisky, perverse head with truths it would reject.
In view of what you've done for them it surely is the truth,
No other could be conferred place among the earth's elect.
And you, my pretty cherubims, pursuing pleasure's ways,
Be soft of speech and cultivate humility of soul;
Else shall your wondering mothers ask each other confidingly,
However can one teacher all these naughty babes control?

Grass Paving Blocks.

A new industry has recently been started in Norfolk has recently been the manufacture of paving blocks out of the stems of grass grown in salt water marshes The grass is subjected to a heavy pressure, and large square blocks come out. The process when three circular saws take hold of the block and cut it into smaller blocks of five and a half inches thick provided lengthwise with strong cords These blocks are then subjected to a bath in three different tanks of different kinds of oils, which harden the fibre supple. The Manufacturers' Record is authority for the statement that these blocks have been tested for paving purposes in Philadelphia for over a year on one of the busiest streets near the stock yards, and have held solid, stood the test remarkably well They make a smooth, noiseless pavement, on which, it is claimed horses cannot slip. Large contracts for these paving blocks have been secured in Pittsburg and New York. This plant, as now established, turns out about 40 to 50 yards per day of this paving, and the owners expect soon to enlarge it considerably. This new industry for the south is worth attention.

Men in vineyards and olive gardens were gathering up the riches for the oil press. The hills and valleys were starred and crimsoned with flowers, from which Christ took his text, and the disciples learned lessons of patience and trust. It seemed as if God had dashed a wave of beauty on all the scene until it hung dripping from the rocks, the trees, the gardens. On the back of the Lebanon range the glory of the earthly scene was carried up as far as it is in range with the hills of heaven.

No other gem ever had so exquisite a setting as beautiful Gennesaret. The waters were clear as crystal, and thickly inhabited, tempting innumerable nets and affording a livelihood for great populations. Bethsaida, Chorazin and Capernaum stood on the bank, roaring with wheels of traffic and flashing with splendid equipages, and shooting their vessels across the lake, bringing merchandise for Damascus and passing great cargoes of wealthy products. Pleasure parties of young gentlemen and fishing smacks of the country people who had come down to cast a net there passed each other with a nod and shout and welcome, or side by side swung idly at the mooring. Palace and luxuriant bath, and vineyard, tower and shadowy arbor, looked off upon the calm sweet scene as the evening shadows began to drop, and Hermon with its head covered with perpetual snow, in the glow of the setting sun looked like a white bearded prophet ready to ascend in a chariot of fire. I think we shall have a quiet night! Not a leaf winks in the air or a ripple disturbs the surface of Gennesaret. The shadow of the great headlands stalk clear across the water. The voices of evening tide, how drowsily they strike the ear! The splash of the boatman's oar and the thumping of the captured fish on the boat's bottom, and those indescribable sounds which fill the air and nightfall at Christ's hasten up the beach of the lake a little way, and there you find an excitement as of an embarkation. A flotilla is pushing out from the western shore of the lake—not a squadron with deadly armament, not a clipper to ply with valuable merchandise, not pirate vessels with grappling hooks to hug to death whatever they could seize, but a flotilla laden with messengers of light and mercy and peace. Jesus is in the front ship; his friends and admirers are in the small boats following after. Christ, by the rocking of the boat and the fatigues of the preaching exercises of the day, is induced to slumber—and I see him in the stern of the boat, with a pillow perhaps extemporized out of a fisherman's coat, sound asleep. The breeze of the lake run their fingers through the locks of Christ's sleeping per, and on its surface there rieeth and falleth the light ship like a child on the bosom of its sleeping mother. Calm night. Starry night. Beautiful night. Run up all the sails and ply all the oars and let the boats, the big boat and the small boats, go gliding over gentle Gennesaret.

The sublorn prophesy a change in the weather. Clouds begin to travel in the sky and congregate. After while even the passengers hear the moan of the sound, which comes on with rapid ...[illegible] ...ricane and darkness. The boat, caught in the sudden fury, trembles like a deer at bay, and the wild waves of the hounds. Great patches of foam are flung through the air. The bounced sails flapping in the wind, crack like pistols. The small boats, pulled out by the white cliff of the driven sea tremble like the ocean petrels, and then plunge into the trough with terrific sweep until a wave strikes them with thunder crack, and overboard go the cordage, the lashing and the masts, and the drenched disciples rush into the stern of the boat and shout amid the hurricane, "Master, carest thou not that we perish?" The great Prophet of Nazareth lifted his head from the fish-manure-coated and walked out to the prow of the vessel and looked upon the storm. Oh, all lies were the small boats tossing in helplessness and from them came the cries of drowning men. By the flash of lightning I see the calmness of the uncovered brow of Jesus and the spray of the sea dripping from his beard. He has two words of command—one for the wind, the other—to the sea. He looks into the tempest-covered sea and he cries, "Peace!" and then he looks down into the infuriate waters and he says, "Be still!" The thunders beat a retreat. The waves fall flat on their faces. The extinguished stars rekindle their torches. The foam melts. The storm is dead. And while the crew are untangling the cordage and the cables and bailing out the water from the hold of the ship, the disciples stand wonder-struck, now gazing into the calm sea, now gazing into the calm face of Jesus and whispering once to another, "What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him?"

I learn, first, from this subject that before undertaking to take a voyage ... you ought to have Christ ... The fact is, that those ... all have gone to the bot... had not been there ... voyage out into some ... sea—into some new business ... reason. You are going to plan some great matter of profit. I hope it is so. If you are content to go along in the treadmill course and plan nothing new, you are not fulfilling your mission. What you can do by the utmost extension of body, mind and soul, that you are bound to do. You have no right to be colonel of a regiment if God calls you to command an army. You have no right to be stoker in a steamer if God commands you to be admiral of the navy. You have no right to engineer a ferryboat from river bank to river bank if God commands you to ... THANKSGIVING DAY

A Well-Known Lawyer to be Brought Before the Judge.

CANADIAN RAILWAY STATISTICS.

The Premier Invited to Unveil the Macdonald Monument in Kingston—Members of the Cabinet to Go to London—A School Teacher Charged with Assaulting a Scholar.

Special to The Mail and Empire.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—(Special.)—Council sat from 4 to 6 yesterday afternoon, but the only announcement made after its adjournment was that Thanksgiving day has been fixed for Thursday, 21st November.

Before Recorder Champagne in Hull yesterday morning Miss Duval, a school teacher of Deschene Mills, was charged with assaulting one of her scholars, named Anderson, by striking him over the head with a rule. The clothing which the young boy wore at the time of the assault were shown in court, and bore evidence of the blood. Many witnesses were heard on both sides, and judgment will be given next Saturday.

The result of the enquiry at the court-house by the Law Society of Ontario is that one Mr. Bowlby, a lawyer of the city will be brought before the judge and an application will be made his name struck from the list of legalized practitioners because of his neglect to pay his fees to the Law Society association. This annual fee is $17, and the party referred to has not paid up since 1885.

Some interesting figures have been compiled by Mr. Geo. Johnson, the Government statistician regarding the railway business of Canada during the last year. In this year 1894 was a very trying year for the railway interests of this continent, but the statistics show that the railways of Canada suffered less proportionately than did those of the United States, as indeed nearly all the industries have. The analysis of the figures shows that, while the United States had an increase of only 1.3 per cent in the number of miles in operation in 1894, compared with 1893, Canada increased her money by 2.4 per cent. in 1894 than they did in 1893. Tested by the number of passengers carried per mile of railway, Canadian railways show a gain of 2 per cent., while the United States railways show a loss of 8.3 per cent. When the receipts per train mile are taken into consideration, it is shown that the Canadian railways lost ground to the extent of two per cent., while the United States railways decreased to the extent of more than four times the loss sustained by the railways in Canada. In the matter of freight carried, the United States railways lost in 1894 nearly one-half per cent. more than while the Canadian railways lost about one-seventeenth. The earnings from freight decreased in both cases, but more in proportion in the case of the United States railways than in the case of the Canadian railways. All the facts point to the same general conclusion, viz., that the United States railways suffered more than the Canadian railways. Putting the two into statistical form, if 100 represents the decrease in the United States railways 6.46 would represent the decrease in the Canadian railways, judged by gross receipts.

One of the most interesting papers read at the Convention of Stationary Engineers last week was prepared by Mr. A. E. Peddle, on the subject of boiler explosions. It pointed out that the more general causes of explosions are bad workmanship, defects in design, and weakening and wasting of the structure from old age. When an explosion takes place, it is quite common thing to hear men attribute the cause to a lack of water in the boiler, and some go so far as to infer that the boiler must have been empty and red hot, and the explosion caused by turning on the feed pump and forcing cold water on the red-hot sheets, which instantaneously into steam (instantaneously) of sufficient pressure to cause the destruction of the boiler. This is a most absurd theory. Taking an ordinary horizontal cylindrical tubular boiler, which will have about 200 square feet of heating surface, and would contain 8,225 pounds of nearly its own weight and 2,854 pounds of steam, and according to the table prepared by A. Thurston, the stored energy created in the water would be 56,068,790 foot pounds, while that in the steam would be but 1,922,731 foot pounds, or only one-fiftieth of that stored up in the water. It is very plain therefore that the bulk of destruction in a boiler explosion emanates from the heat stored up in the water. It follows therefore that the class of boiler containing the most water must, in the event of an explosion, cause the greater amount of damage. Many instances were given where cold water had been turned into red-hot boilers without serious results.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell has been invited to unveil the monument to Sir John Macdonald in Kingston. The date of the ceremony has not yet been definitely fixed, but it will be some time next month, probably about the last week. Dr. Montague, Secretary of State, has also been asked to be present and deliver an address.

Lieut.-Gov. Chapleau is expected here to-morrow on his way home from his trip to the coast. He will probably spend a day or two here and in Montreal before proceeding to Quebec.

Arrangements were made to open the new Conservative rooms at London. The event will be marked by the visit of a number of the members of the Cabinet. It is expected that the rooms will be opened during the last week in October.

Mr. W. Y. Soper, vice-president of the Ottawa Electric Railway Company, says Ottawa is not yet large enough to require Sunday street cars.

Sir Frank Smith left for home last night.

THE LIMESTONE CITY.

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 29.—(Special.)—Mr. George Mills has been elected president of the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors, succeeding Mr. H. A. Calvin, M.P.

George Farley, Bath, is in Napanee gaol, on a charge of incest. His daughter denies the charge, and claims her condition was the result of an assault by a stranger.

Mr. Michael Flanagan, city Clerk, on Saturday celebrated his 72nd birthday. He has been 52 years in the clerkship—the oldest official in continuous service in any Canadian municipality.

DOINGS IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Sept. 29.—(Special.)—Much speculation has been caused in railway circles by the publication of despatches from Chicago stating that radical changes were to be made in the Grand Trunk official staff as a result of Sir Charles Wilson's visit. The despatches went so far as to mention the nature of the changes, it being stated that Mr. L. J. Seargent would retire from the general managership. The announcement is, to say the least, premature. Mr. Seargent, when seen yesterday in regard to the matter, said that the whole thing was an arrant guesswork, and the mention of any changes was premature. Mr. Seargeant added:—"I have just returned after having been with Sir Charles Rivers Wilson over the Grand Trunk system. I may say that Sir Charles and his colleagues expressed themselves as delighted with all they saw with the line, the equipment, the officials, etc. Sir Charles and the colleagues, when they return to London, will make a report to the Board of Directors, and there may possibly be some changes. What these changes will be, and who will be affected therefrom, it is altogether premature for any one on this side to say. Nobody here can possibly know anything about it. The board may take action upon the report. It will do, I presume, when it resumes work, but to mention names now, and to transfer men from one position to another, is pure speculation."

There was some sensational evidence in the Dumouchel murder case on Saturday afternoon. The defence called as a witness Arthur Trudeau, a mailman, living on St. Cuneg order, who told in substance the following story. Among his customers was Madame Chartrand, who lived three doors east of the Demers' residence, on Notre Dame de Grace, near St. Henri. On Sunday morning before the murder he left milk there at 9.20 o'clock. He did not know Madame Demers personally, but on that morning a woman came from the house in which he was told Madame Demers lived, and he bought a pint of milk. He asked if he would be supplied regularly, and was so. The woman then went back to the house she had come from. On the following Thursday, the day of the murder, he again left milk to Madame Chartrand. Coming out of the house he looked at his watch. It was exactly 6.30 o'clock. Looking up to the Demers' house he saw the woman who had bought the milk on the Sunday looking out of the window. She was leaning over the sill, and was dressed in the same dark clothes as when he saw her first. He bowed to her, and she waved her hand to him, then went on his rounds. He was positive as to the day, hour, house, and woman. If the witness is to be credited, the whole of the Crown case against Demers falls to the ground, as at the time mentioned he was at his work, and if the woman seen at the window was Mrs. Demers he could not have committed the murder.

The trial of Cuthbert Valentine Shortis, commonly known as the Valleyfield murderer, which will commence at Beauharnois on Tuesday next, is likely to lead to a great legal battle, in which the eligible women will be the prize at stake. There is no mystery surrounding the case, such as exists in the Dumouchel case, but the Court of Queen's Bench in this city, before which the collodioned murder committed by the prisoner are clear and emphatic.

Rev. Rev. Mr. de Foville, of the Archbishop's household, will shortly go to Rome to place the documents for the canonization of the venerable Jacques Olier, founder of the Order of St. Sulpice, in the possession of the Sacred Congregation of Rites. The necessary measures have been proceeding here for the last five years.

Charles Finnie, a prominent member of the Montreal Hunt Club, while out on the hounds yesterday, was thrown from his horse, and sustained injuries which it is feared may prove fatal.

THE FOREST CITY.

London, Ont., Sept. 29.—(Special.)—The reports from Stratford and Sarnia that the Mayors of those cities had been notified by Sir Charles Rivers Wilson that the Grand Trunk would establish their western car shops in London have been confirmed by a letter to Mayor Little, of the city, from the president. The Mayor has been negotiating privately with the Grand Trunk ever since Sir Charles' office, and the matter was doubtless discussed on the latter's recent visit here, when he granted Sir John Carling and Mayor Little a long interview. The decision will be welcome news to the city as the east end suffered severely through the removal of the car shops from there to Brantford and Toronto. It means an addition to the population of 2,000 to 2,000 souls.

Twenty doctors in the city, about forty have signed an agreement in which each one has agreed to accept a position as physician of any society. The object is to abolish lodge doctoring in the cities. Its opponents claim that it lessens the just emoluments of the profession. The societies employing physicians, of whom there are about seventy, threaten to withdraw unless the physicians if the local movement succeeds.

FROG IN HIS STOMACH.

Foley lives on the other on a farm, and Dickinson for $12 a year.

Ever since the water two years Foley experienced violent pains in his stomach. He consulted Drs. Bonesteel and Sweeney. Shortly afterward while playing dominoes with his family one evening a noise was heard, that caused the children to laugh and shout, "A frog! a frog!" Suddenly it dawned upon Foley that he had swallowed some live thing while drinking the water. He claims that the creature inside him is a frog. He says that recently in church the frog kicked up a fuss in his stomach, croaking and making other sounds, until, disturbing the meeting, he walked out of the building.

MANITOBA MATTERS.

Winnipeg, Sept. 29.—(Special.)—Mr. N. Clark, a prominent fruit grower yesterday from British Columbia, and after a stop over of an hour, left on the Atlantic express for Ontario.

As reports continue to come in, it is evident that the damage done by the prairie fires is considerable. At Rosenvain, among those who suffered most are Chr. Burgess and Jno. Whelan, the former losing 200 acres in stock, and some stacks; J. Whelan, 100 acres of oats and stock; Johnson Bros., 70 acres of wheat, in the stook; Clark, 10 stacks of wheat; Sell, four stacks of wheat; Andrew Walker, 12 stacks of wheat. Two miles north and two miles east of Rosenvain the fire took a northerly course, doing damage. At Ninga the following have been losers:—W. Nay, 80 tons of hay; M. Darragh, 25 acres of wheat; W. Bibby, 500 bushels of wheat; R. Vipond, all his crop. At Deloraine many individuals lost from 1,200 to 2,000 bushels of wheat. At Pilot Mound 15 acres of oats were burned. At Killarney more than 2,000 bushels of wheat were burned.

ENGLISH WEATHER.

London, Sept. 29.—The extraordinary hot weather eclipsed all other topics in England last week. On Tuesday the thermometer indicated 86 degrees in the shade in London, and 135 in the sun. The record is 20 degrees above the September average, and four degrees higher than on any previous day of this summer. The weather since Tuesday has shown little improvement, the mercury on each day rising to 84 degrees or higher. There have been numerous cases of sunstroke during the week, and several fatalities have resulted in various parts of the country.

PROFESSOR PASTEUR DEAD.

Britain's Decisive Action in China—The Czarewitch in the Last Stages of Consumption—Extraordinary Hot Weather in England.

London, Sept. 29.—The demonstration of a powerful squadron proceeding up the Yangtse-Kiang is the sequence of the tacit refusal of the Pekin Government to satisfy the demands of the Marquis of Salisbury for the punishment of the late Viceroy of Sze-Chuen. Prince Ben, Minister O'Connor reported to be responsible for the outrages beginning in May at the mission stations at Chengtu, which were followed by the massacre at Ku-Cheng. The Viceroy's term of office expiring, he left Chengtu, and the Government tried to induce Minister O'Connor to believe that the withdrawal of the Viceroy had been enforced, and that this act on the part of China sought to satisfy the British Government. Lord Salisbury, however, instructed the British Minister that nothing would suffice less than a public imperial decree banishing the Viceroy beyond the frontiers of China, and a statement that the crime for which he was punished was neglect to afford protection to the missions. This action of Lord Salisbury appears to have been supported by the conviction that the Chinese literati, abetted by most of the higher officials, foment agitation against the missionary agencies and that the degradation of the Viceroy would be a blow to the literati. It is expected that before the whole of China. The decisive attitude of England and those of the report that the Foreign Office entertained a proposal to withdraw the missionaries to treaty ports is understood that the United States Government, although not actively co-operating with the British Government, has been informed of and approves the latter's plans to protect the missions, which involve the strongest practical measure in the event of the mere squadron demonstration proving insufficient to wake up the Government at Pekin.

Many protests more or less serious are appearing in the newspapers of London on the depletion of the ranks of eligible women by marriage with American women. In connection with the Marlborough-Vanderbilt engagement, Truth prints an amusing letter signed "Dowager Duchess," in which the writer says that she has converted her house into a ludicrous combination music hall, burlesque stage, gambling-rooms, and café, and has had her daughters instructed in the most seductive steps and highest kicks. They have been specially encouraged to sing the broadest songs, and no restraint whatever has been attempted over the conduct of the girls. The facts have collodioned murder committed by the writer are clear and emphatic.

Rev. Rev. Mr. de Foville, of the Archbishop's household, will shortly go to Rome to place the documents for the canonization of the venerable Jacques Olier, founder of the Order of St. Sulpice, in the possession of the Sacred Congregation of Rites. The necessary measures have been proceeding here for the last five years.

Charles Finnie, a prominent member of the Montreal Hunt Club, while out on the hounds yesterday, was thrown from his horse, and sustained injuries which it is feared may prove fatal.

THE FOREST CITY.

London, Ont., Sept. 29.—(Special.)—The reports from Stratford and Sarnia that the Mayors of those cities had been notified by Sir Charles Rivers Wilson that the Grand Trunk would establish their western car shops in London have been confirmed by a letter to Mayor Little, of the city, from the president. The Mayor has been negotiating privately with the Grand Trunk ever since Sir Charles' office, and the matter was doubtless discussed on the latter's recent visit here, when he granted Sir John Carling and Mayor Little a long interview. The decision will be welcome news to the city as the east end suffered severely through the removal of the car shops from there to Brantford and Toronto. It means an addition to the population of 2,000 to 2,000 souls.

Twenty doctors in the city, about forty have signed an agreement in which each one has agreed to accept a position as physician of any society. The object is to abolish lodge doctoring in the cities. Its opponents claim that it lessens the just emoluments of the profession. The societies employing physicians, of whom there are about seventy, threaten to withdraw unless the physicians if the local movement succeeds.

FROG IN HIS STOMACH.

Rochester, Sept. 29.—James Foley, of Wheatland, N. Y., is suing Philip C. Dickinson for $5,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been caused by drinking impure water purchased from Dickinson.

Foley lives on the other on a farm, and Dickinson for $12 a year.

Ever since the water two years Foley experienced violent pains in his stomach. He consulted Drs. Bonesteel and Sweeney. Shortly afterward while playing dominoes with his family one evening a noise was heard, that caused the children to laugh and shout, "A frog! a frog!" SAN FRANCISCO MURDER.

San Francisco, Sept. 29.—An evening paper yesterday published an interview with Thos Durant, in which the prisoner expressed his disgust at the witnesses who had testified for the prosecution. "I wonder the fate of Annie and Sapphira has not overtaken some of them," he is quoted as saying. "It is strange to me that they have not been struck dead for what they have said against me on the stand." Durant expresses confidence in his ultimate acquittal in the opinion of many members of the local bar, and the door for the admission of all the evidence in the Williams case at the present trial for the murder of Blanche Lamont. During the examination of Redbeard Reynolds and Burke, who were called by the defence, questions were asked concerning a shoe with a brown stain on the sole found in the pastor's study. The prosecution claim the right to demonstrate that the stain on the shoe produced by have resulted from walking around Emanuel church over the murdered body of Minnie Williams. Mrs. Evidence could then be put in showing the condition of the room where the deed was committed, and the possibility of a person entering it getting blood on the feet. The defence will fight any proposition that has for its object the setting before the jury any fact regarding the William's murder. The District Attorney says he is satisfied he has put in very strong case, and does not like to take the chance of introducing the testimony that might be declared irrelevant by the Superior Court. The defence does not seem to have so much confidence in their case as it did a few days ago, and their efforts are now being devoted to an attempt to find flaws in the prosecution. Not one of Durant's 75 class mates will stand by the front and say Durant attended Dr. Cheney's lectures on April 2. The simple fact that nobody recollects his presence there is very positive, the prosecuting attorney thinks, that he was absent.

SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S NEWS

Oscar Wilde is said to be failing physically in Wandsworth prison. There is a growing sympathy for the prisoner, particularly as he remains in solitary.

It is generally understood in English political circles that it is the intention of the Unionist party to endeavor to secure for the reform of the House of Lords.

Lieut.-Col. Sir Walter Wilkin, alderman for the Lime street ward, was on Saturday elected Lord Mayor of London for the ensuing year, to succeed Sir Joseph Renals.

Both political parties are preparing for the fray in England, and many of the principal speakers on both sides are announced to speak during the coming months.

Dean Farrar, in an address last week, declared that the appeals and work of the temperance societies had scarcely touched the fringe of the conscience of the English people.

The relations between Emperor William and Prince von Hohenlohe are so strained that it would not be surprising if there should be a new Chancellor before the expiration of the year.

There is much speculation in Montreal regarding the rumoured chances in the Grand Trunk railway official staff. General Manager Seargent is not liked, and that the rumoured chances were premature.

According to the London Times, the Irish land question will be settled next year, and this will be followed in 1897 by an Irish Local Government measure, which will probably include the creation of a central Council in Dublin.

It is stated in Washington that the United States Government has given to the Spanish Minister that unless Spain stores order within a certain time in Cuba there will be international interference on behalf of the insurgents.

In closing the Criminal Assizes at Toronto on Saturday Judge McDougall strongly condemned the overcrowded condition of the Central prison, which he described as a disgraceful state of affairs. He urged that the Provincial Government should immediately enlarge the building.

GUELPH 2, LONDON 1.

Guelph, Sept. 28.—Only a handful of doubled-eyed ball cranks shivered in the cold to-day while London and the Maple City battled for the championship honors of the season. It was a pitchers' battle, in which honors were easy for Hall and Twiglets, though Hart, Sheere pitched a wonderful game for Guelph. The score:

London ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1 5 1
Leafs ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—2 3 4 5

YACHTING.

New York, Sept. 28.—Chairman James D. Smith, of the Association which organizes, has made the following statement:—"I have been authorized to say that, after full discussion of the Duryeas question, but for this much I will be responsible—Winton, in the two days' sail, the Duryeas said to me, 'Commodore Smith, what will be the classification?' I replied if I should present another challenge I would be accepted. They replied that it was my belief that such a challenge would be accepted. That the race could not be sailed until after the race between the Defender and Valkyrie, and that of Charles D. Rose. I also expressed the hope that one of the challenges might be presented, and then we could have two races next year."

THE RING.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 28.—Ex-Governor Roberts has requested Governor Culberson commending his conduct in calling the Legislature to meet on special session, however, about the Legislature passing a law with the requisite majority to give it immediate effect. Inquiry sent to members as far as heard from indicate that a law to take immediate effect making prize fighting a felony will go through by an overwhelming majority. It is claimed, however, by those favoring the fight that Governor Culberson should have called the Legislature immediately after Judge Hurt's decision in favor of the fight management had expended thousands of dollars on their building.

THE ANCIENT CAPITAL.

Quebec, Sept. 29.—(Special.)—Two sons of Ivariste Labonte, aged 11 and 13 years respectively, were found by the road near St. Celestin, Que., yesterday, suffering from fever. It is believed that annuation was necessary.

In addition to the costs for damages for $10,000 brought by Lieut.-Col. Wilson against the Toronto Globe, he has also taken out another for a similar amount against Major Manley, the alleged author of the libellous article.

General Gascoigne, the new commander of the Canadian forces, arrived over the steamship Parisian. He was met here by the principal military men of the city, and also by Col. Lake, Quartermaster-General. A guard of honour of fifty men, under Major Farley, was drawn up to meet their new commander, who appeared delighted with the character and cheerful appearance of the men, which, he said, was much above that of the many boys who enlist in Australia. The General proceeded to Montreal

THE CUBAN INSURRECTION.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—A special from Washington says:—"Spain must crush the Cuban insurrection during the next three months or submit to foreign aid. Such is the significance of a series of conferences just held between Secretary Olney and the Spanish Minister, Senor Dupuy de Lome. The United States has agreed to give the present to preserve neutrality, but this is accompanied by a tacit warning that unless Spain carries out her promise of suppressing the insurrection and restoring order to Cuba within a reasonable time she must expect the United States Government to pursue a quite different policy. In other words, Spain is to be given one chance to demonstrate her ability to rule the island, and if failing in this the chances are the United States Government will take the leadership in international intervention with the complete autonomy, or perhaps the independence, of Cuba as the objective point. The conferences were held at the request of Secretary Olney, who asked Senor Dupuy de Lome for a full statement of the condition of affairs in Cuba, the intention of the Spanish Government, its ability to protect American citizens and their property, and the prospect of suppressing the insurrection."

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, SEPT. 30.

A WORD JUGGLER.

The Edmonton Herald has very cleverly shown how successful Mr. Laurier has been in causing two newspapers, differing as widely as possible on the Manitoba School question, to believe that he favors the view held by each of them. The following extracts are high testimony to the Leader of the Opposition's success in juggling with words:

Winnipeg Tribune on Mr. Laurier's speech on the school question.	Quebec L'Electeur on the same speech on the school question.
"Although not stated in so many words, the impression created by Mr. Laurier's declaration on the school question in Parliament on Monday, that if called upon to deal with this vexed question he will stand upon the broad principle of provincial rights and decline to interfere with this province being made a request for what he might deem the fairest of fair treatment of the minority in the circumstances. This is safe ground for the Liberal leader to take.	"Mr. Laurier has pronounced himself boldly for the restoration, in substance, the separate schools in Manitoba, and has vigorously reproached the Government for not having interfered more promptly."

We are sure Mr. Laurier does not believe in Separate schools: he is much too advanced and liberal a thinker to endorse them."

Weak and Nervous

Describes the condition of thousands of people at this season. They have no appetite, cannot sleep, and complain of the prostrating effect of warm weather. This condition may be remedied by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which creates an appetite and tones up all the organs. It gives good health by making the blood pure.

SAN FRANCISCO MURDER TRIAL.

Sensational Evidence at the Demers Murder Trial—Return of Peary, the Arctic Explorer—Mr. Lowther's Tour in Ontario—A Montreal Huntsman Probably Fatally Injured.

Hamilton, Sept. 29.—(Special.)—The reopening services in Centenary church to-day attracted immense congregations. In the morning the Rev. Chancellor Day, of Syracuse University, preached an eloquent sermon on "God's Mode of Communication With Man." Special music was provided by the choir, and solos were sung by Mrs. Harrison, of Grimsby; Mrs. Greene, and others. In the evening the Rev. Dr. Briggs, of Toronto, was the preacher. The church has just been beautifully renewed and redecorated throughout, the seats newly upholstered in tints to correspond with the general colour scheme, and an ornate gothic porch erected in front of the building. The Rev. Smith, the pastor, and the Rev. Dr. Burns assisted at the services to-day.

George Smith, the well-known piper, was arrested last evening on the terrible charge of incest. Smith had been working on the Welland branch of the T. H. and B., and came home to Spencer Gardens on Tuesday last. Smith's daughter Maggie gave birth to a child at the hospital. It is said that she gave some of the neighbours and Chief Smith the name of her alleged betrayer, and it was on information obtained from her that the warrant was issued. Since the death of her mother, three or four years ago, the girl has been keeping house for her father. Smith's friends claim he is innocent. They say the fact that he returned to the city notwithstanding the accusation made against him is proof of his innocence.

W. B. Palmer, the defaulting teller of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was brought before Police Magistrate Jelfs yesterday. He was not arraigned, but was remanded until Wednesday, at the request of Chief Smith. Such a change was made in the prisoner's appearance by the absence of his moustache and his cropped hair that his friends failed to recognize him. Mr. J. W. Nesbitt, Q.C., has been retained to defend Palmer. There are rumours that the shortage will amount to $25,000. The exact amount will not be known until the examination of the books is completed. It is said that when Palmer lost money on the horses he patronized the "bucket shops," and got drunk on the mix. There is likely to be a contest over the reward of $250 offered for the capture of the absconder. Detective Reid considers that he is entitled to the money, but Chief Smith says it is a rule that all reward money shall be divided equally among the detectives.

Mayor Stewart returned yesterday from Italy. He is much improved in health.

It is expected that the Rev. John McNeill, the famous Scotch divine, will hold a series of meetings here some time in December under the auspices of the Hamilton Presbyterian Union.

A new infirmary is being built at the Hamilton insane asylum. It will cost $25,000 or $30,000, and will accommodate 70 patients.

PROF. PASTEUR.

Paris, Sept. 29.—Professor Louis Pasteur, the eminent bacteriologist, died last evening at 5 o'clock. He died at his residence, Villeneuve l'Etang, in the environs of this city. Prof. Louis Pasteur had suffered from paralysis for a considerable period of time. About eight days ago he sustained a violent paralytic stroke, and on Friday suffered still another severe attack. He grew worse rapidly, and remained in a comatose condition during his last hours. At five o'clock yesterday afternoon he expired. The end was absolutely without pain. His wife devotedly watched his bedside. His son, his daughter, and his son-in-law, M. Valery-radot, and his grandchildren, as well as Dr. Roux and Dr. Chantemesse, were present when he passed away.

WAR IN MADAGASCAR.

London, Sept. 29.—The Pall Mall Gazette publishes a special despatch from Tamatave, Madagascar, which says that news of a serious character has been received in regard to the position of the French troops at the front. According to these advices Gen. Duchesne has been compelled to fall back upon Mevatanana, withdrawing his advance guards, which had reached 40 Kilosly, 60 miles from Antananarivo. The retreat of the French has restored the confidence of the Malagassys. A large quantity of arms had reached the capital, and in consequence people who formerly were thinking of flight are now volunteering to go to the front. It is reported that the physical condition of the French troops at Mevatanana is such that there are hardly 200 effective men left. The foregoing despatch bears no date.

The "World's Fair" Seen at Its Best — The Officers — Candy Butchers, Phrenologists, Dog Shows, Etc.—A Large Number of Exhibitors The Industrial Department Well Filled —Speeding to the Ring.

The "World's Fair" at Shannonville on Saturday attracted a very large crowd of people, as was expected. The fair was one of the best, if not the best held by the Society. The departments were all filled and the exhibits were equal to any shown at the other township fairs. The Society own their ground, and are improving them each year as their finances will allow. This year they have built 140 rods of new board fence around the grounds and otherwise improved them. The officers of the Society are most obliging and the INTELLIGENCER has to thank especially the Secretary for courtesies. Following are the officers for the ensuing year:

President, S. Geddes; Vice-President, M. Hill; Secretary, A. McFarlane; Treasurer, D. McLennan. Directors—D. Hanley, J. Sutton, R. J. Garbutt, R. G. Martin, Geo. Munro, R. Elliot, F. West, A. Pitman, A. McFarlane.

The space inside the track on Saturday afternoon presented a lively scene. There were by actual count thirteen candy butchers and refreshment booths, to say nothing of a French phrenologist in the bouquet attire of his native land, a dog show, a razor paste vendor and a man who sold cheap jewellery as a bait to a more paying game. These various stands were ranged in a row in Midway Plaisance and the shouting of each made a veritable pandemonium.

During the afternoon two speeding contests were held on the track, which was very dusty. About the only drawback to good sport was the lack of marshals to keep the track clear and the persistence of some parties in driving on it after being asked to keep off. The first race called was the 2.50 class and it resulted as follows without any particular features, except that neither Jessie Stanton nor Frank G. was driven to win:

W. A. Chapman's Symbol, b.s.	1	1	2
G. Sills' Jessie Stanton, s.m.	2	2	1
W. Schryver's Frank G., br.	3	3	3

Time, 3:02, 3:03, 3:05 and 3:00.

The other race was a free-for-all and was a good race between Kate O'Brien and Nellie P., but Picket Boy was never in it. Following is the summary:

E. Kenny's Kate O'Brien, br.m.	1	1	1
Geo. Stewart's Nellie P., b.m.	2	2	2
W. Weese's Picket Boy, r.g.	3	3	3

Time, 2:51, 2:44, 2:40.

S. Bull's stallion Commonwealth paced an exhibition half mile in very fast time, although not in condition. The judges were J. Johnston, of this city, W. Hatch and Dr. Leslie, V. S., Deseronto.

The principal exhibitors in cattle were A. Farnsworth, G. Munro, W. Clasie, F. Brown, G. Johnston, J. G. Allison, Dr. Oronhyatekha, G. W. Collins, E. Williams and R. G. Martin.

There were some very fine horses on exhibition. The following gentlemen were the principal exhibitors: R. J. Martin, F. West, J. G. Allison, A. MacFarlane, G. Taylor, S. Geddes, F. Brown, T. Barber, H. Lennox, Dr. Oronhyatekha, W. Clazie, P. Badgley, W. A. Chapman, J. Davis, E. Williams, R. Johnston, M. Coulter, W. Gorsline, S. Dunning, N. E. Clark, A. McAllister, A. J. Smith, H. McMillan and J. Dunning.

In sheep and swine the principal exhibitors were: R. G. Martin, R. J. Garbutt, A. T. Frink, G. Munro, J. Bunnett, T. Barber, A. Brown, F. Brown, J. M. Hurley, W. Clasie, Dr. Oronhyatekha.

In the poultry A. T. Frink and A. Latta carried off most of the prizes, while in the ladies' department Miss S. Barber very nearly swept the board in firsts. The fruits and vegetables were good, and R. J. Garbutt, A. Latta, M. Coulter, A. M. Weese, D. McMullen, J. Barlow, John Geddes, M. Shetlor, S. Moult and E. Williams were the principal exhibitors.

Space will not permit us giving the prize list to-day, but it will be given hereafter.

The judges for the different departments were:

Horses—Road or carriage J. Johnston, Dr. Leslie, V. S., W. Hatch. Heavy draught and general purpose—H. Fairman, F. Gault and G. Badgley.

Cattle—A. Campbell, James Bunnett and John Cole.

Sheep and swine—H. Hicks, S. Herrington and G. H. Embury.

Farming implements and leather—M. Ryan, Jas. McDougall and S. Sutton.

Dairy produce, fruit and vegetables—D. J. Fairfield and Thos. Leitch.

Grain and roots—Wm. Mayell and John Robinson.

Poultry—Philip Hart.

Domestic manufactures and ladies' department—Wm. Mundell, Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Dart.

NOTES.

A large number of visitors to the fair stayed to the concert in the evening.

Didn't we Sell Clothing?

You should have seen us hustle out the clothing at the Oak Hall on Saturday last. Every day from 8 o'clock left the store for dinner, and at night the store was simply packed. We are very pleased that our business is steadily increasing, and we sincerely thank our customers for their continued confidence. The people say:—"We have confidence in you."

Bleecker St. Church.

The Rev. J. Anderson occupied the pulpit in the morning yesterday, taking his text from Math. vi: 9, "Hallowed be thy name." In the evening Mr. Lousley from Albert College, gave an impressive sermon from Revelations xxii: 17, "And the spirit and the bride say come. And let him that heareth say come. And let him that is athirst come, and whosoever will let him take the water of life freely." Mr. Tink, from Albert College, lead the E. L. of C. E. meeting held immately after the public service. Instead of taking up the regular lesson he read a very interesting paper on "An Ideal League," which was very highly appreciated.

HOLLOWAY ST. CHURCH.

Interesting Discourse by Rev. Dr. Cade, the Pastor.

Holloway st. church services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Cade, who preached in the morning from Isaiah 30-8. The Rev. Dr. remarked that the great events in Jewish history were their pilgrimages from Egypt and the return from Babylonish captivity, and the incidents connected therewith burnt themselves deeply into Jewish memory. When the gates of Babylon were opened for their return they hastened to march. The Lord by the mouth of the prophet had commanded "Go ye out from them," declaring that he would go before them and prepare the way, so when they came to march they found everything ready, all obstacles to their return home removed. So Christ has removed all obstacles from the way of the sinner's return to God.

The way opened up by Christ is a legally authorized way. The King's way, not for a privileged few, but an highway for all people; none can be obstructed or hindered who sincerely desire to reach thereon. No power in the physical or spiritual world can debar the return of a truly earnest soul to God. All obstacles have been removed for 2000 years. It is not an unfrequented way like that trodden by our fathers, obstructed by thorns and briars, but a clear way made smooth by the multitude of saints, martyrs and just men made perfect who have already passed over it. Not the world's way, but a divine way, illuminated by the transforming power of the Holy Spirit. None shall walk in darkness. "A way shall be there." This scripture is fulfilled whenever a sinner evidences a sincere desire to turn to God. God says "I will make all my way a mountain." The way is easy of access, ever nigh the sinner who longs to get to God. The Jews wanted to escape by the power of their own arm, but God raised up Cyrus. The Lord's way for a sinner is by the cross, and it is only by accepting God's way, renouncing self, that the sinner is able to get in the way and walk thereon. It is a way of holiness because Christ has walked thereon. It is a clear way. "The wayfaring man, though a fool, shall not err therein." Nothing dark or mysterious about sacred things. The poorest and the simplest may find the way to heaven. The road from Babylon to Jerusalem was lined on either side by lions and other ravenous beasts and stragglers were sure to be devoured. So sinners are only safe when on the King's highway.

The path of duty is the path of safety. God's presence ever makes his way a safe way. The way is not sorrowful, for "The ransomed of the Lord shall come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy." God's people went to Babylon weeping, but returned rejoicing. "Then was our mouth filled with laughter, young men and maidens took down from the willows their harps long untuned and sang with joy the songs they could not sing in captivity." The eyes of the blind were opened and they saw things they never saw before. Every step seemed to give new inspiration; a true type of the life of the christian. Jerusalem the golden is not far away. Many voices are calling us thither. The fingers of the ransomed of all ages are beckoning us away. Let us determine that we will march to the music of the angelic choristers who have gone before.

In the evening the Dr. spoke feelingly and eloquently to a large congregation from Hosea 2, 14 and 15, dwelling chiefly on the thought that God frequently allures his people into wildernesses of trouble and difficulties, that blemishes may be removed from their spiritual natures, their characters perfected, their doors of usefulness opened up to them and higher degrees of enjoyment conferred upon them.

Successful Concert at Shannonville.

A very successful concert was given at Shannonville on Saturday evening under the auspices of the Epworth League of the Methodist church. A LOT OF TROUBLE IN ONE DAY

Geo. Humphries Loses a Horse and Breaks His Leg.

George Humphries, living in the 3rd con. of Thurlow, about six miles from the city, was a most unfortunate man on Saturday last. He drove to the city in the morning with his three daughters, in a democrat drawn by a span of good horses. After he had marketed his produce one of his horses took sick and died.

To take his daughters home he borrowed a pair of shafts and put them on the waggon instead of the pole and hitched on his remaining horse. He started for home and got as far as the hill near Bleecker st. church when the shafts, which did not work right, gave way and the occupants of the waggon were thrown out. The girls were not seriously hurt, but Mr. Humphries had one of his legs broken and otherwise badly shaken up. Medical attendance was summoned at once and his injuries attended to. He will have the sympathy of the community in which he lives in his double misfortune.

At an Apple-cut With a Horsewhip.

BY GALLIMORE LYON.

Once upon a time a country parson, in this veritable county of Hastings, found his Friday evening congregation smaller than was usual or satisfactory, and, upon inquiring the reason, learned that a large number of his folk were gathered at an "apple-cut" at the house of one of his farmer friends who lived and labored in the vicinity.

Now, an "apple-cut," it should be explained for the benefit of such of the unsophisticated as live in towns and cities, is autumn festival of a fruitful orchard and it is also identical with such of your high-flown terms as reunion, reception, banquet, and the like. If there were not plenty of apples there were no need for a "cut," but, apples being plentiful, it is necessary to ask help of one's neighbors in the work, as no farmer's family is equal to the task alone. The parson's ire was soon told. All the young people of the neighborhood are congregated, there is plenty of kindly banter and fun, and when the bushels of fruit have been pared, cored, and prepared for drying, there is a general washing of stained fingers, a hurried setting of long tables, and a sumptuous supper is soon spread.

"I am going to that apple-cut," said the parson to the faithful few who had attended the service alluded to, "and I am going to take my horse-whip," he exclaimed, amazed of the Lord shall come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy." God's people went to Babylon weeping, but returned rejoicing. "Then was our mouth filled with laughter, young men and maidens took down from the willows their harps long untuned and sang with joy the songs they could not sing in captivity." The eyes of the blind were opened and they saw things they never saw before. Every step seemed to give new inspiration; a true type of the life of the christian. Jerusalem the golden is not far away. that Mrs. Frank Armour and her maid had been safely bestowed on the Alpha-dette for England. This was the first act in his tragic comedy.

CHAPTER II.

When Mrs. Frank Armour arrived at Montreal, she still wore her Indian costume of clean well broidered buckskin, moccasins and leggings, all surmounted by a blanket. It was not a distinguished costume, but it seemed suitable to its wearer. Mr. Armour's agent was in a quandary. He had had no instructions regarding her dress. He felt, of course, that as Mrs. Frank Armour she should put off these garments and dress as far as possible in accordance with her new position. But when he spoke about it to Mackenzie, the elderly maid and companion, he found that Mr. Armour had said that his wife was to arrive in England dressed as she was. He knew something ulterior in the matter, but it was not his province to interfere. And so Mrs. Frank Armour was a passenger by the Alphodite in her buckskin garments.

What she thought of it all is not quite easy to say. It is possible that at first she only considered that she was the wife of a white man—a thing to be desired—and that the man she loved was hers forever—a matter of indefinable joy to her. That he was sending her to England did not fret her, because it was his will, and he knew what was best. Busy with her contented and yet somewhat dazed thoughts of him, she was too happy to be very active mentally, even if it had been the characteristic of her race. She was not at first aware of how much notice she excited and how strange a figure she was in this strange city. When it did dawn upon her, she shrank a little, but still was placid, preferring to sit, with her hands folded in her lap, idly watching things. She appeared oblivious that she was the wife of a man of family and rank. She was only thinking that the man was hers—all hers.

He had treated her kindly enough in the days they were together, but she had not been a great deal with him because they traveled fast, and his duties were many, or he made them so, but the latter possibility did not occur to her. When he had hastily bidden her farewell at Port Arthur, he had kissed her and said, "Goodby, my wife." She was not acute enough yet in the inflections of Saxon speech to catch the satire—almost involuntary—in the last two words. She remembered the words, however, and the kiss, and she was quite satisfied. To what she was going she did not speculate. He was sending her—that was enough.

The woman given to her as maid had been well chosen. Armour had done this carefully. She was Scotch, was reserved, had a certain amount of shrewdness, would obey instructions and do her duty carefully. What she thought about the whole matter she kept to herself. Even the solicitor at Montreal could not find out. She had her instructions clear in her mind. She was determined to carry them out to the letter, for which she was already well paid and was likely to be better paid, because Armour had arranged that she should continue to live with his wife after they got to England. She understood well the language of Lali's tribe, and because Lali's English was limited she would be indispensable in England.

Mackenzie therefore had responsibility, and if she was not elated over it she still knew the importance of her position and had enough practical vanity to make her an efficient servant and companion. She already felt that she had got the position in life, from which she was to go out no more forever. She had been brought up in the shadow of Alnwick castle, and she knew what was due to her charge—by other people. Herself she should have liberty with her. She was taking Lali to the home of General Armour, and that must be kept constantly before her mind. Therefore from the day they set foot on the Alphodite she kept her place beside Mrs. Armour, sitting with her—they walked very little—and scarcely ever speaking, either to her or to the curious passengers. Presently the passengers became more inquisitive and made many attempts at being friendly, but these received little encouragement. It had become known who the Indian girl was, and many wild tales went about as to her marriage with Francis Armour. Now it was maintained she had saved his life at an outbreak of her tribe; again that she had found him dying in the woods and had nursed him back to life and health; yet again that she was a chieftainess, successful claimant against the Hudson's Bay company, and so on.

There were several on board who knew the Armours well by name, and two who knew them personally. One was Mr. Edward Lambert, a barrister of the Middle Temple, and the other was Mrs. Townley, a widow, a member of a well known Hertfordshire family, who, on a pleasure journey in Scotland, had met, conquered and married a wealthy young American and had been left alone in the world by no means portionless 18 months before.

Lambert knew Richard Armour well, and when, from Francis Armour's solicitor, whom he knew, he heard just before they started who the Indian girl was he was greatly shocked and sorry. He guessed at once the motive, the madness, of this marriage. But he kept his information and his opinions mostly to himself, except in so far as it seemed only due to friendship to contradict the numberless idle stories going about. After the first day at sea he came to know Mrs. Townley, and when he discovered that they had many mutual friends and that she knew the Armours he spoke a little more freely to her regarding the Indian wife and told her what he believed was the cause of the marriage.

Mrs. Townley was a woman—a girl—of uncommon gentleness of disposition, and in spite of her troubles inclined to view life with a sunny eye. She had known of Frank Armour's engagement with Miss Julia Sherwood, but she had never heard the sequel. If this was the requiescat, it had to be faced. But she was almost tremulous with sympathy when she remembered Mrs. Armour and Frank's gay, fashionable sister, Marion, and contemplated the arrival of this Indian girl at Greyhops. She had always liked Frank Armour, but this made her angry with him, for on second thought she was not more sorry for him and for his people than for Lali, the wife. She had the true instinct of womanhood, and she suspected that a heathen like this could have feelings to be hurt and a life to be wounded as herself or another. At least she saw what was possible in the future when this Indian girl came to understand her position, only to be accomplished by contact with the new life so different from her past.

Both she and Lambert decided that she was very fine looking, notwithstanding her costume. She was slim and well built, with modest bust and shapely feet and ankles. Her eyes were large, meditative and intelligent, her features distinguished. She was a goodly product of her race, being descended from a line of chiefs and chieftainesses, broken only in the case of her grandfather, as we have said. Her hands, the two kind-

Despairate Itchings of the Skin Allayed by Chase's Ointment—The Recognized Skin Specific.

It is only a few months since Dr. Chase's Ointment was brought prominently before the public, principally by its cures of stubborn and long standing cases of Itching Piles that had defied all other treatments. To-day it is recognized from coast to coast as a reliable cure for Itching Piles, Eczematic Eruptions and all Itching of the Skin. Its cures have exceeded the most sanguine expectations, and although only introduced in Canada in 1893, under date of Feb. 8, '95, writes that for a number of years we have traveled with it, but have never had occasion to write a testimonial. Only a few days ago we had a druggist call at our store, Brockville, Ont., and speak most highly of it, and so much so that he was what we considered a good customer of ours. I was sick, as never in my life, for a while—about 2 days—but I only took a portion of the Ointment and I am right again.

Such a cure does not fail to impress those who use Chase's ointment for its popularity.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith' Cor Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. Ever since using three bottles of the Vegetable Discovery the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

Humanity is the peculiar characteristic of great minds.—Chesterfield.

No person should go from home without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial in their possession, as change of water, cooling, climate, etc., frequently brings on summer complaint, and there is nothing like being ready with a sure remedy at hand which diffuses always great suffering, and frequently valuable lives. This Cordial has gained for itself a wide spread reputation for affording prompt relief from all summer complaints

There is nothing equal to Mother Graves Worm Exterminator for destroying worms. No article of its kind has given such satisfaction.

In his VEGETABLE PILLS, Dr. Parmelee has given to the world the fruits of long scientific research in the whole realm of medical science, combined with new and valuable discoveries never before known to man. For Delicate and Debilitated Constitutions Parmelee's Pills act like a charm. Taken in small doses, the effect is both a tonic and a stimulant, mildly exciting the secretions of the body, giving tone and vigor.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow neglected cold, how differently would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon the lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? It is not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. Is it not worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for its frequent complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence to curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.
